Another fancy which is fraught with delightful possibilities is that of the passe-partout. Of course you know that the literal meaning is "all the way round," and that the passe-partout binding which is sold in the shops and used for fastening the glass and the picture together instead of a frame goes by that name.

Few of us can afford expensive frames, and yet so many lovely pictures come with current magazines or possibly with the Sunday supplements of our papers that we may wish to keep without having to spend a great deal of money on them.

The passe-partout binding is cheap, easy to use after a few trials, and the glass may be obtained without any very enormous outlay. Common window glass will serve the purpose very well, indeed, and a glass cutter will cut it to the proper size for a comparatively small sum.

The passe-partouted picture makes a very pretty gift, when well done, especially when it happens to be the picture that makes some special appeal from the donor to the recipient.

The girl who loves to knit and who has been in the habit of making her own sweaters and the girl who has time for Red Cross work have their fads all ready to their hands. Just now the faddist has a wide field to choose from, and while these are really more than fads they take the place of those other outside interests which help one to forget business for a while.

For every girl who works in office or store or factory needs some compelling interest, just as bankers or other business men with large interests need change, which they find in golfing or yachting or other diversions.

Some girls drivel away so much time that they do not need any one to call their attention to the value of fancies, for they spend too much time in pleasure as it is. But the great majority of American girls have some real and serious interests in life and many of them concentrate on their work too closely. For these the fad will be found a boon which will lift them from the dull routine to the plane of eager workers, for every one knows that all work and no play makes dullards of us all.

The old fashioned scrap book has gone out of fashion, but any girl will find that this may prove of the most vital interest if she will use the old idea in a new form. If you love poetry make a book of your favorite verse.

Practical Pleasures.

If you are an amateur cook cut out your favorite recipes and put them in your scrap book against the day when you are going to housekeeping. You might find many things on this page which you might preserve in this way.

Many girls let their fads take the form of hope chests, and this is a very good and a very practical idea, for most normal girls expect to marry some day, and even if they do not bachelor maids like to have pretty things for their bachelor use as well as do brides, you know.

So choose some one thing that you like to do and make it your fad. You will find in it much pleasure.

Hope Chests

EVERY girl should have a hope chest, not necessarily because every girl expects to marry, although most of them naturally do, but because in that way she not only cultivates industry but gains much real pleasure of a kind that hardly anything else can give.

Few girls are there who have not wished, even when they were tiny little ones, for their own room and their own possessions, not to be shared with any one else. This is the homekeeping instinct that is born in all women, and which every girl should cultivate.

With many of us it is impossible to have the separate room or the strictly individual possessions in the home, for in some families (and they are usually the happiest ones) the families are too large to allow each member to have a room. Where Big Sister has to share her room with Little Sister and the Boys have to room together it seems almost impossible to have any privacy at all or to possess things that are not held in common.

The hope chest may solve this admirably and form a spot where one's treasures may be kept and may be started without any idea of marriage, though it is true that this was the origin of the chest, which many brides-to-be have filled with dreams as well as all manner of pretty and useful articles.

One girl who lives in a large Western town was married several years ago, and among her most precious possessions was a well filled hope chest, yet it was not started with a view to marriage at all.

This girl was a stenographer for a large firm and each summer she found that she was rushed at vacation time to get ready for her trip and each winter she realized that Christmas was near when it was almost too late to do all the things she wished to do for her family and friends.

So she started a hope chest and began to fill it with lovely hand made lingerie, which she intended to have on hand for vacations in summer and for Christmas gifts, if necessary. A friend who visited her added a number of pretty pieces and mother became interested and added her share. But it happened that before vacation time came around the hope chest was well filled and the greatest event in this girl's life had taken place—she had married the man of her choice.

Of course it was not because she started the hope chest that this happened, but when it had happened it was rather convenient to have such a well stocked supply on hand.

At any rate, a hope chest is not only a lot of fun, but it is one of the best means in the world to interest one in handiwork of various kinds. If a girl makes one piece of pretty lingerie and lays it in a hope chest, whether against the time of her engagement or the time of her vacation, or just because she wants to have it in a spot that she may call her very own, it is a splendid idea.

Good Things to Eat

Here are a few recipes which have come straight from the sunny South that may make the "H. C. L." question more easy to answer:

Southern Hoe Cake.

One egg, one and two-thirds cupfuls corn, one cupful water, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful sugar. Beat the egg and add the water. Stir in the well mixed dry ingredients. Thin carefully in spoonfuls on a hot griddle which is well covered with lightly browned corn meal. Do not so dissolve the coating of meal that the wet mixture touches the bare griddle. Cook slowly for fifteen minutes, turn over and cook for fifteen minutes longer. Serve hot with butter.

Polenta.

One cupful yellow corn meal, one teaspoonful salt, one cupful grated cheese, three and one-half cupfuls boiling water, one-quarter teaspoonful pepper, one-quarter teaspoonful mustard. Boil the meal in the water with the salt for two hours (better, over night in a double boiler on a simmer burner or in a fireless cooker). Add the pepper, the mustard and three-quarters of a cupful of the cheese. Cook for one minute, then turn on a greased square tin and cool. Cut into square pieces, put the rest of the cheese on top and bake for fifteen minutes.

Meat Polenta.

Three-quarters pound lean raw beef, one egg, one small onion, one teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful minced parsley, one-half cupful uncooked corn meal, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper, two cupfuls tomato sauce. Chop the meat finely, then add all the other ingredients, blending them well. Form this mixture into balls somewhat smaller in size than an egg. Drop the balls into tomato sauce and simmer gently for one hour. Before serving thicken the tomato sauce with about one tablespoonful flour.

Baked Corn Meal Mush.

When the corn meal mush is partly done pour it into a shallow pan, making a layer not more than two inches thick, and cook it in the oven until it is well browned. The product is similar to the original "johnnycake," since the "johnnycake" seems to have been simply corn meal mush cooked in the oven or, in some localities, fried.

Don't Be Hypocritical About War Babies, Says Noted Writer

MARAVENE THOMPSON

By ED. A. GOEWEY.

What steps will the government of the United States take for the support, care and protection of the nation's war babies and their mothers?

And by war babies is meant not only those born to the wives of the men who have donned their uniforms and marched away to give battle against the enemy Hun, but also those babies born out of wedlock, but whose fathers are soldiers.

A majority of the people of this country still are bound by the standards and conventions handed down from an early ancestry, and the suggestion that special care should be taken of "illegitimate" children, even those of soldiers, might cause a somewhat general uplifting of eyebrows and shrugging of shoulders.

But this country is going to have war babies born outside of wedlock, hundreds of them, and it will have to take care of them, the same as popular sentiment has declared that unusual provision must be made for the wives and children of the men who have gone to give battle under the Stars and Stripes.

WAR BABIES IN EUROPE.

In France and certain other countries there was no hesitancy in making provision for the war babies—all war babies—and even in conservative England the matter is being handled in a sensible and businesslike manner. The European nations appreciated, from the first, that the war's sacrifices would claim hundreds of thousands of their best citizens and return home innumerable others crippled, diseased and physically unfit. To fill the gap in their citizenship they promptly arranged to rear the new generation with unusual care.

As yet the real horrors of war have not been brought home to the people of the United States, but they will be shortly. Some of America's finest manhood has gone away, never to return, and many, many more will follow along the same pathway. To fill the places which will be made vacant it is agreed this nation must nurture its war babies, offspring of the physically best of the race. It is maintained that the United States cannot expect to uphold its national standards in the future if it depends solely upon most of those left behind—those past their youth and vigor, the pacifists, the slackers, the defectives and the mentally and physically unfit.

And if there be those who do not believe that the war babies, born outside of the ceremony, are to become a problem in this country let them consult with the women who already have investigated the matter and are doing what they can to meet the situation. Cases have been reported from the vicinity of every camp near this city and on Long Island, as well as elsewhere throughout the country.

AN AUTHOR'S SOLUTION.

Among the women who have attacked this problem are several well known writers. One of these is Mrs. Maravene Thompson, first vice president of the Playwrights' Club. Through her "Persuasive Peggy" and "Dorothy" stories, her book, "The Woman's Law," later dramatized, and "The Footprint," about to be played in this city, Mrs. Thompson demonstrated that she has made a careful and thorough study of the young American woman, and before her was placed the problem of the nation's war babies with a request that she give her opinion on the matter and suggest a possible solution.

"There is absolutely no question in my mind," she said, "or, I firmly believe, in the minds of any persons interested in the future welfare of the people of this country, that every possible care and assistance must be extended to all war babies and their mothers, no matter whether the babies are 'legitimate,' according to law and conventions, or are born outside the ceremony.

"Here, there and everywhere, year in and year out, we hear the preachment that the future of the State depends upon the generations to come, more than upon those existing, and yet the government as the official head and directing hand of our progress does very little in a material way to provide for and develop each new generation. Germany, France and many other of the farseeing nations beyond the Atlantic have for years been doing their duty officially to both the State and the children, while we have been most lax in this as in many other things of momentous importance.

"Now, for the first time in our existence, we, as a nation, are sending our youth abroad to take part in a great war. As yet a majority of the people of the United States have not grasped the full significance of the situation, the heartaches of the comparatively few who have said, perhaps, their last goodbys to their sons, brothers, sweethearts and fathers before they left these shores for the European battlefields. They have been forced into the background by the hurrahs attendant upon the parades of troops to the camps, the general admiration of the men in uniform seen in every street.

TO SAVE A NATION.

"But the time is coming, and soon, too, when every one of us will be compelled to appreciate the seriousness of the war situation. It is probable that the blood of the youth of this country will be shed even more abundantly than in those awful years of the civil struggle between the North and the South, and when the papers begin to publish the lists of the dead, wounded and missing we will be brought up with a jolt to new matters in their true light.

"The years of fighting and killing, through which most of the European nations have been passing, have taken some of the best manhood of all of them, have sapped the national vitality of all and brought straight home to the governments of all the warring countries the matter of protecting to the full each and every war baby, irrespective of its parentage, that the future may not see these nations crippled for man and woman power, particularly power of a high physical standard. There is no question that in most of the countries, and possibly in conservative England as well, the governments will legitimatize all babies born out of wedlock in the war times.

"But, the question which, sooner or later, must strike home from one end of the United States to the other is 'Whatare we going to do for our own war babies born in similar unfortunate circumstances?'

"Will the United States government by official action, legitimatize the war babies born here, outside of the ceremony? I don't think so. The civilization of this country still is very new, despite our accomplishments in art, literature, science and business, and it will be a long time before we can meet actual conditions with our eyes open and act with a broadness which is to be found elsewhere—say in France. We still are a nation of almost fixed standards and shallow conventions, with some of the narrow ideals of the Puritan fathers still holding us fettered and preventing most of us from following our better impulses for fear of what our neighbors will say.

CHANCE FOR HYPOCRITES.

"If the government at Washington started a movement to legitimatize the war babies whose mothers had failed to go through the formality of a wedding ceremony there would be a perfect avalanche of opposition which would smother it. Undoubtedly there would be a great many sincerely good people who would lead in such a movement, but those who would cry out the loudest would be the snobs, those women who are utter strangers to the sensation of having a man make violent love to them and those married women to whom motherhood has long since lost its appeal.

"But, while we may build up standards and compel the majority to obey conventions, we cannot alter certain conditions or prevent happenings which surely will follow unusual circumstances. What all of us should do at this time is face facts, and face them with unblinded minds and sympathetic hearts. The war is here, the soldiers are here, the theoretically shallow and unsophisticated girls are here, and, as a result of the conditions forced upon us by the war, we are going to have many babies born out of wedlock, just as there have been thousands of these in the countries of Europe now at war.

"To be sure our ideals are high. And we should like to have everybody virtuous and every soldier the soul of honor and an example of clean living. But war conditions won't permit the fulfillment of our ideals any more than our ideals concerning womanhood, manhood and motherhood have been fulfilled in times of peace.

"Nature is the strongest force with which life of any kind comes in contact. And the predominating purpose of nature is to repeat itself. In proper environment most of us humans are brought up to restrain the promptings of nature, live up to the ideals taught and follow the conventions. But war creates new conditions. Hundreds of thousands of young men, physically robust and mentally active, filled with a spirit of romance and adventure they would not feel in ordinary times, are taken miles and miles from their homes, and established in camps, with but little to amuse them, and no familiar faces of their womankind about them. Weary of the drills, the tents, the monotony of the camp life, they go out into the cities and towns in search of entertainment. There they meet women—young and foolish women; women who become their acquaintances without the formality of an introduction, and the result is unfortunate—for the women.

"And I do not blame the men in uniform one-half as much as I do the girls and their parents, in fact, upon the shoulders of the latter most of the fault must be placed, for they should not permit these immature girls to run about the streets, as they do, day and night, in search of the romance which they associate with a uniform.

FOOLISH, BRAZEN GIRLS.

"If there is any one who is not convinced that a large share of the blame rests with the young women, let them visit the camps in the vicinity of New York and watch the girls deliberately striving to have the soldiers talk to them, and, once acquainted, gaze up into their eyes and gurgle in a manner which would encourage any man, to take liberties.

"But, educating the parents to look after their children properly is too great a task to be accomplished in a brief space of time. Educating the foolish, and too often the girls is out of the question. It will seem, as we might as well face the inevitable and recognize the fact that hundreds of unmarried young women will become the mothers of babies whose fathers have left for the battlefields, possibly never to return.

"There can be no question that, for the sake of the future, the government must protect these war babies and their mothers the same as they must care for the wives and babies of our soldiers. Now, this is which is to be found elsewhere—say in

Ways and Means in War Times

NOW that every one is using every effort to reduce unnecessary expenses in order that all possible aid may be given to our own men and to those of the Allies, many economies are being practised that would not be at all necessary at other times.

A young girl who wished to share her hospitality with her friends and yet did not know how to do so without spending more money than she felt she could afford just at this time set her wits to work to devise some mode of entertainment which would be really enjoyable and yet not cost too much.

A Waffle Evening.

She had been in the habit of spending a quite generous allowance just as she wished, but having devoted most of this to class work in connection with the Red Cross, she felt that she had but a very small sum to put into amusement.

One day there was no one home for luncheon but her small brother and herself.

"Dinah," said the small boy to the Southern cook, who had been in the home for many years, "why don't we ever have waffles any more. You used to have them down home, but up here we never so much as see a waffle. Can't we have some tonight?"

"Who ever heard of having waffles for dinner?" said Dinah, with pretended scorn. But when dinner was served, at the small boy's plate was a platter of waffles, light, crisp and golden brown.

Big sister had been working hard all the afternoon making bandages in the surgical dressing department of the Red Cross and she was hungry. She ate one of the waffles; then she ate another. And then she sat a long time, absent-mindedly playing with the salad before her.

That night she said to her mother: "I don't want you to give me a coming out ball that you were intending to. I want a waffle party."

"A what?" cried her mother.

"A waffle party," said the girl, decidedly.

"What in the world is that?" asked the mother, who had learned never to be surprised at the unexpected.

"Well, you see, mother, it is this way. Of course I am glad to give up my allowances and I would not have the big affair for anything in the world, now that brother Fred is in France. But, to tell you the honest truth, I am just pining for some fun.

"And these days people are all either saving food themselves or helping to feed other people, so instead of having a real ball, with expensive refreshments, I would like to have a little party with only waffles to eat. Dinah makes them so they seem like angel food if they are put before you when you are hungry. They are much more novel and so much less expensive than regular 'eats.'"

"Bully for you!" cried the small brother. "Can I come?"

"You can, and you may," said his sister.

In a few days, to very intimate boy and girl friends the sister sent out little cards on which was written:—

"You are invited to a 'Hoover party,' and in one corner was a representation of Dinah, done in charcoal, carrying a platter piled high with golden brown waffles.

Invitations were sent to twelve young men who were on leave of absence for a few days from training camps near the city, and eleven girls that the young hostess knew equally well. Of course, the men wore their uniforms, and, having had a "tip" over the telephone from Ada, the girls all came in gingham gowns.

They danced in the library to the strains of a phonola, and at ten o'clock out in the dining room at one long table Dinah served waffles and coffee.

Simple Amusements.

There was absolutely nothing else for supper, but any one who attended that affair will tell you that a Hoover party is one of the gayest evenings that any one can possibly devise.

Any one can have one.

And all you have to do to make the refreshments is to whip up some light batter just as you would for muffins, bake in a waffle iron and serve hot, with butter or syrup.

Dancing or games may be the amusement of the evening.

All work and no play makes the world a sad place, and we can't afford to have that happen, particularly just now.

So in these days, when you want a little fun at slight expense, entertain your friends with a waffle party.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Blind Death

By M. QUAD

[Copyright, ..., by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

We were hunting among the Black Hills soon after the first rush of homesteaders and speculators in that direction, and one day I left camp on my own hook and wandered away three or four miles. As I stood resting beside a tree I saw a deer only a pistol shot away. It was a fine buck, and he walked into the open as cool and unconcerned as if nobody had ever thirsted for his life.

I ought to have dropped him dead at that distance, but he fell at my fire to get up and limp away, and, knowing him to be mortally wounded, I followed after. The ground was very rough and covered with cedar thickets, and, being a bit excited, I pushed on as fast as possible and paid little heed of what was underfoot. Of a sudden I found myself falling, and as I went down I dropped my gun to clutch at the branches. I went down ten or twelve feet over rocks, struck on my feet and then plunged forward and brought up beside a big detached rock with a smash severe enough to have killed one outright. I did break two ribs and terribly bruise my hip and fainted away with the pain.

When I came to I was lying on my right side, facing the jungle of rocks over which I had fallen, and I realized at once that I was badly hurt, just how badly I hesitated to find out, remembering that I was miles away from camp and could expect no help. I lay quiet, hoping the pains would somewhat subside, and then I heard a noise as nearly put my wits to sleep again. Almost in front of me and only twenty-five feet away was the mouth of a den in the face of the cliff, and out of this den stalked the largest panther I had ever seen. He stood snuffing the air and looking full at me, and when I realized how helpless I was even to utter a call for aid I almost lost consciousness.

The wind was blowing pretty freely, and, luckily for me, it blew toward me. At first this was not of the slightest importance to my mind, as the beast could reach me with one spring, but I soon had reason to conclude that he was a queer animal. He turned to the left and trotted over the ground a distance of about fifty feet; then he wheeled and passed the den by about the same distance. When he had gone over the beat two or three times I discovered what was the matter. As he came toward me the sun shone full in his face, and I saw that he was stone blind. There was a white film over each eye, and he could not have seen a tree in his path.

Disease or accident had blinded him, but he possessed every other power nature gives to the dreaded beast—grace, lithesness, strength—death!

There is a curious fascination in watching the beast as he takes his promenade. I forget my pains as I rejoice over his blindness. Had he been possessed of his erstwhile vision—aye, could he but see ever so little—he would spring upon me, fasten those long yellow fangs into my throat, and in thirty seconds all would be over. But he is blind. He cannot discover my presence if I remain quiet.

Heaven save me!

A shift of the wind, which here circled around and within about, has carried him the scent. He stops midway in his promenade, rears up and sniffs the air with a savage growl, and my heart beats so that it seems he must surely hear it and follow the sound until his hot breath is on my face.

Sniff! Sniff! Growl! To the right, to the left, straight ahead!

There; he's lost it as the wind eddies about, and now he stands stock still and utters a continuous growl as he waits to catch it again. No, not like a statue. His long tail sweeps the ground in a half circle, and his ears work swiftly back and forth. Blind Death waiting to rend, bite, tear and kill!

The scent again. He rears up, whirls about three or four times as if on pivot, and now he points full at me. A tapeline fifteen feet long would cover the distance between us—between where I lie helpless as he crouches for a spring. If those sightless eyes could be restored how they would glint and glitter and blaze.

There's something in the sound which chills my blood—a menace, a warning of what is to come which bids me shut my eyes and utter a last prayer. Why does he hesitate? What delayed his spring? Ah, the wind has shifted again, and now his infirmity reasons against his natural ferocity. He has been blind for a year or two, perhaps. He has never left the cave except to move up and down over that one route. If he leaves it, if he springs at me, he may fall over a cliff for all he can tell. Had the scent held a moment longer he might have attacked but now the breeze freshens up, the leaves around him are blown hither and he is seeming to argue that his quarry has passed on and is out of his reach. Blind Death crept back to his cave and entered it with mutterings of savage disappointment.

Well for me that his mate was not home and did not return until I had managed to drag myself out of the neighborhood and secure assistance to reach camp. Had there been a she to see me Blind Death might now be dining my cracked and whitened bones about his dark den as he rests himself in sportive mood.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before

By F. A. MITCHEL

Nicolai Morilli when that war broke out between France and Austria in which Italy joined as an ally of France was a young citizen of Rome. When Morilli signified his intention to enter the Italian army his friends shook their heads, declaring that there was nothing of the soldier in him.

"You had better study for the church," they said to him, "or, rather, secure a position as professor in a university. You will be studying the clouds some fine day, and while you are wondering whence they come and whece they are drifting a cannon ball will come along and take off your head."

One person, however, was confident that Nicolai would return a hero. This was Bianca Tarantola, his sweetheart.

The young recruit, being of a fanciful turn of mind, must needs select that arm of the service for which he was least fitted. Though he had never been on a horse, he enlisted in a cavalry regiment. As luck would have it, the company to which he belonged was assigned to a general's headquarters to act as couriers and a guard for their commander's person. One day when the general called upon Nicolai to carry a message the private, turning his horse, suddenly lost his balance and fell to the ground. The general, seeing that the youngster was unfitted to go dashing about as a courier, made him his bugler, in which position he would be expected to stick to the general. Nicolai didn't know how to sound a bugle, but that didn't matter.

The general received an order one day to march his command to reenforce the allies who were fighting the Austrians some miles distant. Losing his way in a wood, he brought his men to a halt in dire distress of mind. If he failed to bring relief to those sorely pressed he would be in disgrace. Nicolai sat on his horse looking at the sky as if in a dream.

"Ride out into the open," cried the general to him impatiently, "and see if you can get a view to help us to find our way!"

"I think, general," said Nicolai, pointing, "we should go in that direction."

"Why so?"

"I see birds hovering."

"What has that to do with it?"

The general strained his eyes for the birds, then gave an order to advance in an entirely different direction from which he had been moving. He reached the battlefield just in time to save the allies from defeat.

On another occasion the general was hard pressed by the Austrians, with a river at his back, and if he did not find means of crossing before his enemy could bring up reenforcements he would be captured with his whole command.

"Look up at the sky," he said to Nicolai, "and see if you can tell me how to get across the river."

"This time, general," replied the young man, "I have been looking at the ground for a means of crossing."

"Well, it matters not to me whether you look at the sky or the ground. If you show me how to get across the river you shall be a captain and my aid-de-camp."

"These rocks," said Nicolai, "point in such a direction and over there in such another direction as to indicate that somewhat farther down they will lie flat instead of upright on the river bed. If so we are liable to find a ford."

The commander rode after instead of before his bugler, who kept his eyes on exposed rock ledges till he came to a point where the river whitened. Noting the angle of the ledge, Nicolai rode into the water and across. When he returned the general, who had been watching him, has given an order to retreat, and in a few minutes a column was crossing by the ford.

Soon after getting his men over the river the general was reenforced and desired to return and attack the enemy. The Austrians had meanwhile fortified the opposite bank, and the water had risen to such a height as to render the ford much more difficult. The general called for Nicolai and said:

"You have looked into the sky and unto the ground to a purpose. I wish to get my men back across the river. Is there any other direction you can look to find a way?"

"Yes, general; I can look straight before me. Do you see that cotton mill up the stream on the opposite bank?"

"Yes."

"And the man on it fishing?"

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES
ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted as well as pain and regret to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mould of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effectual remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle, and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone. I can highly recommend B.B.B."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure mitigation or prevention of disease.

Voice of The People

Sir,—There was something very pleasing to me in the favourable reference you made regarding the late Mr. H. B. Taylor, and also his minister, Rev. Mr. Wilson at his funeral, as I understand, based his remarks on those words in 2nd Timothy, "For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them that love his appearing." Well, it is appointed unto man once to die, but after this the judgment. There appears to be much uncertainty about who will be called to pass away next. This past year appears to have given plenty of proof of this; but the word to each hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh. Let us ever remember that God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved. (John 3, 16-17.) Oh, taste and see that God is good. Blessed is the man that trusteth in him.

Now there was much in my nephew that was very pleasing to me; in fact, we were much together in our young days. We were all farmers then. He was the oldest son of my father's oldest son, and I never remembr him saying a bad word, and I do not think that I ever saw him angry. He appeared to be always ready with a smile and a kind word. I met a man on the street a short time before his sickness, and in speaking of the shortage of fuel, he said "if Taylor had a ton of coal he would give me half of it," referring to himself. In September he took his car, and four of us, he and I and our partners, and went down to our old home and then down to Hiawatha, the whole trip taking about three hours, and after that bringing to my home a piece of venison, for he appeared to love hunting, and had been successful, in fact, I felt keener about this last election than I had ever done before, I think, and went and had a talk with my minister the Friday before the election, and then went and had a talk with my nephew. Neither advised me, but the way appeared clearer after, as I thought that I ought to vote. Now, my father, with my two eldest brothers, bought two hundred acres of land in Alnwick Township, south side of Rice Lake, about 70 years ago. I think it cost less than or about $4 per acre. Those brothers both settled on this land. My, what fine timber there was on it. My eldest brother William was a very strong man and excelled with an axe. The church and school were about one and a half miles from his home. He often held religious service there. He also lived to build a very fine stone house and other buildings, but he was killed with a threshing machine, but lived and was conscious for about seven days. That was in October, 1862, as I remember. My sincere sympathy is with the family, for whom I have the most profound respect, in this, to them, dark hour; and may they find peace and comfort in God's holy Word, and seek to imitate those who through faith and patience now inherit the promises.—Yours.

J. H. Taylor.

Canadian Railway Situation

The following interesting statement by Lord Shaughnessy on the Canadian Railway Situation appears in the Annual Financial Survey of the Toronto Globe.

AFTER forty months of this great world war, the railway situation in Canada presents a very different face from that of peace times, when the chief problems to solve were the problems of development and construction necessary to keep pace with a huge immigration.

An indication of the difference in conditions is shown in Canada's trade balance, which has been converted from a heavy "minus" to a substantial "plus," the exports for eleven months of 1917 exceeding those of a similar period in 1913 by over a billion dollars. As the total import and export trade for that period in 1913 was itself less than a billion dollars (to be exact $994,467,000) the increase in traffic-moving effort may be realized. That transportation energy and increase of traffic have been coincident with a growing shortage of labor, a higher cost of living, necessitating higher wages, and immense increase in the cost of material necessary for maintenance and repair of roadbed and equipment, so that the added traffic has meant not increased profit but increased anxiety for the carriers. The labor shortage may be illustrated from the records of our own Honour Roll, which show that up to December 6th, 7,021 employees of the Canadian Pacific had enlisted for active service.

The satisfactory features are the efficiency with which the Canadian railways have done their part under such trying circumstances, and the remarkable absence of congestion as compared with the congestion that has been so noticeable on the railroads of the United States since our great neighbor to the south entered the war and faced identical problems. Elaborate networks of railways Can-With fewer ports and a much less ada has solved its war-export problems with infinitely less confusion. From the beginning of August, 1914, to November 30th, 1917, the Canadian railways have handled for the Imperial Government over 6½ million tons of supplies, exclusive of horses and mules, most of which may be considered as supplementary to normal traffic, but so admirably has the movement been timed with the arrival and departure of steamers that not a cent has been earned by the ships as demurrage.

The burden of financing such movement of traffic under such conditions has, however, proved too serious for some Canadian railways, and were it not that the Canadian Pacific is more than a mere transportation system and holds extraneous assets of great value that have proved an unexpectedly large source of income, we might have had difficulty in finding the very considerable sum that we have invested in war loans to the British and Canadian Governments, not to mention the dividends that our shareholders and the financial world at large have become accustomed to expect.

The efficiency and absence of congestion with which our enormous war traffic has been handled might well be taken to heart by our American friends who, if I may venture the suggestion, are looking too hopefully to the centralized efforts of an overworked Government when they should depend more on the trained enterprise of the individual industrial units that have been so efficiently developed during times of peace, because any form of control that will have the effect of lessening the sense of keenness and responsibility on the part of these units, is sure to be disastrous in its results. If they are not too proud to profit by our experience in Canada, they should solve their traffic problem by placing under Government control not the railroads but the shippers, leaving the railroads with their trained operating staffs, untrammelled by political considerations, to find out how to carry the maximum traffic to given ports at a given time, over a given route, and helping these railroads to secure on fair terms the funds for necessary maintenance and equipment. A Government Controller of Shipments, corresponding to our Director of Overseas Transport, is needed, not a Government Controller of Railroads. It is folly to send out to face even severer traffic problems than those which they have already so admirably solved.

Large Locomotive Jib.

A 500-ton locomotive jib crane capable of lowering, raising, or swinging a 56-ton load at its maximum working radius of 87 feet has been built for installation on the Panama Canal at Balboa. It is said to be the largest machine of its kind in the world.

His "Bit."

A tall, lean recruit had just joined up in England. A sergeant and lieutenant were discussing him. "'E's thin as a ramrod and 'e don't even look strong enought to 'elp in the store," complained the sergeant. "He'll do to clean the rifles," answered the lieutenant. "And co's goin' to pull 'im through?" wailed the sergeant, in a defiant manner.

SUCCESSFUL RAID BY CANADIANS NEAR LENS

Brought Back Prisoners and Suffered No Casualties Themselves, Field Marshal Haig Announces in His Official Report To-day--American Trawler is Sunk in Crimean Waters---Bolsheviki Execute 50 Officers, Including 4 Admirals and a General.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The German trenches north of Lens were raided last night by Canadian troops, who brought back prisoners, the official statement from Field-Marshal Haig to-day says. Near Mericourt, southeast of Lens, British soldiers were victorious in patrol engagements. The statement reads: "Canadian troops last night successfully raided the enemy's trenches north of Lens and brought back prisoners. We suffered no casualties. Patrol encounters took place during the night east of Mericourt, resulting in our favour. On the rest of the front the night was quiet."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Confirmation was received here of the reported execution of more than fifty officers, including four Admirals and one General, by Bolsheviki sailors and soldiers in the Black Sea region, in retaliation for the trial and punishment of a number of their fellows in 1912 in connection with the revolutionary movement against the Czar.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Ralph Turner).

TOKIO, Jan. 14.—Disorders are increasing in Vladivostok, official despatches asserted to-day. A battle between the Bolsheviki and the Cossacks is threatening momentarily.

The Bolsheviki have named a commander of the local garrison, who has usurped the local police power, and is attempting to requisition munitions and foodstuffs. The Cossacks are resisting his efforts, and members of their Citizens' League are arriving in large numbers, fully armed and preparing to resist the Bolsheviki. On January 9, the situation was at a critical stage that street fighting between the forces appeared imminent, and foreign residents prepared hurriedly to evacuate the city. The Consular Corps met and decided that foreign military aid was essential immediately. Appeals for aid were forwarded all Allied Governments.

The Japanese Consul at Harbin reported to-day he had received a report that Irkutsk was again the scene of turmoil. The Bolsheviki, aided by reinforcements and heavy guns, had succeeded in defeating the Cossacks.

In connection with all these official reports of fighting near at hand and of the apprehension for the safety of Allied citizens, all Tokio papers to-day gave great prominence to Premier Notono's audience with the Emperor and his lengthy conference with Count Terauchi, Navy Minister Kato and War Minister Oshima.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 14 (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—A despatch from Cape Town says that Minister of Finance Burton, interviewed regarding Lloyd George's speech, said: "We welcome the reference to the German colonies. It is difficult to exaggerate the feeling in South Africa against any prospect of the return of the south-west protectorate to Germany if any concessions are eventually made to German colonization. We can never tolerate her as a neighbour again, especially after the revelations of this war regarding her purposes and methods."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—An American trawler, operating in European waters, has been lost. Admiral Sims reported the sinking of the little vessel to the Navy Department to-day. All members of the crew were saved. The announcement of how she was lost was not made nor was the exact location given.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A statement from Premier Lloyd George, summarizing the "man power" situation was expected shortly by members of Parliament returning for the reassembling of that body to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Sinn Fein executives to-day initiated a referendum on an independence appeal for Ireland to be addressed to the Peace Conference.

MEETING OF EXHIBITION DIRECTORS TO-NIGHT

The meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Central Exhibition will be held to-night in the police court rooms at the City Buildings, instead of the Council chamber.

The meeting is for the purpose of clearing the slate of all unfinished last year's business, and as many of the directors as possible should be present.

Little Lake Cemetery Company

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Company, will be held at the City Council Chamber, Peterborough, on Monday, the 21st January inst., at 3 p.m., for the purpose of receiving reports for the past year, the election of directors for the present year and the transaction of other necessary business.

Dated January 14th, 1918.

Fire Destroys Army Supplies

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—A quantity of army supplies, including $15,000 worth of food, was destroyed. The quartermaster's warehouse was ruined and several other buildings were damaged by fire to-day at the Washington barracks, occupied by Engineer troops. After a hard fight of an hour and a half the fire was extinguished. The origin is a mystery.

RECEPTION TO MAJOR DAVIDSON

St. John's Church Women's Association, on behalf of the wardens and congregation, are holding a congregational reception on Wednesday evening, 16th January, at 8 o'clock, in St. John's School House, to welcome the Rev. Canon Davidson and the officers and men of St. John's who have returned from service overseas. It is hoped the congregation will avail themselves of this opportunity of showing their deep regard for their returned chaplain and soldiers. All men in khaki are cordially invited and will be extremely welcome.

VETERANS WILL WAIT ON COUNCIL

As many members as possible of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association are requested to be present to-night at the City Council Chamber to wait upon the Council as a deputation in regard to the 93rd Battalion Band instruments. This was decided upon at the regular meeting last week and the members who were present on that occasion, as well as all other members of the Association are asked to be on hand to-night.

BOLSHEVIKI ARE MAKING A CLEAN-UP IN THE GOVERMENT

Are Planning to Arrange Pan-Russian Congress of Workmen, Soldiers and Peasants to Replace Constituent Assembly

CRIMINALS ARRESTED

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 14.—The Bolsheviki are working strenuously to make Petrograd a "clean city." The clean-up was on in full vigour to-day.

One result was the arrest of 300 gamblers and drunks in a huge raid on one notorious dive last night. Other raids netted more criminals and riff raff.

Strenuous efforts are being made to clear up the problems of food administration and to make the city orderly and neat.

The same sort of procedure of cleaning up, is being steadily worked out by the Bolsheviki as applied to the whole governmental system. Despite ferocious opposition by those politically opposed, the Trotsky Lenine government is preparing calmly to arrange the pan-Russian Congress of Workmen, Soldiers and Peasants, the body with which it is hoped to replace the elected constituent assembly. The Bolsheviki hope by this all-Russian Congress to create a national convention similar to that instigated in France in 1792, which will become the supreme law giving body for Russia.

The Bolsheviki are exercising a magnetic influence over the proletariat at large under the slogans of "class war" and "an immediate social revolution," accusing the social revolutionaries and the Menshevisks (the Minimatists) of surrendering to the Bourgisie and denying the contention of their opponents that all classes must co-operate to build up. The Trotsky-Lenine disciples insist that a complete social regime is immediately impossible without any capitalistic interval of control. This participation in the re-organization by the capitalists is the principle bone of contention among the various political groups to-day.

Authoritative information to-day was that Bolsheviki would soon decree the separation of the church and state, confiscating all religious property. Another reform in prospect is abolition of the right of inheritance. Laws are being formulated for the transfer of all fortunes after death to the State. The Executive committee of the all-Russian peasants Soviet today decided to urge the Executive committee of the proposed all-Russian Congress of Workmen and Soldiers to bring the Romanoffs back to Petrograd from Tobolsk. It was suggested that the Royal family be imprisoned at Kronstadt. The committee urged the arrest of all members of the ex-Czar's family who are still at large and the institution of a commission to try the Romanoffs as soon as possible, "not only to punish the Czar for his many crimes, but to utilize the trial as the best means of propaganda against the monarchy."

CAUGHT IN THE BLIZZARD

HOME LAST NIGHT

Miss Vera Hogg, of 33 Page street, Toronto, and Mr. Mallet, of the C.G.E., Toronto, who were among the passengers who left for Toronto on the 7.40 C.P.R. local Saturday morning and who arrived back in Peterborough on Sunday night at 11.30 o'clock, the train having been stalled for hours by the blizzard, has written the story of the experience for the Examiner in a dreary form. Other passengers in the party were Miss Gertrude Smith, Mr. Mallett, Toronto, Mr. Donoghue, Mr. R. J. Kidd, Mr. Gibson Winnipey and Messrs. Greco and Stainer, Peterborough.

The passengers, two ladies and six gentlemen on C.P.R. train leaving Peterborough at 7.40 a.m. bound for Toronto, experience the wost snow storm within the memory of all present.

Snow banked on either side, we stuck at eleven-thirty a.m.

Two engines died a natural death. Conductor beat it and snow plough superintendent rodes down a snow bank, while the train crew paced up and down the car, bringing in a rather cool breeze with them.

We hoped after lunch to be out and on our way. But, alas! 4.00 p.m. found us worse than ever. No help having yet arrived. But thanks to the congenial cheff and steward who provided a good meal.

4.30 p.m.—3rd engine came to rescue us, No. 2011.

4.45—All three engines left our train stuck in snow bank at same place, and went to Myrtle for water.

5.45 p.m.—Nothing to report.

6.00 p.m.—Nothing to report.

6.30 p.m.—Everybody sighed. Three engines and snow plough were four miles west of Burketon, stuck in a snow bank, after which they died a second death. We are here, and smile, smile, smile.

We are making the best of it by telling stories, singing songs, along with telling our reasons for having caught this particular train.

We are invited to the dining car, where we enjoyed a splendid meal, to the accompaniment of the smiling waiter's feet.

7.00 p.m.—Nothing to report.

8.00 p.m.—Nothing to report

900 p.m—Still here, talking on very educational topics

9.30 p.m.—No report, after singing praise God from whom all blessings flow; God Save the King; There Shall be Showers of Blessing; Onward Christian Soldiers, etc.

10.00 p.m.—No news of relief on the way. Fuel nearly exhausted. Everybody smiled, wound their watches and sighed again.

10.07 p.m.— Two engines and snow plough arrive.

10.15—First move of relief—a bump.

10.35 p.m.—Train moved about a car length. All broke into singing 'Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow.'

10.45 p.m.—Hurrah, we are going.

11.00 p.m.—Arrived Burketon. Facing a terrible gale we left the train for the station, which was but a short distance, and only for the care and assistance of the men, the ladies would not have reached the refuge, where we were given coffee (hot) and sandwiches, at the expense of the C.P.R. Co.

A man who had travelled the Yukon said he had never seen such a storm.

12.15 a.m. Sunday morning finds us standing and sitting around a welcome fire in Burketon, although tired, yet brave, waiting for a glimpse of a chance to go forward.

10.50 a.m. Sunday morning. Trio—Tenor, alto, soprano, 'The Holy City.'

2.00 p.m.—Here still. The restaur-

60,000 SCHOOL BOYS FIGHTING THE DRIFTS

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—An army of workers, estimated at more than 100,000, including 60,000 schoolboys, to-day resumed the attack on the great snowdrifts which, for 48 hours, tied up railroad traffic in this city and vicinity and caused what health authorities termed an alarming shortage of fuel and milk. As an emergency measure the public schools of the city did not open to-day, the Board of Education having decided that the boys could render valuable service in clearing away snow from the streets so that vehicles would be able to make deliveries in residential districts. Everyone of the twenty-seven steam railroads entering Chicago resumed a limited service to-day, but officials said it would be at least two days before anything like normal passenger schedules could be established.

Requisitioning Of Private Coal Sought By Council

Mayor Duncau Decides Tie Vote This Morning to Obtain Authority From Fuel Controller to Use Citizens' Supplies For Those Who Have No Coal—Double Motive in This Action.

ALD. WEIR SOUNDS AN ALARM

A tie vote on a resolution to ask the Fuel Controller for authority to requisition coal from consumers or others for the use of those who lack fuel, demanded Mayor Duncan's first decision this morning, and he cast his vote with the affirmative.

The resolution was as follows:

Moved by Ald. Dobbin,
Seconded by Ald. Taylor,

Whereas an emergency exists in the coal situation in Peterborough, and there is danger of suffering on account of persons not having fuel and not being able to procure it;

Resolved, That the Mayor request the Fuel Controller for Canada to give authority to requisition coal from consumers or others for the use of those who lack fuel.

Carried.

The motion was first moved by Ald Dobbin, seconded by Ald. Edgar. In the subsequent discussion Ald. Edgar withdrew as seconder, and moved an amendment that the vote on the resolution be deferred until to-night. He said that this would enable the Council to consider the question before disposing of it, and added that he was not expressing disapproval of the idea, but desired to avoid a decision that had not been sufficiently pondered.

At the request of Mayor Duncan, ex-Mayor Duffus explained that the city's inaction in not seeking the power afforded by the Fuel Controller's Act was interpreted by the authorities as an evidence that Peterborough had no fuel difficulties. If this resolution was passed the Council might not need to enforce it, but it would strengthen the public and private efforts to obtain coal. Mr. Duffus offered the advice that the resolution should be carried and fully reported in the press.

Ald. Weir's Opinion.

The prospect, as Ald. Weir visualised it, was a probable disruption of the city commandeered consumers' supplies now, they would hesitate to make their usual purchases next summer under the impression that next winter their bins would be again raided by the city. This would result in reduced buying during the favourable months, and the situation next winter would be worse than ever.

Mayor Duncan believed that there would be no necessity of drastic requisitioning of the supplies in the citizens' houses, and that the resolution, if carried, would apply the city and dealers in obtaining coal now.

Ald. Worth: If we put it through it will help the situation, and the people will see that we mean to do something.

Ald. Taylor and Ald. Saunders expressed their approval.

Ald. Weir: I don't think there is any suffering. The difficulty is largely in delivery. If it has the tendency to stop summer buying, I'll vote against it.

Ald. Edgar withdrew as seconder of the motion, and moved an amendment that the resolution be deferred until to-night. Ald. Weir seconded the amendment and Ald. Taylor seconded the motion.

Those who voted for the amendment were Aldermen Weir, McIntyre, Langford, and Edgar; the nays were Aldermen Saunders, Taylor, Dobbin, and Worth.

The vote was reversed on the resolution, and Mayor Duncan broke the deadlock by voting for it.

The Inauguration.

This morning's procedure of turning over a new leaf was the simple ceremonial of receiving the new members' declaration of service.

Mayor Duncan's address, which is presented elsewhere, was a clear and comprehensive summary of the problems for the Council, and a fine appeal for industry, co-operation, and high ideals. The subjects introduced were referred to their respective committees.

Mayor Duncan stated that he intended to call upon ex-Mayor Duffus for information on unfinished work, which he knew he would need, and which he was confident would be freely given. The retiring Mayor had given his assistance up to the last minute.

Ex-Mayor Duffus replied that he would be glad to help in any way, and if needed on any question would give his time and pay his own expenses if it was required to go out of town. He spoke feelingly of the late Ald. Smith's vacant chair, and wished for Mayor Duncan the support he himself had received from the Council of the past two years.

FIRE SALE AT ELLIOT'S STORE RE-OPENS TO-MORROW

Enormous Stock of Ladies' and Children's Wear to Be Sacrificed To Clear Out

The quick and satisfactory settlement of the loss occasioned by the recent fire which affected Elliot's store and enormous stock of ladies' and children's wear makes it possible to put the entire stock on the market at once, and commencing to-morrow, one of the largest sales in the history of the city will be inaugurated.

The Elliot stock was exceptionally well purchased, the store being filled from the cellar to the top storey with staple goods; in fact many of the lines are not obtainable at the present time and others only at practically prohibitive prices.

While the loss occasioned to the Elliot stock was a large one as a bulk stock, yet these same goods can be taken into the homes and the individual items will show to the purchasers the greatest values they have ever had.

The sale will commence at 9 o'clock to-morrow and continue until the $75,000.00 stock is cleared out entirely.

SERVICES AT TRINITY.

During the coal shortage, all services of Trinity will be held in Trinity church, not at the Sunday school, as formerly.

No Toronto or Montreal Trains To-day and Officials Offer No Promises—C. P. R. Hit Hardest in the Section Between Myrtle and Burketon Junction

HOW TRAINS FARED

To-day's C.P.R. service cancelled.

Engine off rails in Lindsay yard blocked local traffic there.

The back lane route from Millbrook to Omemee is obliterated.

Port Hope line temporarily opened yesterday was filled in again to-day.

Elsa Ryan is somewhere "Out There."

The worst storm in more than thirty winters has completely crippled the railways and has isolated Peterborough since Friday night. At 12 o'clock to-night it will be seventy-two hours since the last train from Toronto passed through this city on the C.P.R., and there is no promise or indication of immediate relief. The railway companies, their staffs depleted by the war, have a big problem to re-open communication on their main lines, and restore the regular services.

In the meantime the public should be patient, realising the combination of difficulties that have so tightly tied up traffic.

THE C. P. R. CHRONICLES.

Sand and snow, swept by a fierce wind, packed the cuts between Burketon and Myrtle on the C.P.R. early on Saturday morning, and throughout that day and on Sunday the storm carried on relentlessly, drifting into the cuts until some of them were levelled with the fields they traversed. Th train casualties were posted last night as follows:

The Saturday morning eastbound express ran into such a barrage near Myrtle that it was unable to extricate itself, but is now reported back at Myrtle Station.

The Tweed local, westbound, on Saturday morning was the first victim beyond Burketon. Several reports failed clearly to state whether it had been rescued and returned to the junction or was missing in the open country.

The express from Montreal passed through Peterborough about 7 p.m. on Saturday, but was held up Burketon. Two snow ploughs ploughed with two big mogul engines behind it. Likewise failed to get beyond the junction.

The first train from the west arrived here at 11.15 o'clock last night. It was a double-header with one coach and a van. Its engines were crusted with ice, and snow packed its pilot up to the headlight. This train brought back from Burketon those passengers on the Montreal express who had intended to spend the week-end in Toronto.

The C.P.R. company sent the stragglers to local hotels, and the rest went on to Havelock, as far as the special was going.

ENGINES DEAD.

Trainmen stated last night that there were seven "dead" C.P.R. engines at and in the vicinity of Burketon, some of them buried in the snow.

Both waiting rooms at the station were filled with stranded week-end visitors on Saturday night. Some of them returned to uptown hotels, others remembered they had friends here, and the rest slept on the benches.

Four men decided that one night of such experience was enough, and

QUEEN'S CANADIAN GENERAL HOSPITAL.

We know that Canada is deep in this war, that she has 400,000 soldiers overseas, with another 100,000 on the way, in a mobilisation sense. But this bare fact gives no full idea of the tremendous work, the complicated agencies that are associated with the activities of our soldiers in the field. It is not only in fighting that Canada has rendered services that have made her name renowned. In other ways splendid service has been given, especially in helping Red Cross work in its broadest sense, the healing of the wounds of war. In this regard Canada's contribution is conspicuously represented by Queen's Hospital, which has been doing specially excellent work since the spring of 1915.

"A History of No. 7 (Queen's) Canadian General Hospital" has been recently issued. It is a most interesting record of the organisation and work of the hospital, covering the period from 26th March, 1915, to 17th November, 1917. The work is splendidly illustrated, with views of the camps and buildings and group photographs of the staff, etc., etc. These are of much interest, the local interest consisting in the fact that Peterbroough was and is well represented on the hospital staff and that many of them have given service worthy of official recognition. Among those Peterborough people who have been or are associated in the active campaign work of the Queen's Hospital are Mrs. M. K. Douglas, now home on leave,who 'signed up' in the beginning, was acting matron with the Queen's unit, and was, for distinguished service, awarded the Royal Red Cross; Miss Frankie Smith, Miss Fanny Roberts, Miss Bertha Mowry, Miss Irene Douglas, daughter of Mrs. M. K. Douglas, now Mrs. Stewart; Russel Patterson, H. Leahy, and Bert Throop.

The Queen's Hospital has had a varied and interesting experience, eight months in Egypt, a time in the Gallipoli campaign, and later in France. It left Kingston in May, 1915, with an establishment to care for 200 patients. Now it has accommodation for 2,800. In eight months of 1917, the hospital treated 35,785 cases. Of these, nearly 50 per cent., or 17,287, were able to return to duty, and 16,853 were sent to England for treatment.

Queen's Hospital unit has done splendid work, and in its way has reflected as much credit upon Canada, for patriotic fervour, devotion to duty, skilful surgical and medical service, as the fighting Canadians have done by their splendid work at the battle fronts.

FROST-PROOF HOUSES.

In Ottawa, and other cities, as well as in Peterborough, there is almost infinite trouble from frozen water pipes, entailing great expense, discomfort and even danger to life if fires are lighted in ranges while pipes are blocked with frost. There have been many cases where explosions of water fronts have caused fires, or destruction of stores, and grave personal injuries, and even death.

The blame of these things is easily placed upon the weather; but, collectively speaking, we are to blame ourselves.

A man brought up in the West Indies, where frost and ice are unknown, if he built a house in Peterborough might be excused if he did not make his dwelling frost proof. But a man brought up in this climate, knowing the rigours of our winters, and the severity of the frost, would be, and is, inexcusable, if he fails to build his house to successfully withstand the weather and defy the frost.

Houses for dwellings, with a little care can be built to exclude frost. Of course it will cost more than merely "slinging together" "a shell"—it will cost more, but it is only a first cost, that yields big dividends in more ways than one—a big saving of coal every winter, as long as the house stands. It promotes the comfort, and protects the health of occupants, with a lesser expenditure for fuel; and it will obviate the expense, inconvenience, discomfort and danger from frozen water pipes and exploding water jackets, involving an expenditure that would in perhaps one such explosion, equal the entire cost involved in making a house frost proof when building.

There is not only the avoidance of trouble from frost and the extra comfort of occupying a well built virtually frost-proof house, but there is added summer comfort. A house with substantial walls capable of resisting the entry of frost, will also keep out heat in hot weather. So that on every count it pays to build houses so substantially that they will be warm in winter and cool in summer.

We have provincial laws and civic bylaws compelling citizens to have certain sanitary standards complied with in the erection of houses; and this is done in the interests of public health, as affected by sanitary conditions. It would not, or should not, be considered despotic, if civic and official oversight were extended to rigid inspection of dwelling buildings so as to insure avoidance of the danger of frost, frozen pipes and exploding stoves, as well as conducing to the comfort of the occupants, who being tenants, and not knowing the character of the houses they rent, are liable to be "stung," and compelled to live in shells, with fine outsides, but with such careless construction that they cannot be heated to the point of comfort and healthy temperature by any reasonable expenditure of fuel.

Millions of tons of new shipping, and millions of bushels of new grain to be carried to the allies by them, are two of the most urgently needed instruments of victory.

THE BALLOT FOR WOMEN.

This war is a monstrous agent of evil and suffering, but compensation comes in many ways. It has wrought great changes in the views of governing powers and legislators. As one result we have war declared on strong drink as dangerous and demoralising an enemy as the Hun.

Then changed and advanced views towards women and women's rights have been the result of the splendid service and sacrifice of women in the work of war-winning. By waging war in their own magnificently effective way, they have won political victory, such as was tried to be gained, and in vain, by militant suffragist methods.

The United States House of Representatives has passed a resolution, favoured by the President himself, to submit to the vote of the several states as a constitutional amendment, the question of national suffrage for women.

This resolution has yet to run the gauntlet of the Senate, but there seems little doubt that the Senate will "make it unanimous." It is not likely that the Senate of a democracy will in progressive action fall behind that hoary citadel of class privilege and prejudice against reform, the British House of Lords, which has declared by a vote of nearly two to one, for the principle of giving British women the vote.

This principle is almost universally recognised in other civilised countries. Seven out of the nine provinces of the Dominion give women the vote. The Dominion government will have to decide the question now, though it has not gained credit by its action in disfranchising millions of Canadian women at the last election, who by service and merit had earned the ballot, while the vote was given to other women, who, instead of being in the auxiliary class in war work, were largely in the dependent class.

It is hardly worth while arguing the abstract question of the right to, or the wise use of the ballot by women. As with men there will be a certain proportion of unthinking and venal electors; but, in the main, women in this war have shown such splendid executive and organising ability; so much wisely directed energy, such moderation and restraint, that they have shown themselves qualified for wise use of the ballot in the public interests. They may not be less partizan than men, but they will be more patriotic, more on the right side of great moral and social questions that involve the greatest good to the greatest number.

We are called to economize in everything, even the use of electricity.

THE KNITTERS

"Blessed are they who mourn—and knit—for they shall be comforted."

With the foregoing as her text, Mrs. John B. Evans, of Selma, Ala., wrote the following stanzas, which are so exquisite and tender that it is published for our readers—not asking her consent:

Do you wonder, dear, what you say to me,
These knitting needles, two,
As the dull gray wool and the khaki's gold
In turn pass o'er and through?
They say to me—yet none may hear,
'Tis so far in the dim deep past—
While heart and mind keep time and croon
To the lad whom my soul holds fast.

"God gave unto you," they whisper low,
"Threads of beauty, not wrought of hand.
Didst thou weave them well; will thy stitch hold true
Somewhere in that No Man's Land?
They were thine alone, e'en before earth's light,
Or the eyes of man might know.
Oh, tell us now, didst thou render well?
Ah! The proving alone must show."

"Didst thou weave them true?" they still sing on;
"The pattern of Christ was thine."
Will thy stitch hold fast? Each day must prove.
Oh, mothers!—your boy and mine.
The needles fall from my trembling hands;
My soul to its God stands bare,
While the blind tears from my eyes fall fast;
Then I see—oh, my boy, so fair!

"Why, mother, dear," I hear him say,
With the same sweet, boyish kiss,
"Twas for God and for thee we came away; Greater love hath no man than this."
"Fear not; though he walk through Death's shadows deep,"
A voice fills my soul with song,
"If thy stitches fail and thy threads grow weak
His Saviour will make them strong."

Oh, Mother-Heart of the world to-day,
Torn, bleeding, crushed, afraid
For the child of thy soul, in yon far-off trench
Trust thy God; be not dismayed!
Two Pierced Hands, with infinite love,
Will strengthen thy threads so frail.
Thy boy to his God and you holds true,
Dear mother. He will not fail!

Selma, Ala., 1917.

HUN HYPOCRISY.

At about the time that sanctimonious ruffian the Kaiser was prating to the Polish Regency Council of his desires to further the weal of humanity and the peaceable development of order, progress and civilisation, a crew of his U-boat assassins were taking careful aim at the Red Cross of a British hospital ship, laden with ill and wounded men. The German mind is a queer thing.—New York Herald.

FRIENDSHIP WITH RUSSIA, AND HELP.

For Russia there is to be not sympathy alone but help also. Her territories must be evacuated. All questions affecting her should be settled in a way that will assure the co-operation of other nations in obtaining for her an unhampered and unembarrassed opportunity for political development along the lines of her people's desire; such assistance also in her development as shall be primarily to her own best interest. For her benefit also it is decreed that the Dardanelles must be opend as a free passage to ships and commerce of all nations, under international guarantees.

The President's address bears a message to the Russian people which the patriotic among them will understand, even if those temporarily in power at Petrograd do not. Whether the Bolsheviki have been sincere in their demand for statement for war aims or merely have been echoing the cry raised in Berlin, they have their answer. The Lenines and the Trotzkys must now decide between those who sincerely are endeavouring to protect and aid Russia and those who count on fattening at its expense. If they choose to cast their lot with the wolves of predatory Prussianism it is certain that the Russian people will not, now they have heard from the United States and Great Britain.—New York Review.

Not a bad idea of the Kaiser, that all the sovereigns of Europe meet in peace conference, "as was done after the Napoleonic wars." But he seems to have forgotten that Napoleon was not there.—New York Herald.

BACK TO THE FARM.

One of the pressing duties to which Union government must early devote its attention is the finding of an adequate supply of farm labour. The Leader believes that every ex-farmer now living in the cities and towns, and engaged in other occupations, should be drafted back to the land. This may involve a sacrifice but what is it compared to the sacrifice involved in being drafted into the army? If Canada approves of the latter, it certainly approves of the former.—Regina Leader.

Editor Examiner:—Mr. J. Guise-Bagley publishes in Saturday's Examiner a letter regarding exemptions and the Warden, which conveys a wrong impression. The following is the extract from his letter to which I refer:

"In particular, some have been in to me who have interviewed the Warden, who was appointed agricultural representative, and thought that because they had stated their cases to him there was nothing else to do, and as a result the applications for exemption have been turned down. In all these cases the proper course to be followed is to at once send in another appeal to the higher tribunal."

Now, the facts are that the Warden and Mr. Knox were appointed by the Government to look after the farmers' interests in all claims regarding exemption. These gentlemen are paid by the Government to do this work for the benefit of the farmers, and they have been sitting day by day at the Court House for that purpose.

I can only say that if I were a farmer wishing to make a claim or an appeal for exemption, I would state my case to the Warden and Mr. Knox or either of them at the Court House, and leave it with them These gentlemen are authorized to do whatever they think necessary by way of recommendation, appeal or otherwise, for farmers complaining to them. That ought to be plain enough, and would let the farmers alone.

Interest In England Centres On Government's Man Power Proposals

The House of Commons Re-assembled To-day—Majority of Trades Union Leaders Virtually Have Agreed to Co-operate With the Government in Combing Out Process.

CONFERENCES THIS WEEK

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 14.— The House of Commons reassembled to-day; all interest centering in the promised statement by Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of National Service, on the government's man power proposals. Sir Auckland has been holding conferences during the last few days with trades union leaders. These conferences will be continued this week.

A majority of trades union leaders virtually have agreed to co-operate with the government in a combing out process, but shop stewards of the engineering and shipbuilding industries refuse to accept any agreement made between the government and trades union officials and demand on the other hand the immediate conscription of wealth and adequate provision for war victims.

AVIATOR'S TRAINING IS FULL OF INTEREST

Finished Airmen Pass the Royal Flying Corps' Course in Six Months.

FASCINATING LIFE

Each week that passes sees a new batch of young men granted commissions in the Royal Flying Corps, men who possess the dash that disregards danger, men whose hearts have responded to the rollicking call of adventure. The training that has made full-fledged aviators of these men from green cadets—in many cases after a course lasting less than six months—has a thoroughness, interest, and fascination that stamp it as unique even among the novelties that the war has forged.

In Canada the man who would fly is sent for about six weeks to the School of Military Aeronautics, held in the halls of the University of Toronto. He begins at this ground school with gaining an understanding of engines. Then comes the theory of flight, including the plains themselves and the principles of different types, the mysteries of the rigging that holds the wings in place and how to repair it. The student must learn enough of astronomy to steer his course at night by the stars. Then he must know how to operate a camera under unusual conditions and how to read the meaning of a mile-high photograph. The classes study topographical maps from the tops of sixteen-foot ladders in lieu of looking down on the earth from two miles up. Upon these maps the instructors locate batteries and give problems in spotting. The student from his perch gives corrections for the operation of hypothetical big guns. These corrections are given with a wireless key, the use of which is a part in the thorough mastery of the Morse code. Finally the student takes his buddy, the machine gun, unto himself, and comes to know its every impulse.

The second stage in the cadet's training is at the big new flying fields, where he first goes into the air and applies the theoretical knowledge gained at the ground schools, and continued in advance instruction here. The cadet's first joy ride and his earlier trips generally are taken in company with the instructor, who has full control and responsibility for the machine, and whose main purposes are, first, to estimate the cadet's coolness, and second, to accustom him to the feel of the air. As soon as his skill warrants it, the cadet is allowed to direct the controls himself, always subject to the check of the instructor, in order that he may learn with safety just how to manage the wings, rudder and engine. This early practice consists largely of short flights with many starts and landings—the most difficult phase of flying.

Then, when the cadet has shown himself a master of these principles, he goes up alone into the air for the first time, but not alone into the air for the most infinite care by the instructors below, surrounded with the most rigid instructions to prevent accidents and fully coached upon landing as to any errors he may have made. By the end of this instruction he is doing the more simple evolutions at a height of ten thousand feet, or soaring off on thirty-mile cross-country flights. By this time he will have completed his tests and will receive his commission as an officer of the Royal Flying Corps, and will be ready to go abroad to the great flying fields on the other side for his final training in the more complex evolutions and in squadron formation.

Government Inspector Gives Testimony

My Improvement on Tanlac Has Been Wonderful," Says Mrs. Wilson

Rivalling the tremendous sweep with which it spread over the entire United States, the fame of the celebrated medicine, Tanlac, is growing in Canada by leaps and bounds, since its introduction here a few months ago. Hundreds of the best known and most highly respected citizens of the provinces of Canada are now taking Tanlac and testifying daily to the remarkable benefits they are obtaining from its use.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, inspector of munitions for the Canadian Government, residing on Harding Avenue, Weston, Toronto, Ontario, and who has lived in Toronto for twenty years, made the following interesting statement regarding the great benefit she received from taking Tanlac:

"Since the early part of last winter, I have been troubled with catarrh. My nasal passages were raw and stopped up, my throat was dry and I had dull throbbing headaches which kept me awake for hours many a night. I was also troubled with indigestion, nothing I ate agreed with me, and I got so nervous that I would tremble at the least unusual sound.

"I have now taken two bottles of Tanlac, and my improvement has been wonderful. The catarrh is gradually disappearing, my head is clearer and I don't have those awful headaches like I did. The trembling spells are a thing of the past and my nerves are as steady as a rock. My appetite has improved greatly and I haven't a sign of indigestion any more. My husband is delighted over my improvement and is now taking Tanlac himself."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug C., Ltd.

PRIZES DISTRIBUTED TO PUPILS OF PARK ST. SUNDAY SCHOOL

One of the most interesting events in connection with Park Street Baptist Church Sunday School took place yesterday afternoon, with the distribution of prizes for attendance. A few years ago the school adopted the system of presenting the scholars or teachers who were present 50 Sundays and over each year with one of Robert Raikes' Diplomas for first year, and adding seals according to the years following. Our records show for the past three years: 15 scholars present 50 Sundays and over in 1915, 32 scholars in 1916, and 46 scholars in 1917. We also gave for first year a pocket Testament, second year a good book, third year a better book, fourth year a book of poems, and so on as they add to their own record.

The secretary, Mr. O. S. Matchett, read the list of the prize-winners and Mr. F. A. D. Fry presented them.

Five years—Miss Rose Theobald has been present every Sunday for the past five years.

Four years—Miss Mabel Theobald has been present fifty Sundays or over during the past four years.

Three years—The following scholars were present fifty Sundays or over during the past three years: Doris Veeman, James Batley, George Batley, Ethel Reynolds, Mr. Rennie Fallis, Miss Elsie Fallis, Miss Nellie Fallis, Ivy Veeman, Fred Reynolds, Ethel White, Ethel Theobald, Dorothy White.

Two years—The following scholars have been present fifty Sundays and over during the past two years: Muriel Thomas, Gladys Thomas, Ena Batley, Iva Whatley, Garfield Whatley, Percy Luffman, Mr. Herbert Tranter, Mr. Alfred Fallis, Gordon Thomas, Mr. Geo. Whatlye, Mrs. A. Fallis, Nellie Lemon, Harold Thomas, and George Tranter.

One year—The following scholars have been present fifty Sundays and over during the past year: Elsie Stevens, Ella Smith, Eva Stevens, Gwen Nichols, Florrie Stevens, Oliver Dixon, Mr. C. Barrie, Elena White, Mrs. Babcock, Mrs. Luffman, Ada Hunt, Albert Stevens, Tommy Stevens, Doris Joliffe, Walter Lemon, Mabel Campbell, Mr. W. Bullied, Miss Doris Goodwin.

The annual business meeting of our school was held a few days ago, when the following officers were elected for 1918:

Superintendent—Mr. F. A. D. Fry.
Asst. Supt.—Mr. W. H. Moore.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. T. S. Matchett.
Asst. Sec.—Mr. H. Tranter.
Librarian—Mr. W. Bullied.
Asst. Librarians—Mr. R. Fallis and Mr. James Hunt.
Organist—Miss N. Goodwin.
Asst. Organist—Miss Rose Theobald.
Supt. of Cradle Roll—Mrs. Robt. Wright.

Teachers—Rev. Mr. Brown, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. M. Dunkley, Mrs. (Rev.) Brown, Mrs. O. S. Matchett, Mrs. Aikens, Mrs. Fallis, Mrs. Babcock, Miss Dunkley, Miss N. Goodwin, Miss E. Fallis, Miss Doris Goodwin, Miss N. Fallis, Miss Elsie Wells, Mrs. R. Wright, Miss J. Nichols, Mr. A. Fallis, Mr. C. Barrie, Mr. Hayward, Mr. W. Saunders, and Mr. Walker.

Our Sunday School is growing rapidly under the able leadership of Rev. Mr. Brown, our pastor, and Mr. Fry, the superintendent. Our receipts for the past year were $324. Our average attendance was 198. Our highest attendance was on 11th November, 258.

A cordial invitation is extended to anyone to come to our Sunday School service every Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

Peppers can be stuffed with almost anything that is well seasoned and savory.

"KEEP A PIG" IS GOOD SLOGAN

OTTAWA, Jan. 14.—"Keep a Pig" campaign which was inaugurated by the Food Controller and the Agriculture Department has been enthusiastically taken up in every province of the Dominion and as a result it is expected that the hog production will be tremendously increased. The province of Manitoba alone figures on raising a quarter of a million more hogs this year.

Some of the western cities have taken up the slogan and in the Cities of Vancouver and Victoria the municipal by-laws have been relaxed permitting the raising of hogs in the city limits. In Vancouver licenses have to be secured from the Medical Health Officer.

"A pig can be kept as clean as a race-horse," said Dr. Underhill, medical health officer for Vancouver, and his opinion is confirmed by officials in Ottawa.

The general production campaign for this year is now well under way and every province is figuring on increasing its output. Quebec, for instance, which last year raised two million more bushels of wheat than ever before, expects to increase this amount by two million more this year.

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA

Mrs. J. B. Horth, Pamphlet, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

What Toronto "Saturday Night" says of "Out There," which is at The Grand to-night. Colliery doors open at 7.30.

Winsome Elsa Ryan again demonstrated the strength of her hold on the theatre-goers of Toronto on Monday night when she captivated an almost capacity audience at the New Princess in the War-play "Out There." The play is announced as a "Dramatic Composition," but it is mostly one comedy with a dash of pathos here and there to balance up a bit. There is nothing subtle about it, but it is intensely human and realistic with exceptionally clever lines, and is exceedingly well done.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Are You Breaking The Law?

A recent amendment to the Motor Vehicle Act requires that Motor Cars shall not show a beam of light more than 42 inches above the surface on which the car is running at a distance of 75 feet in front of the car.

This law is now in force and Chief Thompson has directed the attention of Peterborough motorists to this change in the Act, requesting them to govern themselves accordingly.

Anniversary Services At Trinity Methodist Church

Large Congregations Both Morning and Evening – Rev. W. H. Rowand Occupied the Pulpit in the Absence of Professor Greaves of Toronto, Who Was Stormbound

The anniversary services held yesterday at Trinity Methodist church, were attended by large congregations both in the morning and at night. Rev. Mr. Rowand, pastor of St. Andrew's, in the absence of Professor Greaves of Toronto, who was to have conducted the services, but was unable on account of the weather, preached at both services.

Special Music.

The music at the services was of an unusually high order and most gratifying to those who had trained for some weeks to bring it to the high standard it reached. In the morning, Mr. P. H. Skitch, in his baritone solo, "There is a Green Hall," was heard to great advantage, his magnificent voice suiting the beautiful hymn to perfection. In the evening Mr. Skitch again delighted the congregation in a solo, "Consider Me." Mrs. Geo. H. King, who has already won her way into the hearts of music-loving Peterborough, rendered a soprano solo, "God Be Merciful to Me" with great pathos and unusually sweet tone at the morning service. A splendid male quartette of Messrs. Mitchell, Adair, Downey and Skitch, was heard to great advantage in "Sweet Sabbath Morn." Mr. R. F. Downey taking the solo. The anthems at both services were superbly sung by the full choir.

Evening Sermon.

In the evening, taking as his text "Whatsoever a man shall sow that also shall he reap," Mr. Rowand preached a most eloquent and uplifting sermon. He showed how the law embodied in the text which at first seems harsh is really the loving promise of God. It is a law true both in the natural and spiritual world and a law inviolable, compensative and retributive. Mr. Rowan went on to show how the law of reaping is not confined to the man who sows alone, but affects all about him, hence the idle words of the sinner who is willing to "reap what he sows" are futile for all about him must suffer his degradation.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS' MEETING

The Elementary Graded Union will meet to-morrow (Tuesday) evening in George Street Methodist Sunday School at 8.15 o'clock. The programme includes every department, and is as follows:

"Talk on Junior Work," Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Thomas.

"Circle Talk on Nature," Miss Elsie Cameron.

"How to Teach the Shepherd's Psalm," Mrs. Lang.

"Organization of the Cradle Roll," Miss Cairns.

"Study of Child Nature" (continued), Mrs. E. D. Lewis.

The devotional period will commence promptly at 8.15.

CONGRATULATIONS FOR FIRE CHIEF AND BRIGADE

Chief Grange, who during the past week has been highly complimented on his splendid handling of the two severe fires of the Canoe Company and the Boston Cafe, has also received some letters highly congratulating him and his department on their work, one of which came to-day from Mr. F. D. Kerr. Mr. Kerr says:

Chief Grange.

Dear Sir,—As one of the citizens present on the occasion of the recent fire at the Boston Cafe I desire to congratulate you, and through you, the firemen generally, on the splendid way in which their way of the fighting the fire was conducted. I was on the scene within a few minutes after the fire broke out, and had the privilege of witnessing your operations and was very much impressed by the quiet, masterful way in which the operations were conducted, and I thought I was only doing my duty in letting you know that I, like other citizens who were present, felt you should know the appreciation that was expressed in consequence of your splendid work.

Wishing you every success I am

Yours very truly,

F. D. KERR.

NEW PASTOR FOR TRINITY CHURCH

Rev. F. E. Malott Will Commence His Duties in July Next

The official Boards of Trinity church have invited Rev. F. E. Malott, B.A., B.D., Orillia, to succeed Dr. J. P. Wilson at the end of the conference year. Mr. Malott has accepted the invitation and his work in Trinity will begin July 1, 1918.

LARGE NUMBER INVALID FARMERS

Beaverton Express.—A strange feature of the Local Exemption Tribunals and the appeal tribunals is the extraordinary number of invalid farmers disclosed. Judging from the pleas put forward there are few persons left available, other than farmers, the majority of those coming forward for exemption having invalid fathers and mothers— broken down and unable to work frequently at the age of fifty years. The one occupation thought to be exceptionally healthy has developed conditions truly appalling.

ALD. TAYLOR CHOSEN CHAIRMAN OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE

The following committees were appointed by the Council this morning in Committee of the Whole:

Railways — Ald. Edgar, chairman, McIntyre, Worth, Saunders.

There was a division on the Manufacturers and Finance chairmanships.

Ald. McIntyre was nominated by Aldermen Saunders and Edgar, and Ald. Worth by Aldermen Dobbin and Langford for the Manufacturers and for the Finance.

Ald. Taylor's name was moved by Ald. McIntyre and seconded by Ald. Edgar.

REV. R. J. WEBB CONDUCTED THE ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT PARK STREET BAPTIST CHURCH EAST NIGHT

The snow blockade over the week-end that cut the city off from railway communication, prevented Rev. Dr. Keirstead of McMaster University, from attending the anniversary services at Park street Baptist church yesterday. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Dougald Brown, exchanged pulpits with Rev. J. R. Webb of Murray street, and the inconveniences of the weather were forgotten by the congregation.

Rev. Mr. Webb spoke of the steady progress Park street church was making through the co-operation of people with their pastor. His sermon was based on the first part of the 11th chapter from St. Luke's gospel, particularly the 5th at 6th verses.

Referring to the verse, "For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him," Rev. Mr. Webb stated that most people meant by friend a person had been kind to them and had contributed to their happiness. "A man may despise you and be your friend, he may even hate and yet be your friend." A friend, Rev. Mr. Webb stated, was a person to whom we should be kind. Jesus used the word in addressing Judas when he betrayed Him with a kiss, and in other passages from the Scriptures the term was given a similar meaning.

"You have a responsibility toward those whom you call you enemies. It is stated recently that we are living in days when we find it exceedingly hard to pray for our enemies, but it is our duty to do it no matter how hard it may be. Persons whom you at one time called friend but from whom you have become separated and whom you never pray for now, these are your friends. Though they hate you and treat you badly, continue praying for them. Pray for those whom Jesus loves no matter how they trent us."

The friend mentioned in the parable had lost his way, Rev. Mr. Webb explained. Many men are off their journey and see no light in the world today. "You have no right that they should be without the consolation you find in Jesus. This friend had lost his way at midnight. Many men are passing through the midnight of sin. What have you offer them? They are friends because Jesus loves them, and because they are off their journey and need your prayers and help. Others are passing through the midnight of sorrow, those who have been bereaved, who have lost their boys at the front. Have you anything to lay before them?"

Rev. Mr. Webb explained his subject further, and added the warning, We do not go often enough to him who said, "Ask and it shall be given you." I believe we are approaching a great revival, but if we are satisfied with ourselves and our equipment and believe we have plenty wherewith to feed the spiritually hungry, we shall defeat the very ends for which we are praying.

The special music by the choir, under the direction of Mr. Nichol's, was much appreciated at both services.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a coated tongue, nasty breath, and sick stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation.

Mayor Duncan's Address To The Council At The Inaugural Meeting Held This Morning

Mayor Duncan's inaugural address to the Council this morning was as follows:

Gentlemen,—I am pleased to welcome you to the first meeting of the City Council for this year. We are pleased to see Alderman Saunders and Alderman Weir again in their seats, and we welcome Alderman Edgar back to the Council after an absence of a year. Alderman Jones is the only member who has not occupied a seat here before, and we cordially welcome him to his new duties.

It is with a feeling of sadness that we assemble without the presence of Alderman Smith. He had only been with use in this Council for one year, but we had learned to respect his opinions and to value his assistance. We had known him for many years, and we feel that we have not only lost a valued colleague, but also a highly esteemed citizen and personal friend—a friend whose sudden taking away is mourned by very many who appreciated his excellent qualities of head and heart.

One of the characteristics of this Council has been the harmonious effort of its members to conduct the business in the best interest of the City. There have been, and there no doubt will be, differences of opinion as to the best course to pursue in certain matters, but so long as we recognize the honesty of purpose of each other we can give careful consideration to every opinion, and when a conclusion is reached satisfactory to the majority there need be no ill-feeling, but instead a hearty co-operation to carry out the decisions of the Council in the interests of the ratepayers.

SPECIAL NEED OF CO-OPERATION.

We will need to work together this year. The times are such as to call for the best efforts of every citizen, and especially of every member of the Council. We had hoped that the great war would have been over before this, but the enemy is still in the field and the war must be carried on until the principles of justice and righteousness for which we are fighting shall have been firmly established. In all public business, and indeed in all private business, this is the chief aim to keep in view, and it will be our purpose to conduct the business of the City with this thought uppermost in our minds. It is our hope and prayer that before this year ends our cause will triumph.

At all times economical administration of the affairs of the Municipality is a duty of the Council. But at this time our duty reaches even further than that, because we must not undertake any work, even though it might be beneficial and in ordinary times in the interest of the people, that can be left over until after the conclusion of the war. The cost of work and the high rate which has to be paid for money, and more especially the need of conserving all available funds for war purposes, makes this policy necessary.

REGULATION OF DEBENTURE ISSUE.

The Dominion Government, as you will see by a communication which will later be read to you, has passed an order making it unlawful for any municipality to issue debentures for any purpose without first receiving the approval of the Minister of Finance. This must be borne in mind when the prosecution of any work is under consideration, whether it is a large or small undertaking, that will require the issue of debentures. The order applies, as I understand it, to By-laws already passed but under which the debentures have not been issued, and also to debentures to be issued for local improvements, which were constructed last year and for which the assessments are being made. This order may not, and likely will not, prevent the Council from doing work which it believes to be necessary, but will bring under the purview of the Minister of Finance all proposed issues of debentures, bonds and stocks and enable him to keep a close watch upon all the financial affairs of the country.

While we may not be in a position to carry out some works which we would otherwise proceed with at once, it might and I believe would be well to have all plans and specifications for them prepared and completed, and all preparations made, in order that the works can be begun as soon as a change in the conditions will warrant such action being taken. It would be very difficult to predict what the financial or labour conditions will be when the war is concluded, but one of the steps we can take that will be in the direction of preparedness will be to be ready to proceed promptly with necessary public works which must be deferred for the present.

EARLY PREPARATION OF ESTIMATES.

I would like to ask the Finance Committee, and the other committees, to prepare the estimated expenditure for this year as early as possible, in order that we may know what the requirements will be. In preparing the estimates the utmost carefulness will need to be exercised, in order to keep the expenditures and the tax rate as low as possible while maintaining efficiency in the civic service, for we will have calls for funds for war purposes that will have to be met. I believe it will be good policy for the committees to prepare the estimates at once.

Last year excellent work was done by the citizens in cultivating gardens, and this year the call for greater production is even stronger than it was last year. This is one thing that almost every one can do towards winning the war, and I sincerely hope that every citizen will join in a united effort to increase the production of foodstuffs, by cultivating vacant lots and back yards and in every way that they can. If we can co-operate with the farmers in securing them needed help we should not lose any opportunity to do so.

More war veterans will be returning during the year. We hope that we will welcome all our soldiers home before the year is out. But in the meantime numbers will be coming home, and we must give them every attention. This will be a special duty of the Reception Committee, and I know that they will attend to it gladly.

BROAD FUEL PROGRAMME.

Despite all efforts the coal situation is serious and has been for some time. It was not as bad here as in some places, and the co-operation of the City and dealers prevented suffering. As soon as it can be done the Committee having the matter in charge should make preparations for next season, and if possible to procure it the City should put in a store of coal for next winter. There may be some financial risk in this, but it will be better to take some risk of a loss than to incur the danger of a fuel famine and suffering among the citizens.

More attention should be given to protection from the danger of rabies. If the danger continues the Council should ascertain whether the By-laws that have been passed are sufficient for the purpose of giving the needed protection, and any action necessary for their strict enforcement should be taken.

Another matter requiring attention is our By-laws respecting scavenging. The last By-law passed by the Council, to which considerable consideration was given, was not approved of by the Provincial Board of Health, and this has caused some confusion, if not injustice to some householders. I hope this subject will receive attention from the Health Committee.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSIONS.

We have had the assurance of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission that the extension of the street railway on the Monaghan Road will be made early in the spring, and that the operation of the western lines will then be re-organized. As the lines are operated now they are far from giving a satisfactory service to the residents who use the Jackson Park line, and while I have every confidence that the Commission will endeavour to remedy this unsatisfactory state of affairs, this Council and the Railway Committee should give attention to this and be ready to assist the Commission and to aid the residents to secure an adequate service.

OTHER MATTERS OF INTEREST.

Some mistake has been made in the numbering of the houses on George Street South, and this causes trouble to the merchants in delivering goods and to others. The City Engineer has been asked to make a report upon this, and when his report has been received the houses should be re-numbered or such action taken as will remove the trouble.

The policy which the City has followed for years in regard to manufacturing industries will, I feel sure, be continued during this year, that is, an aggressive policy in securing new industries and at the same time the exercise of carefulness so that the interests of the City will be fully protected.

Other matters will come before us to be dealt with during the year, and to those I have mentioned and to all others I know that you will give your best consideration. No prejudices or personal preferences should be allowed to influence us in the performance of our duties, and this is especially the case now when everyone is called upon to make sacrifices for the common welfare. By a united and earnest effort I hope we will be able to give the ratepayers good service, and at the end of the year we will have the satisfaction of knowing that we have worked together for the one purpose of doing our duty to the best of our abilities.

The above group shows a number of Peterborough members of Number One and Number Three Stationary Hospitals, also the Queen's unit, all of which saw service in the Far East. Included in the picture are three nurses who have been awarded Royal Red Crosses. They are Mrs. M. K. Douglas in the centre of the picture, Mrs. Herbert Bell and Miss Beatrice Blewett. Others in the picture are Miss Margaret Smith, graduate of Nicholls' Hospital, Miss Pansy Roberts, Miss Frankie Smith, Dr. Frederick, Captain Frost, Russell Patterson, H. Leahy and Bert Throop. Miss Roberts, Miss Frankie Smith, Mrs. Douglas, Russell Patterson, H. Leahy and Bert Throop, were members of the Queen's General Hospital. Many of them have since transferred to other units while a number have returned home including Mrs. M. K. Douglas, who is home on a short leave. Mrs. Douglas was acting matron of the Queen's Hospital unit. The above picture was taken on board the S.S. Esturian on the way to the Dardanelles. The ship has since been torpedoed.

RAILWAYS ARE OVERWHELMED

on Sunday packed their bundles into an extemporized kit bag, hung them across their backs like river drivers' "turkies," and struck off down the track. They had a twelve-mile tramp before them to their homes near Indian River.

BOARD OF WORKS.

The Board of Works Department had a large gang of men out this morning removing the snow from the main streets of the city. Communication trenches were cut through to enable the citizens to reach the street cars. It will be a couple of days before conditions become normal.

WITH THE CHURCHES.

A number of special preachers were scheduled to preach in Peterborough on Sunday. Anniversary services were held in Park Street Baptist Church and Trinity Methodist Church, and a prophetic conference in St. Paul's Church. In each of these cases the preachers failed to arrive, and local pulpits were exchanged in their absence. The prophetic conference has been postponed.

THE MILKMEN.

Few, if any, of the milkmen made their rounds on Sunday. A number of them cut out their Saturday trip. The roads were too heavy, and many of them were unable to go out into the country for their supplies.

"The worst storm I ever was out in," remarked one of the milkmen this morning. "Some of the roads will not be open before the end of the week," he added.

WIRE SERVICES.

Very little trouble was experienced with the telephone and telegraph services. It takes a sleet storm to put the wires out of commission. A few minor interruptions were recorded over the week-end.

STREET RAILWAY.

The street railway gave a fairly good service, considering the many difficulties the company had to contend with. While the cars did not run on schedule time, they were able to keep moving, and more than one citizen had reason to be thankful for the service provided.

Yesterday the plough and sweeper were placed in commission, but the snow had packed so hard as to make it impossible to move the plough. A couple of cars will be used to-night to propel the plough, and another effort will be made to clear the streets.

Late on Saturday evening Mr. Fred Jopling journeyed on foot to Bridgenorth. He reached his home after a very strenuous trip through the storm. Several farmers who came in on the trains early on Saturday morning undertook to walk home in the evening when they realised the futility of depending upon the train service.

THE G. T. R. TROUBLES.

The G.T.R. troubles were equally trying. Comunication with Lakefield has been maintained, but in all other directions the roads are deep in snow and field sand packed to a density of ferro-concrete. There is one train at Stirling, and this afternoon a plow followed by the Lakefield train started for Belleville. Among its passengers were draftees, who were so anxious to report at Kingston to-day they refused to blame the weather, and remain here. The G.T.R. train made up at Lindsay on Saturday reached Port Hope. Returning to Peterborough it was held at Campbell's all Saturday night arriving here at 5.20 yesterday with the first and only passengers from Toronto. Farmers nearby provided Sunday morning's meals for the stranded. Both railway offices offer no information of the resumption of traffic.

Peterboro' Nurse Has Been Serving In Halifax Work

Nursing Sister Katherine O'Brien, corner of John and Bolivar Streets, who was sent by Ottawa to Halifax a day after the disaster, returned home on Friday night after a month of strenuous work with the victims of the explosion.

Hospital Conditions.

On arrival in Halifax in the second train which came over the road, Miss O'Brien, with the rest of the detachment of nurses, was sent to the Y.M.C.A., which, like the other public buildings, had been taken over by the Militia, the conditions in all the improvised hospitals were surprisingly good and well equipped by the rich of Halifax and by neighbouring towns and the United States who, the day after the explosion, sent in a ship laden with everything necessary in the stress of circumstances. The only difficulty encountered by Miss O'Brien was the congested state of the wards, where camp beds were packed so tightly the sides of the beds touched.

Saw the Wreck.

Miss O'Brien, together with several of the nurses, was given a pass to go over what is left of the Belgian relief ship.

Miss O'Brien returns to Toronto on Thursday, where she will be at the disposal of the Government for military service.

Saturday Night's Programme to Be Repeated and Is Well Worth Seeing

The great programme that was given at the Empire on Saturday will be repeated to-night on account of films not arriving. The programme is a fine one, consisting of a powerful high-class drama of modern Russia, entitled "The Cossack Whip," featuring Miss Viola Dana. A clean farce comedy, in two parts, entitled "A Runaway Colt" and "The Floating Trap," by Billie Burke, in Gloria's Romance. Matinee 10c, evenings 15c.

HOPE FADES FOR BILLION BUSHEL CROP OF WHEAT

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 12.—Government hopes for a billion bushel wheat crop next year to help the United States feed its allies have received a setback. It was disclosed by the December crop report of the Department of Agriculture that although winter wheat was planted on the largest acreage ever sown in that cereal, its condition on December 1st was the lowest on record for that date.

A winter crop of 540,000,000 bushels was forecast by the Bureau of Crop Estimates. The actual production will be greater or less than that quantity, according as conditions here after are better or worse than average. Through a great spring crop it still is hoped to bring the year's total to somewhere near the billion mark.

An area of more than 47,00,000 acres was the mark set by the government for farmers to plant to winter wheat this fall, but the December canvass shows only 42,170,000 acres were sown. The farmers did their best, Department of Agriculture officials said, but conditions were against them. The dry weather in most of the winter wheat belt was a large drawback, and late harvest of other crops and shortage of farm help were contributing causes for the failure.

Should the winter wheat crop mature to 540,000,000 bushels as forecast to-day, it would be the third largest of record, being exceeded only by the crops of 1914 and 1915. Government officials had figured on having winter wheat production reach 672,000,000 bushels. Indications are that rye production will be 25,000,000 bushels larger than last year's record crop.

Already steps are being taken for a large increase in the acreage of the spring wheat crop to be planted next spring. Council of National Defence and Department of Agriculture officials have conferred and will adopt measures to insure an adequate labour supply for planting operations, ample supplies of seed wheat and help for the harvests. The largest spring wheat crop heretofore was in 1915, when 351,854,000 bushels were harvested from 19,167,000 acres.

In a statement interpreting to-day's report the department said:

"The condition of winter wheat on December 1 was 79.3 per cent. of normal, which compares with a ten-year average condition on the same date of 89.3. The lowest condition ever reported in previous years on December 1 was 81.4 in 1895.

"The rye acreage shows a material increase of 35.6 per cent. over last year, due largely to more than doubling of the acreage in North Dakota. The estimated acreage of 6,119,000 and condition of 84.1 forecast a production of approximately 85,600,000 bushels."

Final Arrangements For Visit of Town Planning Expert

Final arrangements have been made for the visit to Peterborough on Friday, January 18th, of Mr. Thomas Adams of Ottawa, town planning expert. Mr. Adams will reach Peterborough at noon on the day in question, and in the afternoon will make a tour of the city. At 6.30 o'clock Mr. Adams will be the guest of the Engineers' Club at a banquet to be held at the Empress Hotel at which the City Council, members of the Horticultural Society and other public bodies, will be invited. At 8.15 o'clock, in the evening Mr. Adams will address a public meeting in the Public Library.

Mr. Adams is associated with the Commission of Conservation and is thoroughly familar with the work of town planning. At the public meeting to be held in the evening Mr. Adams will show a series of interesting slides.

Are You Fit to Do Your Bit? Strength for the day's work calls for food that supplies tissue-building material in a digestible form. The whole wheat grain contains all the elements needed for building the perfect human body. But be sure to eat the whole wheat. Don't waste any of it. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is the whole wheat grain made digestible by boiling in steam, shredding and baking. It is 100 per cent. whole wheat. "WHICH ONE SHALL I MARRY"?

Here For a Return Date Next Thursday

Many patrons of "The Grand" who were disapointed in not seeing "Which One Shall I Marry" on account of the Company not arriving in time for the Matinee, will be pleased to know that the local management has been successful in arranging for a return date on Thursday next, Jan. 17th. Many who did not see the play when last presented here were so delighted with it that they expressed a desire to see it again, so that a bumper house should be in order on Thursday evening. In addition to a well-written play and a very capable company there are no less than eleven scenes in the production which justly claims to be "the best dollar attraction" on the road. The seat sale will open to-morrow (Tuesday) morning.

Nerves On Edge Feared the Future

Mrs. C. French, 104 Lansdowne St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, frequent headaches and indigestion. For many years I was troubled with a twitching or fidgetty feeling about my limbs after retiring, causing me much loss of sleep. If wakened up out of my first sleep, even had I been asleep only five minutes, I would lay awake for hours and could not get asleep again. Any sudden noise or a door slamming would set my nerves going and I would fear that something dreadful was going to happen. I had tried different remedies for this trouble, but without success. A friend asked me one day why I didn't try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I thought I could at least give it a trial. I secured some and commenced using them, and found they benefitted me so much that I have taken fully a dozen boxes. My nervousness or fidgetty feeling in the limbs is entirely cured. I can now eat and sleep well. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food strongly, and would advise anyone suffering from nervous trouble of any kind to use them according to directions."

"If you have been reading the reports published in this paper from day to day of cures effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you will have some idea of the great good it is accomplishing.

In fact it cannot fail to benefit, even in the most extreme cases, because it works hand-in-hand with nature, and cures by supplying the elements from which rich blood and new nerve force are created.

This building up of a depleted and worn-out nervous system must necessarily be slow, and for this reason a little patience and perseverance is necessary.

A condition which has been months or years in development cannot be overcome in a day, but you need have no doubt of the final results if you use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly and persistently. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.75, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Beware of substitutes, as they only disappoint.

Many Protests Against Order

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 14.—Hon. Tom Johnston, minister of Public Works, is in Ottawa to-day consulting members of the government on behalf of the Manitoba government, backed by the Winnipeg Board of Trade, the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association and other bodies. Mr. Johnston will ask leave to appeal the recent order of the Railway Board increasing rates, to the Governor-in-Council. Application has already been made and given to appeal the order to the Supreme Court. It is stated that the government will review the whole order and evidence connected therewith. Already the government is in receipt of resolutions of a protest against the order from the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, the Western Live Stock Association, the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association and other western bodies. As an alternative for the increase, these bodies advocate the unification of all railways.

KNIGHTS OF MACABEES NOTICE!

The Knights of Macabees are requested to attend the funeral of the late Bro. Wm. McMaster To-morrow Afternoon at 2 p.m., at No. 1 Stewart St.

NOVEL DEVICE TRAINS AVIATORS IN BOMBING

How Skill is Acquired by the Royal Flying Corps Cadets in Training at Toronto University—Model Aeroplane is Used

So rapid has been the advance made during the last two years in aerial warfare that every aviator now trained by the Royal Flying Corps is put through a course covering many phases of work. Not the least interesting branch of his studies comes under the heading "Bombs and Bomb-Sighting!" Indeed, the fascination and the skill this work involves, no less than the exigencies of aerial warfare, have made bombing a highly specialized branch of the service. At the School of Military Aeronautics which is located at the Toronto University, the facilities provided for training cadets in aerial bombing are unusually elaborate.

In aiming to hit a given target with his bomb the aviator has to take into consideration his altitude, the speed at which he is travelling, the weight of his bomb, and the wind's power of deflection. This is a matter of nice calculation. He cannot aim a bomb as he would a gun. So he must release the bomb when the aeroplane reaches the right spot. To aid him in calculating this, he has a bomb-sighting device. At the School of Military Aeronautics he learns thoroughly the use of this device from both the theoretical and practical standpoints.

For training cadets in bomb dropping, a model aeroplane has been constructed, beneath which moves a target painted to represent the appearace of the earth from a height of 4,000 feet. This target is electrically operated. The cadet by using the "joy-stick" and rudder controls of the model aeroplane, which is stationary, moves the target instead of his machine. This gives the exact effect of manoeuvring the aeroplane for position above an actual target as seen from the air. Objectives can be clearly marked on this target with chalk. When the cadet has sighted his given objective he releases a miniature bomb, which indicates whether he has sighted accurately or not. By this novel arrangement he can gain much practice in bomb-sighting and develop both judgment and skill under conditions which, though artificial, approximate very closely to actual bomb-dropping from the air.

The various types of bombs and their uses form a study in themselves. Cadets at the School of Military Aeronautics are shown the construction of each different type with bombs that have sections cut away. They are also taught how to handle those deadly weapons in safety—and effectively.

FIRST "FLIP" IS THE FLYER'S GREATEST THRILL

Among the men who make up the vast aerial army now being trained in different parts of this continent, from Texas to Toronto, there is one common confession that seems at first thought surprising. It is generally presumed that an aviator's greatest thrill comes at the moment he first meets an enemy machine in combat and sends hurtling down from a height of thousands of feet in the air his first victim. That this is thrilling sensation no aviator ever denies, nor that it is a sensation whose excitement sets his nerves tingling with exhilarating joy on every occasion it is repeated. But despite this, newfledged aviators who have learned "stunts" and officers who have fought the Hun alike agree that their most exciting moment came on the day they first donned the fur-lined helmet and a pair of goggles.

"How did you feel at your first flight?" is a question that the aviator, once induced to talk, will inevitably answer to one effect.

"I certainly began to tremble when I found myself being strapped in. And my nerves were not quieted when at the cry "Contact, sir," the engine roared and the great propeller swished, making a hurricane that bent back the grass for fifty yards behind the machine. Then when the wood blocks were cleared and the machine careered bumping across the aerodrome, my trembling was frightful. [illegible] to "bank." I found myself looking over at the ground. I was no longer trembling. It was the purest, maddest joy I've ever felt. The feeling of power and mastery, the sheer exhilaration, filled me with a new sensation—a thrill that I'll never forget."

In the Royal Flying Corps training camps a good interviewer can get similar "first flip" impressions from hundreds of the cadets in training. But he must be a good interviewer. There is a vague, mysterious reticence comes over a man once he settles down to life around aeroplane hangars. New interests, new experiences, new ideas crowd upon him daily till all sense of novelty seems to be lost. He lives in another world. And the fact that the men who lead in that world—the men who have "done things over there"—are modestly silent about their doings, impresses him mightily. He becomes equally reticent—because he is treated by them on an equal footing and learns to respect the standards of good fellowship that they respect. Perhaps that is one of the greatest attractions the Royal Flying Corps can offer—an all-pervading yet not obtrusive spirit of comradeship.

G. T. R. Service To Montreal Is Again Runnning

Canadian Press Despatch:

MONTREAL, Jan. 14.—The cancelled train service on the Grand Trunk railway between Montreal and Toronto, was resumed to-day when snow ploughs cleared the tracks and released snow-bound trains after a night of hard work. The general service running between New York, Ottawa and Quebec points and Montreal, much affected by the blizzard, was also reported to be rapidly approaching normal this morning. In Western Ontario great efforts are being made to clear the tracks.

DAVID S. K. BYRNE IS STILL SEARCHING WORLD FOR HEIRS TO BIG ESTATE

Former Peterboro Man has Reached Detroit With his Weird Inheritance Yarn

Mrs. James Tune, of London, is one of the heirs to an estate valued at from $8,000,000 to $12,000,000. Attorneys on her behalf have been taking the matter up with the executors of the estate.

The Detroit News has the following story of the estate:

Is John Moss among us; or Francis Hill or John Waldron or Mrs. James Tune or Albert Moore or John Taylor?

If any of those persons are in Detroit they'd best get right in touch with David S. K. Byrne, at the Hotel Plaza. Mr. Byrne arrived here on Thursday toting an estate of $8,000,000 or $12,000,000, and he wants to present them with slices of it.

Mr. Byrne is a missionary by inclination; a tea and coffee merchant by trade, and a potential millionaire by the unwritten laws of justice. If he fails to discover the above-named persons the $8,000,000 or $12,000,000 estate will go all to him. Naturally he doesn't care for that much money, so the other heirs will do him a great favour by looking him up.

Bible Paved the Way.

The story of how he came into this wealth is fairly dripping with thrills and throbs. Its moral points clearly to the value of knowing one's Biblical quotations. Here goes:

It was a dark day back in 1907 when Mr. Byrne was doing a bit of missionary work in Chicago. At that time his name was David S. Kidd. A woman of the streets approached him in a saloon with the demure request that he buy her a drink or so.

Instead of spurning—or buying, Mr. Kidd quenched the girl's thirst with verses from Luke; 53 of them in succession. And then with the knowledge of good work well done, he turned and walked from the saloon.

Imagine his astonishment some 15 minutes later when he looked around and saw the girl beside him. She told him his biblical quotations had reformed her. She had been an outcast for twelve years, but now she was going home again, she said.

Father Thanks Him.

A month or so later, Kidd received a letter from her father, William G. Byrne, of Florida. The letter thanked Kidd for his kindness to the girl, and offered to make him an heir to the Byrne fortunes if he would take the name of Byrne. He did, having discovered that the Byrne fortunes approximated either $8,000,000 or $12,000,000. Mr. Byrne legally adopted him as a son.

The next year the girl died. A few months later Mr. Byrne also died, and David S. K. Byrne was named administrator of his estate. All it comprised was a mess of oil lands in Mexico, vast property holdings in Australia, Florida, Argentina, Spain, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and several southern States, besides some railroads in this country and Canada. Byrne had requested that Then Byrne's widow, and her only son were drowned in the Empress of Ireland disaster in 1914. Their death left David S. K. Byrne the sole heir-at-law of an estate worth either $8,000,00 or $12,000,00.

To be sure, there were several little matters to be cleared up before Byrne became owner of the estate; verification of holdings and court records and land titles and things like that.

Long Search for Heirs.

David S. K. Byrne has been busy on this work since 1914. He has travelled nearly all over the world, has inspected the records of every county clerk in the United States. Also he has been looking for the persons who were left bequests in the will, and who may be in Detroit, he thinks.

John Moss is a former secretary of the testator, Francis S. Hill was a friend of Mr. Byrne. John Waldron is a nephew, and is to get a trifling $250,000. Mrs. James Tune comes in for a big job. Albert Moore was Byrne's gardener, by reason of which he has $10,000 coming. John Taylor was his secretary, and has $50,000 coming. These legatees will do well to visit Mr. David S. Kidd Byrne at his hotel if they live here.

Besides these bequests he will spend $2,500,000 on a model mission in Toronto when he gets the money. He will be able to spare that much nicely. For the estate is worth either $8,000,000 or $12,000,000.

PTE. HENRY A PRISONER

Peterboro' Boy Who Took Part in Famous Charge at Cambrai is Now in Germany

City Assessor W. J. Henry has received official word that his son, Pte. Vernon Alfred Henry of the Canadian Cavalry, previously reported wounded and missing, is now officially reported a prisoner of war at Limberg, Germany. Pte. Henry enlisted here early in 1915 with B Squadron, 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, and after going overseas with that unit, was transferred to the Fort Garry Horse. After the famous attack of the Fort Garrys at Cambrai in November last, when the Canadian cavalry penetrated two miles into the enemy territory Pte. Henry was reported wounded and mising. Nothing more was heard about him until yesterday, when his father received the following message from Ottawa:

"Cable received to-day states No. 113287, Pte. Vernon Alfred Henry, previously reported wounded and missing, now officially reported prisoner at Limburg."

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

YOUTH RENEWED

The Glorious Days of Youth when the eyesight answered every demand on it, soon go. Hard use or abuse of the eyes unfits them for the daily work required of them, but thanks to Science they can be made as useful as new. Dr. Fowler tests the eyesight by most modern methods and fits them with "Peblo" Glasses that really restore the Natural Sight.

IRISHMEN LOST WITHOUT TRACE

CREWS OF TWO VESSELS RUTHLESSLY MURDERED BY THE GERMANS

CORK, Jan. 8.—I have just returned from Waterford, which presented a spectacle of a city in mourning. Women and children mourn the loss of brave Irishmen who have been ruthlessly murdered by submarine pirates—in the words of Count von Luxburg, "spurlos versenkt." Not a single member of either of the two crews is alive to tell the tale.

It has been announced that a portion of wreckage and a lifeboat belonging to one of the missing boats has been washed ashore on the Welsh coast. The circumstances of the loss of the second vessel, which was sunk a few days afterwards, are still a mystery.

The second boat left England December 17. It is supposed that when the "sub" fired a torpedo, before the passengers and crew had time to launch their lifeboat or realize their fate, they went down with their ship.

For the last three weeks women and children have never left the doors of the branch of the Sailors' and Firemen's Union, waiting for any news that may give a gleam of hope for lost ones.

I have heard it repeatedly said here in Ireland that the Germans would not attack an Irish-owned boat or a boat bound for Ireland. Even seamen were induced to believe this. Few of those who have now lost their husbands and fathers will listen to this kind of talk again without doing something to silence it.

The Mayor of Waterford has started a fund, which has already reached a total of £1,600. The Mayor of Dublin has opened a fund for the Dublin victims.

FUNERAL TO-DAY

The funeral of the late William Stock who died on Friday at the family residence, 124 London street, took place this morning at 10 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery. Service conducted by Rev. Mr. Donet, was held at the house before leaving. The pallbearers were Rev. Mr. Conners, Messrs. Alex. Gillespie, A. J. Johnson, N. Lush, Kitney and T. W. Robinson.

Sidney Cheese and Butter Factory Initiates New Feature for 1918.

SIDNEY CROSSING, Jan. 15.—At the annual meeting of the Sidney Cheese and Butter Factory it was decided to initiate a new feature for 1918 by installing a plant to separate the butter fat from the whey, which will either be manufactured into butter here or sent to Toronto.

The past season was a very successful one. Mr. Charles Hess was elected president for another year, and Mr. McLaughlin, cheesemaker.

TROUBLED FOR YEARS WITH BRONCHITIS

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup GAVE INSTANT RELIEF

Bronchitis is a disease which is very prevalent during the late winter and early spring, when there are sudden atmospheric changes. It is a condition of inflammation of the bronchial tubes which produces mucous or phlegm. This irritates the throat and causes you to cough in order to get rid of it. The cough may be tight or loose according as to whether this mucous is sticky and hard to remove, or soft and easily expelled.

Bronchitis is not really dangerous but the complications which are liable to set in at the first sign. This you can do by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A remedy that has been on the market for over 35 years.

John D. McFarlane, Jr., S.W. Margaree, N.S., writes: "I was troubl for years with bronchitis, and cannot find any relief. I was especia bad on a damp day. I went to a drug gist and asked him for something stop the constant tickling in m throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which found gave me instant relief. It is best remedy for bronchitis I know and I now take care that I alwa have a bottle of it on hand."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's". P up in a yellow wrapper; three pi trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

YARMOUTH BOMBED

Twenty Shells Were Poured Into England's Popular Watering Place —Three Were Killed

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Yarmouth was bombarded from the sea during the night, Lord French, Director of Home Defence, reported to-day.

Twenty shells were hurled into the port.

Three were killed and ten injured.

The damage was not serious, French declared.

Yarmouth is in the county of Norfolk, on the east coast of England, nineteen miles east of Norwich. It is a popular watering-place, and has extensive dockyards.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Jan. 15.—France has official and irrefutable information that the German armies have stolen by orders of their Government, Goods of all kinds from France and Belgium have been shipped to the German "Office of War Booty" in Berlin. Here the German people are urged to come and chose anything from vehicles, agricultural and factory machinry, antique furniture, pictures, rare tapestries, plates and dishes, jewellery, clocks, and other articles—at fixed prices.

The "Office of War Booty," according to advertisements found on recent German prisoners is located at Berlin, W. 35, Schoneberger Ufer, a group of large temporary buildings erected as "show and sales rooms."

One Government advertisement reads: "French trench helmets have been reserved by the Minister of War for sale to the profit of the National Endowment for families of those fallen at the front.

"It is a bargain to acquire a rare and durable souvenir of the great world conflict, and at the same time contribute to soften the lot of families of our brave heroes fallen in the war.

"To each buyer will be given a certificate of origin and acquisition for each trophy."

PEACE PROSPECTS ARE SLIM

The Pope Will Suspend Judgment on the Peace Situation Until Governments Speak

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By John H. Hearley.)

ROME, Jan. 15.—According to reliable Vatican information to-day, the Papal Nunzios to Austria and Germany have informed Pope Benedict that there is no encouragement for peace hopes at the present time.

The Pope, is was asserted, will suspend judgment on the peace situation until the governmental pronouncements are received.

Presumably the Nunzios reported on peace "feelers" which were reported as having been tentatively put out by the Vatican.

At that time it was reported the Pope called the attention of Emperor Karl of Austria to the American outline of peace aims as likely to afford a possible basis of peace discussion, and had suggested that the Austro-Hungarian monarch take up the matter with the Kaiser.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithea-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"
A DETECTIVE STORY

ISABEL OSTRANDER

CHAPTER II.

"ROSES AND A KNIFE."

The crowd in the apartment entrance and upon the sidewalk had been dispersed, the body of the unknown victim of the night's tragedy was removed to the morgue and a semblance of order and quiet restored.

Dr. Elmsford had gone to his patient up-stairs, and Inspector Druet sat in the office with his detectives, and McCarty, concluding his hasty tabulation of the scant evidence on hand.

"You went over the body just now, before it was taken away, Martin?" he began.

"Yes, sir, but not as thoroughly as I will at the morgue."

"Well, what's the answer?" Inspector Druet looked up sharply, for there was a note of hesitancy in the man's tones which hinted at a mental reservation.

"Oh, I guess she was a swell, all right. The clothes alone show that. 'Lucette,' the name on her coat, is the best known and highest priced dressmaker in this country, and the hat was imported from one of the leading Paris houses. But for all that, there were one or two queer things that don't jibe.

"For instance, in spite of the smart costume, there wasn't a sign of jewelry on her except the hat-pin; not even the plain, rich sort that ladies wear with tailored clothes; shortwaist rings, belt or collar pins or a wrist watch.

"One hatpin must have been jarred out and lost in her fall for the marks of it were in her hat, but the other—it had broken short off and jammed into the straw—was a real sapphire—the real thing. Her purse or hand bag, or whatever she carried, must be in the house somewhere, in the room from which she fell, but she must have worn some other jewelry. What's become of it?"

"Don't run away with that idea, Martin," objected the inspector. "If she came here secretly for some purpose she did not want even the bell boy to know about, as his evidence seems to show, she may have had good reasons to leave her valuables at home.

"But we haven't any time now for theorizing; we have got the tenants in this house to interview yet, and it's after midnight. Did you get anything more definite, anything practical from your survey of the body?"

"I don't know whether you'd think it was, inspector, or not," Martin responded in an aggrieved voice. "Only did you notice her feet? They were small enough anyway, but she had little for her; the doctor had to cut one off. And the foot itself was all callouse, not soft like a lady's. That is all, but the identification will be a pipe of course, from the marks in the clothes alone."

"Then we'll get to work." The inspector rose. "Martin, you go and see if you can find out anything from the coat and hat tabs. The caretaker or watchmen at the shops will know where the managers live. Rout them out and make them tell you from the description of the things who purchased them, or else show you the books, if they can be had to-night.

"Yost, you get on down to the morgue and keep an eye on anyone who comes to look at the body. If some party arouses your suspicions, telephone to headquarters for a man to take your place there, and trail them. I want to have a look at the outside of the house now, to get a line on where she might have fallen from."

"I suppose I'd better be getting on home," McCarty announced reluctantly. "I'm only putting in here now. I'll see you at the inquest."

"Oh, stick around, Mac." There was a kindly flash of understanding in the inspector's eyes. "You got mixed up in this thing at the very start and you might as well see it through. You have nothing else to do, I hear, since you got so prosperous you turned the department down."

"I'd like nothing better than to be on hand when the folks in this house tell what they know!" responded McCarty with unrestrained eagerness. "I'd never believed in a million years that it's either suicide or accident, inspector, if only for that whisper I got from her."

"We'll see. Come along outside."

They found the superintendent, a stolid-faced, lanky Swede, awaiting them in the hall. He verified the diagram and the list of tenants which the hall-boy had supplied, and accompanied them to the street.

By his orders the gruesome traces of the tragedy had been obliterated, and a broad expanse of glistening, freshly hosed sidewalk met their eyes.

McCarty measured his distances carefully and walked to the exact spot where the woman fell.

"It was just here, inspector. I'm certain, because when I looked up I marked that it was on a plumb line with the space between those two windows that come almost together on each floor. She could have fallen from either window and a twist of her body would have landed her here."

"Which apartment are those two windows in?" The inspector turned to the superintendent.

"In both," the latter replied. "The one on left, as you stand here and look coop, bane last winder of 'partment 'A.' That's music room like, next drawing room on corner. Other winder living room of 'partment 'B.' Only house wall between."

"Humph! Then she might have been in either apartment, on any floor," remarked the inspector. "That doesn't help any. Now, we'll have a go at the tenants. You needn't come, superintendent; I'll take the hall boy. Give him your pass keys."

McCarty understood that the inspector believed information to be more easily available from the garrulous negro than the taciturn Swede, but he doubted, as he followed the official into the elevator, whether anything more of value could be learned from either source.

The two closed apartments on the second floor gave unmistakable evidence in the stuffiness of the atmosphere and the smooth unbroken film of dust which lay everywhere that they had not been entered for several weeks at least. Everything was in order, the furniture funereally encased in linen covers, and the pictures draped with netting.

They ascended to the third floor, and pressed the bell of the corner apartment. The same maid who had interrupted the conference below with her call for the doctor opened the door cautiously and her eyes widened when she recognized the inspector.

"I should like to speak to Mrs. Doremus."

"Oh! I don't think you can," the girl demurred. "She's all upset, and the doctor has given her a sleeping powder."

"I'm sorry to disturb her, but it's important." The inspector pushed his way in unceremoniously, with McCarty at his heels.

"She'll be very angry," persisted the girl. "This is a nice time of night to come getting people out of their beds! She don't know anything about what happened——"

"That will do! You tell your mistress the police want to ask her some questions. I'll go in myself!" the inspector interrupted sternly.

With an impudent toss of her head the girl disappeared down the hall. There was a little cry, a petulant murmur, and then silence for a few minutes.

"If she knows anything at all about it, at least it was not from here the woman fell," McCarty whispered. "If you remember, 'twas after I raised the poor thing's head that the window here opened and this one screamed."

"The window might have been shut quickly and opened again by some one with presence of mind enough to pull such a stunt," remarked the inspector reflectively. "Don't you see, Mac, that screaming would draw attention to the fact that the window had been closed before. We'll try what we can get out of the lady. Here she is."

"Come in, please, and let me know what you want. I am very ill; this terrible affair has completely unnerved me."

Her eyes were round and staring, and of a bright, rather hard blue. It was only when they were quite close that McCarty noticed the carefully massaged crow's feet and the meretricious glitter of her curling blond hair.

"We regret the necessity of breaking in upon you like this, Mrs. Doremus, but we must learn all we can without delay."

"But what can I tell you? I know nothing, nothing of this awful thing!"

She led the way into the library, waved them to seats, and sank weakly upon a couch.

"How many are in your family? Your husband——"

The lady's languid pose stiffened. "I live here alone, with my two maids!" The dulcet sweetness of her affected, childish treble had sharpened. "I fail to see what bearing my private affairs have on this matter. Please state what you want as briefly as you can and permit me to retire."

"Very well, madam. Who was in your apartment this evening?"

It was evident that she regretted her flash of temper as quickly as she had exhibited it, for she dropped her eyes and murmured shrinkingly:

"When—when the accident occurred. Only Mary the maid, you saw just now, and myself. I let my cook go to her people in Brooklyn for the night."

"What did you hear or see; what made you go to your window and scream—for it was you, wasn't it?"

"Yes." She shuddered, and for a moment covered her eyes with her hand. "It is so horrible to have to recall it, I was trying so hard to put it all out of my thoughts. I was as you see me now, sitting in that chair over there under the floor lamp, reading the dearest little story I was so interested in. The chair was turned around, almost facing the window.

"All at once I heard a muffled sort of cry. It seemed to come from somewhere overhead, but I couldn't be sure, everything was so confused and happened so quickly! There was a piano going, too, at the time, but the cry rose above it. That is the terrible part of it, that the piano should have kept right on, as if nothing was the matter——"

"Please go on," prompted the inspector patiently. "You heard the cry——"

"And I looked up. I don't know why, for the people just over my head are so noisy that I have grown accustomed to all sorts of hilarious sounds from there, but this was like nothing I had heard before. Just as I raised my eyes something shot past my window! Of course it was light in here and comparatively dark outside, so it made merely a faint shadow on the blind, but I felt what it was. I'm very psychic, everyone tells me so, and things seem to come to me. I don't know whether I actually heard it—her, strike the ground or not, but I fancied I did, and that was quite as bad. I sat there with my poor little heart up in my throat, afraid to breathe!"

"Do you usually sit with closed windows on such a hot night?"

The lady blinked.

"Why no! I hadn't noticed before then that it was closed. I never feel the heat, and I suppose that Mary forgot to open it. I leave everything to her, and she has complete charge. She takes care of me just like a baby."

She paused with a sidelong glance at the inspector's inscrutable face, but her naive helplessness did not appear to have carried effectively.

"What else did you hear from above?"

"Oh, nothing! Not a sound! I tried to call Mary, but my voice would not come. I managed somehow to get over to the window and open it, and when I looked down——"

"Your voice came then," the inspector observed dryly.

"Yes; I must have screamed — oh, fearfully! I'm very delicate, the slightest thing affects me, and this—I know I shall never recover from the shock—never! My little home here will not be the same to me ever again!"

The lady's corpulency belied the frailness she claimed, but it was evident beneath what might have been her habitual pose that she was genuinely shaken and on the verge of a freak outburst of hysteria.

With a parting reminder that she must hold herself in readiness for the inquest the inspector and McCarty withdrew.

The maid, Mary, was waiting at the entrance door, but instead of closing it after them, she followed for a hesitating step or two into the main corridor.

"I suppose it's not my place to be offering any information, if you don't think it worth while to ask me," she remarked, "but I could tell you something."

"Good!" The inspector turned to her. "What part of the flat were you in when this affair happened?"

"In Mrs. Doremus's bedroom, sir, picking up." She spoke haltingly, but then the words came with a rush. "The window on the air shaft was open, and you could hear a murmur of voices from the different apartments opening on to it. All at once, above them all, I heard a hoarse voice call out. It seemed to be just one quick sentence, and I could only make out one word near the middle of it. That word was 'stepfather.' Just after that came a funny, choked cry, but I couldn't tell whether it was the same voice or not."

"Was the first voice a man's or a woman's?" asked Inspector Druet.

"I don't know, sir. It was so hoarse and harsh like."

"And this was——"

The girl hesitated.

"About a minute before Mrs. Doremus screamed. That's all I know, but I wanted to tell you."

"I'm glad you did, Mary. Now, have you any idea where this voice came from?"

"Well, sir, I thought at the time that it was directly overhead, but sounds carry so in that shaft that I may have been mistaken. It might have come from higher up and across for all I know. There's Mrs. Doremus calling; I'll have to run back."

"There may be something in that," the inspector observed, when she had closed the door. "What do you make of the other one, Mrs. Doremus, Mac?"

McCarty's eyes twinkled, but he replied evasively.

$ DOLLAR DAY $

THE EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

The day when the Dollar Bill talks louder in Peterborough Stores than any other day in the year. This Year it will be held on—

THURSDAY, JAN. 24

About 30 of the principal stores in the City are participating, and are busy preparing the best list of bargains they can possibly find in their splendid stocks, and shoppers will certainly appreciate the extremely varied offerings such a large array of stores will assure. As usual the big list of Cash Bonuses is a liberal one, as the Merchants are giving away

$175 —CASH— PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every Dollar Purchase on that day, an Estimating Blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and dropped into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10.15 p.m. on DOLLAR DAY.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the 1st Prize of $25; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15, and so on.

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, 1st prize	$25.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd prize	20.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd prize	15.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th prize	10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th prize	10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 6th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 7th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 8th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 9th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 10th prize	$5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 11th prize	5.00
Next 5 nearest correct estimates, 5 prizes, each	3.00
Next 10 nearest correct estimates, 10 prizes, each	2.00
Next 30 nearest correct estimates, 30 prizes, each	1.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks; and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last Dollar Day Campaign was, in the neighborhood of 9,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 24th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

See the List of Stores which will be Printed Complete, and Watch their windows and Special Announcements just previous to Dollar Day.

You can recognize all the Stores where DOLLAR SPECIALS are being given by the RED LETTERED PENNANTS IN THEIR WINDOWS.

Dying Soldier Cast Vote.

A Paris cable to The Mail and Empire, Toronto, tells two anecdotes of the voting in France.

A pathetic incident was the casting of a vote by a dying man at a base hospital. He was unable to use his hands, but retained a clear intellect, and gave instructions as follows:

"Please mark it so that these fellows (referring to the Opposition) will get a black eye." Shortly afterward he expired.

On the ludicrous side there was the instance of a well known cavalry unit. They got into a tight corner in the recent fighting and were battling against heavy odds, when the first message to reach them was the instructions from the polling officer.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A STORY OF FACT

By RUTH GRAHAM

"Don't leave the porch, children Mamma won't be gone long."

These words were spoken by a mother to her two children—a boy and a girl aged respectively seven and four years—and the story which follows is true.

The adage "Truth is stranger than fiction" arises from the fact that in the latter the author must introduce a certain plausibility or he will be accused of a lack of the inventive faculty. Such incidents as this one are seldom taken for motifs for stories because they are too improbable.

The mother had not been gone long before a man came along, threw a sack over the girl's head and run away with her. When the mother returned she found her daughter gone and her boy crying.

The neighborhood was searched high and low, the police were notified, and a posse was organized to hunt for the missing child. Weeks, months, years passed, but the little girl remained unheard of by her parents. Her mother never saw her again.

Evelyn—such was the child's name—was carried to unknown parts by the man who kidnaped her, but why he had taken her must remain a mystery, for she was too young to understand his object. After a time he gave her to a family who treated her well, but she was finally taken to a wild region in Kansas and sold to persons there. They kept a tavern beside a road along which travelers passed at intervals, though in such a country guests were few and far between.

One night a traveler stopped at the house, ate his supper and was shown to his room. That night Evelyn was awakened by shrieks which grew fainter and fainter, as if coming from some one who was being overpowered. The terror stricken child lay awake the rest of the night. In the morning she was told that the travelers had gone on. After that for awhile the family purse seemed to have been replenished.

Evelyn by this time was old enough to know what was going on about her and gradually came to realize that she was living in a den of robbers and murderers. It was not always necessary to kill their victims, but when it was they did not hesitate to do so.

One day the child was standing at the door crying. Three woodchoppers came along and asked her what was her trouble. She gave them her confidence, telling them how she had been taken from her home and had finally fallen into hands of those whose deeds made her shudder. They took her away with them, and on the information she had given a posse was organized, and the lair of the murderers was raided. Some of them escaped, but others were captured, tried and convicted.

This sounds for all the world like a fairy story of a little girl who was held by an ogre and just before she was about to be eaten up was rescued by a woodchopper.

After this Evelyn was claimed by a woman who said she was her mother. Evelyn denied this, but, since she had no home, went to live with the woman. But she remained here only a year, at the end of which time the woman drove her out to shift for herself.

The poor child was now twelve years old and devoted herself to making her own living. But all the while she never gave up hope that she would find her parents and her brother. The brother meanwhile was growing to be a man. He remembered his lost sister and would have made efforts to find her if he could have got any clew. Unless a child is kidnaped for ransom and the parents are called upon to pay it there is little hope of its restoration. No child of four years of age is capable of acting in its own behalf.

Evelyn, when she came to a marriageable age, was courted and became a wife. This was the end of her troubles, for she lived happily with her husband.

Suffered Great Agony
FROM PAIN IN STOMACH
FOR OVER 5 YEARS

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arises from disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are feeling out of sorts, have pains in the stomach, especially after eating, bilious spells, headaches, sour stomach, coated tongue, sallow or muddy complexion, specks floating before the eyes, you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and note the change.

Miss Ida Hogan, Dunrobin, Ont., writes: "For over five years I have suffered great agony from pains in the stomach. I tried several remedies but got no relief until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I started with two vials and before I had the came used, I found much relief. I continued until I used four vials, and they have completely cured me. That was fourteen months ago and I have not had the slightest return since. The best praise I could give them is not enough."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Mrs. Borland's Relative

By MAY C. ETHERIDGE

When Tom Borland married Susan Gilbraith, Tom being master of a tramp steamer and at sea nearly all the time, he hoped that a little stranger would soon happen that way to keep his wife company during his absence.

Tom's communications from home were very irregular, because his itinerary was often uncertain. If on arriving at one point it would pay better to go to another than the one he had expected to steer for he would alter his plans, so that letters addressed according to instructions would lie in the postoffice unclaimed. His wife heard from him with as much regularity as could be expected from a sailor, but sometimes months would intervene between his receipt of letters from her.

The Borland home was just within the entrance to a narrow bay into which Captain Borland on his return always took his ship and docked her. When he came from the northward, as he usually did, on turning into the harbor he could see his little home nestling up on the heights, and when his wife knew that he was due she would be on the lookout for him. Then how joyful to her was the sight of the ship in which he came and to him the welcome he saw waving from an upper window. But if soon after rounding in he didn't see that signal he was seized with fear that something of a grievous nature had happened.

On one of Captain Borland's voyages, after having been away almost a year and having changed his itinerary so often that he had not heard from his wife for months, he turned the bluff at the entrance of the bay anxiously. He had found an opportunity to send a letter to her advising her of the probable time of his arrival and hoping that within a short time after coming into view of his home he would see the usual signal.

When rounding the bluff he stood on deck, binoculars in hand, watching for what would relieve his anxiety and assure him that his wife was living and well. But, though he raised his glasses often, he was every time disappointed. At last when he reached a point nearest to his house the figure of a woman appeared on the porch and waved, but with the assistance of his glasses he saw that it was not that of his wife.

Captain Borland hardly knew what to think of all this. But he surmised either that his wife was dead, that she was ill or that something had occurred to take her away from home. Anxiously he sailed up to a point near the dock and, after dropping anchor, entered a boat with six sailors to pull him to a point on the shore just below his house. As soon as the boat's nose scraped the ground he leaped ashore and walked hastily up the incline.

He was met at his door by a woman in the uniform of a trained nurse, who seemed disposed to block his entrance till he informed her that he was at his own home. Then she told him that his wife was ill, but not dangerously ill; that the doctor was with her, that the patient had been informed of his expected arrival and that if he came before the doctor left he was to wait. The captain began to fire questions at the woman, who, telling him that she was needed in the sickroom, went upstairs.

The captain walked the floor anxiously. Half an hour passed when he heard the door of his wife's bedroom open, and his family physician came out and down into the room where Borland was waiting. After greeting the captain he said:

"Your wife is ill, and my presence here is necessary for I can't tell just how long. She has requested me to tell you it is her wish that you remain away until I am able to assure you that—well, that the crisis has passed."

"Then she is dangerously ill?"

"I don't say that, though in such cases there is always danger. But I can assure you that all is going well with her and before night at furthest she will be able to see you."

"Surely she should be able to see her husband at any time."

"She is, but it is her wish to wait till she will not be obliged to greet you in her present condition after your long absence. She has commissioned me to say that it would be well for you to return to your ship to attend to her docking and such other matters as are requisite on coming in from a voyage."

The captain assented to this and, going down to his boat, was pulled to his ship.

Borland was especially cast down at returning to find his wife ill, for he had good luck on his voyage and had done some profitable trading which would enable him to buy his ship and thereafter be its owner as well as master. However, he docked the vessel and then waited news from the invalid. It was 9 o'clock at night when he was summoned to his home and when he reached it, after being told that the crisis was passed, was told by the doctor that a relative of his wife's was with her, but this made no difference and he might go in and see her at once.

On opening the bedroom door there lay Mrs. Borland on the bed and beside her the relative—or, more properly speaking, the little stranger whose coming the couple and so recently longed for.

WAR BADGES READY.

Soldiers Will Be Divided Into Four Classes.

The Militia Department advises that war service badges are now ready for issue, and recommends that applications be sent in through District Headquarters without delay.

Class A—For members of the C. E. F. who have seen active service at the front and are now on duty in Canada, or who have been honorably retired or discharged.

Class B—For members of the C. E. F. honorably retired or discharged on account of old age, wounds, or sickness, rendering them permanently unfit for service, after having seen service in England or at the front.

Class C—For members of the C. E. F. honorably retired or discharged on account of old age, injuries or sickness, rendering them unfit for service, after having seen service in Canada.

Class D—For men who offered to enlist prior to August 10th, 1917, and were rejected as and still are medically unfit, and for members of the C. E. F. honorably retired or discharged who are not entitled to any other badge, provided that they are medically unfit.

With reference to the first three classes the Militia Department announces that no men are eligible for the badges who have been discharged within three months of enlistment, unless for disabilities caused by service, discharged by reason of stoppage of working pay, or discharged as unlikely to become efficient soldiers, unless for disabilities caused by service.

All men applying for Class D badges must undergo a further medical examination. Should a man qualify under both Classes A and B he is entitled to both badges, but no man receiving the badge of Class A or that of Class B, or both, shall receive the badges of Class C or Class D.

With reference to the Canadian Patriotic Fund badges for service at the front, which have been issued in some number, the department states that holders of these must apply for a war service badge, Class A, and discontinue the wearing of their present badge. The same rule applies to the C. E. F. badge for service in England only, but in the latter case the holder should apply for a Class B war service badge.

The Folly Of Taking Digestive Pills

A Warning to Dyspeptics.

The habit of taking digestive pills after meals makes a chronic dyspeptic of many thousands of men and women because artificial digestents, drugs and medicines have practically no influence upon the excessively acid condition of the stomach contents which is the cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The after dinner pill merely lessens the sensitiveness of the stomach nerves and thus gives a false sense of freedom from pain. If those who are subject to indigestion, gas, flatulence, belching, bloating, heartburn, etc., after eating would get about an ounce of pure bisurated magnesia from their druggist and take a teaspoonful in a little water after meals, there would be no further necessity for drugs or medicines because bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acidity, stops food fermentation and thus insures normal, painless digestion by enabling the stomach to do its work without hindrance.

Old Kinsmen Getting Together

NOT even Germany has tried to inculcate patriotism more earnestly than our big kinsman and partner to the South. It is said that in the authorized edition of the primary German school-book there is this question, "What is Germany?" The answer is, "Our Fatherland, surrounded by enemies." It was not true when written, however it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we licked." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Senegambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation, and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness of perfidious Albion.

Americans who are readers and whose knowledge of history is not confined to what they were taught when in knickerbockers, have rid themselves of the prejudice against England, but as most Americans, like most Canadians, do not learn anything about ancient history after they escape from the Public schools, it is not unnatural that the majority of American citizens have had the idea that as soldiers the English were either jokes or tragedies, that the generals were an unpleasing combination of boor and fool, and that the aim of Great Britian was to enslave whatever portions of the earth remained open for conquest. Before the war more than one American writer combatted this idea, and it had made considerable headway. Since the United States and Great Britain have become allies the work of enlightening the average American has proceeded apace, and now it is by no means uncommon to find an American newspaper telling its readers that what they were taught about England at school is, to use the happy phrase of Emerson, "the old bunk."

In last Sunday's Portland Oregonian, one of the best papers on the Pacific slope, the leading article is devoted to "Our Anti-British School-Books." The writer points out that the mischief of the average American school-book, when it attempts to teach history, is not that it invents history, but that it presents facts in such a manner that the victory of an enemy when he takes 10,000 prisoners is represented as unimportant compared with a victory for the home troops when they take 18 prisoners. For instance, in the history of the War of 1812, the Battle of Lake Erie is included as a Homeric and decisive conflict, while the "affair at Bladensburg" is treated as soever. The glorious Canadian records of Chateauguay, Lundy's Lane, and Queenston Heights might as well appertain to the history of Peru, so far as the average American schoolboy is concerned.

Before the war Mr. Charles Altschul, who certainly bears no English name, wrote a book in which he examined the various American histories used in the schools. He carefully reviewed the events leading up to the American revolution, and showed that the injustices which the American colonists were called upon to endure were not imposed upon them by the English people, but by a King of England who was as German as the present Crown Prince. He showed that the greatest Englishmen of the day, Pitt and Fox and Burke, were brothers in spirit to Franklin, Adams, and Washington, and that they fought for the contentions of the colonists in Parliament as bravely as ever Washington fought for them in the field. The great mass of the English people, one hundred years ago, had no feeling against the Americans. They suffered as much, and it may be that they bore a greater burden of injustice with less complaining than the colonies. They bit on the bullet when the colonist reached for his gun.

The fact is that in its history the United States has had just two important wars apart from surremembre war, and both happened to be against England. The scrap with Mexico and the brush with Spain are not worth calling wars. Popular American history has overlooked the fact that had it not been for Great Britain the United States would have had its first great war with Germany and Austria at the time it was battering Spain. Any hostility that there has been between the two countries since Cleveland delivered his Venezuelan ultimatum has been artificial, and has been provoked by silly text-books, by Fenians, or by pro-Germans. Now that the two nations stands shoulder to shoulder in the greatest war that the world has ever seen, the old mistaken distrust will disappear forever, and the chief glory will go to the Canadian soldiers who first died in this war and were hailed as brothers and Americans by the press and public of the United States.

DON'T BE DYSPEPTIC.

The dyspeptic has thought only of the stomach when the real source of trouble is the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cleanse and purify the digestive and excretory system and in this way put the organs of digestion into splendid working condition. A little patient urging on of the organs when sluggish will restore the habit of healthful digestion.

Situation Is Being Relieved

Shortage of Supplies in the Large Cities—The Train Service

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, Jan. 15.— After herculean efforts the railroads throughout Ontario had re-established passenger traffic on most of the through lines, but in many cases branch lines, particularly north and west, were still held up in snow drifts. And likely to remain so for some hours. Reports from all points tell of considerable suffering from lack of fuel and other necessary supplies, while in many big cities there was a shortage of milk and bread. With moderating weather it is expected that the situation will be relieved, in most districts, by today.

British Casualties For The Week

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 15.—British casualties reported during the week ending to-day, totalled 24,979 officers and men, divided as follows: Killed or died of wounds, officers 117, men 5,149; wounded or missing officers 304, men 19,409. Casualties in British army reported for the week ending to-day exceed by almost 6,000, the total reported in the previous week, when the figures took an upward jump, virtually doubling the casualties of the preceding week. A week ago the total was 18,998, including 561 officers and men killed, while the total for the preceding week was 9,961.

WAR MENUS

How to Save Wheat, Beef and Bacon for the men at the front. Issued from the Office of the Food Controller for Canada

Menu for Wednesday.

Breakfast
Oatmeal Porridge
Toast Marmalade
Tea or Coffee
Dinner
Mutton Stew Mashed Potatoes
Carrots
Oatmeal Griddle Cakes Syrup
Supper
Scalloped Potatoes
Bran Bread Stewed Prunes
Tea

Oatmeal Griddle Cakes—
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon melted fat
1 1-2 cups cooked oatmeal
1-2 cup flour
3-4 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder.

Combine the milk, beaten egg, and melted fat. Beat this into the cooked oatmeal. Add the flour, salt, and baking powder which have been sifted together. Bake on a hot, greased griddle.

Bran Bread—
2 yeast cakes
2 cups milk, scalded and cooled
1 cup lukewarm water
1-2 cup molasses
7 cups flour
5 cups bran
4 tablespoons butter substitute.
2 teaspoons salt.

Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm water and milk. Add molasses and four cups sifted flour. Beat well. Add the bran, lard or butter, salt, and the balance of the flour, or enough to make a dough that can be handled. Knead well, cover, and set rise until double in bulk. Divide into loaves and place in greased pans. Let rise until double in bulk, and bake in a moderate oven.

GLOVES TO VIE WITH SHOES

Gayety in Colors for Hand Coverings Match Footgear, According to Latest Styles in Boots.

Since the feet have taken to fanciful coverings, it has come about that the hands are making an effort to match the other extremities in this matter. It is to be noted that among the fall gloves are those of French kid which have shaded embroidery on the back.

This embroidery is not confined to black, but is exploited in blue, in green, purple and brown, not to forget gray. The idea seems to be that the predominant color of the costume may be matched in the embroidery of the glove.

Then there is the glove which has the cuff enriched with cords that have the effect of tucks. The stitching of the latter is done in color or may be had in white to match the glove. Rather practical is the glove of white, tan or black which has a cuff of contrasting color. This style of glove has the Biarritz wrist, without opening and with elastic finish to make it convenient for drawing on and off the hand.

Popular Materials.

Gaberdine is the most popular of woolen materials and serge is the next, while tweeds will be a favored woolen among the tailored suits.

Fur is to be used in many ways this season as trimming, for one sees it even sewed to the top of long white kid evening gloves. All around belts are also made of fur with large beaded buckles in front.

PARLIAMENT MAY OPEN MARCH 6th

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—In official circles it is thought that March 6th will be the earliest possible date for assembling of the House of Commons owing to the delay incidental to the soldiers' vote returns.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Editor Examiner,

Dear Sir,—When politicians fall out, honest men get the truth. Mr. J. H. Burnham, in Monday night's Examiner, makes a red-hot attack on Mr. Bagley, his election clerk, confidential man and general factotum in the running of campaigns.

Mr. Bagley, who describes himself as "Successor to Ruddy & Burnham," which should mean something, one would think, unless Mr. Burnham does not want to be succeeded, has the habit of writing letters to the press, and in Saturday night's Examiner there appeared a letter telling the farmers that they required to appeal if the exemption tribunals had turned down their applications, and that the Warden, who was appointed Agricultural Representative, had only the power to advise the tribunals and press the farmers' claims for exemption, but had no right to deal with the matter, except in an advisory capacity. In other words, Mr. Bagley let the cat out of the bag, that the Borden Government had "put the once over" on the farming community of West Peterborough until after the election, and now that the election was over, they might shift for themselves.

In telling the truth so plainly he offended Mr. Burnham, because Mr. Burnham now says that the Warden and Mr. Knox were apointed to look after farmers' interests and all claims regarding exemption, and Mr. Burnham says if he were a farmer wishing to make a claim for exemption, he would state his case to the Warden and Mr. Knox and leave it with them and that these gentlemen are authorized to do whatever they think necessary by way of recommending appeals or otherwise. If Mr. Burnham would leave his case to the Agricultural representatives he would find that they had no power to sign a notice of appeal, or to deal in any way except to give opinions to the Tribunal Judges, if the Tribunal Judges wished to hear it, but if they wish to kick out the Agricultural representatives they may do so and refuse to hear them or any one else, but the applicant and his witnesses. General Mowburn, himself, the other day stated through the press, that the farmers required to appeal to the Honourable Mr. Justice Duff at Ottawa, so when they get their appeal at Ottawa and go down to Ottawa, it will probably end up the way Mr. Hopwood's case did, which Mr. Burnham held up as a precedent for all the farmers to follow, who had suffered drowned lands in the County.

Mr. Burnham should not roast Mr. Bagley by saying that the matter was plain enough and would no doubt be so if "Letter Writers" would leave the farmers alone. In other words, he scolds Mr. Bagley for giving these facts which embarras the sitting Member; I mean, the sitting Unionist Member.

I am willing to put up $50.00 for the Children's Aid Society for every farmer, farmer's son or labourer who is exempted under the Military Service Act, by the Agricultural Representatives, themselves, if Mr. Burnham will put up a like amount for every claim that is turned down. If this is done the Children's Aid Society will need no tag day, because the Agricultural Representatives have now been declared to be altogether without power, and the only rights and the only authority they have is to tender their advice to the Tribunal Judges, and these Tribunal Judges, in most cases, did not accept it, and followed their own judgment entirely.

Your truly,
FARMER'S SON.

A GERMAN VESSEL SHELLS YARMOUTH

13 Casualties In English Coast Town

THREE KILLED TEN INJURED WHEN YARMOUTH IS SHELLED

Twenty Shells From German Naval Craft Fell Into English Coast Town Last Night the Admiralty Announces--Property Damage Was Small--Hostile Raid North of Armentieres is Repulsed While British Raid Enemy's Trenches North of Lens, Bringing Back Prisoners and Machine Gun.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Yarmouth was bombarded from the sea last night, it is reported officially. About 20 shells fell in the city. Three persons were killed and ten injured. The following official announcement was given out:

"Yarmouth was bombarded from the sea last night. Fire was opened at 10.55 p.m., and lasted about five minutes, some twenty shells falling into the town. The latest police reports state that three persons were killed and ten injured. The material damage done was not serious."

The fusilade was carried out with extraordinary rapidity. Shells burst over various sections of Yarmouth, and many roofs and chimneys were smashed. The Germans carried out their bombardment with careful system. The first shell fired was a star shell, the light from which vividly showed the town below it. Then came the hurtling salvo of shells. The German craft was believed either to be one of the largest and newest type of German submarines or else a cruiser.

The official statement does not specify whether the guns with which the seaport was bombarded were those of a German cruiser or a submarine, but the latter appears most likely. Germany's super-[illegible] carry comparatively powerful guns.

Attacks by German naval forces on English coast towns, of which there were a number early in the war, have been infrequent in recent months. The last previous occurrnce of the kind officially reported was on September 4 of last year. On that date a German submarine bombarded Scarborough, causing the death of three persons and the injury of five. Yarmouth is on the North Sea, 115 miles north-east of London. It is a city of some 50,000 inhabitants, with important shipbuilding and fishing industries.

YARMOUTH, England, Jan. 15.—The enemy craft which bombarded Yarmouth last night presumably was submarines or light cruisers. The bombardment was preceded by the illumination of the town by large star shells. The inhabitants were taken completely by surprise. Owing to the blackness of the night the enemy was not seen. Most of the inhabitants were in bed at the time of the attack.

Sinn Feiners Want Nationalist To Resigns

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Sinn Fein Executive, says a Dublin despatch to the Daily Chronicle, will shortly demand that the Irish Nationalist members of Parliament resign. In the event of non-compliance, the Sinn Feiners propose to establish in Dublin what they call a National assembly.

ROME, Jan. 15.—A surprise attack on the lower Piave front, east of Caposilo, enabled the Italians to extend their bridgehead. Repeated enemy counter attacks on the captured trenches were repulsed.

The Italian offensive was undertaken to rectify the line, and the enemy's attempts to stop the advance resulted in very heavy losses. Eight officers and 283 men were taken prisoners.

GERMAN SOLDIERS' WIVES FORCED TO DO MANUAL LABOUR

Those Receiving Government Pensions or Food Allowances Are Ordered to Report For Service in Loading or Unloading Railway Trucks

STIMULATING MARRIAGES

(By George Martin.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Kaiser is deeply concerned about the short German baby crop, according to official government advices here to-day. But, according to the same source, he doesn't care much about what happens to the mother after babies get to growing up and their daddies are fighting at the front. It is this way:

Just before the recent holidays, there was a great hue and cry, Kaiser inspired all over Germany and Austria about how very much the Fatherland was interested in seeing its young folks happily married.

"But," replied the young folks, "while it is possible for us to get married, how are we going to keep on being married without nothing to eat?"

This gave the Kaiser's brain department experts slight pause, but in a little while they came back with the announcement that "the magistracy has arranged to supply double food vouchers for newly-married persons. The first fortnight of honeymoon is thus to be glorified by their food rations being doubled.

"And," one newspaper blandly added, "it is presumed that this measure will stimulate the inhabitants' desire to marry."

But turning rapidly to the next page of that same day's paper there was found this announcement:

"A number of soldiers' wives, receiving allowances in Bonn since the beginning of the war, hav received notification that, under the laws of June, 1851 and December, 1915, they are called upon to report themselves for labour in loading and unloading railway trucks, under penalty of fines or imprisonment or both in the event of failing to report." This system of taking the registered lists of soldiers' wives who are receiving scant government pensions for scantier government food supplies, has been put into effect in many places in the empire.

A BIG NIGHT AT BROCK STREET RINK

To-night Skating Until 10.30—No Skating To-morrow Night

Every skater should be on hand at Brock Street Rink to-night to take advantage of a good night's skating. The rink will be open until 10.30 and the ice will be cleaned at half time. There will be no skating to-morrow night, it being Church Hockey League night. There will be a big band on hand to-night and it is as pleasant a way as an evening can be spent.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Early yesterday morning a strong hostile raid north-east of Armentieres was repulsed, the War Office reports.

During last night we raided the enemy's trenches north of Lens, bombing his dugouts and securing some prisoners and a machine gun. Otherwise there is nothing to report.

Pte. Fred Tanner a Chandos Member of the 93rd Battalion Has Made the Supreme Sacrifice For the Empire

WAS WITH ENGINEERS

Still another member of the 93rd Battalion has made the supreme sacrifice in France, in the person of Pte. Fred Tanner of Chandos, who is officially reported killed in action, his name appearing in an official list issued from Ottawa. Pte. Tanner enlisted in the late Spring of 1916 and after going overseas with the Peterborough County Battalion, was transferred to the Canadian Engineers with which unit he has been serving at the front for some time. His relatives live in Chandos Township

Labour Problem To Be Considered At Conferences

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Two conferences on the labour question will be held at Ottawa to-morrow. One on the general question of distribution, etc., will be held by Hon. N. W. Rowell, President of the Privy Council, and at this representatives of all branches of organized labour, including railwaymen, etc., will be present. At another conference called by Hon. T. A. Crerar for the purpose of considering the question of labour for farms there will be present representatives of the Provincial government's and farmers' organizations.

While Government members are maintaining somewhat complete secrecy regarding proposals for the securing and distribution of labour, it is believed here that fairly definite plans have already been drafted on the question. A certain amount of labour is to be imported if the present plans materialize, and on this proposition organized labour is to be consulted. Organized labour does not favour the importation of Oriental labour, but there are other sources than China to draw from.

Apart from this, however, it is stated that plans for a sort of mobilization of Dominion man power for all purposes have been tentatively drawn up.

Ministerial Association and Coal Situation

At a meeting of the Ministerial Association last night the matter of conserving the coal came up for consideration. The following resolution was moved by the Rev. J. R. Webb, and seconded by the Rev. Robert Pogue:—

"That in view of the present shortage of coal and the consequent distress in the city, the Ministerial Association recommends that the churches in the different parts of our city should seek, as far as possible, to unite their midweek services, and where it is possible, that the Young People's Societies join in such service, thus reducing the quantity of coal used in each church, and releasing that amount for homes requiring it."

BRITISH HIGH COMMAND WAS NOT SURPRISED

Bonar Law Announces That All Proper and Adequate Dispositions Had Been Made to Meet the German Counter Attacks at Cambrai

RESULT OF INQUIRY

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons to-day that as a result of Field Marshall Haig's inquiry, the General Staff, the War Cabinet, and the Government considered that the British Higher Army Command had not been surprised by the German attack in the Cambrai region on November 30, and that all proper and adequate dispositions had been made to meet it.

British troops under General Sir Julian Byng, commander of the third army in France, by employing large number of tanks and without customary artillery preparation, took the Germans by surprise in the area west of Cambrai, and succeeded in penetrating the Teuton lines for a distance of five miles. Thousands of Germans were taken prisoners. Nine days later the Germans made a determined attack on newly formed British salient and forced back Gen. Byng's troops a distance of about two miles, recapturing Bourlou Wood and the towns of Anneux, Marcoing and Cantaing. The Germans also advanced through Goonelieu to Gouzeaucourt, but later the British counter attacked and retook Gouzeaucourt and Le Vacqueira.

Bonar Law denied in the House of Commons this afternoon that Field Marshal Haig might be recalled as a result of the German successes.

Bonar Law detailed the report of the special commission of inquiry appointed to investigate the Cambrai set-back. He declared the report showed the Germans did not surprise the British Commander-in-Chief, who "had taken all necessary steps."

New Islands In The Arctic Are Discovered

Canadian Press Despatch:

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 15.—Several new large islands were discovered northwest of Bankaland in the spring of 1916 by Vilhjalmur Seafanson, the Arctic explorar, according to Captain A. Lane, who arrived here last night from the Arctic Ocean, bringing direct news from the explorer, who, he says, is spending the 1917-18 winter in the Northern seas at Bartel Island. The explorer claimed the new lands for Canada.

G.T.R. FIREMAN MEETS DEATH IN ACCIDENT TO-DAY

Snow Plow Jumped Rails, Causing Engine to Turn Turtle and John Sullivan of Lindsay Was Crushed Between Tender and Engine

ENGINEER ESCAPED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 15.—John Sullivan, a young fireman on the Grand Trunk railway, son of John Sullivan, of King's Wharf, Ont., met death early this morning on the branch line three miles west of Lorneville, when he was crushed between the tender and the engine, the latter having turned turtle when the snow plough jumped the rails. The plough had just passed through a heavy drift and was rushing out on a clear space of track again when, without warning, and from a cause yet unknown, it suddenly mounted the rails and took to the ditch, dragging with it the two engines. The first engine turned on its side, the tender separating from the engine. The unfortunate young fireman was squeezed to death between the tender and his engine. Engineer Elmhurst miraculously escaped.

Rapid Progress Made In Drill

The railway situation has prevented the arrival of any more drafts for E Company, 1st E.O.R., at the Armouries, but another large quota of new soldiers is expected in the near future. This will include a number of Peterborough men who reported in Kingston on Friday.

Rapid progress is being made in training, and the snappy work of No. 1 Squad in particular featured this morning's drill. A consignment of rifles has arrived and the men are learning the mysteries of rifle drill.

Vaccination and inoculation are two pleasant little experiences the draftees will encounter in the near future, while to-morrow is the red letter day in the soldier's calendar—pay day.

The Roads Are Being Opened Up

Peterborough is beginning to emerge from the snow blanket which enveloped it over the week-end. Out in the suburbs the roads are being opened out, and the "no man's land" beyond is fast disappearing. It will be a day or two before conditions return to anything like normal, so far as traffic conditions are concerned.

Only a few of the milkmen made their appearance to-day. One man came into the city at eight o'clock yesterday morning with a team of horses attached to his vehicle. He did not leave for the return trip until ten o'clock at night.

An Inviolable Duty Rests on the City to Return the Instruments to the Men For Whom They Were Purchased, Said R. J. Devey—Other Strong Arguments by Col. Johnston, J. H. Renwick and Adjt. McElhiney.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

In asking the Council last night for the 93rd band instruments, the Great War Veterans presented a strong plea that was not only convincingly expressed by members of the Association but was warmly supported by representatives of patriotic organizations that largely contributed to the funds with which the instruments were purchased. The deputation filled the Council Chamber, confined its petition to essentials and departed with the Mayor's assurance that the question would receive thorough consideration at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole, which will be called in the near future.

Ald. Dobbin introduced the subject of the Veterans' mission in a foreword, in which he urged the Council to weigh all the facts before making a decision. He recalled from his own experience various bands that had been organized in Peterborough years ago. They were launched with enthusiasm, but they had all come to the point, when that enthusiasm had evaporated, at which they were forced to merge their interests in the 57th Regimental band.

"No band can be a success," Ald. Dobbin asserted, "without a permanent organization behind it." The Salvation Army and 57th Bands owed their maintenance to the stability of the organizations that supported them.

"I would have you consider that you are at the parting of the ways. The city needs a band, but are we to expect that a War Veterans' band would give its services to the city without asking for financial assistance. They would also need music and a band room. Are you going to give the grant to one band, or divide it between the different bands, and to which one will you give it? I would suggest that the bands get together form one band and thereby allay friction. We could support one band.

President Staunton.

Mr. Harvey Staunton, president of the G.W.V.A., made a modest plea on behalf of the Veterans. "We ask that the instruments be turned over to the Association for use by a Veterans' Band. Nineteen of the old 93rd men are back, and all are ready to join the Veterans' band. They will give their services gratis. The instruments were obtained by public subscription to the 93rd band fund, and most people are in favour of turning the instruments over to the Veterans' Association."

Col. Johnston.

"The men behind me have seen service, and deserve every recognition," said Col. Johnston. I have no stones to throw at the other fellows, but the Veterans represent not one unit, but every combatant unit, infantry, artillery, cavalry, R.A.M.C., and others. They feel they would like to have their own band for parades. If we were a militia unit and not C.E.F., the instruments would belong to us. As far as my influence goes I should like to see the instruments given to LIVE AND LET LIVE.

The principle of the phrase, "live and let live"—tolerance, give and take—applied in its broadest sense, and adopted as a policy of relation and conduct, will have a larger vogue when this cruel war is over. The almost world-wide conflict, with all the uncountable suffering and destruction it has caused, has brought compensations, dearly bought, perhaps, but, looking to our future, well worth the price. It has cast people of different nationalities, religious and social views and contacts, into the crucible of a common experience, into relations where real things count, where the dross of prejudice is tried in the fire of common trial.

An incident of the war is related illustrating much. It is told that a German prisoner lay dying of his wounds in a British base hospital. He was a Lutheran by faith, and a Protestant army chaplain was seeking to speak the words of religious consolation. But the chaplain could not speak German, and the wounded and dying Germane ould not understad English. Near at hand, a French chaplain, a Catholic priest, was ministering to one of his own creed. He came from the "lost provinces" and spoke the language of the enemy as well as his own. Softly he turned to the bedside of the dying prisoner and kneeling beside it, translated into the tongue of the dying man the words of comfort spoken by his Protestant colleague. This is the noble spirit shown at the front. The barriers of creed are broken down and no longer divide men who have come to regard service as the supreme ideal, and themselves as ministers of the mysteries of a common faith, founded upon a common belief in a redeeming Mediator. There in the battle front the great realities come to them and they become one, if not in name, in fact, and they translate into actions the religion they profess. They ignore minor things for the sake of unity in the practice of the religion whose God and Father they hold in common faith.

If these men, when they come back to civil life, can bring with them the lessons of harmony and harmonious cooperation they learned and practised; if they can teach us by precept and example the littleness of many of the differences in religious belief and practice that now separate us and divide us into warring camps, armed with prejudices and bristling with the spines of intolerance and bigotry, they will bring the spirit of a new evangel—in fact, though it is the spirit of the old Gospel, which we have so largely helped to convert into a spirit of discord, which disjoints our social relations, incites petty pinpricking, irritations and destroys the unity of citizenship, in which alone is the strength of a nation and the hope of future betterment. The man or the organization that shrows the elements of discord, great or small—a bomb or a shell into our social and community life, is a greater enemy to good citizenship, and the good that comes of harmonious citizenship, than the Hun. Religion is not only a personal and a sacred thing—a matter between man his Maker, but as God sees things, it imposes obligations and duties between man and man which take their character from the spirit of regard of the Father of us all to His children. Tolerance, the live and let live spirit, practised by our citizenship, while not calling for the sacrifice of any vital principle of any creed, but practised in the true spirit of any creed, would revolutionize our citizenship, rejuvenate our society, and align our relationships in a way to justify our claim to the possession and practice of Christian citizenship.

Shallow thinkers thought that the results of the recent general election would be the retirement of the defeated Liberal leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. On the contrary, Laurier stays—politicians, not statesmen, are defeated in elections.

WHEAT AND "CHAFF."

There was no little suggestion of irony in ex-Mayor Duffus' acceptance of Mayor Duncan's hint for his help in regard to unfinished civic work in the assurance that "if required to go out of town he would pay his own expenses." To the "average ratepayer," who relieves his mind by inveighing against the habit of aldermen spending city money upon expensive deputations, there is need for no other proof that the genial ex-Mayor has cut loose, not only from official connection with civic life, but has lost its spirit which, by common consent and custom, makes pleasant little journeyings and junkettings a legitimate appanage of aldermanic responsibility—or opportunity.

Mr. Adams won't be able to give many practical hints as to "town planning" improvement of Peterborough on Friday night if he sees the city under three feet of snow.

THE COAL CRUSADE.

The City Council got off to a good start on Monday afternoon and a fine spirit of co-operation was shown. This may have been inspired by Mayor Duncan's excellent inaugural address, which was marked by comprehensiveness, moderation, good advice, and, by the way, by a literary elegance and grace of diction seldom found in documents of the kind.

But the spirit of the address and its apparent influence upon the Council was hardly in keeping with the rather drastic resolution adopted, to seek authority to commandeer the fuel supply in private houses. This is a serious proposal, and in endorsing it the Council might excusably have postponed deciding the question till after more mature consideration, as one of the members suggested.

It seems a good deal like martial law and war conditions to contemplate emissaries of the Council invading our premises, estimating our coal supply, and ordering us to surrender a part of it. Such a procedure would be a little difficult of operation. In addition to deciding for a citizen the point of how much coal is required to keep himself and family from freezing, there is the difficulty of removal and weighing. Alderman Weir, as a coal dealer, supposed to know what he is talking about, says the crux of the local coal situation is "difficulay of delivery." If there is difficulty of delivering from well-equipped and easily accessible coal yards, with the best facilities for loading and weighing, what will be the difficulty of getting coal from a largely inaccessible cellar and passing it out of a window by bucketsful, not to speak of the difficulty of deciding the proper remuneration. If this becomes a necessity; if it becomes necessary to divide the coal supply now laid in and paid for; if acute suffering is to be avoided, then as good citizens and good neighbours we shall submit and share our last scuttleful of coal with those who have none. But till the coal situation reaches a more acute stage than it seems to have done up to the present, it would seem that the Council has been a little premature in adopting a very drastic measure. And the Council seems to feel the same way, judging by the apologetic tone of the arguments of those who favour conscription of private coal supplies—"if the Council got the power it need not be used"; but the adoption of the resolution would "strengthen the public and private efforts to obtain coal"—though how threatening to adopt the easy way of entering our neighbour's cellar and helping ourselves to coal, is to stimulate the City Council and the coal dealers to more energetic efforts to secure a coal supply, is a little difficult to understand.

The intentions of the City Council in the matter are good; and the principle of compulsory division of coal stocks is right and proper, if we have come to the pass that warrants it; but is the coal situation in Peterborough as serious as all that? If it is, the citizens should have been fully informed in order to prepare them for the shock of a drastic measure of relief; if it is only serious enough to justify holding threatening action over somebody's head in order to induce somebody to "get busy" in providing a coal supply, the Council might seem have listened to Alderman Edgar's plea to give mature consideration to a very important decision.

This is the feeling and reasoning of the "man on the street." The action of the Council is justified if it is designed to give the powers higher up a reasonable attitude towards the supply of Peterborough's needs—exercise more a moral than material effect.

Fire Chief Grange has the rare enjoyment of a "sound legal opinion" that doesn't cost anything but the exercise of kindness and good citizenship.

IN WAR TIME PREPARE FOR PEACE.

In the greatest crisis of the country's history, when all the resources of Great Britain, material and moral, are drawn upon in a manner and with a completeness and efficiency that make the world wonder, when it seems every faculty of statesmanship is centred upon the gigantic task of winning the war in the interests of justice and freedom, the Parliament of Great Britain has found time to turn aside from war work, if its action can be so regarded, "to take occasion by the hand and make the bounds of freedom wider yet." In the midst of the stern strenuosities of war-making, as nation never made war before, in either essay or achievement, the mother of parliaments, the creator of human liberties embodied in legislative enfranchisement, have given the people of Great Britain an appendix to the charter of liberty by the passage of the "Representation of the People" bill. This action is a notable event in the constitutional history of Great Britain—notable in its intrinsic significance, but more notable in having been brought about at a time when one would have thought the energies of parliament and the statesmen of the country would have been monopolized entirely by war work. The London Daily News thus refers to the legislation:

The Bill is a people's Bill, concerned solely with the basis of election to the popular Chamber. It practically doubles the electorate, it gives the franchise for the first time to six million women, it sweeps away much of the obsolete paraphernalia of qualification and registration, and it almost abolishes the plural voter. Its effect will be to bring the House of Commons into closer relation with the life of and thought of the country than ever before.

The student of a thousand years of British history, and the world at large, are just discovering what Great Britain and her spirit are.

And statesmen at her council met
Who knew the season when to take Occasion by the hand, and make
The bounds of freedom wider yet.

Tenders For Ashes

Sealed tenders, addressed "Ald. J. Saunders, Chairman Property Committee," and endorsed "Tender for Ashes," will be received at the office of the undersigned up to four o'clock p.m. on Monday, the 21st day of January, 1918, for the ashes from the Incinerator for the period of from January 1st, 1918, to February 28th, 1919. Particulars may be obtained from the Sanitary Inspector. A cash deposit or accepted bank cheque for the amount of the tender must accompany each tender and will be retained as payment in advance from the person whose tender is accepted. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Spruce Beer.

The fishermen of Newfoundland, Labrador, and the Gulf of St. Lawrence drink large quantities of spruce beer; it is considered an admirable corrective of their diet, which consists principally of fat pork and salt fish. The process of making it is simple. A few black spruce-branches are chopped into small pieces and put into a pot containing six or eight gallons of water and boiled for several hours. The liquor is then strained and put into a cask that will contain eighteen gallons. Molasses is added in the proportion of one gallon to eighteen gallons; a pint of the grounds of the last brewing and a few hops, if at hand, are also put in, and the cask, filled up with cold water, is left to ferment. In twenty-four hours it becomes fit for use.

PETERBOROUGH EXHIBITION HAD $900 SURPLUS

Receipts in the 1917 Exhibition Were the Greatest in the History of the Exhibition—Directors' Meeting—The Annual Meeting

The old Board of Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition met last night for the last time and finished all uncompleted work for last year. The receipts from last year were the greatest in the history of th Exhibition, and there was a surplus on the year's operations of over $900.00, making a total surplus of about $1,500.00, now held by the Society.

The Fair Board is anticipating a First of July demonstration, in order to give the people at home some amusement on the holiday.

Any action concerning the old or new grounds will be taken by the new board, which will be elected at the annual meeting on Monday next, in the Council Chamber at 1.30 o'clock.

CITIZENS DELIVER COAL BUT DEALERS GET DELIVERY FEE

Discussing coal deliveries by the city and the fuel merchants, Ald. Edgar related last night his experiences in a certain coal company's office. "I tried to get one-half ton this evening, but couldn't get it delivered. A friend came in, got 1,000 pounds, for which he paid $5.50. He had a horse and sleigh and agreed to deliver 500 pounds for me. I paid $3 for the 500 pounds. We filled the bags ourselves, and all the dealer did was supply the coal."

Ald. Edgar, Ald. Worth, and other members of the Council agreed that the dealers should not charge a consumer for delivery when the consumer delivered the coal himself. It was felt that some one should "bell the cat," and the Fuel Committee, Ald. Dobbin and Ald. Taylor, were suggested as volunteers.

When Chief Thompson's delivery system fails, as it did during the recent snowstorm by reason of teams being required to clear the sidewalks, the city will use the Board of Works team and pay the Engineers' Department for their services.

Canvass For The Veterans' Club Rooms

Ladies Hope to Complete Their Work This Week

The canvass for the Great War Veterans' Club Rooms, which was interrupted by the stormy weather conditions, is being resumed to-day, and it is hoped that the work of the ladies will be completed this week.

The sum needed to install the Veterans in their new club rooms is $2,000, and it is felt that no difficulty should be experienced in securing the amount, which does not require very large donations if the response to the appeal is general.

The amount asked for seems ridiculously small when compared to the services our veterans have rendered overseas.

B ready when the canvassers call, and remember what sacrifice the veterans have made.

Would Make It Illegal To Canvass Electors For Votes In All Municipal Elections

Ald. McIntyre announced at last night's Council meeting that at the next regular meeting he would introduce a motion asking the Legislature to make it unlawful for any candidate for municipal office to solicit votes or to provide conveyances for electors, and also for legislation that would compel every elector to vote. This applies, he said, to the elections for Mayor, aldermen, Utilities Commission, and Board of Education.

Suggestion to Conserve Fuel.

Ald. Worth moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that the Ministerial Association and Board of Education be requested to consider whether they can take any further action to conserve coal.

"We may have to come to that before the winter is over," commented Ald. Dobbin."

Ald. McIntyre remarked that the Council seemed to be exceeding its duty in advancing this suggestion.

The motion carried.

Ald. Langford on Board of Health.

Ald. Langford was appointed a member of the Board of Health with Ald. Saunders and Mr. James Murty. Ald. Langford succeeds Mayor Duncan.

Mrs. John H. Smith acknowledged the condolences of the Council in her recent bereavement.—Received.

Mr. Kenner Reappointed.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner was re-appointed the city's representative on the Public Library Board, and Mr. James A. Hall to Foley Estate committee.

A request from J. Ross Robertson for a grant to the Sick Children's Hospital was referred to the Finance committee.

Peddling Was Poor.

"Fruit was too dear and we couldn't do any peddling," wrote Mr. A. Longo in asking for a refund of his peddler's license, obtained in August 20th, 1917.—Referred to Finance committee.

Pole Settled, Broke Sewer Pipe.

The Utilities Commission passed on to the Council the claim from D. J. Burke, 291 Homewood avenue, for damages to his sewer connection caused by a pole sinking and breaking a pipe. The Commission wrote that the pole had been erected under the supervision of the City Engineer. Referred to Board of Works.

De Laval Co. Grateful.

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, general manager of the De Laval Co., thanked the Council for its support to the by-law granting the company a strip of 42 feet of De Laval street.

$5400 For Public Library.

A communication from Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse stated that the Public Library estimates for 1918 required $5400 from the city, an increase of $900 over last year's sum.—Referred to Finance committee.

Help! The Assessor Needs Help.

W. J. Henry, assessor, asked that he be given an assistant clerk.—Referred to committee of the Whole.

Aid to Gardeners.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture notified the Council of a new bulletin summarizing the vacant lot gardening results last summer.

Ald. Dobbin remarked that he had sent for 500 copies which would be delivered to the citizens from some store, thus avoiding postage. The booklet, he said, should be helpful to home gardeners.

The Board of Education's estimates of $111,110.00 for 1918 were referred to the Committee of the whole. "Let's see if we can't get that reduced," remarked the Mayor. The Finance committee was instructed to pay the first monthly installment of $8,000 on Jan. 15th.

Statement of Roll.

To amt. on roll	$376,999.60
By amt. deposited	347,952.15
Balance	$ 29,047.45
Deposited during Dec.—$2,263.00.

Invitation to Lunch.

The Peterborough Engineers' Club invited the Council to the address on town planning at the Collegiate Institute on Friday night by Mr. Thos. Adams, and also to the informal dinner at the Empress.—Received. Ald. Dobbin urged the members to attend the luncheon.

Bread Inspector Active.

Police Sergeant Reid, bread inspector, in his first quarterly report, wrote that he had weighed 54 large loaves and seized 11 of them.

Water For South Central Rink.

Mr. F. E. Kerr, of the South Central school staff, requested that the school yard be flooded for a skating rink. The boys kept the snow cleared away last winter and the Fire Chief flooded it. Ald. Langford moved, seconded by Ald. Worth, that this request be granted.—Carried.

Ald. Dobbin warned the Council that the public rinks were costing

Mayor Duncan—The extra rink in the several wards was too great an expense for this year.

Boys' Conference At Belleville Will Begin On Thursday

The fall drive of the Allies in Boys' Work begins on 17th January at Belleville. In this case, the Allies are the various churches in Canada, the oung Men's Christian Association and the Sunday School Association. All are interested in the boys, and all have adopted as their programme for boys in their 'teens the all-round training given in the Canadian Standard Efficiency Tests. During last fall and winter there were thirteen conferences for boys and their leaders; this fall the ending of the Belleville conference will make twenty-two which constitutes the "fall drive."

All Churches In It.

The movement is nation-wide, involving not only the Province, but the whole Dominion and all churches. The conferences are promoted by the Canadian Advisory Committee for co-operation in boys' work. Its objects are to give an inspiration for Christian service, to give information as to the latest methods, principles and programmes in boys' work, to give opportunity for the exchange of experiences, and to meet a national need. It is pointed out that Canada needs a high type of Christian citizenship, and the conferences above all are intended to meet that need.

Thursday at Belleville.

The conference will be conducted by a team of leaders, who are well known boys' workers of national prominence. They include Taylor Statten, National Boys' Secretary Y.M.C.A., Toronto, Wm. R. Cook, Territorial Boys' Work Secretary, Rev. J. C. Robertson, D.D., Presbyterian Church, F. H. Langford, Methodist Church, Captain Forgie, recently returned from three years' service with the Canadian Army overseas. In each case the conferences begin on Thursday evening with a banquet and conclude on the Sunday night. Last year eleven hundred attended the conference in Toronto. This year it was thought advisable to divide the larger districts, holding additional conferences, thus enabling a larger number of boys to attend from the rural districts, and also to give the leaders an opportunity to come into closer personal touch with them.

BRINGING UP FATHER ABROAD

Funnier than ever, more musical than any of its predecessors, gayer in colour than even the original of the "Father" series, and as a natural consequence, the most successful of all the George McManus' comic cartoon "Father" series, is "Bringing Up Father Abroad," the latest musical production with "Jiggs" Mahoney the retired Irish contractor, for its title character.

"Bringing up Father Abroad" is due here at "The Grand" on Saturday next, January 19, with a company of the swiftest wits, liveliest dancers, comliest choristers and distinguished specialists now bidding for the roars and titters of the country's discriminating play-goers.

Included in the Company are many of the clever principals identified with the early successes of the "Father" series, including John E. Cain, the original "Jiggs" and his gossoir team-mate, Blanche Newcomb; Marion Benson, Ben Byron, Eddie Leamon, Madeline Gray, and the inimitable Robert Bruce, who made the early editions of the "Father" series a byword wherever presented.

The girly choruses of the new production hold the gold ribbons for youth, attractiveness, voice and personal charm, and also, to excel in numbers the auxiliaries of any company now bidding for the applause of playgoers.

Two essentials to success are dollars and sense.

Many a man's thirst has separated him from his last quarter.

Self-interest is the principal ingredient in the interesting things of life.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH NEWS

The monthly meeting of the Young Ladies' Mission Band will be held in the Guild Room this (Tuesday) evening at 8 o'clock. The members are urged to make a special effort to be present at this, the first meeting of the New Year. All young ladies of the congregation who are not members, and any strangers, are cordially invited to attend.

Wednesday evening, at 8, the usual mid-week service. The pastor will be glad to see a large number present at this meeting.

The Red Cross Society will meet on Thursday from 2.30 to 5.30 p.m.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday School will hold their annual meeting at the home of Mr. A. MacNab, 528 Gilmour Street, on Friday evening of this week. It is hoped that a full attendance of the teachers and officers will be present. Remember the date and place of meeting: Friday, 8 p.m., 18th January, at 528 Gilmour Street.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the morning service, 27th January—the last Sunday of the month.

Dr. Lee, of Millbrook, will occupy the pulpit next Sunday.

The annual meeting of the congregation will be held on Thursday evening, 24th January, at 8 o'clock, in the School Room. All financial reports must be turned in to the auditors this week. The auditors are Messrs. A. MacNab and T. O. Donaldson. The treasurer will prepare statements for the individual subscribers and place same in the pews. those in arrears are asked to pay up next Sunday. The deficit at the present time is $500, and the managers ask for a special contribution next Sunday for the purpose of clearing off this deficit. An average of $1 per member will do it. Some can give a good deal more than that and ought to do so. Let every one give something, however little; and let those who can, give largely. Let us make sure that next Sunday will see sufficient contributed to clear off this deficit of $500. We can if we will.

Returned Soldiers On The Farm

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 15.—Premier Hearst announced to-day that the Ontario government is perfecting a plan whereby five thousand returned soldiers, domiciled in this province, will be utilized for farm work during next summer.

Sir William said that so far as Ontario was concerned the employment of Chinese labour on farms is neither advisable nor practicable.

Will Be Introduced On Thursday

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 15.—The Francoer motion, which is expected to bring up in the Quebec Legislature the question of secession of this province from the Confederation pact, will likely be formally introduced Thursday.

The most important statement upon seccession is expected from Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Local Council of Women will be held on Thursday afternoon at 3.30 in the green room, T.W.C.A. Besides the election of officers, Dr. Birnie will continue her series of talks, and Mrs. Neal will give a report of the meeting of the executive of the National Council, held here in November.

Soldiers To Vote In Ontario

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 15.—"The soldiers will certainly have a right to exercise their franchise at the comin Ontario election," Sir Wm. Hearst stated to-day, when asked if legislation were being drafted providing for a ballot for the men in khaki, both at home and overseas, The Premier said that as legislation was now being drafted he did not care to discuss its measures in detail."

"Will it be based on the Dominion Act, or will soldier members be elected, as was done in Alberta and Saskatchewan?" asked the reporters.

"The soldiers' vote will certainly not be hived as it was in Saskatchewan and Alberta" stated the Premier." The soldiers will be worth as much as that of the man who votes at home."

Sir William said that at the time the Ontario Temperance Act was passed it was decided not to hold the referendum until after the war, because it would have been difficult if not practically impossible to record the soldiers' vote."

"It will certainly be difficult to secure the soldiers' vote at the election" declared the Premier. Where,—but I do not think there are the same difficulties. Furthermore, the vote is a necessary one and where it is a vote on an election greater facilities are available than if it were simply a vote on an abstract question."

Electricity For Heating Homes To Be Discussed

Domestic heating by electricity is one of the questions the Railway Committee will discuss, according to Ald. Edgar's statement to the Council last night. He is anxious to have possibilities of this service fully considered with a view to obtaining a permanent substitute for fuel.

G. T. R. PLOW SMASHED IN HUGE DRIFT ON THE LINDSAY ROAD

The G.T.R. lines out of Peterborough were all open this afternoon except that to Lindsay, and a new snow plow offensive was put in operation about three o'clock, with every expectation of success. Last night a plow driven by two engines cleaned up the local yard for Lindsay.

At Best's Station it dug into a drift fourteen feet high, finally extricated itself, and backed down to Peterborough for reinforcements. Here another engine was added and the three of them hit the drift, clearing the track a distance of six telegraph stretches through a solid bank of snow from 12 to 14 feet deep. The effort cost the G. T. R. a perfectly good plow, for the front engine crashed through it, and the plow back fired, breaking the pilot, the headlight, and leaving a big dent in the front of the engine.

The engines came back to the city and were used effectively this morning.

There were trains too and from Belleville this morning, and the Port Hope road was opened this afternoon. Even the back lane to Omemee has been cleaned out, and the entire local system of the G.T.R. should be working on a normal schedule to-morrow, with some trains moving to-night.

A Drop On a Touchy Corn

Instant relief! Then corn or callus lifts off with fingers

Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without one twinge of pain.

A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it Freezone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of Freezone for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It dries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, as well as painful calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. No soreness or smarting. Women should keep a tiny bottle on the dresser, and never let a corn ache twice.

Splendid Concert By Trinity Church Choir

Trinity church choir concert held last night in the church, was attended by a splendid audience, who thoroughly enjoyed the excellent programme presented by the choir. Although Miss Maud Buschlen, the violinist, was storm bound and unable to be present, the audience were eminently satisfied by the splendid numbers with which Mrs. King and Mr. Skitch most generously and acceptably filled in the gaps caused by Miss Buschlen's non-appearance.

The Programme.

The Trinity choir, which has, due to Professor King's masterly training, reached a fine point of perfection, made a lasting impression on all who heard them. Their different numbers were magnificently sung, the "Bridal Chorus" from the "Rose Maiden," and the chorus, "The Heavens Are Telling," from "The Creation," eliciting special commendation.

Mrs. George H. King who combines a most charming personality with a soprano voice of rare sweetness and strength, was repeatedly encored by an audience who apparently could not hear her often enough. In her encore to "The Dream of Home," when she sang the "Rosary," she captivated all who heard by her delightful interpretation of the old favourite. All numbers were enjoyed.

Mr. P. H. Skitch, of Toronto, who possesses the happy versatility of voice which enables him to present with equal satisfaction tender and beautiful selections and charming little comic songs, was recalled repeatedly. His solo, "Peg Away," was received with enthusiastic applause. Mr. Skitch, whose splendid baritone voice is well known in musical circles in Toronto, has won for himself many warm friends in the city.

The two male quartettes, Messrs. Wright, Rodyard, Hartshorn and Baudry and Messrs. Mitchell, Adair, Downey and Skitch, were received with hearty applause.

The programme as presented was:

Chorus, unaccompanied, "A Slumber Song"—The choir.

Baritone solos, "Thou" and "Prest by Creatore"—Mr. Skitch.

Part II.

Chorus, "Bridal Chorus"—Choir.

Solo, "Peg Away"—Mr. Skitch.

Soprano solo, "On the Adrian Sea" and "For You Alone"—Mrs. King.

Male quartette, "Until the Dawn"—Messrs. Mitchell, Adair, Downey and Skitch.

Ladies' Chorus—"Evening Chimes."

Solo, Tosti's "Good-bye" — Mrs. King.

Solo—Mr. Skitch.

The Organist.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the splendid accompaniments by Mr. George H. King, who with equal perfection took the accompaniments on the piano and organ to all the numbers. Mr. King is an invaluable acquisition to musical circles in the city.

Soprano—Miss M. Brown, Miss H. Black, Miss L. Black, Miss S. Elliott, Miss L. Emmerson, Miss G. Giles, Miss T. Given, Miss O. Hutchison, Miss G. Lebart, Miss L. Lyle, Miss M. Lyle, Miss T. Mathers, Miss M. Nelson, Miss A. Nelson, Miss V. Neill, Miss C. Pothick, Miss H. Pothick, Miss A. Rigby, Miss E. Sharpe, Miss E. Sloan, Miss A. Williams, Miss E. Waugh, Mrs. G. King, Mrs. J. McLeod, Mrs. R. Hughes.

Alto—Miss L. Corbett, Miss A. Potland, Miss Richardson, Miss F. Stuart, Miss V. Zealand, Mrs. A. F. Lane, Mrs. McCall, Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Mrs. Wright.

Tenor—Mr. J. F. Diamond, Mr. Kennett, Mr. S. Mitchell, Mr. Ridyard, Mr. Wright, Mr. C. B. Adair, Mr. A. Lee.

Bass—Mr. H. Austin, Mr. Baudry, Mr. R. F. Downey, Mr. F. Hartshorn, Mr. Jefferson, Mr. J. Le Barr, Mr. P. Naish, Mr. N. Staples, Mr. W. F. Skitch.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—While an election clears the air it is not always pleasant when we are a bit lazy or want to remain in office. The Borden Government did not want an election and now the Hearst government is manoeuvring for the same thing. But the people will want to put prohibition on the books forever and not for the war only as it is now. Mr. Gillespie is for bone-dry prohibition—no alcohol in anything over 2 1-2 per cent. and if the Creator puts any more in anything He will be fitted, too.

Now, then, what is coming against Mr. G.? Just you watch. There is a big movement on in this town to get a man who is a soft sawder sort of a duck, who will be all things and anything, but who is really nothing, to oppose Mr. G.

Now beware of such work. If you want a bone-dry you must vote for a man who states in black and white where he is.

Yours truly,
J. TIPPLETIT,
(Lodger).

The Victims of La Grippe

Every winter la grippe sweeps over Canada like a scourge, leaving behind hundreds of health-wrecked victims. Ask any of those who have been attacked by la grippe what their present condition of health is and most of them will answer: "Since I had the grip I have never been well." This trouble leaves behind a persistent weakness of the limbs, bad digestion, shortness of breath, and palpitation of the heart, caused by the thin-blooded condition in which grip almost always leaves its victims after the fever and influenza have subsided. They are at the mercy of relapses and complications, often very serious. This condition will continue until the blood is built up again, and for this purpose nothing can equal a fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. From the first to the last dose these pills make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body. Thus the lingering germs are driven from the body, and the weak despondent victims of la grippe are transformed into cheerful, healthy, happy men and women.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Russian troops are leaving the Roumanian front in such swarms that the railways are literally overwhelmed. Sixty thousand men on Wednesday of last week passed one station, according to word received here to-day. Equipment and rifles are discarded by the returning troops.

The Bolsheviki to-day brought six cruisers up the Neuva to near Petrograd, presumably to have the guns from these vessels handy in case the constituent assembly proves fractious.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Anti-Bolsheviki parties in Russia, according to a despatch to the Daily News from Petrograd, are using the creation of a volunteer army by the Bolsheviki as a basis of energetic agitation to turn the Petrograd garrison against the Lenine Government. Efforts also are being made to start street demonstrations in favour of the Constituent assembly. If the efforts are successful, the despatch adds, the result will be anarchy, than which the Germans could wish nothing better. The Constituent assembly is to meet on Friday. It seems probable that it will contain a majority against the Bolsheviki, and will try to replace them by another government. Such government, the Daily News correspondent says, would be infinitely less dangerous as an antagonist toward Germany than the present one.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The operations of the British forces on the Italian front during the past week are reviewed in an official statement to-day. Italian successes in carrying out operations in Monte Asolone region, as well as in the vicinity of Monte Spinoncia and near Capo Sile, on the River front, are noted in the announcement.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 15.—The arrest of all the members of the Roumanian Legation here to-day caused a sensation among diplomatic corps.

The arrests are believed to have been made in reprisal for the arrest of a number of Bolsheviki agitators at Jassy, Roumania.

MUSIC'S POWER TO HEAL THE SOLDIERS

Miss Lillia Dillingham tells of Wonderful Experience in France and Will Relate Them Both in Song and Story in St. Paul's Presbyteran Church.

MONDAY, JAN. 21st

TORONTO.—Wonderfully sure of the power of music to heal not only the minds but the bodies of war-torn men, because she has seen them under its influence, slowly lose the wish to die, and regain the will to battle through pain and weariness into the desire to live, Miss Lillian Dillingham has come to Canada to convince us with her own conviction.

"I hear," she said eagerly, after introductions were over at the King Edward yesterday, "that they are sending a party of Canadian vocalists across. I do hope it will go through, for I know how dearly the Canadian boys would love to hear the singers of their own people."

And then this rosy-flushed English girl, who is one of the Dillinghams of Yorkshire, and has been four times to France and sung at over four hundred concerts there, told an illustrating story of one experience, when, after singing to a sea of khaki in one of the huts, a voice at the back piped out:

"Are they all 'appy at Skipton, Miss?"

A request to the Colonel brought the boy who spoke and some companions to the platform when the concert was over, and with much scraping of feet and many stammers and blushes the young Tommy told Miss Dillingham that he had been her mother's milk boy in the old Yorkshire home.

"Yer came to the back door to wish me luck when I 'listed," he went on, warming up, "and yer 'ad a pink frock on, and my eye! it were a pretty 'un."

That Little Touch of Home.

"That boy and his pals were the envy of the regiment after you left," said the Colonel later to Miss Dillingham, "and that little touch of home did more to buck the lot up than a fortnight's leave."

Miss Dillingham, who has been with Miss Lena Ashwell, and has had the experience of singing almost continuously for nine hours, mingles tales of wonderful miracles of surgery wrought by the doctors, with stories of her songs, and constantly interpolates some delightful bit about the unconscious in souciance of the Canadian private, before the English officer, who tries his best to accustom himself to a point of view which doesn't see why a corporal shouldn't be friendly with a General and vice versa.

Laughter Through Tears.

"It's all wonderful work," says the visitor, her dark eyes glowing with memories, "but of course it's very trying. You sing in all sorts of atmospheres all day long, to men who have just slipped away from death; to men who will be plunged into inferno in a few hours' time; to men who are dying in agony, and then most likely, when you feel that there isn't enough left in you to support life, you have to dine at the officers' mess and wind the machine up afresh. Sometimes, too, when you feel as if you couldn't ever laugh again, a nurse comes along and begs you to go and cheer up some boy who hasn't laughed since he came to hospital, and something helps you to say the little thing that curves the lips into a smile, and presently you and the one are laughing together over nothing at all, and the nurse pats you on the back when it's over, and says:

"Now he's started on the road to getting better, thanks to you."

Far From War's Hand.

It is delightful to hear Miss Dillingham say that though she felt so lonesome when she landed in St. John a few days ago, that she wanted to take the next boat home, Toronto people have been so friendly and kind that she already feels at home; but there was unconscious rebuke in a little remark, dropped accidentally, to the effect that Canada in its peace and comfort, and its plentitude of luxuries, reminds one of the almost forgotten days of Britain before the war.

City's Bill Extends Bridge Debentures To 30 Years' Term

The city's bill to be presented to the Legislature for approval, contains a clause that extends the term of the $280,000 to be issued for the Hunter and London street bridges from 20 to 30 years. It also asks for authority to replace any member of the City Trust Commission who absents himself without leave from the Commission from three consecutive meetings.

The bill as read at last nights Council meeting contains a clause that would empower the City Trust to provide sinking funds for small debenture issues that are not otherwise provided for.

Another clause confirms the abolition of the election of aldermen by the ward system and the reversion to election by a general vote of the people, and specifically sets out that in 1919 there shall be twelve aldermen elected, the six candidates scoring the highest number of votes to be elected for two years and the next six for one year; also that each elector must vote for at least four candidates.

"Can you make a man vote for four if he doesnt want to," Ald. Saunders asked City Solicitor Gordon, adding "it may be law, but it's not fair."

Ald. Edgar— It sounds a little of Prussianism.

Mayor Duncan approved of the proposal to elect the six aldermen for two years. In his first year an alderman is mainly learning Council procedure and at the end of the year should be a valuable member. The idea of compelling an elector to vote for four aldermanic candidates was aimed to prevent plumping.

Ald. Edgar moved that this clause be struck out, but his motion was unseconded.

AN IMPATIENT IRISHMAN.

The Times: John Joseph Ryan, charged at Camberley with deserting from the navy and enlisting in the army, said that he had served in the North Sea for three years, and as the Germans did not come to him, he thought it was time he went to them. He had waited long enough.

RECLAIM WASTAGE FROM BATTLEFIELD

Thousands of Tons of Ruined Equipment of Soldiers Retrieved

LE MANS, Department of the Sarthe, France. — On an average eight trains a day are bringing to Le Mans the wastage at the battle-front, consisting of thousands of tons of damaged and ruined soldiers' equipment. There have been as many as seventeen trains a day heavily loaded with this material, picked up on battle-fields and around camps. Le Mans would be the pardise of ragmen and leaders in second-hand goods were it not for the fact that the French army is finding its own use for such of this material as it is able to recuperate or repair.

Establishments located here by the Quartermaster's Department recuperate monthly 50,000 outer garments, 125,000 under garments, 3,500 pairs of shoes, 25,000 steel helmets, 270,000 sheepskin capes and 120,000 pieces of equipment. These articles are made ready for use again by disinfection, renovation and repairs. There are in addition made each month from pieces of clothing that are not repairable, 100,000 pairs of slipers, 120,000 casts for soldiers' canteens, 50,000 forage caps, 75,000 shoe laces, 20,000 cloth cases for bread loaves and 10,000 wash rags.

The recuperation and repair of worn and damaged articles began in the Spring of 1916 in vast warehouses and repair shops, in which 5,000 persons, including 2,000 refugees, mostly women, are employed.

There Is Still Time To Secure The Things You Want AT SPLENDID SAVINGS

The dawning of the close of these Great Sales is near at hand; a few days and they will be no more; the savings they offer will only be a recollection.

Before they come to a conclusion, however, there still remain on our floors numbers of surplus lots of new, Seasonable Goods which must be gotten rid of. So to accomplish this riddance we have attached to them prices lower than the prices that goods of similar lines have been offered for in the early stages of these economic events.

ART LOSSES IN PADUA.

PADUA. — The third successive night air raid scattered havoc among the famous churches and art monuments of Padua. The front of the Sixteenth Century Cathedral was demolished.

The Santo, or the Basilica of St. Anthony, where the body of St. Anthony of Padua is buried, lost its bronze doors, and the sepulchre of St. Anthony was missed narrowly by a bomb.

Donatello's famous equestrian statue of General Gattemalatta, which stands in the square before the Santo had been removed to a place of safety, but the base, also the work of Donatello, was damaged severely.

The paintings and frescoes in the Santo by Titian and other masters were torn and scratched by the concussions. The rose windows and the Renaissance stained glass were shivered to fragments. The building opposite the Santo, where the Guild of St. Anthony issued leaflets to be sent throughout the world, was destroyed.

A pilgrimage to the sepulchre of St. Anthony was in progress, when the bombs struck the Santo. The cathedral was struck above the gable facade, the entire gable and the upper part of the facade falling in the street.

Big Deputation Asks Council To Give, Etc.

the Veterans. The armouries are garrison headquarters, and I have no doubt but that room would be provided for the Veterans' band. We could make room in the cavalry quarters for the storing of the instruments."

Col. Johnston concluded by stating that he would back up the claim of the Veterans.

Mr. J. H. Renwick.

Mr. John H. Renwick stated that the 57th was a good band in its time. "When will it be re-organized? Next spring? I don't think so. Ald. Dobbin referred to the question of backing or support. I have a vision that the War Veterans will have the backing of from 200,000 to 400,000 members in Canada. They will be a greater organization than the Grand Army of the Republic was in the United States are we going to keep the instruments from the very men for whom they were purchased? They may have no claim to them, but I feel that they have a just right to them.

Adjutant McElhiney.

Adjt. McElhiney, one of the members of the 93rd band fund committee stated that when the funds were raised it was the intention of the committee that the instruments would be returned to the men when they came back from overseas. "If the Veterans don't represent the city I don't know who does. They deserve the most consideration from every viewpoint. If we want a representative band it should be a Veterans' band and not the Salvation Army nor the 57th band. It seems to me we ought to have a citizens' band to which the city's band appropriation could be given. Speaking for the Salvation Army band, it would be a pleasure to us to give our assistance and not ask for the grant we have received if all the money were given to the Veterans' organization. From what I hear in the city it would be most acceptable to hand the instruments to the Great War Veterans."

Mr. R. J. Davey.

Mr. R. J. Davey stated that it was an inviolable duty on the city's part to give the instruments to the returned soldiers. Seven hundred dollars for the 93rd band fund had been raised by concerts given by Mr. Renwick and himself. The members of the organizations that had given the concerts were the relatives of soldiers and overseas bandsmen.

"There is no other claim possible but that of the G.W.V.A." declared Mr. Davey.

Bandmaster Hughes.

Mr. Walter Hughes, bandmaster of the 93rd battalion band, said he was giving his time to help organize the Veterans' band. "It's not a question of dollars and cents," he said, intimating that he was giving his time and efforts gratis. The 93rd has music worth $300 or $400. "There are 32 bandsmen here who went overseas. I was associated with the 57th for 14 years and I have nothing to say against it. Fifteen years ago the city gave them a set of instruments for nothing. I hope to see the Veterans' band a credit to the city, as it was in the past."

Secretary Whatley of the G.W.V.A. replying to Ald. Dobbin's query, stated that it would be unconstitutional for the Association to admit to membership men who had not joined the C.E.F. Hence the Veterans could not receive 57th band men.

Mr. Harry Gilbert of the 93rd band, supported the deputation's request.

Referred to Committee.

Ald. Langford moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar, that this question be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

"Would the Veterans respond if called on by the Mayor," Ald. Edgar inquired.

Mr. Staunton—We will turn out on every possible occasion, and give our services free if it doesn't interfere too much with our work. All the members are working men."

Mayor Duncan—"The Council will give every consideration to your request and communicate with you."

The Food System The Source of Life

Any Derangements of Liver or Kidneys That Interfere With Digestion and Assimilation of Food Rob and Deplete the Body.

St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 15.—It matters not how good your appetite, how you relish your food, or how much you eat, so long as there is anything to interfere with proper digestion and assimilation of the food by the body, strength and vigour will gradually decline and weakness and debility take their place.

The most frequent cause of disordered digestion is sluggish action of the liver, kidneys, and bowels. The whole alimentary canal, through which the food passes on its way through the body, becomes choked and clogged, and the system is poisoned and diseased.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been wonderfully successful in exactly this class of disease, principally because they act directly on the kidneys, liver, and bowels, regulating and invigorating their action, and restoring them to health.

Mr. John Nayes, 224 Munro Street, Peterborough, Ont., states: Having used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with success, I can strongly recommend them. For considerable time I was a sufferer from kidney disease and constipation, and besides being tortured by the shooting pains through the back put up with the other annoying and often distressing symptoms of kidney disorders. Sometimes I would go three or four days without a motion of the bowels and could get no relief.

"After using a few boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I am well again and feeling fine. This treatment seemed to be exactly what I needed, and promptly brought relief and cure."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

JAPANESE LOAN TO CHINA.

Other Syndicate Nations Not Participating in New $50,000,000.

PEKING, Jan. 15.—The Associated Press is informed officially that Japan is negotiating an advance to China of £10,000,000 (nearly $50,000,000) for improving the status of the Bank of China. The negotiations are being carried on with the knowledge of the American, British, French, and Russian banking groups in the syndicate which, with Japanese and German representatives, was formed before the war to finance China. The terms will be similar to those of the previous Japanese advance under the conditions of the reorganization loan, but the other banking groups will take no part in it on account of the refusal of their Governments to permit the sending of bullion to China.

Japan will loan the money with the object of exercising control over the currency reform. The Japanese notified the other banking groups that unless they were willing to participate in the loan it would be negotiated by the Japanese interests.

WHITE HOUSE "COAL CART."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson directed that the White House baggage motor truck be used for the delivery of coal to [illegible] in this city. The coal is being furnished by a local newspaper.

Two baths a day are almost imperative for children in hot weather.

FRANK JENNE Says:—

It does'nt pay to buy anything cheap in Clothes to-day—any man's garment under $18 or $20 is simply masquerading.

A $15 Suit is a "Camouflage" with Australian wool at $1.10 a pound, and even greasy wool grade fleece at 85c, what wool could you get in a $15 suit, when a winter suit weighs from 7 pounds up. True, it's not all wool, for the linings are of cotton or silk. But study the prices of these materials.

When I advertise an $18 label Suit or Overcoat at $14, I want to say that at present cost of reproduction, that an $18 Suit is worth $21.

In the Semi-ready factory are bales of British Woollens worth $500,000—all bought at the prices of a year ago. While the woollens last, the Semi-ready label values represent the values of the day wool was bought. That is the basis of the label-in-the-pocket price—I will ever keep the faith with our customers.

This January Sale of mine will be an institution. I could not withhold it or withdraw it if I could, for the basis of business is keeping faith.

Woodmen of The World Installation And Banquet

Monday night the W.O.W. hall was well filled by its members and the meeting and banquet was one of the most successful yet held under the auspices of this society.

C. C. Ivey presided over the meeting and many applications for membership were presented to the Camp, and also a number of new candidates were initiated

After initiation C. C. Ivey called upon Deputy Hubbard to take charge as an election had to be held to procure a representative for Head Camp, owing to the resignation of the delegate who had been formerly chosen at the annual election of officers.

P. C. C. Robert H. Carr and the Clerk, Fred Sutcliffe, were nominated for the position and so much confidence were placed in these two members that a tie vote was the result.

After a second ballot Clerk Sutcliffe was returned the winner, and therefore representative at Hamilton in June next for Sherwood Forest Camp, Peterborough.

The installation ceremony was then performed by Deputy Hubbard, who installed the following officers for 1918:

P.C.C., E. S. Ivey.
C.C., Ed. Lebarr.
Adv. Lt., Wm. Dummitt.
Physician, Dr. J. A. Morgan.
Banker, Rich. Waram.
Clerk, Fred Sutcliffe.
Escort, A. G. Killingbeck.
Watchman, Earl M. Robertson.
Sentry, Henry White.
Managers, Robt. H. Carr, J. W. Worth, R. N. Jopes.
Delegate, Fred Sutcliffe.
Alt. Delegate, Rich. Waram.
Pianist, Mrs. R. Pilling.
Asst. Secy., Thos. B. Moffatt.

The new officers then took over their respective positions, and Manager J. W. Worth made a presentation on behalf of Clerk Sutcliffe, Sov. A. Graham and himself of a beautiful silver-plated vessel and cut glass receptacle for use in initiation work.

Another presentation then took place by the Camp, recognizing the valuable services of the P.C.C. Sov. R. H. Carr, in the shape of a P.C.C. Jewel.

Banker Waram made a few touching remarks on the creditable manner and faithfulness to his duties during the past year of Sov. Carr, and hoped he would still keep up his good work in the Lodge. (Applause).

P.C.C. Carr was greatly surprised, and thanked all members for their kind appreciations and promised to do his utmost for them in the coming year.

The business session was then brought to a close to enable the members to gather round the good things which were so daintily arranged by the lady members on the banquet table. After supper Deputy Hubbard presided to drink the following toasts:

"Empire and Allies" proposed by Banker Richard Waram, responded to by Mgr. J. W. Worth.

"Ladies of the Camp," proposed by P. C. C. Carr, responded to by Dr. J. A. Morgar.

The financial standing of the Order was referred to and was unquestionably over 100 per cent. sound and was progressing at a rapid rate at the present time, which was very satisfactory to each and every member present. Before closing his remarks, he added that he was delighted to know that over 120 new members had joined the Peterborough Camp during the past year. (Applause.)

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Deputy Hubbard by Sov. J. W. Worth and Dr. Jameson for the able and efficient manner in which he had conducted his duties both in the camp and also for his valuable assistance while in our city on organization work.

Votes of thanks were extended to C. C. Ivey and Sov. A. Graham for their valuable services during the past year.

Sov. Walter G. Fitzgerald in a few well chosen remarks, spoke on behalf of the new candidate.

The National Anthem brought to a close the most successful meeting ever held in the history of Sherwood Forest Camp at Peterborough.

Motion was then moved by Sov. A. Graham, seconded by Clerk Sutcliffe, that a hearty vote of thanks be extended to our lady members who had worked so hard to present such a magnificent supper to the members, and which was without doubt a work of art.

Sov. Mrs. White responded on their behalf.

The whole proceedings were enjoyed and Deputy Hubbard of Toronto, was in his element when he spoke of the fraternal and social work of the Woodmen of the World in different parts of the province. He said he was delighted for the many kindnesses bestowed upon him when visiting Peterborough and it was gratifying indeed to see that the good work of Sherwood Forest Camp, Peterborough, had resulted in placing them in the premier position in the honour roll of all camps in the Dominion of Canada for the year just closed, 1917.

FUR TRAPPERS MAKE $2,000,000 BY EFFORTS

VANCOUVER, Jan. 15.—Approximately two million dollars were realized by British Columbia trappers last season, according to figures tabulated by Provincial Game Warden Bryan Williams, who based his calculations on the returns made by the 94% of the 1161 licensed trappers who have filled out and returned the forms demanded by law. These show a total fur value of $300,000 to which must be added $100,000 worth of coyote pelts, which come in under a separate heading in the classification. All licensed trappers are whites, but as there are at least six unlicensed Indian line runners for every white man, Mr. Williams is confident that his estimate of $2,000,000 is well with in the mark.

People Of Great Britain In Favour of No Annexation Says The Labour Party

Self-Determination of Peoples, International Control of Tropical Africa, Protectorate For Peoples of Asia Minor and International Organization Constituted by Peace Conference, Also Favoured.

A MESSAGE TO RUSSIA

LONDON, January 16.—The British Labour party, in a message to the Russian people made public yesterday, announced that the British people accepted the Russian principle of self-determination of peoples and no annexations for the British Empire, particularly in the Middle East, Africa and India.

It also declared in favour of placing the whole of tropical Africa under uniform international control. The more rapid development of self-government for India is promised, and a protectorate for the peoples of Asia Minor by an international organization to be constituted by the peace conference, is favoured.

The Dread Of An Operation

St. Jean, Que., Jan. 16.—Possibly you are a sufferer from piles, and have been disheartened and discouraged because your physician has told you that nothing short of an operation will cure you.

You dread the thought of a surgical operation, for, besides the expense and strain on the nervous system, there is the risk of life itself. Dr. Chase's Ointment has frequently cured piles after surgical operations have failed. It is every day curing cases which physicians have stated to be incurable by any treatment short of an operation.

If you could read a few of the letters we receive from persons who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, you would soon be convinced of its wonderful control over this frightfully common disease.

Mr. Charles Beauvois, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Que., writes: "For fourteen years I suffered from chronic piles and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor, who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief. However, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and obtained great relief from the first box. By the use of three boxes I was entirely cured. This is why it gives me great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chases Ointment to all who suffer from piles as a treatment of the greatest value."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

POSTIE.

Upon his tardious, treadmill round,
Day after day he goes,
And in his knapsack still is found
A weight of joys, or woes.

Through piercing cold, or scorching heat,
Autumn, or slushy spring,
In drenching rain or pelting sleet,
Our mail he'll surely bring.

Perhaps, his fateful missive tells
Of loved one passed away,
Bright social pleasures, bridal bells
Or festive natal day.

He brings (so prying gossips say),
Daily a billet doux,
To the sweet maiden o'er the way,
From absent lover, true.

An anxious suitor may await Kind word from lady fair,
But Postie and malicious fate,
Plunge him in dark despair.

Or from a canvassing candidate
He bears a friendly note,
Solicitous to learn our state,
But more, to win our vote.

He deals out missives of good cheer
Others the coal, that grills,
Fond greetings at the glad New Year
And horrid dunning bills.

No partial favours, his to show,
For all, alike must fare,
Equal he must on each bestow,
Naught but our rightful share.

If chance, our mail we miss, tis true,
Poor Postie we abuse,
And yet how oft we bless him too
For bringing us the news.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

LEADING HUN AVIATOR KILLED.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—The death of Vice Sergeant Max Muller is reported in a Munich despatch to the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin. Muller was killed in a fall resulting from a defect in his engine. He claimed thirty-eight victories in aerial engagements.

HERE'S A RAY OF HOPE, COAL SITUATION TO BE BETTER NEXT YEAR

The Toronto Star Weekly says: "Enough coal is coming to Toronto to enable the immediate wants of the city, as a whole, to be looked after, if only the people who have coal were not so 'panicky.'"

That is the view, as expressed to The Star Weekly, of one whose knowledge of the coal situation, and the various factors in it, is second to none.

"You can judge of what I mean," he went on to say, "when I tell you that over forty per cent. of the orders which are being received by dealers are from people who have sufficient coal in their cellars to last them, at any rate for one month, and in most cases for two months. Moreover, a lot of people are trying to keep up, without any diminution, the stock of coal they got in in the summer. For example, a man who got in fifteen tons, and now finds that he has used five tons, will try and get in five tons to keep his stock of coal in his cellar unimpaired.

"Still, when all is said and done, there is actual want of coal in many places. Where actual want exists, the dealers in the city are doing their very best to supply coal. We are experiencing the worst scarcity we have known in Toronto since the year of the coal strike. But one of the principal causes of the prevailing stringency is unquestionably the 'panicky' spirit of which I have spoken.

The Abnormal Weather.

"Then there is the abnormal weather we have had. The first big snowstorm held the railways up for several days—and even a day means a whole lot with the situation in the shape it is in. Then we ran into this last snowstorm, and the bad became worse, for Toronto, like New York, Buffalo, Chicago, and, in fact, all the cities on the continent, is dependent on its daily shipments. There are (I believe) no stocks in the coal yards of any dealer in America.

"Another factor in the local situation is that immensely more people than had ever before done so got in supplies of coal in the summer. This had the result of shrinking the stocks in the dealers' hands.

"Then you have to take account of how the abnormal weather has affected the dealers' end of the game. It has cut his efficiency to fifty per cent. When the snow first falls sleighs are all right for a while. But then the downtown streets are cleared and sleighs cannot be used, while on the side streets it is impossible to use wheels. The weather cuts the dealer from two tons to one ton a horse. Toronto has suffered, as I have said, in common with other cities on the continent. In New York, where they require 20,000 tons a week for pedlar trade alone, the shortage is very acute. In fact, I know of one girl in Toronto who shipped a couple of bags of coal to a friend in New York who was unable to get any.

"Again, the severe weather froze up the motive power, and dislocated the equipment of the railways. Altogether, I shall not be wrong in saying that the weather has been responsible for throwing us back three weeks at least.

Railways and Labour.

"Then the acute congestion from which the railways are suffering is another factor. Live stock, much of which may have been without water for forty-eight hours, has to be handled before coal.

"Further, there is a very pronounced scarcity of labour at the mines. We have besides just passed Christmas Day and New Year's Day, when the miners two or three days to get over the festivities associated with their celebration.

"Moreover, under the conditions under which the dealers have to work, the life is being hammered out of their horses and their men are getting played out. Many of them are working up till eleven o'clock at night every day of the week, and often on Sundays as well. As a matter of fact, the dealers' men would sooner work on Sunday than not. For on that day the man of the household is liable to be at home, and, in his delight at receiving his coal, to come across with a pretty substantial tip. I should say that about 3,000 tons a day are being delivered in Toronto by the dealers. This is in addition to the quantity which people fetch for themselves from the coal yards.

"Finally, it is possible that the handling of the situation might have been improved, though it should be remarked that the situation is (for reasons into which it would not be polite to enter) an extremely delicate and difficult one. Still, there is reason to say, with some confidence, that next year the handling of the coal situation will be greatly improved.

Things Look Better.

"As it is, things are beginning to look brighter. I believe that, in the absence of particularly bad weather conditions, we shall get a sufficient supply of coal along, day by day, to meet the city's requirements.

"I must confess that I should like to see a 'horrible example' made of those who are hoarding coal. There is a really appalling lot of hoarding going on. It is the people with ten or fifteen tons of coal in their cellars who are making most of the clamor about the shortage of coal. But it is the Government who ought to start making an example of these people. The coal dealer cannot afford to do it—he has to look to his future relations with his customers—but the Government can."

"Is there any shortage of coal in the mines?" asked The Star Weekly, "and, if so, what substitute have we to look to in the future?"

"There is no such shortage," was the reply, "and in fact, many million more tons were mined this year than were ever mined before. As regards a substitute for coal, wood is $14 or $15 a cord and of very poor quality at that. In addition, wood is very scarce—you simply can't get it. The idea of electric heating is all right for some purposes, but it is not much good in zero weather."

"Could not some substantial relief be obtained," queried the Star Weekly, "if the people who are hoarding coal were made to disgorge?"

"Very possibly," was the answer, "but how are you going to do it? To my mind the thing is not practicable. The coal would have to be taken from a man's cellar and bagged and hauled. It would cost $15 a ton by the time you had finished with it."

When a wise man reaches the top of the ladder he immediately proceeds to batter down the hatches.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts: 50 cars, with 230 cattle, 1 calf, 3,150 hogs, and 68 sheep and lambs.

The market was still held up yesterday as a result of the week-end storms, which blocked up the railroads on the branch lines and country roads generally. A few belated cars began to arrive late yesterday, and more arrived about noon from London and Ingersoll district. Business was practically suspended for the day, except for a few small lots of cattle which had succeeded in getting through early. Prices were necessarily firm owing to the scarcity of offerings, but the transactions were so few as to scarcely constitute a regular market. Quotations are therefore unchanged from Monday's prices.

Hogs were mostly delivered direct through at contract, the market remaining practically unchanged at $19 fed and watered.

Heart Beat So Fast
Could Not Sleep
HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beat so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any further. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CAPITALISTS ARE WORRIED.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 15.— Consideration of the demands of labour for a female minimum wage of $10 a week engaged the attention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association yesterday. The capitalists are perturbed over the aggressive attitude of the Labour party, every unit of which appears to be on the war path this year for enactment of a Provincial statute which will guarantee to female workers a weekly stipend commensurate with the high cost of living.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

A slice of onion should always be added to stewed tomatoes.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"
A DETECTIVE STORY

but the words died as his pleasant gray eyes travelled over the inspector's uniform. Then he asked quietly, "What is the matter? Something about that disturbance below?"

"Yes," Inspector Druet responded. "We'd like to have a little talk with you."

"Certainly. Come in." He stepped back for them to enter, then led the way to the room which opened from the hall as in the first apartment. Books were piled everywhere, but in a disarray which yet held a suggestion of system, and the table between the windows was heaped with oddments of mechanism in all stages of assemblage.

"I'm afraid I can't tell you anything," he went on. "I heard some one scream, and saw the crowd, and then the ambulance came, but that is all I know. What was it, a fight?"

"It was murder, sir." The inspector faced him under the light.

"Murder! Good God!" The young man retreated a step or two and his voice shook. "Who was it? I didn't hear any shots!"

"Horrible!" His eyes travelled frankly towards his own opened windows, and suddenly he strode to one of them and stood for a moment looking out. Then he turned again abruptly. "I cannot believe it! Surely I would have heard something!"

"Suppose you did tell us what you did hear. By the way, your name is Antonio, isn't it?"

He nodded.

"Guiseppe Antonio—Joseph, in this country. I'm American born, but my father was an Italian. Sit down—won't you?" He dropped into a chair himself as he spoke. "It was murder, you say! And a woman! I'll be glad to tell you anything that I can. I've been reading all the evening—boning up on mechanics. I'm by way of being an inventor, trying to perfect a new automobile appliance."

"The piano next door started up at about half past ten; they appear to be a jolly bunch in there. It seems to me now that I did hear a sort of cry, but I wouldn't swear to it; they are always singing and carrying on. Anyhow, I did hear someone below screaming. I didn't pay much attention at first, somehow it didn't get to me, my mind was so concentrated on my work.

The Foundation of Fortunes

—the ready cash which first enabled the envied possessors to grasp financial opportunity—in the great majority of cases is found to have been a Savings Bank balance.

Shrewdness and good sense commend the opening and fostering of a Savings Account in the Union Bank of Canada.

When I did fling down my work and go to the window I could see only that a crowd was collecting about the entrance, and I thought there had been a fight, as I told you. The screaming had stopped, and the piano playing, too, and I was going back to my reading when the ambulance came. I watched it drive away again after a big and then I took up my book again and read until just now, when you came. I don't know another thing about it. I wish I did!"

He had told his story in such a straightforward manner and was so evidently anxious to render any possible assistance, that the inspector found few inquiries to put to him. He lived quite alone, it developed, cared for by a man servant, who went home at night. He had only been there two months, having subleased from another bachelor tenant, and was taking a special course in advanced mechanical engineering and chemistry at the neighboring university.

After a glance about his apartment, every corner of which he threw wide for their inspection, they took leave of him.

The hall-boy had deserted his post, but as they stepped into the main corridor the elevator ascended, and stopped, and a man and woman emerged.

"Here they are, boss!" the boy called eagerly. "Here's Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Foxe!"

CHAPTER III.

THE BROADENING TRAIL.

The woman turned with a little cry, and came hastily towards them. She was a magnificent-looking creature, tall, deep-chested and splendidly formed, and she walked with a curious, lithe, swaying grace. Her face was marble white, but her tawny eyes snapped and her mouth was like a crimson stain.

"Is it true, what Alfred has just told us?" she demanded. "Has somebody been killed?"

"Now, Leola!" The man accompanying her was an attenuated stoop-shouldered person, with a small, black Vandyke beard, and stiff, up-standing hair. He laid a restraining hand upon her arm, but she shook him off impatiently.

"Yes. Didn't your guest, Miss Collins, tell you? Or perhaps you missed her at the station," the inspector suggested warily.

The woman shook her head.

"No; she didn't——" she began, but this time her husband interrupted her.

"Don't let us stand here talking," he said nervously. "If you are police officers, and you have anything to say to us, come in the flat."

He produced a key and opened the door, stepping back for his wife to enter, but she paused, her shoulder brushing his and her head thrown back like an animal on the scent.

"Some one's been in here!" she challenged. "What does it mean?"

"We have been making an examination of all the apartments," the inspector explained suavely. "You will find that we have disarranged nothing."

The woman's deep-throated laugh rang out.

"I guess everything was in a mess any way," she said casually. "It usually is. Now, please tell us what happened!"

The inspector herded them into the garish, cluttered drawing room without giving them an opportunity to look about farther, and briefly gave them the facts of the tragedy. Grafton Foxe heard them through without comment, his head held reflectively on one side, pointed fingertips together, and pale expressionless eyes fixed upon the other's face.

Mrs. Foxe clenched her hands.

"What a rootless, cowardly thing!" she exclaimed. "And you don't know who the girl was, or how she got in, or where she fell from! You're sure it wasn't suicide? She might have climbed to the roof and dived off."

"No; we have reason to believe it was murder," the inspector assured her gravely. "Now, if you will give us an account, purely as a matter of form, of your movements to-night, and Miss Collins——"

"Oh, come, you know what I mean!"

"Has she got an ace in the hole, you're thinking?" McCarty's tone was non-committal. "No, I guess her story is straight enough—maybe."

The smaller apartment beside that of Mrs. Doremus was closed and they gave it merely a cursory inspection, as her account if true, narrowed the investigation to the floors above.

"Who lives here?" asked the inspector as they halted before the corner apartment on the next floor.

"Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Foxe, sir," the hall boy replied. "Real lively folks they——seem like they's in some kind of the-tre business."

"Well, they don't appear to be at home," McCarty remarked, as repeated pressure of the bell failed to bring a response.

"Lordy, I done forgot!" The hall boy's eyes rolled apologetically. "They went out 'long about eight, and the same lady, she left after you-all come."

"What young lady?"

"What do you mean about her leaving after I came?" demanded the inspector sharply. "I gave orders that none of the tenants were to leave the premises!"

"Oh, it was before you got here, sir! I mean this gen'l'man." He pointed to McCarty. "It was after he done carry that dead lady in."

"How long after?"

"I don's know. I was too scared to reckon the time. But it couldn't have been more than a few minutes, 'cause the ambulance hadn't come."

"Did you bring her down in the elevator?"

"Me, boss? No, sir; I wasn't fit to run the elevator then. She came down the stairs, and pulled through the crowd and out."

The inspector made a gesture of impatience.

"Cunliffe's a fool! You're sure she hasn't come in yet?"

"She didn't come back. She done gone for good."

"Gone?"

The boy nodded.

"Her trunk went this morning. And Mis' Foxe called back from the elevator as they was goin' out to-night that they'd meet her at the train. She was cyarryin' her suitcase when she left."

"She should have been stopped, whether she knows anything about this or not," declared the inspector hotly. "Well, we can't waste any more time. Open the door."

The boy obeyed, and leaving him outside, Inspector Druet and McCarty entered. The hall was lighted as appeared the drawing room at the end, but all the other rooms were in darkness.

Involuntarily they paused a moment, but no sound came to their ears, and they made their way down the hall, past a moth-eaten stag's head, a row of framed photographs, and a heterogeneous arrangement of stage-property swords.

In accordance with the provisions of sub-sections 19 and 20 of Section 56 of the Bank Act, we report to the Shareholders as follows:

We have audited the above Balance Sheet with the books and vouchers at Head Office and with the certified returns from the branches.

We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and are of the opinion that the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

In addition to our certification at the 30th November, we have, during the year, checked the cash and verified the securities representing the investments of the Bank at its chief office and principal branches and found them to be in agreement with the entries in the books of the Bank relating thereto.

In our opinion the Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the affairs of the Bank, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as shown by the Books of the Bank.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How a College Man Was Reformed

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

Dear Sister—I received your last remittance of fifty yesterday. We are within a week of examinations, and I am studying very hard. I note what you say about Lucy. I am very glad that you have in mind what I have in mind. Lucy is a lovely girl and I'm sure will make me an excellent wife, but you know I'm still nearly a year from graduation and there will be more years while I am studying my profession. This seems very long to me, since I'll not be able to claim Lucy until I am through with studying. The cool weather will be coming on soon and I'll need a new overcoat. I trust it won't inconvenience you to send me $30, for I'll need some other things besides the overcoat. Ta ta, mother dear, don't worry about my getting into bad company or neglecting my studies or otherwise disgracing myself. With loads of love, your dutiful son, ELIHU STEVENS.

When Mrs. Stevens received a letter from her dutiful son, or, rather, an envelope purporting to come from him, being an old lady with weak eyes, she turned it over to her niece, Miss Lucy Pennington, to read to her. Lucy took out the letter, and when she saw the first word in it she started. Then, telling her aunt that she would be back in a few minutes, she ran out of the room, opened a desk, in which her aunt kept her son's letters, took out one dated several months before, returned with it and read it to the old lady in place of the one just received. The letter she read is printed above. This is the letter that came in the envelope:

Dearest Brownie—My last remittance is here, and I am again in funds. I shall be over to see you in my car on Saturday afternoon, and I hope you will again be able to fool your duenna and meet me at the old spot in the woods for a ride.

Mother writes me that she has set her heart on my marrying—after I get my profession, of course—my cousin, Lucy Pennington. Lucy is a good girl—too good for me—but there isn't the snap about her there is in you. She would think it very wrong to meet a young man as you meet me, fooling some one in order to do it and having a high old time. She is rather too much on the Sunday school order for that. Goodby. I shall expect to see you at the hour and place appointed. Your lover ELIHU.

The next letter Mr. Stevens received from his mother was a forgery. Miss Lucy Pennington had written it, imitating her aunt's handwriting. It warned Elihu to take especial care of himself when the weather turned cold, to always wear his rubbers in wet weather and not study so hard as to injure his health. There was one paragraph which arrested Elihu's earnest attention. It was this:

I am sorry to say that I fear my plan with respect to you and Lucy is not likely to be carried out. Lucy has been receiving attention lately from a man at least ten years older than herself, and a very sensible business man. She doesn't seem to be interested in men near her own age and looks upon college boys as juvenile. So we shall have to give that matter up.

Mr. Stevens frowned. He was very fond of his cousin. Indeed, when he had left home for college she had been his sweetheart, and he had since intended when he returned that she should still be his sweetheart if she would. His mother's plan had met his hearty concurrence. He was feeling dumpy about this change in her when he noticed another letter lying on his table. Opening it, he read:

Mr. Elihu Stevens.

Dear Sir—Please take notice that the little affair that has been between us is between us no longer. I regret that I have so forgotten myself as to neglect my studies and deceive the profs. to go meandering about with a young man who has been deceiving me. Yours respectfully, BROWNIE.

There were two girls who had given him the cold shoulder at the same time. How could it have happened? He thought the matter over, and it occurred to him that when he had written to his mother or to Brownie he had been suddenly called by the college bell to a lecture and had hurried the two letters into envelopes. He suspected that he had slipped each into the envelope intended for the other. Then he scrutinized the handwriting of his mother's letter and caught the forgery.

He was in a hole. He surmised that his cousin Lucy had written the letter purporting to come from his mother, that the steady man ten years her senior was a myth and that she had written it in order to appear to turn down Elihu rather than submit to be turned down by him.

He would have eaten humble pie at once if it would have done any good, but it wouldn't. He was down on cold paper as preferring Brownie, and nothing he could say to Lucy would undo what had been done. His only chance was to live it down and by reforming his habits and years of decorous treatment of his cousin to win her by the time he had finished his education.

Fortunately at the coming of trouble with Lucy the temptation to go browsing among inferior girls was removed. Miss Brownie was not a reticent young lady and having a great many confidential friends, complained that she had been deceived. Each friend had her own circle of friends and the matter soon became common property.

The consequence of all this Elihu discovered that so far as conquests were concerned he might as well devote himself to his books, for during the rest of his college career the girls were all shy of him.

The incident made a new man of him. He devoted himself to his studies, and when he had served seven years for Lucy he found that she had committed the forgery to bring him back to the path from which he had strayed.

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families annually use it. Its prompt results, Inexpensive, and saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain granulated sugar syrup. Nothing better, but why buy it? You can easily make it yourself in five minutes.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Race Between A Blown Horse And a Sound Man

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

When the great European war broke out Ben Iddings, an American, nineteen years old, was seized with a desire to see something of the fracas. He had no preferences for either side, but found it more convenient to go to England and enlist there. Having been a national guardsman at home, he knew something of the duties of a soldier and was enrolled with a corps that crossed the channel after the first expeditionary force of regulars. He belonged to the cavalry.

One cold day in December he was scouting with a small portion of his regiment when they encountered a superior body of uhlans and were not only put to flight, but scattered. Ben, [illegible] with the express intent to intercept her. She concluded that he was in need of a mount and would take any horse he could get. Applying the whip, she succeeded in getting by the hottle before the uhlan reached the road. He called on her to stop and when she pushed on fired a shot over her head. She paid no attention to this, and the man followed her on a run.

The horse was steadily winded and despite a sound drubbing could not be urged to a pace that would enable his driver to gain on the man. She notified Ben that he would be captured, and he came to the conclusion that he must fight for his liberty. He had his revolver, but a fight within the enemy's lines was liable to call new enemies, and he preferred some other method.

They came to a rise in the ground on the other side of which was a deep hollow. On either side of the road was a ditch that had been filled with snow. When they reached the bottom of the depression Ben, who had come out from under the seat and was looking about for means of escape, seeing the drift, jumped into it, sank to his waist and managed to get the rest of his body under before the pursuer came to the crest. Ben lay still, Elizabeth drove on, and the uhlan passed without seeing him.

Whether the uhlan captured the horse or not does not signify. Ben after his pursuer had passed, emerged from the snow, took to a wood and the same evening appeared in camp none the worse for his experience.

Fish in Ontario.

Ontario Government fresh-water fish will continue to be supplied during the winter months, although the volume may slightly decrease. Plans have been formulated for winter fishing operations on Lakes Nipissing, Scugog, and Simcoe, and other waters will be taken over for fishing through the ice gill nets on a rope extending through two holes are employed. As the net is drawn in the fish are taken off, and the net is returned with the rope through the other hole.

If supplies cannot be increased, and a smaller volume of fish during the winter cannot be avoided, the Ontario Government has plans under way for operations on a much larger scale in the spring. It may be expected that the Government scheme will but reach its normal state next summer. It is proposed that fishing operations shall be conducted on an increased scale in the inland waters, and that the Government shall take over control of Canadian fishing on international waters.

The Government fish is cut open and gutted, while the head is left on in some cases. All Government fish which weigh more than eight pounds have their heads off. Evidence of the quality of the fish shipments appears in the recent receipt of a 24-pound trout from the inland lakes. This weight was taken after the fish had been gutted and its head removed.

The Canadian food controller states that an energetic campaign to popularize fish is contemplated. The present plan embraces only the Province of Quebec and [illegible] adver-

A Woman's Problem

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before. I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. Margaret Grassman, 750 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. Thomas A. Dunham, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. Kneeling, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES

Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 304 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

Killed by Poisons

All scientists agree that poisonous products in the blood are eliminated by the kidneys and liver. The kidneys act as a kind of filter for these products. When the kidneys are changed or degenerated, by disease or old age, then these poisons are retained in the body. If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals to flush the kidneys. Then procure Anuric at a drug store. This Anuric drives the uric acid out. Scientific men have learned that in gout, also rheumatism, poisonous uric acid crystals are deposited in or about the joints, in the muscles—where inflammation is set up.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only a little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

You can obtain a trial pkg. of Anuric by writing Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., or Bridgeburg, Ont., enclosing 10c.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"For sixteen years I have been a sufferer from kidney trouble; my back has ached almost continuously and I have had rheumatic pains in my arms, hands and lower limbs. I have doctored, and tried many medicines recommended to me, but have never found the relief in anything (no matter how much I hoped) that I have found in one small package of Anuric. In one week the secretion cleared and my bladder was stronger than for years, so that I was not disturbed at night, where I always had to arise several times during the night. I only hope that many will read this and will try Anuric if they suffer with any sort of kidney trouble."—MRS. JACOB LONGSTAFF, 35 Alexander St.

SPECIFIC FOR BRONCHITIS.

The turpentine used in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is not the ordinary commercial article, which is little used because of the unpleasantness of taste, but is specially extracted from tamarac and spruce gum and so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be at the same time pleasant to use and wonderfully effective in the cure of affections of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"WE CAN START AT ONCE"

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Are you Mr. Reader, "READY TO START AT ONCE?" Have you made provision for those dependent on you should the call come?

If your loved ones are not already protected against such an emergency you had better act while you have the opportunity. To-morrow may be too late.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada will protect your Dependents providing you do your duty while the opportunity is yours.

Germans Try To Stop The Russian Socialist Propaganda

"I Do Not Represent Any Government But the German Army" Arrogantly Declares General Hoffman of the German Peace Delegation---Von Kuehlmann Agrees to Russian Demand For a Plan of Referendum, Formulated by a Commission.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 16.—Arrogantly declaring he "did not represent any government, but the German army," General Hoffman of the German peace delegation made violent efforts at Saturday's proceedings at Brest-Litovsk to force the discontinuance of the Russian Socialistic propaganda among German troops, according to official reports received here to-day.

The information came in telegrams discussed by the Russian conferees.

The same reports told of agreement by German Foreign Minister Von Kuehlmann to the Russian demand that a special commission formulate a plan of referendum by which people of a conquered territory might work out their own future. The adjournment of the peace meetings came after a rather heated discussion of the policy of Russian propaganda in Germany.

The Russian delegates reported that General Hoffman injected into the proceedings again on Saturday his emphatic protest that Russian propaganda work in Germany "violated the spirit of the Russo-German armistice, and its purpose to achieve lasting peace," because "it aimed to carry on a revolution and a civil war in Germany."

Replying, Russian Foreign Minister Trotsky pointed out that German newspapers with their propaganda, were freely granted entry into Russia. He outlined that some of these urged that the Czar be returned to Petrograd, "while the Bolsheviki should take his place in exile."

"I don't represent any government," Hoffman was quoted as declaring in reply. "I represent the German army. I won't discuss the policies of the powers."

"I am sorry for my inability to understand General Hocman's position," Trotsky was quoted as replying. "It is only to be explained in the difference of our viewpoints as to the conditions of armistice. In our belief it cannot limit the expression of opinions of the Russian Republic or its government."

At this junction German Foreign Minister Kuehlmann interjected that "non-interference in the affairs of Russia was the basic principle of Germany's position, but this was continued only provided the arrangement was mutual."

"Inasmuch as our government is deeply internationalistic, we would consider it a great step forward," Trotsky asserted, "if the Germans would consider it possible openly to discuss their opinion regarding the situation in Russia."

DISCUSSION HALTED.

The discussion, the Russian delegates said, was halted at this point by Count Czernin's announcement that the order of business was terminated, and the conference stood adjourned.

Previous to this particular discussion, the conferees wrangled for some length on the question of self-determination of peoples, an dof the necessity for Germen withdrawal from territory occupied by her. Foreign Minister Kuehlmann attempted to hurry up discussion of economics and trade between Russia and Germany.

Trotsky held out against such a course, on the ground that such discussion was "premature so long as the conferees were sharply divided on the chief points at issues." He declared these batriers were Poland, Lithuania and Courland, and the German occupation of those territories.

Kuehlmann replied that Germany "desired not to lose time." "I am certain that peace will be concluded," he added. Kuehlmann acquiesced in the Russian demand that a special commission formulate a plan of referendum by which conquered territory might work out its self-determination. He permitted addition of Armenia to this list of territories, declaring "this will not be any serious obstacle."

PARIS, January 16.—German troops who attacked the French lines on a front of 200 meters in Chaume Wood, northeast of Verdun to-day, succeeded in gaining a footing in some advanced elements from which they were driven out by the French, says the official statement. In Lorraine a French raid resulted in the capture of twenty Germans.

LONDON, January 16.—Several of the morning newspapers refer to the expected conclusion of the Irish convention this week. Among the reports is one that to-day's session perhaps will be the fatal meeting, which is to decide whether the convention has been a success or failure. A Dublin despatch to the Times says that matters have taken a disappointing turn, which the newspaper interprets as meaning that the prospect of an agreement is more remote.

AMSTERDAM, January 16.—"There has been no change in instructions sent Foreign Minister Kuehlmann," declared Under-Foreign Minister Von Dem Busche to the Main Committee of the Reichstag to-day, answering questions concerning the Russo-German peace negotiations. Berlin despatches said Von Dem Busche prefaced his announcement with the declaration that he spoke in behalf of the Chancellor in his statement.

LONDON, January 16.—A powerful effect on Russia was expected by leaders here to-day to result from the British Labour party's unqualified endorsement of the Russian Bolsheviki principle of "no annexations and no indemnities and self-determination of peoples."

The endorsement was made in a "message to the Russian people and those of Central Europe." It asserted: "The British people must proclaim to Russia and the Central Powers that its aim is identical with Russia's, that we, too, see no solution for evils of militarism except self-determination and no indemnities."

PETROGRAD, January 16.—The diplomatic corps at Petrograd united to-day in a joint meeting at the American Embassy, in a formal demand on Nicholai Lenine for the immediate release of the Roumanian Minister M. Diamandis.

He was interned yesterday in St. Peter and Paul Fortress. Lenine promised to give an early answer to the demand.

LONDON, January 16.—Field Marshal Haig had nothing of interest to report from the British front to-day.

TO HELP THE COAL DELIVERY

It will be a distinct public service if any citizen or more than one citizen could place at the use of those in charge of the distribution of coal any vehicle that can be used. The delivery of small amounts, which are all that is permissable just now, is so incessant that the civic teams and single vehicles are overtaxed. It is almost impossible to hire vehicles and drivers. So any assistance will be most cordially appreciated. Such may be communicated to the Chief of Police, at his office. And the sooner the quicker.

JAPANESE WAR VESSELS ARE SENT TO VLADIVOSTOK

Long-Continued Appeals From Japanese and Other Citizens in Russian Port For Protection is at Last Answered by Japanese Government

PROTECT ALLIED INTERESTS

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Ralph Turner.)

TOKIO, Jan. 16.—Japanese warships have been dispatched to Vladivostok for the protection of allied interests there, according to official announcement to-day.

The action follows long continued appeals from Japanese and other citizens in the Russian port for adequate protection, not only to their own lives and property, but to great quantities of allied munitions and supplies there. Desultory fighting between the Bolsheviki and Cossacks has been in progress in and around the city for weeks.

Congestion on the trans-Siberian railroad and general demoralization of transportation incident to the internal difficulties in Russia is reported to have resulted in an unprecedented tieing up of supplies at Vladivostok. The Bolsheviki have been making desperate efforts to commandeer this material, much of which has been ordered by the old Monarchist regime.

A member of the naval staff to-day declared that communication with Vladivostok had been almost cut off and that the protection of the city was one of Japan's responsibilities to be carried out while the allies were fighting in Europe.

Officials emphasized to-day that for the present no troops would be moved to the Russian seaport.

MR. THOMAS ADAMS ON TOWN PLANNING

Ottawa Expert Will Have Some Interesting Things to Say to Peterborough Citizens

Speaking of town planning and development, Mr. Thomas Adams, of Ottawa, town planning expert, who will visit Peterborough on Friday, 18th January, says:

"It is of vital importance to the country during war and the subsequent period of readjustment that we should plan land with the definite purpose of securing better living conditions and more production. In cities and towns where financial conditions are serious and land speculation has led to enormous losses, there is great need for proper planning to obtain greater security and stability in connection with land ownership, closer settlement in suburbs, and a reduction of the extravagant expenditure which continues to be incurred in connection with local improvements."

The meeting, which will be open to the public, will be held in the Public Library.

DRAFT OFF FOR EAST

MORE MEN COMING

That the training in Canada of the men called out under the Military Service Act may not be very long in duration is indicated by the fact that Major R. P. Watt, commanding E Company of the 1st Depot Battalion, Eastern Ontario Regiment, received orders yesterday afternoon to prepare a draft of thirty-five men from the local company to leave today for Kingston.

Just why the draft has been asked for is not known to the local authorities.

The men were selected yesterday afternoon and left on the 1.30 G.T.R. train this afternoon for Kingston in command of Lieut. Mark, who will return to Peterborough after acting as conducting officer.

No. 4020138, Pte. W. H. Barton.
No. 4020687, Pte. B. Bell.
No. 4020723, Pte. A. Black.
No. 4020680, Pte. H. E. Brunet.

No. 4020695, Pte. W. Yeomans.

Another draft of men, 43 in number, will arrive in Peterborough tonight from Kingston, so that the net result of the two transfers will be a gain of eight in the strength of the local company. The incoming draft will likely reach here on the 8.50 G.T.R. train.

Pay Parade.

The Peterborough draftees drew the first military pay to-day, when a pay parade was held. Capt. J. M. Thompson, formerly paymaster of the 247th Battalion, and now paymaster of the 1st E.O.R., was in the city this morning looking after this important item.

Major J. L. Newman, second in command of the 1st Battalion E.O.R., paid an official visit to the Armouries to-day to inspect the training of the new soldiers.

Belts were issued to E Company this morning.

Services Cancelled To Conserve Coal Supply

At a meeting of the session of St. Paul's Church last night, it was decided, in order to conserve the coal supply, to cancel all mid-week services; and with the same object in view, a committee was appointed to confer with the authorities of other churches in regard to holding union Sunday services.

Patriotic Fund Will Require Another Sixty Thousand Dollars

Committee Will Wait Upon the City Council at An Early Date---Many Favour Direct Taxation--The Last Named Method Would Mean An Increase in Tax Rate of About Five Mills.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Patriotic Fund was held last evening in the office of the fund, Simcoe street. The net result of the meeting was the unanimous endorsation of the secretary's report and the decision of the members present to wait upon the City Council in connection with the levying of sixty thousand dollars for the operation of the fund during the present year. Mr. B. F. Ackerman, Mr. Joseph Wearing, Mr. W. R. Morris and others were strongly of the opinion that the amount should be raised by direct taxation on the 1918 assessment in preference to a debenture issue. This would mean an increase in the tax rate of about five mills for one year, but it would be much the cheapest in the end. Ex-Mayor Buller suggested that the Patriotic Fund Committee leave the method of raising the amount to the City Council. When one member remarked that the Council was prone to reserve their decision until the deputation had departed ex-Mayor Buller said that such a method did not exist during his regime at the City Hall. "We stood up and told the people what we thought about the matter, and I think we got along a whole lot better than they do now," observed Mr. Buller.

Commendation was heaped upon Mr. Dobbin for his skillful work in connection with the matter of providing a coal supply for the dependents of soldiers. Reference is made to this phase of the work in Mr. Dobbin's report. The laurel wreath was tendered by Mr. F. D. Kerr and his eulogistic remarks found hearty approval among the members present.

The financial report presented by Mr. J. A. Aylmer, who presided at the meeting, showed the fund to be in a satisfactory condition with a balance in the bank sufficient to meet all obligations for another month.

Mr. Dobbin's report follows:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.
Report of Executive Officer, 1917.

To the Officers and Members, Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund:

December 31st closes practically the third year of operation of this Branch of the Fund, organized late in the year 1914. In the interval the work has been carried on by the Committees with carefulness and fidelity to the objects for which the Association was formed.

The campaigns of 1914 and 1915 gave to the local Branch the funds with which to carry on the distribution. For 1917 the funds were raised by special issue of debentures, thus transferring to the city at large the moneys required for continuances of the allowances.

To date of December of 1917 there has been collected and placed at disposal of the Fund, by the City and County, practically One Quarter of a Million dollars, including that which was set apart from the first campaign for Local Relief. It is a very creditable thing to say, both on behalf of the City and County, that this large sum of public funds has been handled and disbursed without any public criticism or fear that any of it was diverted to any other than the uses for which it was intended, and that the distribution has been economically conducted and the trust observed with scrupulous fidelity and accuracy.

So soon as your auditor has finished his yearly audit, (having closed the half-yearly audit on 30th June last), the figures will be laid before you for consideration and approval. In the meantime the following condensation of the financial operations will be of interest:

January 15, 1918.
Amount received, City of Peterborough, and transmitted to Ottawa	$132,372.00
In bank, here	2,092.25
	$134,464.25
County of Peterborough, and forwarded to Ottawa	$ 62,500.00
Village of Havelock	800.00
Village of Norwood	1,221.69
Other contributions, to Ottawa	421.76
	$220,507.70
Contributions, forward	$220,507.70
Drawn from Ottawa and disbursed		$211,174.81
Balance		9,332.24
	$220,507.70	$220,507.70
Amount set aside for Local Relief from City Funds	$ 16,000.40
	$237,508.19

The matter of provision of funds to carry on the work for this year is one that must at once engage attention. The County Council, at the session in December last, very kindly ordered that the usual monthly contribution that had been made during the year past be continued for the month of January. This with what is in the bank will provide for the January Allowances, and the future will be for the care of the Association, in whatever way it may be decided to raise the funds. It is asked that discussion and proposition be made as to this feature. It was brought to the attention of the City Council, at end of the year, and handed over to be dealt with by the incoming council, with, of course, the assistance of the Association.

INCREASE IN ALLOWANCES.

In response to the recognized increase in the cost of living, the local Branch made increase in the allowances, beginning with the month of September, of practically from 20 to 25 per cent., the larger increase to the dependents having children over the average number. This increase was appreciated, but it is now a question if with the increasing cost of fuel and other necessaries if some further advance may not be necessary in the cases of the families largest in number.

The allowances disbursements remain nearly stationery in amount. It might be thought that with the large number of men who have returned from service abroad that the number on the list would be considerably lessened. But there are additions always coming in from other branches of the service, such as the Forestry and Railroad Branches, which did not, in the early months of the enlistments find a place. These, together with people moving to the city to be with relatives, and to economize on fuel and living, keep the list fairly regular.

The increase to the allowances has been fairly met by the lessened distribution owing to the many pensions that have been awarded. From families on the list, at one time, 110 pensions have been declared and are being paid.

At Kingston are a large number of men, heads of families, whose services are utilized in the several Special Service Cos. These families continue on the Fund list. The Peterborough Fund has always paid allowances in such cases, though in many Branches such is not done, except in cases of families of men who have seen actual service in the field. For reasons of service the duty of men at Kingston is equally essential to the efficiency of the several corps, and this should be recognized.

It has been a matter of satisfaction to the Committee that the proposition to endeavour to secure fuel for the families of those on service has proved successful. Those of the dependents keeping house cheerfully acceded to the suggestion that amounts should be paid in beginning early in

DEPENDENTS OF DRAFTEES

If there be any sons of the widows among the men coming into service, and who have been enrolled with those drafted, the mothers should at once apply to the local Branch of the Patriotic Fund. Under the rules all such will benefit just the same as has been the case with those who took service earlier in the war. The office is in the City Buildings, Simcoe street.

VOLUNTEERS OF NEW RUSSIAN ARMY LEAVE FOR FRONT

First Draft of the Army of Democracy Called by the Bolsheviki Government, Form Centre of An Enthusiastic Demonstration

OTHERS ARE VOLUNTEERING

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 16.—The first 2,700 volunteers of the new Socialist army left for the front to-day, sped by one of the most enthusiastic demonstrations the city has seen in months.

The volunteers are responding to a special appeal to the people issued by the Bolsheviki government, and by the Russian Commander in Chief, Ensign Krylenko.

Labour Agencies Ask For Changes In Present Act

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—Hon. Finlay G. Macdiarmid, Minister of Public Works, to-day informed a deputation representing employment agencies throughout the Province that he would change the Employment Agencies Act. The Agencies contended that the Provincial Government had no authority over them where they were sending labor outside the Province. The Minister replied that he had investigated the matter and is convinced that the Province has authority so long as any part of the transaction takes place within the Province. Other complaints of the agencies were against the amount of bonds they must supply and reduced fees collectable. The Minister stated that the Act would not be altered, as it was regarded as a fair measure.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

The Examiner has, in years past, written and printed much matter under the above heading; and some times it has been felt that the seed has fallen on stony ground. There is encouragement, however, to keep up the urging; and necessity, too.

As often remarked, Peterborough is prone to spasms in civic virtue; parts that represent a great pace for a little time, but soon exhaust themselves. A few years ago we had a big symposium of citizens in the Imperial Hotel—the days when we had banks. There was a fine gathering of our best citizens to discuss a fine gastronomic bill of fare and an ambitious "bill of fare" implied in a proposal to beautify the city by a system of ornamental drives, and various other features of the city beautiful. There was the banquet; there was the discussion; there was universal agreement in the idea that Peterborough could be made, and should be made, more beautiful; and there was universal resolve to individual effort to help achieve the moderata.

But that was the end of it. The main result was glowing newspaper reports of optimistic speeches and ambitious resolutions—only these and nothing more. The beautiful circumferential system of drives was born—still-born; for we haven't heard a cheep" of it since.

Last winter the Greater Peterborough Association sprang into existence with elaborate organization of committees, etc., and a splendid membership. At a series of banquets magnificent programme of devices and plans and proposals to make Peterborough greater and more beautiful was talked over—talked to death, for only a short time were the activities of the Association active.

Now we have the Engineers' Club ambitiously trying to launch another campaign in the interest of the city beautiful—and clean and sanitary and desirable as a home. The club has secured the presence in Peterborough of Mr. Thomas Adams of Ottawa, Town Planning Advisor, to the Commission of Conservation, who will give an illustrated address in the Public Library on Friday evening, January 18th.

The meeting is open to the public, but the public should be there; for the address of Mr. Adams, uniquely capable in his specialty, will touch upon improvements in not only the outer aspect of Peterborough, but will deal with matters that affect the health and comfort and convenience of the citizens.

A large attendance is desirable, if only in order to show our scientific adviser that Peterborough takes itself seriously and wants to become more beautiful, more sanitary, more like what it can be made by scientific adaptation of its natural facilities of site and location to the purpose of making an ideal home for its citizens. It is hoped the Greater Peterborough Association will be in attendance at all other of our more enterprising and aesthetic citizens.

Great Britain's national debt is now 7,000 million dollars, and increasing at the rate of 5,000 million dollars every six months.

MORE HOME GARDENING.

Mayor Dunean, in his inaugural address, doubtless reflects the spirit of the council in giving his countenance to the vacant lot and back garden idea. No doubt the council will give its assistance; but, without disrespect, that is a small part of the matter. Results to be at all effective, must depend upon the action of the citizens themselves as a whole. To ensure this assistance of most results, there must be general cooperation—everybody do a little, but many do a good deal.

There may be a feeling that the little some can grow would not count. But the results of last year's small garden campaign show that every little helps. The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has issued a pamphlet summarizing the results of cultivation of vacant lots in Canadian cities. The report is not generally distributed yet, but it is shown that in Ottawa last year vacant lot gardens yielded 12,000 bushels of potatoes and 10,000 bushels of other vegetables. This does not probably include the growth in small plots in back gardens in which an immense total of vegetables was raised, not for commercial purposes, but to be used by the family, to the saving of other foods that are exportable, and help to save and swell the total that can be sent to our allies.

"There is one point on which all the responses to the questions asked, as to results, agree, namely, in the generosity of the press in gratuitously printing notices, publishing special articles on gardening and vegetable cultivation, and giving editorial encouragement.

In stimulating the vacant lot and back garden campaign in Peterborough this year, the newspapers will be found willing to give all the help they can do, in the same spirit that they have helped in war work since the war began.

In view of the immense importance of increasing production, the subject of small production by a great number assumes large promise. The government bulletin referred to demonstrates what results can come from energetic efforts. We may think we did well in Peterborough last year, but there are some places that did better than we and most other places. The bulletin reproduces the report sent in from Glace Bay, Cape Breton,

Has 17,000 population;
2,400 boys at the front;
215 killed;
6 military crosses;
7 military medals;
4 distinguished conduct medals;

Professor McKinnon with a party of high school boys and the financial backing of the Dominion Coal Co., raised 6,000 bushels of potatoes on the old golf links.

There was a school exhibition of back yard garden truck at which we had over 2,000 entries, and had potatoes from 3 lbs. 11 ounces, down to 1-2 lb., cabbages 17 lbs., pumpkins, 37 lbs., and everything else big. The kids made a marvellous show and are enthusiastic to go bigger next season. National service has been a success.

(Signed) Stuart McCawley,
Hon. Sec. Kitchener Club,
Glace Bay.

Here is at once a splendid example and evidence of big results. These must have come by energetic organization and whole-hearted cooperation, doubtless dependent upon enthusiastic exhortation and stimulus to action. We people of Ontario are accustomed to holding the opinion that we are just a shade more enterprising and wide awake than the other provinces; but we can, in the matter of amateur gardening, take a leaf out of the book of Nova Scotia.

It is "up to us" to show what we can do in Peterborough this year; but we can't do it without some preparatory thinking and action. Like a prudent farmer, the owner of a little garden plot should be planning ahead, looking out for fertilizers and seed.

If we are going to prosecute a successful campaign of small gardening, we must begin to think about it now; and what is more begin to talk about it. The columns of the Examiner are open to those who have short crisp views to express in stimulation of interest in the gardening campaign.

Woman suffrage promises to be as universal as civilization. Great Britain and the United States have pronounced in favour of it. Australia has adopted it, and the Canadian government has promised it.

UNION BANK'S BIG YEAR.

We have heard of late a good deal of the benefits of union as a basis of individual, civic and national cooperation. The union of effective management, wise policy and prosperous times show results reflected in the operations of the Union Bank for the past year, the most successful year in its history. An increase of assets of $34,359,773, eclipses even the splendid record of this bank in this regard for recent years. This brings the total of assets up to the very substantial figures of nearly 145 1-2 millions. The importance of the bank's assets consists largely in the fact that they are in strictly liquid form. Cash, balances due and high grade securities constitute 57 per cent. In addition to the large reinforcement of liquid assets, the statement indicates a notable increase in the volume of the bank's notes in circulation, which have reached $12,775,602, or more than two and a half times the paid up capital, but the difference is fully covered by deposits of gold and Dominion notes in the central gold reserve. While the Union Bank has been contributing to its own prosperity and strengthening its standing it has done an important national and imperial service in its contribution to the financing of government business, in a way to earn the gratitude of the country, which benefits as well as the shareholders by the excellent management of the affairs of the Union Bank, which is to be congratulated on the achievement and enjoyment of another prosperous year.

To the bank's general prosperity, the local branch under the management of Mr. C. H. Pennefather, has substantially contributed.

The ranting demagogues, who a few years ago talked a good deal about Britain being an "effete monarchy," find the old lady singularly alive, and able to show the way in great achievement to the younger nations of the world.

Arts and Crafts Column

HUGHSON JOHNSTONE, painter and decorator, 816 Water street, will answer in this column each Wednesday for Examiner readers, questions relating to painting, sign-writing, paper-hanging, kalsomining, furniture polishing, decorating, etc., for the benefit of those who might like doing their own work. Questions sent to the Examiner will receive attention in due course.

Farmer's Wife, Smith Township: Will you please give me a suggestion in your "Art" column as to the best way to select paper for my dining room. It is a very large room fifteen feet by thirteen feet and nearly ten feet high. It has but one window, has double doors and two single doors. But it is very dark, as it is shaded by great trees and a verandah, and how many rolls of paper I need to buy? If you have any other suggestion besides wall paper to make I would consider it a great favour.

Ans.: As your dining room is very dark and has no direct light, but rather a reflected light of either a green or brown hue, I would suggest first of all that you get light. And yellow is the most sunshiny colour there is. Now do not misunderstand me when I say yellow. Some of the most beautiful hues and tints can be made with the yellows and for richness have few rivals. Moreover, the reflected cast from your trees will not materially affect the scheme. So a white or very light cream ceiling, a yellow satin finish wall, and with a linecrust dado of deeper tone, you will have a rich, light as possible dining room. Let your wood work be fairly dark, strange as this may seem you will find it will tend to intensify the brightness. It will take 7 rolls of ceiling, 14 rolls of wall. I would not use a border, and hang only the brightest and liveliest of pictures, and few of them on the other hand. Your dining room can be decorated entirely in distemper and if done well by competent workmen, I believe far exceeds wall paper, which at best is more or less artificial, whereas decoration done by hand has distinction and is more sanitary.

A. R. D., Peterborough, Ont.: Would you through this column kindly give me a suggestion for decorating my sun room. It is a new house I have just had built and the walls have not been decorated yet. I would like something very dainty, but not too expensive. The windows are those small, diamond shaped panes. Thanking you in advance.

Ans.: A very dainty and distinctive sun room such as the one you describe, may be made by yourself with very little expense, and a little care and patience. As the walls are new and clean and the woodwork evidently freshly painted, I would suggest that you buy some new strapping, about one and a quarter or one and a half (not wider) inches wide. The colours in the strapping will have to harmonize with the other colours in your room; such as your curtains, rugs, furniture, etc. Next lay out all your wall by accurate measurement along the ceiling line in five or six inch spaces, whichever you think would look best, according to your wall space, now do the same along the base board. Then attach a blue chalk line near the ceiling on your mark; mark with a small awl and with the other end drawn tight and hold on the lower mark corresponding to the one on top; snap the line. Do this all around the room, then in the same manner lay out cross lines, when you will see a lattice effect. The character of which agrees with your diamond shaped windows. Make some corn starch paste, to which has been added a little alum and glucose or white sugar which has been dissolved. Paste your paper using good heavy paste, well brushed out, fold it over in the usual way and cut your strapping straight. Then hang them directly along your chalk lines. When you will have a sun room the individuality and daintiness, whose duplicate would be hard to find.

Mrs. J. F. McD., City: Kindly inform me how much paint I need to paint an ordinary kitchen floor? Also how many coats does it need?

Ans.: It is impossible for me to give you the quantity unless I knew the size of your floor. A gallon of paint should cover about 350 square feet of ordinary, or should I say average, floor space.

2—If your floor is new or has never been painted you should first shellac all knots and sappy wood, then give three coats of paint at least. Otherwise two coats may do.

W. X. Y.—How can I remove pencil marks from painted woodwork without spoiling the paint?

Most Successful Year For The Imperial Life

The best year from every point of view was shown at the annual meeting of policy holders and directors. New assurances issued totalled more than $13,000,000 which established a new high record for the Company by $2,500,000.

The gain of assurances in force was $3,278,209. This gain brings the total assurances in force up to $63,369,330.

Notwithstanding losses due to war conditions the total death rate was well within the ordinary provision contained in premiums and reserves.

The Imperial Reserve Fund is calculated upon the exceptionally strong standard of 3 p.c. interest, yet the average rate earned was 6.72 p.c., showing therefore that a substantial margin for security and surplus exists above the policy valuation rate of 5 p.c.

After providing for all policy liabilities on the strong basis just stated, and for payments of surplus due in the year to Policyholders, amounting to $197,601.69, the policyholders' net surplus fund was increased by $143,306.25 and now amounts to $2,091,920.32.

the summer. The money so collected was banked, and further on the fuel brought in and distributed to those who participated. About $4,000.00 worth was so secured, and very many families provided with a good supply.

EMPLOYMENT BRANCH.

In addition to the details of the work of the Branch, the office has handled that connected with the local Branch of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, and has succeeded in placing in employment very many men returned from service. Close touch is made with employers, and all opportunities are taken advantage of. With the closing in of winter outside employment ceased to be available for many who had returned. These are, and will be for some time, unfitted to undertake work of the class involving strong physical exertion, and the sympathy and help of all employers is asked to providing openings that the men may have suitabe employment. It is only by keeping at it that the men can be placed. It is always disheartening to a man to make the tour of the shops and find that no chances are available.

During the last two years the services of the office have been at the disposal of the dependents in the ways of correspondence, with the Government Departments and across the seas, in the matter of delayed and discontinued separation allowances, assigned pay and the many vexatious conditions that have arisen. These complaints are taken and pressed on the attention of the officers of the Branches at Ottawa, and abroad, with the result that very many have been adjusted and straightened out. The return of men from active service abroad, their appointment to the several hospitals for treatment, to the Special Service Co's., results, so it seems, in delays in pay and allowances that place the dependents at a disadvantage, and the benefit of having the Patriotic Fund to appeal to for relief, and to have the cares of adjustment taken off their hands is appreciated by the wives and relatives of the men on service.

It seemed wise to the Committee having charge of the Funds of the Relief Association, and lying in the bank, that the opportunity to invest a sum in the public loan should be taken advantage of. With the approval of the trustees $6,000.00 of the Relief Fund was invested in the Victory Loan, and the certificates deposited with the City Treasurer. The interest accruing from the investment will be added to the balance in the bank, held for relief purposes, something like $2,000.00. The investment was made for five years.

Occasionally some criticism is made that sufficient publicity is not given to the affairs of the Fund. The office is a public one, its records are open to the public, not to gratify curiosity but to afford information. The affairs handled are the affairs connected with the families of our men overseas, and concern, mainly, themselves and the Fund. But all enquiries directed to the affairs of the distribution and to the work affected can and will be cheerfully answered on application to the Secretary.

F. H. DOBBIN, Secretary.

"Which One Shall I Marry"?

The question "Which One Shall I Marry?" is one which offers itself to every young woman when she stands at the crossroads of life, where she must make her choice which will affect the future course of her existence. Shall that choice be guided entirely by a desire for wealth, and the luxury it brings, even if love be disregarded? Or shall she choose love and let the rest go? This question forms the attractive and curiousity-provoking title of a brand new play by Ralph T. Kettering, which is to play a return date at the Grand Opera House to-morrow (Thursday) evening.

The play is written in the form of an allegory. Such plays have proved very attractive in the cases of "Everywoman" and "Experience," and "Which One Shall I Marry?" is similar in its appeal. The actual period of time covered does not exceed one hour, but it goes through Aeons of time in human experience. The idea is entirely novel both in conception and development.

The eternal feminine is shown standing in the "gray forest of doubt" between the houses of the rich man and the poor man, with a struggle in her mind as to which way her choice shall incline.

At her side, as well as at the side of the rest of the persons in the play, stands "good advice" who never ceases his benevolent efforts to guide her steps the right way. "Good Advice" has come to earth in the form of a book agent, who has a very good book to offer, but can find no takers. What this book is, is left to the imagination of the audience, but it is quite possible to form a guess what it will eventually prove to be.

The girl, in her maiden fancy goes through the experiences of a marriage with the rich man and the poor man, passes through the Land of Sham and finally reached the Land of Reality, where her choice is finally and wisely made.

The company is first class, and was specially engaged in New York by and rehearsed by Mr. Lorin J. Howard, one of our most gifted young producers. The management is that of Ed. W. Rowland and Lorin J. Howard (Inc.) There are eleven beautiful changes of scenes, which include the Forest of Doubt, the Land of Shams, the Land of Reality, and finally the question is solved in the home which she eventually chooses.

MEETING OF THE CHARITY BOARD

List of Accounts Passed—Statement For the Month

At a meeting of the Central Charity Board held last evening the following members were present: H. Rush, (chairman), H. Carveth, J. Speer, Jas. Carlisle, R. J. Johnston and F. W. Miller.

The following statement of orders was read:

	During 1917.
Groceries	$1,306.33
Fuel	687.35
Tickets	11.35
Homes and sundries	2,551.73
Total	$4,560.35

The following accounts were passed: R. C. Braund, $7.00; J. T. Braund, $30.00; P. Connal, $15.00; Dawson Bros., $17.00; M. J. Dunsford, $6.00; A. Fife, $15.00; B. Heard, $10.00; E. H. Hunter, $8.00; R. Hicks Co., $117.00; Little Lake Cemetery, $7.50; House of Providence, London, $75.00; J. B. Manicee, $4.00; E. J. MacDonald, $6.00; Peterborough Protestant Home, $346.30; A. Reynolds, $6.00; E. Puttick, $24.00; J. Speer, $13.95, G. F. Toose, $24.00; P. S. White, $6.00.

It was moved by Mr. Garside and seconded by Mr. Johnston, that the Protestant Home be paid the sum of $522.11 for the care of inmates from the city for the year 1917.

A number of indigent cases were disposed of, after which the Board adjourned until January 28th.

Supplies Of Small Coal In City Reached Lowest Ebb Here To-day

Some of the Yards Are Empty and the Rest Report Greatly Depleted Bins—City's Hardwood Deal Is Temporarily Tied Up by Railway Difficulties.

WARNING TO HOARDERS

Peterborough's coal supply reached its lowest point of the winter to-day, according to Chief Thompson's information. In the smaller sizes practically all the dealers were approaching the bottom of their bins as a result of the steady flow of demands from consumers and the storm's tie-up of freight since Friday. The H. B. Taylor Co., Peterborough Fuel and Carriage Co., Weir and McCarthy and the Robert Hicks Co. all reported depleted stores of nut size coal, and some of the yards are actually swept clean. The situation is a decidedly uncomfortable one, but there is a measure of satisfaction in the absence of any signs of alarm. The dealers are apparently confident that the urgent orders will be filled and in the meantime belated shipments are expected to arrive in the city. Chief Thompson expects four cars for the Municipal fuel yards, one car was received by a retailer this morning, and the emergent orders, handled by the Police Department, are being filled on the plan of expending the limited supply as carefully as possible.

The city's venture in hardwood is going smoothly. Forty cords have been sold and there are orders for thirty more. The regular shipments have been delayed by the snow blockade of the railways, but will be resumed immediately.

Found 3,000 Lbs. of Coal.

A coal delivery man found 3,000 pounds of coal at a certain house to which he had brought four or five bags to fill an urgent order for relief. Apart from the element of hoarding in this exposal, the citizens should realize that this action constitutes a breach of the Fuel Controller's regulations and leaves the householder subject to a severe penalty. A word to the selfish should be sufficient in these times of fuel shortage.

Would Make Every Monday A Holiday

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—President Wilson will be asked by the Fuel Administrators of New York State and Massachusetts to declare Monday of each week a legal holiday until further notice in the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland until the coal problem is solved. This decision was reached here Monday night at a meeting of Fuel Administrators by this plan, it was stated 250,000 tons of coal would be saved daily.

Death of Former Peterboro' Man

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 16.—Alexander Mackenzie Macdonald, who was born 75 years ago in Peterborough, died Sunday night following a brief illness at his home, 104 Clifton Street, Batavia, N.Y. After residing for twenty-two years in Peterborough, the deceased removed to Toronto, but for the past 34 years had been a resident of Batavia. He leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters. Interment took place Tuesday afternoon, in Elmwood cemetery, Batavia.

WAR MENUS

How to Save Wheat, Beef and Bacon for the men at the front. Issued from the Office of the Food Controller for Canada

Menu for Thursday.
Breakfast
Oatmeal Porridge
Sausages Toast
Tea or Coffee
Dinner
Rabbit in Casserole
Boiled Onion Mashed Potatoes
Banana Shortcake
Supper
Creamed Celery on Toast
Peanut Bread Apple Sauce
Tea

The recipes for Rabbit in Casserole and Peanut Bread, mentioned above, are as follows:

Rabbit in Casserole—
1 rabbit
1-4 cup drippings or other fat
1 cup hot water
2 cups meat stock or thickened gravy
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Bit of bay leaf.

Dress the rabbit and separate into pieces at the joints. Season with pepper and salt. Cook in the fat until a golden brown. Put in a covered baker with a cup of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven about half an hour, then add the stock or gravy, lemon juice and bay leaf. Continue cooking in the oven about three hours.

Peanut Bread—
1 cup lukewarm liquid
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups flour (more if desired)
1 to 2 tablespoons syrup
1-8 to 1-4 yeast cake softened in 1-4 cup lukewarm water
1 cup ground peanut meats

Scald the liquid, cook to lukewarm, add the salt, the softened yeast, and half the flour. Beat thoroughly, cover and let rise until very light. Then add the remainder of the flour and the peanut meats. Knead, cover and let rise until double in bulk. Shape into a loaf, cover, and let rise again until double in bulk. Bake. (Wheat and meat saving recipes by Domestic Science Expert on the staff of Food Controller's Office.)

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

PTE. HAWTHORNE HOME FROM FRONT

Mrs. James Hawthorne, of 197 Dublin street, has just received the news that her son, Pte E. Hawthorne, of the 39th Battalion, has arrived in Quebec and is expected home shortly. He was wounded once and sent back to the front and wounded again. He has been away two years and six months.

Pte. Hawthorne is the son of Company Sergt.-Major of the 93rd Battalion, who is still overseas.

AMUSEMENT PLACES CLOSE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 15.—All theatres, saloons, poolrooms and places not absolutely necessary, where heat and light are used, were ordered closed immediately, until further notice this afternoon by Dr. Henry Jameson, Federal Fuel Commissioner for the city. The order was issued after every other effort to provide coal for domestic consumption had failed.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE MEDICAL HEALTH OFFICER IN 1917 ANNUAL REPORT

Fourteen Deaths From Tuberculosis During the Past Year—A Free Isolation Hospital For Peterborough—"Let Each Child Have a New Book"—An Insanitary Practice.

A few days ago space was given to a report made by Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, covering the work of that particular office for the year 1916. Appended is a report concerning the work for the past year in which several important recommendations appear:

Gentlemen,—I beg leave to submit

(Sgd.) C. Hewitt Amys,

Peterborough, Dec. 10th, 1917.

eGntlemen,—I beg leave to submit my annual report for the year ending Nov. 30th, 1917.

There were 450 births and 365 deaths during the year. These deaths include a number of people who died in the hospitals, but came from outside municipalities.

It is gratifying to note that we had from the common contagious diseases of childhood only three deaths—one from diphtheria and two from whooping cough; but unfortunately we had 14 deaths from tuberculosis.

We have had the following communicable diseases:

1 case of cerebro-spinal meningitis.
17 cases of scarlet fever.
8 cases of diphtheria.
7 cases of measles.

The physicians and laity still refrain from reporting cases of whooping cough and tuberculosis; but as for scarlet fever and diphtheria, these two diseases are promptly isolated in the hospital, and thus we are able to arrest the spread of same, and possibly save many a young life. When a case is reported to me, I report it to the school nurse and the teacher. They in turn hunt up the absentees, find out why they are absent, and, if sick, ascertain the nature of the illness. At present all the schools have not the Bell telephone, and this causes considerable delay before I can get into communication with the teacher and the nurse; therefore, it is very essential that a Bell telephone be installed in each school.

Recommendations

I beg leave to recommend the following:

1. That this Board place itself on record as opposed to the present Provincial educational system of having "stock books" in our schools, i.e., the handing down of the same books from one pupil to another, year after year. Surely with the present very cheap supply system we can, if necessary, pay a little more and let our motto be—"Let each child have a new book." Again I advise you not to let this matter drop here, but to use all your power to have the above system abolished. I consider it to be a most insanitary practice. How would you like to give a child an old book that possibly a consumptive had the previous year?

2. That the plan of the property known as the "Hilliard Farm" be so altered as to provide for a roadway to run from a point near the Protestant Home to the Isolation Hospital. The advantages of same would be many: (a) It would enable us at some future date to connect up the plumbing of the hospital with the sewer; (b) it would give us at all times a passable approach to the hospital; (c) after it was graded, the ashes from the hospital and northern section of the city could be used to top dress same; (d) it would also make the present "Hilliard Lots" more saleable.

3. A free isolation hospital for the citizens of Peterborough. How much do you suppose we would have lost this year, up to the 6th of December, if the hospital had been free — only $412.95, i.e., about one-eighth of the cost of its maintenance during that time.

An isolation hospital, which is a boon and a benefit to every citizen, should be free, and with a free hospital would get better co-operation, fewer communicable diseases and a lighter burden for those afflicted.

Cold Weather In The West

Mr. A. C. Carveth Quotes Some Interesting Thermometer Readings From Alberta

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I being a subscriber and constant reader of your weekly paper, beg to submit a short account of the cold weather experienced here in Alberta, in comparison with Peterborough, Ont. (my old home). I would like to have it printed in your weekly paper to tell the people of the East how much extreme cold we have here. I have often heard said while living in Ontario, and hearing of the low temperature in the Western Provinces, "Oh well, they don't mind the cold out there or they don't feel it as bad as we do here." To this I would say, come out for one winter and try it, and you will gladly return with a different tune. Thirty-five or fifty below zero is just as cold here as elsewhere. True, the air is still and calm when the temperature is the lowest, but we have feelings just the same. I much prefer the winter here, even if it is severe, for it is a steady cold, not cold to-day and warm to-morrow.

The few facts I am about to submit are taken from my daily account of records of the temperature, and they are correct and not exaggerated in any way.

Commencing with the first week of December the average temperature was 12 below zero; the 7th being the coldest, when the temperature dropped to 25 [illegible].

The second week averaged temperature was 31 below zero; the coldest for this week was 45 below (38 below on two particular days).

The third week averaged 26 below; and the fourth (last, but not least) week reached the climax, 39 below; the temperature was 45 below on two particular mornings of this week, and 1 below on the 22th.

Believe me, it was some cold. Several days the mercury never rose above 38 below in the sun, and one day it registered 30 in the sun at 12 o'clock (noon).

Old residents admit that this has been the coldest December on record. The last few days of December and [illegible] have been [illegible] change. We occasionally have a mild spell once during the winter, which in Ontario would be termed "A January thaw," but we don't expect that it will come to that here; 10 below is mild here. The weather at present is quite mild and we only hope it will continue.—Yours truly,

A. C. Carveth.

A DAUGHTER OF THE SUN

The native Hawaiian is a musician. This goes without question. Never did a people lend itself to music more than does the native Kanaka. He has a style of music typically his own, and this style he has developed until the repertoire of native airs is most extensive. Among the best known of all Hawaiian music is "Aloha Oui," and because of its wonderous sweetness and the aid of the phonograph record, this air is familiar pretty much the world over. The native adopts any kind of musical instrument and soon becomes adept on it. The guitar and his own "ukulele" (which means dancing flee) has made the music of these islands familiar to all. For over forty years the Rotal Hawaiian Band has charmed the visitor to Honolulu, for they play concerts daily in various parts of the city. This band was a plaything of royalty in the days before the Stars and Stripes were raised over the Islands, but after the Islands came under the government of the U.S.A., the band was kept, and to-day is one of the show things of Honolulu. The peculiar sliding tone of the ukulele has taken the world by storm, and now you can hear almost any familiar air rendered a la Hawaiian.

"A Daughter of the Sun," the story of an Hawaiian Butterfly, the latest play dealing with the Paradise of the Pacific, comes to The Grand on Monday next, with Matinee at 2.30. This play is from the pen of Lorin J. Howard and Ralph T. Kettering, and deals in a most delightful way with Hawaii and her people. The charm of the Islands is maintained by a scenic equipment never before equalled by this firm of producers, Messrs. Rossland and Howard. A troupe of native Hawaiian singers play, sing and dance during the action of the play. The cast is a competent and large one. No effort or expense has been spared in the production of "A Daughter of the Sun."

Fund Cares For Soldiers' Mascots

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Signed portraits of President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, contributed to Dik's Fund for the Allies, have just been disposed of here, the purchaser being Sir Charles Wakefield, Bart., who has a celebrated collection of famous portraits. The proceeds are being used to buy comforts for British mine sweepers and Canadian wounded soldiers, and for caring for the war dogs and horses at the Front.

Dik's Fund came into existence in 1914 as the result of the publication of the little story of "Dik: A Dog of Belgium," and the secretary of the fund is Miss Elisabeth Banks, who toured Canada last year and contributed to the London press a series of articles about the Dominion, entitled "The Land of Hope." The Grand Trunk Railway gives the use of its offices in Cockspur Street, London, for the sale of the gifts contributed to Dik's Fund, many of these gifts featuring the various animal mascots now in the trenches or on board ships, including "Sergeant-Major of Canada," a bulldog from Saskatchewan, and the celebrated American Navy goat named "Major Billy."

RED CROSS SUPPLIES ARE URGENTLY NEEDED

Halifax Emergency Call Made a Heavy Drain on Storage Rooms and Workers Are Urged to Make Up the Shortage.

C. W. C. A's GOOD WORK

At the regular monthly executive meeting of the local Red Cross Society, held on Monday afternoon last, the seriously urgent and unceasing need for socks and supplies was strongly emphasised. During the winter months, conditions in the trenches are unspeakably trying, and consequently never were socks more badly needed than now. Owing to the growing shortage of wool, it is only wisdom now to provide from now on more carefully for a judicious distribution of the socks sent overseas, and for this purpose the Canadian War Contingent Association, as being officially in touch with every section of the war zone and the needs of each regiment, is indisputably the safest channel through which shipments could be made. Knitters are therefore recommended to turn in as many socks as possible to the C.W.C.A., which works in conjunction with the Red Cross Society.

As the Halifax emergency call made a heavy drain on Red Cross storage rooms, it is necessary for the workers to continue to make supplies most diligently to endeavour to make up this shortage and to help meet the overseas call for hospital garments. Every woman who can possibly do so is therefore urged to come each Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Red Cross workrooms in the Public Library. The rooms are open also on Monday afternoons for the members of the Otonabee Chapter of the Daughters of Empire, and Thursdays, when the ladies of the auxiliaries of Murray Street Baptist and George Street Methodist Churches meet to sew. On either of these afternoons anyone who cannot work on Wednesdays will be welcome, whether she be a member of these organisations or not.

The following letter of acknowledgment from the C.W.C.A. will be of general interest:

The Hon. Secy.,
Red Cross Society,
Peterborough, Ont., Canada.

Dear Madam,

In a consignment recently received from Montreal was a case, No. 2731, sent forward by your branch, and containing 126 pairs of socks.

I am directed to convey through you the most grateful thanks of this Association for your very welcome and useful contribution. As you can well understand, we are very anxious as the winter draws near, to have an adequate reserve of socks in hand. The 250,000 pairs with which we started out last winter had disappeared by the end of December, and we are very anxious to begin with a much larger number this autumn.

With very grateful thanks.

Sincerely yours,
Eleanor McLaren Brown,
Hon. Secy., Ladies' Committee,
C.W.C.A.

The report of the Packing Committee was as follows:

Madam President, Members of the Peterborough Red Cross,

82 day shirts, 202 pairs pyjamas, 564 pairs socks (126 pairs of these for C.W.C.A.), 209 pneumonia jackets, 160 stretcher caps, 403 M.T. bandages, 21 bed shoes, 6 pairs leggings (operation), 325 sheets, 1,116 towels, 96 wash cloths.

Flora H. Davidson,
Convener.

Miss Burnett, the convener of the Knitting Committee, reported 449 pairs of socks received during December. Of these, 69 pairs were received from individual knitters and 133 pairs as donations, as follows:

South-End Auxiliary 36 pairs, Lily Lake 15 pairs, Lakehurst 11 pairs, Murray Street Baptist Church 15 pairs, Central Smith 79 pairs, St. Paul's 36 pairs, Miss Williams 1 pair.

For the C.W.C.A. 82 pairs were received from the following: Ashburnham 72 pairs, Mrs. Magie 10 pairs.

Of the machine-knit socks, there were in December 165 pairs.

ATTEMPT TO KILL LENINE

Four Revolver Shots Fired at Bolsheviki Minister

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 16.— Four revolver shots were fired at Nicholai Lenine of the Bolsheviki government to-day, when he was returning home from witnessing the departure of the Red Guards for the front. Lenine was unhurt, all four shots going wide of their mark.

The attempt on the life of Premier Lenine was made just outside the hall in which he had been addressing 7,000 of the Red Guard going to the front. As his automobile swung through the crowd four shots flashed in the darkness. One of the bullets missed its mark by only a few inches and the other lodged in the hand of a Swedish Socialist who was in the automobile. Scores of arrests were made.

Kaiser Trying To Adopt Middle Course

(By J. W. T. Mason.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, January 16.—Indications are accumulating that the Kaiser is taking a middle-of-the-road position during the present political crisis in Germany, and for the first time is preparing to retreat from full reliance on the militaristic policy of Von Hindenburg and Von Ludendorff.

The Kaiser is apparently dissatisfied with the annexationist demands of the generals, but he does not feel himself strong enough to force an open break because he will not accept the demands of German radicals for the democratization of Germany. The Kaiser, in fact, is now struggling to save as much of his power as possible, and is in danger of being politically crushed.

It was the insistence of Hindenburg-Ludendorff militarists that forced the German Government to adopt the policy of indiscriminate submarining, which drove America into the war. Nobody can now affirm in Germany that the few American vessels which have been sunk compensate in any degree for the active belligerency of the United States. No blunder in diplomacy committed by any nation since the war began can compare with the amazing error of the Hindenburg-Ludendorff crew in drawing America into the war.

It is inevitable that the Kaiser must now realize this obvious fact. At present extreme militarists to dictate Germany's diplomatic policy in dealing with Russia. But to exercise his rights as supreme war lord and challenge the Hindenburg's and Ludendorff's authority without simultaneously conquering the German radicals, might result in the Kaiser's overthrow. So, for the moment, the Kaiser is now attempting a compromise.

Hence the report from Berlin that Chancellor Von Hertling is to be given a free hand in the eastern trouble, while the Hindenburg-Ludendorff clique is allowed full liberty in the west, must be accepted with reserve. It is impossible for German militarists to negotiate autocratically in the west because Germany's enemies are the ones that control Germany's colonies and command the seas.

Hence diplomatic negotiations are more imperative for Germany in the West than in the East.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, January 16.—The Lokal Anzeiger announced to-day that settlement of the "political crisis" in Germany, by which Chancellor Hertling's viewpoint is to be maintained on the east and Hindenburg is to be given a free hand, in event of a German victory, to deal with any possible complications on the west front.

INAUGURAL MEETING OF THE NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL

North Monaghan Council met in the County Council Chamber on Monday, Jan. 14, in the inaugural meeting with the following members present: John McIntosh, reeve; Jos. Hall, deputy-reeve; and Thomas B. Wilson, Herbert J. Forster and Fred Bell, councillors, all of whom were present. Each member took the declaration of office and the declaration of qualification.

The minutes of the last three meetings were read and confirmed.

Moved by Messrs. Henry and Bell that the Peterborough Radial Railway be notified to remove the snow piled up along the sides of the track so that traffic is dangerous.

The following communications were read:

Children's Hospital, Toronto, thanking for donation; National Sanitarium Association, asking for assistance. Moved by Bell and Henry that the above communication be received and filed.

Ontario Department of Agriculture re the appointment of township representatives. Moved by Henry and Bell that the representatives for North Monaghan for 1918 be E. Wilson and John E. McEwen.

Moved by Henry and Bell, that the reeve, Mr. Wilson and the clerk be a committee to interview Mr. Gilchrist, M.P.P., and ask him to introduce legislation to empower this and other rural municipalities to deal effectively with the dog question.

Moved by Messrs. Bell and Henry that every person who claims damages for sheep killed by dogs in North Monaghan must come before the Municipal Council and make a sworn declaration to that effect; also any other questions which the Council may think fit and proper in safeguarding the Township's interests.

A Resignation.

Bert Sanderson made application for the position of tax collector for the year at a salary of $200.

Moved by Messrs. Henry and Bell that Mr. Sanderson be appointed assessor at a salary of $200 per annum, providing he makes satisfactory returns to the county treasurer of arrears of taxes; that he be given proper description of property and all other necessary information to the treasurer for all property not properly described.

Moved by Messrs. Henry and Wilson, that Felix Brownscombe be appointed auditor of township accounts for the year 1917, at the same salary paid last year.

R. M. Waddell and James Grandy made application for a refund of dog tax.

The following accounts were presented for payment:

Taylor and Hall, culvert tile account, 1917, $20.

Ken. Denoon, poll clerk, $2.50.

H. C. Robinson, D.R.O., $3.

W. H. Andrews, D.R.O., $3.

Mrs. Alex. M. Evans, poll clerk, $2.50.

Wm. Laing, D.R.O., $3.

James P. Fowler, poll clerk, $2.50.

Treasurer S.S. 2, use of school $4.

W. J. Grady, use of store, election, $4.

Moved by Messrs. Henry and Forster, that the above bills and allowances be passed and paid.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Wilson, that the next regular meeting of Council be held at Court House, Peterborough on Saturday, 9th day of February, at 2 p.m.

NOTHING ON EARTH LIKE IT SAYS FOSTER

Friends Surprised at His Improvement Since Taking Tanlac—Gains Ten Pounds

Here is another instance of the remarkable powers of Tanlac. Alfred Foster, a well-known employee of the Harris Lithographing Co., on the Sterling Road, Toronto, a few days ago, said:

You can just take the word of a man who has doctored and taken medicine for many years; there's no medicine on earth like Tanlac.

Some ten years ago my stomach got out of order, and in spite of the best treatment I kept going down until they finally took me to the hospital and operated on me, taking out my gall bladder and appendix. I was in the hospital for two months, and after getting out from there, I was unable to do a bit of work for six months more. I regained some of my strength, but pretty soon my old trouble came back, and I suffered just as bad as I ever had. I couldn't eat hardly anything and never enjoyed the little I did eat. In a little while after eating my stomach would sour, my side would swell up, and the pain was so intense that I could hardly bear it. My stomach just seemed to be full of gas, which would rise up into my chest and almost cut off my breath. I always had a sickening taste in my mouth and my tongue was always badly coated. I felt bilious and dizzy, my skin was sallow looking, and even my eyeballs were right yellow. I would work for a while and then be laid up sick for six or seven weeks. I had no life or strength, and it was just by force of will that I managed to drag myself around. In fact, during those four years following the operation, I felt simply awful.

While reading the paper one day my eyes fell on a Tanlac testimonial that seemed to fit my case exactly, and ever since then I have been taking it and gradually getting better. I have gained ten pounds and feel like a different man altogether, and only to-day called on some friends, who were surprised to see me looking so improved, and asked me what in the world I had been taking. I have had a sign of swelling and bloating since I began using Tanlac. My appetite is great and I can eat just anything I want. All that bilious, yellow look is gone, and my skin is clear and healthy-looking as a baby's. That lump has gone out of my side. My pain is all gone, and I simply feel that Tanlac has saved my life; and I will cheerfully tell anybody who cares to call on me what I have found out about Tanlac.

Snowshoe Tramp Was Great Success

The Eastern Ontario Headquarters' Staff of the Imperial Ministry of Munitions enjoyed a very successful snowshoe tramp last evening, held in honour of the departing Assistant District Inspector, Mr. A. J. Lawrence.

The party met at 7.30 p.m. and went by car to Jackson Park, whence they tramped across country, returning at 10 p.m. to head office, where they partook of a most enjoyable supper.

RUSSIA'S ULTIMATUM

Will Declare War on Roumania Unless Russian Officers Held By That Country Are Released Within 24 Hours

PETROGRAD, Jan. 16. — War on Roumania unless that little nation releases the Russian officers held by her, was threatened in an ultimatum served by the Bolsheviki government to-day.

"We are informed that Roumanians surrounded and disarmed the 194th and the 49th Russian regiments and arrested a committee of the 195th regiment, also visiting Austrian officers.

"Failure to release these persons and failure to punish those responsible within twenty-four hours will result in our considering relations ruptured and in taking the most energetic measures."

Relations between Russia and Roumania have been growing increasingly tense during the last few weeks.

Apparently the break started when Russian general peace fanaticism swept over all the northern fronts. The Roumanians, ejected from nine-tenths of their little nation, wanted to keep fighting the invader to the bitter end, but they were literally forced into joining in the armistice since Russian troops on either side of their armies refused to fight.

Recently the Roumanian Minister to Petrograd, M. Diamandis, was arrested by the Bolsheviki leaders. To-day's dispatches said he was only released from close confinement in the fortress of St. Peter and Paul after formal joint representations by the entire diplomatic corps.

Quantity Of Dynamite Stolen

TORONTO, Jan. 16—A serious situation has developed throughout the Province in the theft of large quantities of dynamite and powder from the magazines of companies and mining camps. In one case forty-five cases of dynamite were stolen. The provincial police have suspicions where the explosives are going and have communicated with the Dominion police at Ottawa.

MOTION WILL BE DEFEATED

QUEBEC, Jan. 16.—Indications to-day are that the motion for Quebec to secede from the Canadian Union will be voted down when it comes to a vote Thursday in the Legislative Assembly. An expression of views by French-Canadians in response to newspaper criticisms is expected in the course of the speeches.

A Course of First Aid Lectures

A course of lectures in Home Nursing will be conducted by Dr. G. S. Cameron at the Young Women's Christian Association on Tuesday evenings at eight o'clock, the first lecture to be given next Tuesday, 22nd January.

Those who have taken the first-aid lectures will be interested in this course, but it is not necessary that those taking the Home Nursing work should hold first-aid certificates. Those intending to enter the class should enroll immediately at the Y.W.C.A. office.

JACK ADAMS WILL STAY WITH SARNIA

SARNIA, Jan. 15.—The story to the effect that Manager Querrie of the Toronto National Hockey League team had signed Jack Adams of the local O.H.A. senior team, and that the said player would probably play his first professional game against Ottawa to-morrow night, was emphatically denied by Jack Adams himself to-night.

Adams stated that he has never spoken to Querrie in his life. Adams never entertained the idea of playing professional hockey, and fails to see why he should be made stock of in this manner.

In any event Adams will be with Sarnia and not with Toronto pros. this year.

BOWLING NEWS

DE LAVAL TEAM DEFEATS CENTRALS.

In a Ten-Pin League match at the Water Street Alleys last night, the De Laval pin-spillers annexed all three games from the Centrals. The De Laval team now leads the League. The De Laval's best spasm was an 891 total in the third game, against 846 for the Centrals. The total pinnage was: De Laval 2303, Centrals 2435.

Dawson for the Centrals was high man with 569 for a total, Weber coming second with 529. A. Fitzgerald was high man for the De Laval with a 521 total, while W. Fitzgerald, Barrette, and Byers also went over the 500 mark.

The scores were as follows:

Centrals—
Dawson	205	179	185	569
Weber	161	156	212	529
Pidgeon	115	144	147	406
Moffatt	125	153	157	435
Phillips	181	168	145	494
	787	800	846	2435
De Laval—
W. Fitzgerald	142	171	184	504
Byers	153	201	157	501
Buiter	163	146	156	465
Barrette	182	154	175	511
A. Fitzgerald	147	185	180	521
	794	817	891	2502

CURLING

The personnel of the Tankard rinks for the primary in Lindsay to-morrow is as follows:

John Brightman, R. G. Sturgeon, D. Davidson, and R. M. Waddell, skip, and L. Hall, A. R. Moore, A. C. Kay, and W. M. Lang.

"Jimmy" Metheral has four straight wins to his credit in the scheduled games, a fast clip for one of the new crop of skips. Some have been wondering when he is going to break, but the victories now number four, and there has been no sign of weakness.

HOCKEY

Manager Charlie Querrie, who was supposed to have been in Ottawa with the Blue Shirts last night, was not down East at all. He was up West chasing hockey players. He wants another forward and was after Adams, a soldier. He is willing to sign up if the military authorities will allow him leave to play the games, but his chances are slim.

UNION SERVICES IN HASTINGS

Mr. George Barry of Asphodel, Met With a Serious Accident

HASTINGS, Jan. 16.—Union services were held on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. On Thursday and Friday the, or Isaac Snell, Pastor of the Methodist Church. On Thursday and Friday the order was reversed, the people gathering in the basement of the Methodist Church and being addressed by Rev. D. A. Thomson, Pastor of the Presbyterian church. The meetings were very well attended, and proved to be both interesting and instructive.

The storm of the season passed over this section on Saturday and Sunday and as a consequence, business was almost at a standstill. On Sunday the streets were in such a condition that the most of the churches remained closed throughout the entire day. Early Monday morning shovellers and snow plows were at work and before evening the streets were opened, so that pedestrians had no difficulty getting around. The roads in the country are so completely blockaded that it is impossible for the mail carriers to make their trips. It is hoped, however, that the difficulty may soon be overcome, and business will once more be resumed. A number of our young people drove over to Norwood on Friday evening to enjoy the ice carnival, and were well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Mr. Wall of Peterborough spent a short time during the week in Hastings on a business trip.

Those who attended the At Home in Keene on Friday evening, report a very pleasant outing.

Miss McGregor, missionary among the foreigners in the North West, gave a very interesting address in the Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon. Those who attended were pleased with the address, and also enjoyed the pleasure of a face-to-face talk with the Missionary, who proved herself to be an interesting character.

Mr. Burnham of Peterborough called on Friday.

A serious accident happened to Mr. George Barry of Asphodel on Friday last, when he received a severe blow in the face from one of his horses. Medical assistance was on hand as soon as possible and everything possible done for the unfortunate man, who was noticeably weak-ening from loss of blood.

Texan's Crew Are All Safe

Canadain Press Despatch:

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Jan. 16. — A vessel proceeding to the assistance of the steamer Texan, which had sent out an "S.O.S." call Monday saying she was sinking, reported to-day that the Texan had been damaged badly, but indicated that the crew were safe aboard. The ship's steering gear is disabled and there is a hole in her side caused by collision with another vessel, the name of which was not received.

Stolen Army Money Found

Canadain Press Despatch:

CAMP FUNSTON, Kans., Jan. 16.—Of the money taken from the army bank at Camp Funston by Capt. Lewis Whistler last Friday night, after he had killed four employees and injured a fifth, more than sixty-two thousand dollars was found to-day hidden in the walls of Whistler's quarters in the barracks here.

CITY'S GIFT TO HALIFAX HAS NOT BEEN SENT

The Council charitable impulse that proposed the spending of $500 in relief for the people of Halifax, has apparently cooled as the weight of the disaster has lifted with the passing weeks. The city's plans of purchasing supplies were put into motion, but a telegram announced that money would be the greatest aid. The Council decided on Monday night to forward the $125 contributed by citizens, but will look at the city's $500 a couple of times before deciding to keep or send it.

SIX CHILDREN LOSE LIVES

Canadain Press Despatch:

Frankfort Has Refused To Hear Fatherland Party

Canadian Press Despatch:

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 16.—Frankfort has followed the example of Jena and Manheim and has refused hearing to the Fatherland party, according to German advices to-day. As soon as the chairman of the big meeting that had been called in Frankfort, mentioned the Fatherland party, a tumult broke out and rioting followed. The police finally had to disperse the meeting.

Says Bolsheviki Are Responsible

Canadain Press Despatch:

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 16.—The Lokal Anzeiger declares the Russian people reckon on favourable results from the negotiations and that the Bolsheviki government will have to bear the consequences should it prove they had been deceived.

The Vossich Zeitung says that the Russians can have complete peace at home the moment she comes to an agreement with the Central Powers.

FOUR ENGINES WERE USED TO FORCE THE DRIFTS AT BEST'S

The train service out of Peterborough was running on the regular schedules to-day with the exception of the section of the G.T.R. west of Blackwater Junction, and it was expected that this line could be cleared to-night.

Four engines were required to clear the road between Peterborough and Lindsay, last night. Three engines stuck a plow in the snow a short distance west of Best's station, and Conductor Seton telephoned from a farm house begging for help. On Monday evening a plow was sent in that particular drift, which had grown into a long cut piling up sand and snow to a depth of fourteen feet. The three engines hit the drift with a salvo of real G.T.R. "toots," and nosed their way in so far that they could neither advance nor retire. About 9 o'clock another engine was sent up from Peterborough to bring them back, but apparently all four forced a passage, for this morning they were reported safe in Lindsay with the plow.

The drifts around Agincourt have not been pierced yet, but are expected to yield to-night. In the meantime all the G.T.R. traffic to and from Toronto is going by way of Port Hope with Blackwater a temporary western terminal until the road is opened to Toronto. There has been busy traffic through here to-day, transferring at Port Hope.

The Coboconck and Haliburton routes are practically cleared and the general effects of the storm have been overcome.

C. P. R. SERVICE.

When the "local" roared its approach to the city last night there seemed to be a touch of triumph in its long, blaring note. The resumption of normal traffic brought the reassurance that man's inventions had reasserted themselves over the impediments of nature. The "local" was forty minutes late and the "midnight" was a little overdue, but the system was running smoothly again and to-day's trains were practically on time.

When colouring an article at home if it is anything which is to be made over, colour two spools of thread or silk at the same time. It will then be sure to match in colour.

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 10,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 24th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

You can recognize all the Stores where DOLLAR SPECIALS are being given by the RED LETTERED PENNANTS IN THEIR WINDOWS.

FEW DEFAULTERS IN PETERBORO' DISTRICT

Of the list of fourteen or fifteen supposed defaulters received by the Police Department from headquarters at Kingston, practically all of them were found on investigation to be in khaki and at the Armouries.

Only two men have been taken by the police. One appeared in Police Court yesterday, and the other, Thomas Fritton, was handed over to the military authorities. Fritton registered at Rivers, Man., and was working with the Leonard Construction Company here.

EIGHT CARS OF COAL DUE HERE TO-MORROW

Eight cars of coal will be brought into the city by the G.T.R. to-morrow. They were reported at Port Hope to-day, and power was sent down for them. At least five of the eight cars are of hard coal.

On both the C.P.R. and G.T.R., the freight movement stirred again this morning for the first time since Friday, and activities were returning.

Regular service will be restored completely to-morrow.

MARRIED TOO LATE TO ESCAPE SERVICE.

Scathing Denunciation of One Appellant by the Judge.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—Two cases of men who sought to escape military service by getting married were before Mr. Justice Marechal yesterday, but the marriages took place too late to avail, and the men will have to don khaki.

One of these appellants, Joseph A. Valin, asked the Judge who was going to take care of his expected baby.

His Lordship denounced him as a low specimen of humanity who could not expect any sympathy from the Court.

FIRE SALE A BIG SUCCESS

Hundreds of People Throng the Elliot Store

The first day of the fire sale at the Elliot Store yesterday was a gigantic success. Tremendous crowds attended throughout the day, and at times the doors had to be locked in order to keep the number of customers inside down to proportions that could be handled.

The effect of the big advertisement in Monday's Examiner was seen in the rush to the store. There were bargains galore, and people found their visit to the big sale a profitable one. Many extra saleladies are being employed.

APPALLED AT ILLNESS PREVAILING AMONG MEN.

Montreal Physician Attributes the Trouble Chiefly to Cigarettes.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—Giving evidence before Mr. Justice Coderre in one of the Appeal Tribunals here yesterday, Dr. J. E. Dube stated that he was appalled at the amount of illness and disease prevailing among men of military age. He attributed the trouble chiefly to cigarettes.

Dr. Dube expressed the opinion that if the Government had in mind the establishment of a Federal Medical Bureau, now was the opportunity to do the Canadian race a great deal of good.

300 TONS OF ONIONS SEIZED IN VANCOUVER

Food Controller's Action to Preserve Vegetables Held in Storage.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 16.—Three hundred tons of onions shipped to Vancouver recently by growers in the Kelowna district and held in storage here, were seized yesterday on behalf of Food Controller Hanna. The seizure was made by R. Robertson, the British Columbia representative of the Food Controller, in the matter of fruit and vegetables, on telegraphed instructions from Mr. Hanna.

It is said that fully twenty-five per cent. of the onions had commenced to rot, and the seizure was made that they might be preserved for food purposes. The onions will be sent to an evaporating plant soon.

NEWSPAPER ERRORS.

New York Tribune: "Where do you get the absurd facts you print?" is a favourite query put to newspaper men. In the view of these cynics, newspapers spend most of their time misspelling names, imagining incidents that never happened, and generally mandandling life as it is led.

There is just one answer to be made to the query above, and that is: "Newspapers get such of their facts as are absurd from the absurd human beings who for one reason or a thousand refuse to relate facts accurately." Newspapers, truth telling newspapers, spend a very large part of their time correcting these mistatements, running them to their source, and getting at the truth. A certain proportion of error gets by—not as great a proportion as can be heard in any village neighbourhood gossip, for it is the concern of newspapers, of honest ones, that is, to allow for errors and correct them, whereas it is the concern of the purveyors of news, gossips, to create errors whenever they are more interesting than the truth.

The next time you find an error in your favourite newspaper, try an experiment. Try to capture one small fact yourself, in your own home town. You will quickly discover just how wary a bird the truth is and how very unpopular.

Consistency is often but another name for contrariness.

CAPTAIN FRANZ VON RINTELEN MAKES GOOD AS JAIL JANITOR

Junker from Prussia is a First Class Stoker in Model New Westchester Penitentiary, But Feels a Little "Peeved" When He Sees Other Prisoners Knitting Sweaters.

ELMSFORD, N.Y., Jan. 17.— The model new Westchester county penitentiary here has a new janitor. He is Captain Franz von Rintelen, friend of the Kaiser and credited with having been one of the most active German secret agents in this country. Although Captain von Rintelen comes from one of the wealthiest Junker families in Prussia and is independently wealthy, he is said to have made a first class janitor for a jail.

The new janitor's naval experience proved valuable in mopping floors, and now he has the floors of the jail looking like the deck of a battle ship. He is one of the best stokers the jail has had since it was built and keeps a steady flow of heat. And, furthermore, he doesn't chew tobacco, as most janitors are understood to do.

Of course the prisoners, most of them opposed to Prussian and other forms of militarism, have their little jokes with the janitor, ordering him to take out the ashes and stop "listening in" on the dumb waiter.

Captain von Rintelen, who is awaiting trial on a charge of having spent several millions of the Kaiser's money for German spies in this country, takes the jests a bout as good grace as could be expected, but he does think it is a partnership to have to watch the other prisoners knit sweaters for the soldiers.

V. Everit Macy, philanthropist and Commissioner of Charities for Westchester County, has induced expert women knitters from the Red Cross to come to the jail daily and teach the prisoners how to knit. They have taken up the work with great interest and are becoming expert.

The new janitor is not permitted to do any of that kind of work, and he does not want to do it, but it gets him a little "peeved" to watch the other prisoners helping out the American seamen and soldiers.

How Reefless and Baconless Days Are Worked In Hotels

First Class Establishment Almost Invariably Are Those Found Keeping The Regulations Best—Much Depends Upon the Customer.

The passing of three months of beefless and baconless Tuesdays and Fridays has brought a gradual revolution in the time-honoured hotel menu of Canada. This is more marked in some hotels than in others, but the first-class establishments, almost invariably, are those found keeping the regulations best.

The purpose of the Food Controller in laying restrictions on hotels and restaurants was to effect a saving in the three commodities most needed by the men at the front and by the Allied people—beef, bacon and wheat, and so awaken the public conscience to the need of the hour. As a result of these restrictions there has been a great saving in the use of beef, bacon and white flour. According to the declaration of hotel managers, however, the consciences of that portion of the public that forms their clientele is still not as sensitive as it should be to the demand for food conservation.

There are two distinct sides of the question. There is the man who goes to a hotel prepared to pay for a good meal, and very sure that he is going to get it or know the reason why. On the other hand there is Monsieur le Chef, who finds himself between the devil and the deep sea. He has the Food Controller's regulations on one side; the public appetite on the other. It is up to him to conform with the first and to satisfy the last. He has to tax his ingenuity in the skillful use of substitutes that patrons may not miss those dishes to which habit has inured them. At the same time he may not use this and he must be sparing with that. So it goes. The chef is cheerful enough about it, in most cases. "C'est la guerre" with him.

But hotel patrons are not always so philosophic. The things they cannot have suddenly seem very desirable. It is human nature or just plain selfishness? Ask the hotel manager, and he will say that it is selfishness when it is not thoughtlessness.

It takes time to revolutionize our eating habits. The average man is more inclined to be economical in his own home than when he is paying for a hotel meal.

As the manager of one Ottawa hotel put it: "The hotel is a public utility. We are here essentially and primarily to satisfy our patrons. We serve them. They pay us. It is our duty to meet their wishes. Educate them as to what they should eat and we will certainly fall in with what ever is asked of us. Seventy-five per cent. of the people who come here pay $1 and upwards for their dinner and expect to get their money's worth. They like to see a long bill of fare, and they invariably work their way through it, irrespective of how much they eat of each course—which is naturally their privilege. We are trying to meet this by cutting down portions."

According to the manager of the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, nothing goes to waste in this establishment, where there are 300 employees to feed in addition to the constant stream of guests. There is every kind of taste to cater to; all manner of men and women to be satisfied.

The other day a prominent public man wanted to know why he could not have a steak at a certain time. "It's the law," was the reply. He evidently didn't like the law, but he settled down down to his dinner just the same. There is rarely any fuss about it. Nine-tenths of the people go through the menu without being aware that beef and bacon are absent on certain days. It is only when some one desires a steak and asks for it at a certain hour that he is pulled up short with a remembrance of the regulations. He usually accepts the dictum philosophically, but, according to the hotel managers, it is as well that the steak is not there. If it were to be had—and if an appeal went along with it not to ask for it—ten chances to one he would have it anyway.

The manager of the Chateau is strongly in favour of strict adherence to the hours during which certain foodstuffs may be served. As he puts it: "It's the only way to keep tab on people. If it was worked any other way you would have a man having bacon for breakfast at one place, then coming to us and ordering it again that same night."

But the man behind the menu is the chef and it is on his shoulders that responsibility for conservation or the reverse, largely rests. With fifteen cooks under his surveillance the head chef of the Chateau Laurier has a fair sized task. Born in France he is naturally interested in saving food for his compatriots. Some of the substitutes which he is using in diverse ways to take the place of beef and bacon are eggs, fish, fowl, poultry, venison and game in season. These perishable foods are being used in much greater quantities than they were before.

The saving in white flour he declares to be considerable. The use of pastry has been greatly reduced. Rolls cakes are practically taboo. No bread is served for breakfast at the Chateau except rolls and corn muffins, and at luncheon and dinner one roll, and perhaps a couple of slices of brown bread. If people want more they ask for it. The bread that is sent away from the table and that used to be wasted, is now used in frying veal cutlets and fish. White flour is no longer being used to thicken soups and sauces—but cornstarch and arrowroot are taking its place. Cornmeal is being freely used. Where employees used to have canned vegetables they now get turnips, carrots, parsnips, beets, etc.

Lamb, mutton and veal figure largely on the menus as the Board

Have You— Canada's National Habit?

IT IS a national habit — a habit that's a virtue — this daily reading of Canada's National Newspaper. That habit once acquired, a man feels that he cannot commence the day right without his copy of THE GLOBE.

THE intelligent Canadian may rejoice in the news, or he may be disappointed. But whatever the news, he wants that news while it is news—and he wants the truth about it.

HE GETS it through THE GLOBE'S world-wide news-gathering system. This includes exclusive rights to the cables of The London Times, The London Chronicle, The New York Times and The Philadelphia Ledger. The Canadian Associated Cables and the services of the Associated Press, Canadian Press and The Globe's own correspondents at all important points in Canada complete an unrivalled news service.

ISABEL OSTRANDER.

CHAPTER III.

THE BROADENING TRAIL.

The woman turned with a little cry, and came hastily towards them. She was a magnificent-looking creature, tall, deep-chested and splendidly formed, and she walked with a curious, lithe, swaying grace. Her face was marble white, but her tawny eyes snapped and her mouth was like a crimson stain.

"Is it true, what Alfred has just told us?" she demanded. "Has somebody been killed?"

"Now, Leola!" The man accompanying her was an attenuated stoop-shouldered person, with a small, black Vandyke beard, and stiff, up-standing hair. He laid a restraining hand upon her arm, but she shook him off impatiently.

"Yes. Didn't your guest, Miss Collins, tell you? Or perhaps you missed her at the station," the inspector suggested warily.

The woman shook her head.

"No; she didn't——" she began, but this time her husband interrupted her.

"Don't let us stand here talking," he said nervously. "If you are police officers, and you have anything to say to us, come in the flat."

He produced a key and opened the door, stepping back for his wife to enter, but she paused, her shoulder brushing his and her head thrown back like an animal on the scent.

"Some one's been in here!" she challenged. "What does it mean?"

"We have been making an examination of all the apartments," the inspector explained suavely. "You will find that we have disarranged nothing."

The woman's deep-throated laugh rang out.

"I guess everything was in a mess any way," she said casually. "It usually is. Now, please tell us what happened!"

The inspector herded them into the garish, cluttered drawing room without giving them an opportunity to look about further, and briefly gave them the facts of the tragedy. Grafton Foxe heard them through without comment, his head held reflectively on one side, pointed fingertips together, and pale expressionless eyes fixed upon the other's face.

Mrs. Foxe clenched her hands.

"What a rootten, cowardly thing!" she exclaimed. "And you don't know who the girl was, or how she got in, or where she fell from! You're sure it wasn't suicide? She might have climbed to the roof and dived off."

"No; we have reason to believe it was murder," the inspector asserted her grassly. "Now, if you will give us an account, purely as a matter of form, of your movements to-night, and Miss Collins——"

"An alibi?" she asked quickly, but her tones were more subdued as if realization of the catastrophe had curbed her exuberent spirit. "Good Lord! you don't suppose that we had anything to do with it, do you?"

"Leola, I'll do whatever explaining is necessary." Her husband's voice as cool now and steady with a note of authority. He turned again to the inspector. "I am a playwright. A sketch of mine was being tried out in Newark to-night, and my wife and I went over to see it, leaving here about eight o'clock. We went downtown in the subway, got off at Times Square, and picked up a friend, Evan Hughes, at the Knickerbocker.

"From there we three taxied down to the Pennsylvania Station, caught a train to Newark and went to the theatre. After my sketch I went behind and talked it over with the people in the cast, marking changes, cuts, and all that.

"This delayed us, but we got to New York again in time to hurry over to the New York Central and see Miss Collins off on the midnight train. Hughes was still with us and we went over to Marzan's and had a bite to eat. Then we left him and took the subway home."

He spoke slowly, didactically, and when he had finished there was a slight pause.

"You talked with Miss Collins at the station and she said nothing of any trouble here?" The inspector repeated his former question with added emphasis.

Mrs. Foxe opened her lips to speak, but her husband forestalled her.

"No. She could not have seen anything of it or she would have mentioned it, of course."

"She pushed her way out through the crowd which had collected in the entrance and on the sidewalk," replied the inspector.

"But that does not prove she even knew what it was all about," Foxe insisted coolly. "A crowd might have meant any minor disturbance, and she was late as it was. She had barely time to say good-bye to us and board her train."

"Where has she gone?"

"To Chicago."

"Is that her home? What was her object in taking this journey?"

"She was going to visit other friends there for a while, and then take up her profession again."

"What is her profession?" the inspector demanded sharply. "Mr. Foxe, I've got to have more explicit answers from you than this. I appreciate the fact that you are trying to prevent your friend's name from being dragged in to the affair, but it is important that I should know all about the young lady. If necessary, I'll bring her back from wherever she is, and make her testify."

"O-oh!" Mrs. Foxe burst out indignantly. "What has Ivy got to do with it?"

"That is what I mean to find out," the inspector returned. "You spoke of her profession——"

"An actress, you mean?"

Again Grafton Foxe anticipated his wife.

"Yes. She is an old friend of ours. Her home is in Seattle, but I do not know her address; she has been constantly on the road for several seasons. She came to us a few weeks ago, to rest.

"Until then we have only seen her at long intervals, and we can tell you very little about her or her friends and associates away from us. Professional people are usually too busy and have too many active interests to pry into each other's affairs."

"Who is Jack?" The inspector shot the irrelevant question at him as if to challenge his implied rebuke.

"Jack!" The echo burst sharply from Mrs. Foxe. Then she laughed. "A friend of ours? We know over so many Jacks. Which one do you mean?"

"A friend of Miss Collins."

"Well, she knows all our friends. There is Jack Zucker, and Jack Lambert——"

"Is either of them in love with her?"

"Lord, no! Jack Zucker is sixty-five, and Lammy has a perfectly good wife and four children!"

"Why do you ask, inspector?" interposed Grafton Foxe quietly.

"I want to know who her sweetheart is, who is called Jack."

"Which sweetheart do you mean? Ivy has dozens!"

"I have already told you that we know little about her friends or her private affairs," Foxe reiterated. "She is a popular girl and greatly admired; but we have heard of no engagement, no one for whom she seems to care more than the rest."

"Mr. Foxe, do you recognize this?" The inspector motioned to McCarty's pocket and the latter produced the paper-knife he had picked up from the floor in the next room.

"Why, yes." For the first time, a shade of perturbation crossed the man's hitherto impassive face. "Where did you get it?"

"Where should it have been?"

"In the library, of course, on the writing table, with the rest of the desk set—unless it had fallen on the floor. It's top-heavy, the handle is overweighted, and it is always getting knocked about. Look here, inspector, what are you driving at? The woman wasn't stabbed was she? Why are you trying to connect us with this affair?"

"I'm trying to get at the truth, and I'll do it if I have to subpœna everyone in the house!" retorted the inspector. "Did Miss Collins mention to you any woman friend or acquaintance who was in trouble, or in fear of an attack upon herself?"

"No, never."

"Had she any enemies against whom she might have been compelled to defend herself?"

"Certainly not! Oh, such imputations and horrible!" Mrs. Foxe glared. "Every one loves Ivy! She would not hurt a mouse."

"Was this departure of hers a sudden one?"

"Oh, no, she planned it some time ago, and last week she decided on the day. I went down with her when she bought her ticket and section."

"Did she receive any letters or messages which seemed to disturb her within the last few days?"

"No." Grafton Foxe once more took up the task of replying. "She has been happy and free from any possible anxiety."

"Did any flowers come for her this evening before you went out?"

"No."

"Any telephone messages?"

"Nothing of importance. Several people called up to say good-by, I believe. That was all."

"Very well." The inspector rose and drew out his memorandum pad. "Now, if you will give us the address of the friends to whom Miss Collins has gone in Chicago, I won't trouble you further at this time."

Mr. and Mrs. Foxe glanced swiftly at each other, but remained quite silent.

"Of course you realize I can trace her through the expressman who moved her trunk this—yesterday—morning, but I warn you that if you try to keep her whereabouts a secret it will tell very much against her. You claim that she has nothing to conceal, knows nothing of this affair. Why, then, should she hide like a criminal?"

"Well"—Mrs. Foxe moved uneasily in her chair—"she's going to No. 1261 Leavitt Street, Platt, her friend's name is. But they will be annoyed, and so will she, if she is dragged into notoriety of this kind."

"And you are wasting your time if you are trying to prove Ivy had a thing to do with it at all, or that the woman, whoever she was, fell from this apartment. You can see for yourself that no one else has been here. I don't know why you should have picked on us more than any other tenants in the building."

"There is just one question more." The inspector ignored the tirade but made a note of the address. "Has any one of your acquaintances a stepfather?"

"A stepfather? What a funny question!" There was unfeigned surprise in the woman's tone. "Nobody that I can recall. Certainly Ivy hasn't."

CHAPTER IV.

IDENTIFIED.

The further search of the house was more quickly concluded. A family named Jennings, with two small children, occupied the apartment above. They had heard the screams of Mrs. Doremus, and Mrs. Jennings had descended to the main floor to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. They were inexpressibly shocked but could not throw any light on the affair. The apartment beside them was closed.

The sixth floor corner was brilliantly lighted, and a little game was in progress, as Mr. Humphrey, the host, explained genially. Mrs. Humphrey and two of her women guests were laying out a late supper in the dining room, and in the room which corresponded with the air shaft window below a group of men in comfortable hot weather negligee were seated about a table on which cards, chips, and sundry tall glasses were scattered.

The sudden advent of the uniformed inspector caused a moment of strained anxiety which swiftly changed to impersonal consternation when he disclosed his errand. It was all too evident that they had heard nothing and were not aware of the tragedy until that moment.

Mr. Humphrey, in bibulous concern and solicitude, followed them down the hall and offered to have himself sworn in as a special deputy to assist in the search for the murderer, but his suggestion was declined.

Two crusty old bachelor brothers, named Barkus, lived next door.

Aroused from asthmatic slumber, they were not only ignorant of the crime, but wholly uninterested. Moreover, they did not thank the officious police for annoying them, and would most assuredly write to the morning Mercury about it.

Both apartments on the seventh floor were closed, and on the top the Fentons and Armitages were alike unable to supply any information.

They descended to the main floor in speculative silence. Dr. Elmsford, who had evidently been eagerly awaiting them, thrust his head out of the office door and inquired the result of their tour of inspection.

"You found Mrs. Doremus pretty much upset?" McCarty replied to the question with another, the first he had asked since the inspector assumed charge.

"Oh, all gone to pieces!" responded the doctor carelessly. "The maid had to fairly tear her gown off to loosen her stays. She was quite violent for a time—mere hysteria, you know—but I managed to quiet her."

"Well, Mac, it's a puzzler," the inspector confided as they walked off together through the silent street. "There's a bare chance that she jumped or fell from one of those windows, in spite of what she said when you picked her up, but it looks to me like murder."

"It looks that!" McCarty agreed soberly. "God rest her soul! From the clothes of her alone, you could tell she was a lady, and a well to do one, at that. She may turn out to be of some prominent family, for all you know. We're about due for another big sensational case that will crowd the war news off the front page and bring promotion and glory to the fellow that gets the murderer's hound. It's sorry I am the day I left the force!"

"Come on back again, Mac," suggested the inspector. "There's always room near the top for one like you. The chief has not forgotten one or two things you pulled off, and you could easily get recommissioned."

McCarty shook his head. "I'm too old," he said. "'Tis not that I am out of training or slower with the headwork, but the old routine would gall me after being my own master."

"Why man, you're not more than forty-five."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and you feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take one tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

WAS OFF WORK 4 or 5 MONTHS A YEAR WITH CONSTIPATION

If the truth were only known you would find that over one-half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They work on the bowels gently and naturally, and will cure the worst cases of constipation.

Mr. Sylvester Clements, Galt, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my heartiest thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I have been suffering from a bad stomach and constipation and would be off work 4 or 5 months a year. I was hardly able to be inside without getting a severe headache. I tried doctors' medicine and other remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Now I can work inside without any headaches or pain. I would not be without your remedy for anything. I write this so that anyone suffering the same as I did may use them and be cured."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Norwood News

The sorrowing ones have the deepest sympathy of many friends and acquaintances in their sudden, sad bereavement.

Dr. N. F. Sutton was in Peterborough last week assisting in an operation.

Miss Velma Burgess, Form III.
Miss Edith Elliott, Form II.
Miss Reta Brethen, Form I.
Miss Jean Nicol is visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Fred Reynolds, son of the late Hiram Reynolds, is in town visiting friends, after an absence of twenty years.

Mrs. Lyle Mills held her reception on Tuesday afternoon and evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. Howson.

On account of the snow blockade, Sergt. Lyle Mills was unable to reach Kingston, where he was to report on the thirteenth. Consequently he is home for a few days longer.

TOY SOLDIERS LOSE FAVOUR..

Change Observed in Christmas Displays in Berlin Stores.

According to a letter from Berlin to the Neue Zurcher Zeitung, quoted in the London newspapers, the shops during the Christmas holidays were as full as ever of dolls and toys in general, but toy soldiers and "war toys" have gone out of style in the German capital, and war conditions were represented, for instance, by dolls at work on farms in East Prussia. The candy stores were said to be doing a good trade, although a box of candy now costs as much as it would formerly have cost "to poison a whole girls' school for a week."

The dress restrictions are said to be obeped faithfully. The women of Berlin who fought conspicuously for relief in the fact that silks and silk can still be bought without clothes tickets.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Short friends often make long accounts.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Was It Spirit Or Illusion?

By F. A. MITCHEL

There is nothing so strong in nature as the chains that draw two persons together, and nothing better typifies it than two vines that originally could have been broken apart by a child's delicate fingers, each becoming after a lapse of, say, half a century as large as an athlete's biceps and much harder to bend.

The most remarkable case of this kind came under my observation. I will relate the story.

Donald Gregory, when he was too young to remember the fact, became a playmate of a little girl about his own age, Ella Marston. Their parents' places were side by side, and the children, neither having brother or sister, were together all day. Then they went to the same kindergarten and afterward to the same school. Their first and only separation was when Donald went to college. They plied for each other, and he neglected his studies to write her long letters, receiving equally long replies. When the first examinations came on, though a bright fellow, he failed. This ended his college career. He returned to his love and was never again separated from her till half a century later, when death claimed her.

They were married when the groom was nineteen, the bride eighteen. A son was born to them and a daughter. The former lived; the latter died in infancy. Till the son came to manhood he remained with his parents. Then he broke away to engage in business at another location.

Even in their youth they had few intimate associates and after coming to middle age dropped away from anything social. Those who knew them wondered at this, for they were both attractive and popular. Efforts to get them into social undertakings always failed.

Mrs. Gregory died at seventy. It was a year after this that I made the acquaintance of their son, now a man of nearly fifty. Strange it is that with his parents' happy married life before him he never married. When his mother died he persuaded his father to come to live with him. I had made George Gregory's acquaintance some time before this, and when his father appeared on the scene George and I, both bachelors, were intimate. I being at his house frequently.

When I was introduced to his father I saw a handsome old gentleman with a florid complexion and white hair and mustache. It struck me that if I were a woman I would fall in love with him no matter what was his age. George told me of the close relationship between his father and his late mother, and when the latter died he feared his father would lose his reason. But his father seemed to settle down to an acceptance of his fate and in a measure apparently ceased to grieve. His son noticed something about him which he communicated to me one. I discovered it for myself.

One day when going to George Gregory's house I saw his father putting his night key into the door. He opened it, stepped back as if waiting for some one to enter, then went in himself. The matter made but little impression on me till later I heard the old gentleman talking to himself in the library. At first, thinking that he was reading aloud, I permitted myself to overhear him. I soon became aware that he was talking to some one whom he called "my dear." The two evidently together, for he is wondering, and I narrated them to his son. George signed and said:

"So you have noticed it. I have known that of which you have seen evidence ever since father came to live with me. He ever has my mother with him—just how I don't know. Whether he sees her spirit, whether he fancies that it is present with him, whether he hears her replies when he talks to her—all this is a puzzle to me. I have often heard him talking to her as you heard him, and he says the same things to her that he was used to saying while she lived, only they are more endearing. He was always during her life as gallant to her as when they were young lovers, and when he fancies she is with him he will not sit while she stands, will not go through a doorway without waiting till she has gone before him. I have seen him come into the house after having been out of an evening and remove her wraps as tenderly as he ever did while she was with him in the flesh. He has a way of sometimes walking with her hand in hand, and since her death I have often seen him swinging his arm through the empty air as I often saw him do it when I was a boy."

"Do you observe?" I asked, "whether after apparently being with her he is more or less gloomy?"

"He is never what we call gloomy, though there is a certain sadness always apparent. It seems to me that Providence, in whose sight such lovers as mine his and my mother's must be acceptable, has made some physical change in his brain which causes an illusion to comfort him till the day shall come when he will be reunited to her."

"Did it ever occur to you," I asked, "that the strong affection between him and your mother has enabled him to see and commune with her spirit?"

"It has," was the reply, "but I don't know."

Since then the same door has closed behind Donald Gregory that closed behind his wife.

The Temporary Quarters of a Football Man

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Johnny Hackaway was an athlete and a football enthusiast. He played a match game on the last day in November, in which he carried his team through on his own shoulders and so excited their gratitude that they carried him on their own shoulders. So interested had he been in the coming game that he slept but little the night before from thinking of it and, after it was over went home late from talking of it.

It was midnight when Johnny passed a house which was being moved from one side to another and which occupied nearly the entire width of the street. So dead tired and sleepy was he that he was tempted to go on farther, but climb to the front door, effect an entrance will find a resting place for the night. But, having not much farther to go, he trudged on till he reached his home. Feeling for his door key, he remembered that he was in football togs with no pockets and consequently no key.

Knowing that there was no one inside within sound of the bell he went back to the house on blocks, but found it locked. He broke a pane of glass, put in his hand and opened the window. Inside he found matches and, scratching one, saw that the house was being moved with some of the furniture left in it. A lamp stood on a table, which he lighted, then went upstairs. On the top floor he found a bed that suited him and, throwing himself on it, was asleep in two minutes.

It was 7 o'clock on Saturday morning when Johnny sank to slumber. When he awoke he heard church bells ringing. He rubbed his eyes and looked out through a window. The surroundings were not what they were when he had gone to bed. There was a church opposite, and there had been only dwellings. Moreover, persons were going into the church with prayer books in their hands.

There was a sound of dainty footsteps on the stairs, and the door was opened by a pretty girl about Johnny's own age, who, seeing a man in her room, gave a cry and started to run out. Johnny stopped her.

"Will you kindly tell me what day this is?" he asked.

As soon as the girl could find her voice she told him it was Sunday. Noticing that he was in football costume, she concluded that he was not a burglar and became more composed.

"You see," he continued, "that I have slept about thirty hours. I entered this house when it was on Hinton street, and now it seems to be somewhere else. How did you get into it?"

"We came in last night after the house was put on the lot. We belong here."

"And slept in it all night?"

"Yes. We didn't used to use this room and didn't come up here."

Johnny explained how he had come to be in the house, and the girl, who was extremely preoccupied, came in and for a moment didn't notice Johnny. When she did, she gave a cry and made for the door

Hog Raising Is Very Profitable

THE raising of hogs has for long been one of the most profitable branches of the farming industry in Western Canada. At the present time the returns from hogs are greater than ever, while the growing shortage of meat all over the world ensures a safe and profitable market for many years to come. Nowhere are the returns safer and greater than in Western Canada, where the land is cheap, where feed crops can be raised in abundance, and where the climatic conditions are such as to reduce the risk of disease to a minimum. No class of stock brings returns more quickly to the farmer than hogs. The proficiency and the rapidity in which they grow to marketable size ensure a maximum production of meat in the shortest time. 1,500 pounds of dressed meat is a moderate estimate of what can be produced from one sow in one year.

The principal hog foods of Western Canada are alfalfa, oats, barley and wheat. Alfalfa, the king of hog fodders, is grown successfully throughout the west, especially in the irrigated areas of Southern Alberta. Oats and barley are exceptionally good crops, and produce splendid pork and bacon of excellent flavor, which always commands the top market price. For growing hogs there is no superior food than Western Canadian oats, which weigh up to 52 pounds to the bushel, and contain a large amount of meat and a comparatively small amount of hull. For fattening purposes, barley is chiefly relied upon, and there is no doubt that apart from the weight of the hull, barley grown in Western Canada is equal in food value to corn, and produces a superior quality of meat.

A typical example of the successful hog breeder of Western Canada is P. H. Wieneke, of Stony Mountain, Manitoba. Mr. Wieneke has been associated with hog raising practically since the day of his birth fifty-five years ago, in a log hut in Iowa, when hog raising was in its infancy in that part of the State. The farm on which the hut was located could then have been bought for $6 an acre, and, he says, "it is but one of hundreds of corn and livestock farms in Iowa that raise corn and sell hogs." In hog raising in Western Canada.

In the fall of 1908 he decided to come to Manitoba, because, to put it in his own words, "I thought hog raising would be more profitable there than in the more densely populated farming community of Iowa, which proved to be true."

Since locating in Manitoba he has been a regular attendant and exhibitor at the International Live Stock Show at Chicago, and has won the Grand Championship over all champions of other breeds in the breed sow classes for three years in succession. Every time he has been there he has met some of his old friends who would invariably ask him how he achieved his success in raising hogs without corn. To this question he would invariably reply, "You fellows feed too much corn. That is why you always have to be on the lookout for large sizes to keep up the size and stamina of your herds. Our feed is the kind that produces good sturdy pigs, with plenty of ham and a deep side of bacon, which you cannot get by feeding corn." In addition to winning the Grand Championship Mr. Wieneke has also won thirty-four champion honors at twenty-four of the best shows in Western Canada.

Farmers who breed the quick maturing and easy keeping kind get their surplus on the market at about five to seven months of age and they are invariably sold before cold weather. One of Mr. Wieneke's neighbors sold his 1916 pigs in October realizing about $20.00 each for them and he fed them but little grain in addition to good pasture and mangels. That was last year. This year the market is much better, and considerably higher prices have been realized.

Barley, shorts, bran and mangels, with skim milk, Mr. Wieneke considers an ideal ration for growing pigs, and barley and wheat-fed, or finely ground screenings, with a few mangels, make as good a finisher as can be had in any country. All these can be produced cheaply and abundantly in the Prairie Provinces. He always tries to have plenty of pasture, and finds that fall rye makes the best in the fall and early spring, but for the rest of the growing season alfalfa is the best. In 1916 he had a field of alfalfa which averaged four and a half tons to the acre, and which was cut three times. For those who have no alfalfa he recommends a mixture of barley and rye sown at different times during the summer. He also feeds chopped rye to pigs of all ages and grown hogs, varying as to the age of the animal, and finds it one of the best feeds to produce growth and muscle.

Hog raising has been making big money for many farmers in Western Canada this year. To the small farmer they are indispensable, affording him a steady income. Every week prices are rising, and a few instances of sales made by farmers in Alberta this year will be illuminating. In April last a number of farmers of Bon Accord, Alberta, clubbed together and shipped a car containing 35 hogs, weighing 17,400, on which they realized $2,563.61, after payment of freight and expenses. In June a farmer of Crossfield, Alberta, shipped a car of 34 hogs to Calgary. Their total weight was 20,000 and the net amount realized by this farmer was $3,000. In September a Gleichen farmer shipped two cars of hogs in successive weeks, on the first of which his net receipts were $3,500, and on the second $4,039. The price of which the hogs in the latter car were sold was $19 a hundred pounds. In the same month a car load made up by a party of twelve farmers of Leduc, Alberta, and sold at Edmonton, realized $2,133.61. Another car, from Sangudo, Alberta, made up by five farmers, netted the owners $4,530. The price of the hogs in these two cases was $17.50 a hundred pounds. A farmer of St. Albert, Alberta, sold 75 hogs at Edmonton in September, on which he realized $3,395.76, or an average of $42.53. The initial cost and the cost of raising them he estimated at $20, so that his product amounted to $22.53 per hog.

HOW BEEFLESS ETC.

Hotel, Ottawa, on the beefless days. Co-operation on the part of the public would do more than anything else towards effecting a real saving, according to the manager of this hotel. He claims that people are inconsiderate in their insistence on an extensive menu, frequently eating only half of their portions.

By exercising economy we have been able to effect a large saving in wheat flour. We are using oat and bran cakes which people seem to prefer to bread. As a matter of fact, bread is by no means a necessity in the hotel meal. I find that it is only eaten when people are waiting for the next course. They rarely eat it along with meat."

In spite of this hotelkeeper's testimony that brown bread is unpopular it is an undoubted fact that many people prefer well-made brown bread to white, and that it is as readily used in most hotels as white. Many people even prefer it to the other.

By carefully measuring quantities, by economy from the garbage can upwards, and by strict adherence to the regulations of the Food Controller, the Alexandra Hotel, Ottawa, has been successful in materially reducing its use of white flour, beef and bacon. One kind of pie has taken the place of two and white bread is disappearing from the table in favour of brown bread, oatmeal cakes, rolled oat buns, cornmeal flour and cracked wheat. Bread that used to be wasted is used in puddings and for frying cutlets and fish. Everything is scraped to the bone and the trimming of bread for toast has been stopped. The suggestion was made in this instance that toast might advantageously be cut out of the menu. It means the free use of white bread and butter, and is an entirely unnecessary item.

At the Windsor Hotel, veal, poultry and fish are taking the place of beef. The breakfast bacon is missed by many according to the steward but people are becoming used to the new order of things. Tea cubes are being substituted for loaf cubes or sugar, and there is a noteworthy saving already in this connection. Smaller side dishes are being served and corn cakes are served to save the demand for bread.

GRAIN MARKET

The transport situation for the movement of grains is worse than before as a result of recent storms, it being next to impossible to secure cars. Dealers in some cases have had orders in for cars since November that have not yet been secured. This condition of affairs makes it very difficult to do business, though there is any amount of inquiry for grains of all kinds. The cash grain situation all round, therefore, is very strong. There is still a very active demand for maling barley for Montreal firms, and orders have this week been accepted by local dealers for very large quantities. The demand for rye is also very active. Cash oats continue very strong, and yesterday are again quoted 1 cent higher.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 Northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2 cent tax, in store Fort William.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 83c to 84c nominal; No. 3 white, 82c to 83c, according to freights outside.

Barley—Malting, $1.43 to $1.45.

Peas—No. 2, $3.70 to $3.80, according to freights outside.

Buckwheat—$1.55 to $1.58.

Manitoba flour—First patents, in jute bags, $11.50; second patents, $11; strong bakers, $10.60.

Ontario flour—Winter, according to sample, in bags, prompt shipment, Montreal, $10.10; Toronto, $9.95; bulk seaboard, $9.80.

Mill feed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $10; bran, $35; feed flour, per bag, $3.25; middlings, $45 to $46.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $15.50 to $16.50; No. 2, $12 to $14; mixed, $13 to $15; straw, car lots, $8.50 to $9.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards — Receipts: 19 cars, with 457 cattle, 1 calf, 1,031 hogs, and 13 sheep and lambs.

So far as cattle and other live stock shipments are concerned, the railroads are still practically tied up as a result of the recent storms. Not that the railroads are still so badly blocked as earlier in the week, but that they are giving preference to milk, coal, and other necessities, over cattle shipments. Very few drovers and shippers, in fact, are attempting to send the cattle through this week, preferring not to take chances of their stock being held up for days in freezing cars. The consequence is that the local cattle yards are still almost empty, and business practically suspended, as buyers are not keen to bid up prices for the sake of the few cattle offering. WAR INDUSTRIES INCLUDED.

Liable to Have One Day Holiday a Week Forced on Them.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Conviction on the part of those in intimate touch with the coal situation throughout the east that "something drastic must be done and done quickly," has determined the fuel administrators to ask President Wilson for the weekly holiday proclamation. Clearing this port of shipping and of the accumulation of freight, which steamers have been unable to move because of the lack of bunker coal, is expected by authorities to be one of the results of the proposed suspension of business one day each week.

War industries will not be exempted in the shut-down, according to the fuel administrators plan. Only groceries, milk, delicatessen and other shops upon which the public is dependent for necessaries will be permitted to conduct business should the proposal receive the endorsement of Fuel Administrator Garfield and President Wilson.

The proposed holiday, it was estimated, would save 450,000 tons of coal in the territory in which it was observed, or 4,500,000 tons if observed for ten weeks. The territory would include all the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

To take out candle grease place a piece of blotting paper under the spot and another over it; press with a warm flatiron and the grease will be removed at once.

Serving a Summons

By RYLAND BELL

Ned and Frank Whittlesey, brothers, inherited an estate jointly. Ned, a young army officer, was a spendthrift and soon got the estate tangled up.

After a consultation with their attorney a plan was proposed by which Ned should assume certain liabilities which would force the creditors to get service on him in order to commence a suit. As soon as the papers were executed Ned went into hiding in order that such service could not be obtained, the object being to delay judgment and execution while efforts were being made to turn certain portions of the estate into money with which to save the rest.

It was not long before the creditors' attorneys got on to the game, and a number of detectives were employed to hunt up the young officer. He had hunted Indians so long and had learned from them so many stratagems that he was far better equipped for the work in hand than one would suppose. The trouble was that it was impossible for him to keep himself shut up. For one who had roamed on the western plains to remain within four walls was out of the question. However, since the saving of a fortune depended on taking great care to keep away from the bailiffs, he consented to abide in a house in the country secured for the purpose.

For a few days the young cavalryman busied himself in a library there was at hand; but, tiring of this, he asked for a horse that he might occasionally ride in the open. The attorneys sent him the swiftest animal they could find. Just before the first ride he took he sent a man out to scan the surroundings for process servers. None appearing, Ned mounted his horse and started. A man suddenly appeared in the road before him, throwing up his arms to stop the horse. But Ned gave the animal the spurs and had the man not jumped aside would have run him down. As it was, he escaped before the man could read a word of the summons. But Ned did not think it prudent to return till after nightfall.

A few days later while Ned was sitting at a desk before a window on the ground floor writing a letter a head bobbed up on the other side of the window, and a man began to read a summons. Ned kept a small revolver in his pocket for emergency use and, drawing it, began to put a shower of bullets in a circle about the fellow's head. The process server ducked and beat a retreat.

It occurred to Lieutenant Whittlesey that he had laid himself liable to arrest and had better change his location. He sent his orderly, whom he had with him, to his brother with a suggestion that he provide another hiding place for him and, leaving his present quarters, bivouacked that night in a wood. The next day his orderly returned to him with instructions as to a new abode, which was easily obtained, for the Whittlesey estate consisted of a number of houses, several of which were vacant. The one now provided for him was furnished. He was comfortable there, and all might have gone well could he have been satisfied to remain for a short time a prisoner. But he insisted on riding out every day, and the bailiffs got on to him.

One morning Whittlesey was standing by a window shaving when he heard a series of shrieks in the yard beneath him. Throwing up the window and looking out, he saw a young woman struggling with several men. The window was not over ten feet from the ground, and Whittlesey, in shirt and trousers, one half his face lathered, the other clean shaved, jumped down among the trio. He knocked one man down. The other pulled a summons from his coat pocket, but before he could begin to read it Whittlesey dropped him. The woman broke into a laugh, and Ned beat a hasty retreat.

The lawyers sent him word that if he could avoid the bailiffs three days longer they would have carried through a sale which would relieve the situation. Ned solemnly resolved that he would keep within doors and risk nothing.

On the third day he was sitting in a room on the second floor—he would not go any lower for fear of being surprised—when he heard something drop. Without an open window stood a tree, a limb of which grew to within a few feet of the opening. Turning his head, Ned saw that a woman had sprung from this limb into the room. Ned sat for a moment, so astonished that the intruder got ahead of him. Like a flash she passed to the door, locked it and threw the key out through the window.

Ned saw that the game was up. The girl—for such she was, and comely, too—began to read a summons to him and, being too gallant toward her sex to step her by violent means, he was compelled to listen.

However, he called for assistance and had the girl shut up in a room by herself till the next day, when his brother appeared and announced that the sale had been completed and the property was saved.

When Whittlesey returned to his command he narrated his experience to his brother officers, ending with these words:

"Talk about Indian stratagems! If I ever command the army I'll supply every regiment out here with one or more process servers."

FROCK FOR SCHOOL

Attractive Garment for Misses of Fourteen to Sixteen.

Requires Four Yards of Plaid Fabric and One and One-Half Yards of Plain-Color Material.

Notwithstanding that girls of fourteen to sixteen years far too often have a habit of affecting the clothes styles of their elders, ignoring completely the girlhood years, there are fortunate or wise mothers who are able to keep their schoolgirl daughters in youthful clothes. For these damsels style designers turn out every season some very attractive garments. They are wont to define them as "flapper" styles, and it is a matter of especial pride to many designers of clothes for the younger generation that there really need by no "awkward" age for the young female.

School Frock for Girl.

The little school frock here sketched is an ideal garment of its class. Either plaid serge, plaid taffeta or plaid velvet may be used for the dress, with guimpe of plain color, which may blend with the plaid or be in sharp contrast. Of course, a white guimpe may be worn if desired, but one in color would be much smarter. The neck may be finished with a frill of self-fabric, or with a plain facing, over which a dainty white collar is worn.

This dress may be arranged in two or three different ways, according to the figure of the girl for whom it is intended. If she is very thin and without hips to hold a skirt properly the skirt may be attached to the guimpe, with the plaid coatee a slip-over, or the guimpe may be separate and coatee and skirt attached, in which case the coatee buttons in the center back. If it is a slip-over, buttons may be eliminated.

The big generous pockets are important. They are, of course, extremely convenient, and give a smart style touch to the frock as well.

To make this dress for the average fourteen or fifteen year old girl four yards of plaid fabric 36 inches wide and one and a half yards of plain-color material will be required.

BLOODLESS WOMEN

It is an unfortunate fact that nine women out of ten are victims of bloodlessness in one form or another. The girl in her teens, the wife and mother, the matron of middle age, all known its miseries. To be anaemic means that you are breathless after any slight exertion — you feel depressed and worn out all day. You turn against food and cannot digest what little you do eat. At night you do not sleep well and in the morning you wake up tired and feeling unfit for the day's duties. Perhaps there are splitting headaches, or pains in the back or side. Often a feeling of dizziness and despondency. These are the signs of anaemic, or bloodlessness. There may be only one or two of these signs noticeable, but the more there are the greater are the ravages of the trouble. There is only one way to cure anaemia, and that is by increasing and enriching the blood supply, and there is only one medicine can do this speedily and effectively — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills purify the blood. It is in this way that thousands and thousands of weak, ailing girls and women have been restored to the joy of energy and good health through their use. Give these pills a fair trial and you will enjoy that health and strength that is the birthright of every woman.

You can get Dr Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicines, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To remove grease spots from clothing use four parts alcohol, one part ether and one part ammonia. Shake well, rub spots with a soft cloth and rinse thoroughly in clear water.

Outdoor Workers

are subject to exposure to all kinds of weather, and strenuous outdoor work brings the rheumatic aches. You can't afford to be laid up, so heed that first twinge of rheumatism. Use Sloan's Liniment. Clean and convenient, no need to rub, no stains, no clumsy plasters and your pain disappears.

Sprains, strains, neuralgic aches and stiff, sore muscles are all relieved by the application of Sloan's Liniment.

Generous size bottles at all druggists.

About Lightning.

Lightning is of three kinds—zigzag, and sharply defined at the edges; in sheets of light, illuminating a whole cloud, which seems to open and reveal the light within it; and in the form of fire-balls. The duration of the first two kinds scarcely continues the hundredth part of a second; but the globular lightning moves much more slowly, remaining visible for several seconds.

A NECESSITY IN THE HOUSE.

Most of the common ills of life arise from a torpid, sluggish condition of the Liver, Kidneys or Bowels, and because they act on each of these organs in a direct and specific way Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills overcome serious and painful diseases over which ordinary medicines have no control.

Mutiny Among German Submarine Crews

United States Hard Hit By Fuel Regulations

ANOTHER MUTINY IN THE GERMAN NAVY IS REPORTED

Submarine Crews at the German Naval Base at Kiel are Said to Have Killed Thirty-eight Officers—Successful Raid Carried Out by British Troops North of St. Quentin Last Night.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 17.—A mutiny among submarine crews at the German naval base of Kiel on January 2, is reported in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Geneva. Thirty-eight officers are said to have been killed.

There have been various reports in the last few months of mutinous outbreaks in the German navy and also in the Austrian navy. Confirmation was given by the German Government of mutiny among warship crews at Kiel in September. A number of officers were killed. The unwillingness of the men to do duty on submarines was given as one of the reasons for the outbreak. A mutiny at Ostend among German sailors who refused to go on board submarines was reported in October.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 17.—Nicholas Romanoff, the former Emperor and his family, have escaped from their prison near Tobolsk, it is reported in Petrograd. The report lacks confirmation.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, January 17.—Five French merchantmen of more than 1,600 tons, and one under that tonnage, were sunk by submarines or mines during the week ending January 12. Ships entering French ports during the week numbered 793, while those clearing were 761. Two vessels were attacked but escaped.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 17.—The reported escape of the former Czar and his family led the Peoples' Commissiaries to telegraph to the most remote parts of Siberia to-day asking information.

No details were available here as to the truth of the reports of escape, which were nevertheless circulated everywhere.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, January 17.—A successful raid by British troops last night in the region of St. Quentin, was reported to-day by Field Marshal Haig in the noon statement issued by the War Office.

The enemy's artillery is active in the Ypres sector, it was stated.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

STOCKHOLM, January 17.—Turkestan has proclaimed independence as an autonomous separate republic, allied with a "Russian confederation," according to word received here to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 17. — "We carried out a successful raid last night north of St. Quentin," the War Office reports. The enemy's artillery was active in the Ypres sector. Otherwise there is nothing to report.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, January 17.—An official statement issued here to-day giving the reply by the Central Powers to the Russian proposals at Brest-Litovsk, on Mondays says: The Russian proposals concerning the regions occupied by the Central Powers diverge to such a degree from the views of the Central Powers that in their present form they are inacceptable, but not impossible of compromise.

The Austro-Germans, the statement declared, do not intend incorporating the territories now occupied by them, into their respective countries.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, January 17.—Fuel Administrator Garfield was asked to-day by the Senate Coal Investigating Committee, to appear at 2:30 to-day for examination regarding his order.

WHY U.S. NAVY IS "DRY."

Mrs. Daniels Says One Young Officer's Temptation Was Cause.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—Prohibition came to the United States Navy because a young officer who had never tasted liquor before entering the navy became intoxicated and was court-martialled, according to Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Secretary of the Navy. She let the secret out at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, where she and her sister, Miss Ethel Bagley, helped receive at an informal entertainment to 250 officers and their wives of the navy and Marine Corps.

"A young officer was court-martialled and reduced several points for intoxication," explained Mrs. Daniels. "His uncle bitterly upbraided my husband about his confirmation of the court-martial, declaring that the officer had never touched liquor until he entered the navy, and that the navy was entirely responsible through its official life for his insobriety. My husband at once issued an order, forbidding all intoxicants to men of the navy.

"If this action will save one young man from becoming a drunkard it will be worth all the criticism that will come to me for this act," said my husband."

F. J. SQUIRE WORRIED OVER HIS DUTIES ON MILITARY TRIBUNAL

Had Been Ill for Months Previous, and The Tribunal Increased His Many Duties and Added an Anxiety His Friends Observed.

DECLINED PHYSICALLY

The County Council Chamber was crowded with Havelock citizens this morning when His Honour Judge Huycke commenced the trial of F. J. Squire, who is charged with perjury alleged to have been committed at the Fire Marshall's inquiry into the circumstances of the fires which destroyed Mr. Squire's property in the early morning of Saturday, 17th November.

Chief Thompson and Detective Newhall gave evidence of the defendant's coming to Peterborough and writing a signed statement reversing certain details he had given at the fire inquest.

"He said he was sorry he had made certain statements to the Deputy Fire Marshall, and wished to make a clean breast of the matter," Chief Thompson declared. "He said he hadn't slept since the inquiry. His evidence had followed closely what he had told me in Havelock on 17th November. He stated that there were about 30 tons of coal in the warehouse on the night of the fire, but I know at the time of the inquiry that this was untrue.

Detective Newhall swore that he had interviewed "about three parts of the residents of Havelock, but couldn't secure substantiation of the rumours that Mr. Squire had been threatened with personal injury because of his duties on the Havelock Military Tribunal."

A Nervous Wreck.

Mrs. Squire, wife of the defendant, was the first witness called by Mr. F. D. Kerr for the defence. Since their marriage thirteen years ago, her husband had taken only one week's holidays. He was Division Court Clerk, Justice of the Peace, and proprietor of a general store and produce business. He was naturally of a nervous, high-strung temperament, and had not been well for six months. He was completely unnerved by his duties on the Military Tribunal, and had expressed the feeling that he was sending to their death young men who didn't want to go and whose parents didn't want to let them go. He couldn't sleep nor eat, and his nervousness was increased by threats which he admitted having heard.

On Friday night, 16th November, he had attended a Victory Loan meeting and had returned home about 11.30 o'clock. He didn't leave his home until the fire bell awakened Mrs. Squire about 4 a.m. on Saturday. Her husband had slept that night.

Witness said she was sure her husband had not gone out before the fire alarm sounded. "No one can move in the house without my hearing them," she said.

"You must be of a nervous temperament, too," Crown Attorney Hatton remarked.

"Yes, I am," was the reply.

J. A. Sexsmith, M.P.

Mr. Sexsmith's evidence corroborated the previous testimony of Mr. Squire's extreme nervous tension and physical decline before and at the time of Tribunal sessions. "I made it my business to remain away from Mr. Squire's store during the sessions of the Tribunal, but I met Mr. Squire several times and was greatly impressed by the apparent effects of worry and anxiety."

"Do you know that his work on the Tribunal caused this additional excitement?" Mr. Hatton asked.

"It was the only thing he talked about," Mr. Sexsmith replied.

The trial is proceeding this afternoon.

DRAFTEES INOCULATED

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Members of E Company, 1st E. O. R., ran up against a new experience in army life this morning, when ninety of Peterborough's new soldiers received their first injection of anti-typhoid serum. The innoculation was quickly carried out by Majors Cameron and Eastwood and Capt. Greer. The result of the "arm jabbing" is an epidemic of stiff arms among the Peterborough garrison. The effect wears off in twenty-four hours, however, so that the men are accepting the treatment philosophically.

Th strength of the company was increased last night by the arrival of a draft from Kingston in charge of Capt. Gifford, and composed of two N.C.O.'s and forty-three men. The train was late, and the draft did not reach the Armouries until after one o'clock. Supper was, however, waiting for them, and was appreciated after the long train ride. A number of Peterborough men was among the new arrivals.

Lieut.-Col. Wilson, Assistant Director of Dental Services, paid a visit to the Armouries this morning.

Miss Dillingham's Visit To St. Paul's Church

Miss Dillingham's visit to our city will be postponed from Monday, Jan. 21st, to Monday, Jan. 28th. The request that we should do this came by telephone message from Toronto on Tuesday night, as Toronto wishes Miss Dillingham to both speak and sing at the mass meeting in Massey Hall at the Toronto and York County Fund, at which His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire will be present.

As Miss Dillingham comes under the auspices of the Duchess, and expects to go to Ottawa shortly, Mr. Allan, on behalf of St. Paul's Choir, agreed to relinquish the date for a week later.

Miss Dillingham is gaining golden opinions in Toronto. Yesterday, Miss Dillingham was the guest of honour at the Ladies' Art Association.

Remember the date, Monday, January 28th. Tickets, 25 cents.

Rev. Dr. Archbold Is Made Vicar Of Weston Parish

Rev. J. Hughes-Jones, M.A., Rector of Weston, has kindly furnished the following to the Examiner:

The Rev. J. Hughes-Jones, M.A., Rector of the Anglican church, Weston, has appointed, with the approval of the Bishop of Toronto, and consent of the vestry, the Rev. Dr. Archbold, to be priest in charge of the church and parish of St. John's, Weston, in of the Bishop of Toronto, and consent title of Vicar, the appointment to commence on the 15th day of March next. The Rev. Dr. is at present Rector of St. Paul's church, Ocean City, Maryland, U.S.A.

The many friends of Rev. Dr. Archbold in Peterborough, his old home, and where he was locum tenens at St. John's for a month last summer, will be glad to know that he is returning to Canada to be once more under the old flag.

He was rector of St. Paul's-by-the-Sea, Ocean City, Maryland, and though he was pleasantly placed and acceptably and successfully filled his place, he naturally preferred work and residence under British conditions. His friends who know him best, expect with confidence that his occupancy of his new incumbency will very amply justify the action of the Rector of Weston and of the Bishop.

DRASTIC STEP BY U.S. GOVERNMENT ROCKS AMERICA'S WORKING WORLD

$95,000,000.00 Will be Lost To Workers in New York State Alone in Unpaid Wages—All Industries East of the Mississippi Must For Five Days Beginning To-morrow and Also on Each Monday for Ten Weeks Close.

MANY VIOLENT PROTESTS

(By Robert J. Bender.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.— America's working world to-day rocked under the shock of one of the most drastic steps yet taken by the Government, the enforced closing of all but a few industries east of the Mississippi river for five days, starting to-morrow.

Thereafter every Monday will be held a holiday and all plants closed on that day for ten weeks.

While violent protests poured into the capital from all points, 75,000 people and thousands of industrial plants began the gigantic task of adjusting themselves to the new regulation. Millions of dollars in wages and output are affected, but thirty million tons of coal must and can be saved by this order, it is stated.

A BLAST OF PROTEST.

As the country awoke to the full significance of the tremendous step ordered by the Government after conferences between Fuel Administrator Garfield, President Wilson, Secretary of War Baker and the State Fuel Administrators, there was a violent blast of protest.

Congress, the White House and other departments fairly shook under the re-action from the order. That Garfield has exceeded his authority was charged both in the Senate and House circles, and demands were made for a revocation of the order.

Despite this, however, there was no indication that the order would be revoked by the President.

Distribution of coal to all establishments except public utilities and a few indispensible institutions was stopped this morning.

All factories east of the Mississippi river, even those working on war contracts, and excepting those manufacturing perishable food, must suspend operations entirely to-morrow and continue in idleness until next Tuesday night under the fuel administration order.

The next ten Mondays will be virtual holidays, when all industry and amusements must close. The order is compulsory and carries a fine of $5,000 or one year's imprisonment. It will be enforced by fuel administrators. Hopeless scarcity of fuel, combined with congestion of shipments, caused by recent storm tie-ups in the middle west, forced the fuel administration to take this sudden and far-reaching step.

Dr. Garfield's prohibition extends to fuel oil users and establishments using gasoline power as well as coal and coke. Water power, however, may be used at all times. Offices and stores will be allowed to keep fires sufficient to prevent freezing and attendant disturbance of fire risks, but no temperatures higher than 32 degrees Fahrenheit are allowed. Stores which can operate without use of coal for heating purposes, may remain open. Grocery stores are not affected by the order since they handle perishable goods.

NEWSPAPERS AFFECTED.

FUEL CONTROLLER HAS NOTHING FOR PUBLICATION

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, January 17.—That the coal situation is acute at the present time is apparent from the demeanor of Mr. C. H. McGrath, Dominion Fuel Controller, who arrived in the city to-day for consultation with the provincial and city fuel controllers.

"I can say nothing on the situation at this time," he said to a reporter at the City Hall, where he was in consultation with Mr. H. A. Harrington, Assistant Fuel Controller for the city. In view of the despatches stating that the manufacturers in the United States West of the Mississippi have been ordered to close down for five days, Mr. McGrath was asked if any such action was contemplated in Canada.

"If I say that no such action is probable here the people in the United States will want to know why that is, and if I say that the factories in Canada must close down for a week, they will wonder why this has not already been done," he replied.

GOVERNMENT MAY TAKE OVER ALL THREE RAILWAYS

Much Speculation in Ottawa as to What Action Will be Taken in Connection With the Railways System Problem.

ALL ARE IN THE DARK

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 17.— Railway heads and officials have been hovering around the capital for the past few days. Their presence here has given rise to rumours that important action is to be taken by the government in connection with the railway system, and that the railway men are here to advise and consult on the question. As a matter of fact, railway men appear to be as much in the dark as to the government's intention as the public. They are here to watch and find out, and they won't find out until the committee of the Cabinet, which is now considering the whole situation, has given the question still further consideration. The government will hear protests of the Manitoba government and other Western bodies against the recent freight rates increase on January 24, and at that meeting important views will be expressed on the whole subject. The West generally is opposed to the increase on the grounds that while it will assist the two railways, said to be in need of assistance, it will put twenty millions in the coffers of the C. P. R., whose coffers are already bulging with earnings.

If the new rates do not go into force then an alternative will have to be adopted. The only alternative would appear to be for the government to assume the responsibility for deficits on the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk.

The impression appears to be growing that the government will take a bold course and follow the example of Great Britain and the United States by taking over all three railways under one management.

It has been stated by the Minister of Railways that new rails to take the place of those which have depreciated on the various systems, must be secured, it would appear, however, that in the present uncertain circumstances regarding the future status of roads, their management will hesitate to undertake many improvements or much extra maintenance of way expense.

ALLOW A CERTAIN LENIENCY.

Defaulters of Victory Bond Payment "Liable" to Have Amounts Already Paid Confiscated.

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—While default in the payment of instalment on Victory Loan bonds on the days specified for payment renders the purchaser of the bonds in question "liable" to forfeiture of payments already made and to cancellation of the bonds, it is pointed out by the Finance Department here that the clause is seldom taken advantage of, and that a certain leniency is usually allowed.

WILL BUY COAL CONSIGNED TO THE SUSPENDED PLANTS

It Will Cost the United States Government $25,000,000.00 to do This And Then Redistribute the Coal to Food Plants.

NEWSPAPERS RESTRICTED

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. — It developed to-day that under the fuel administration's plan, the government will buy all coal consigned to suspended industries. These transactions will be conducted though the Treasury Department and it is estimated will cost the government about $25,000,000. State fuel administrators will redistribute coal to food plants and other industries permitted to run.

Daily newspapers may burn fuel as usual, excepting on Mondays, from Jan. 21 to March 25 inclusive. On such days they may burn fuel to such an extent as necessary to issue such editions as they customarily issue on important national legal holidays.

You can see it at the Royal to-night, for only 10c. and 15c., the best show we have had for a long time. Money refunded if not satisfied.

MARRIED AND THEN JOINED THE ARMY

Detective Meagher was best man at a marriage this afternoon that was expedited in the police court this morning. Michael Grant and a "lady friend" picked on Peterborough for a visit a short time ago and were boarding with a married couple here, in which one room was the full extent of the quarters for the entire party. The police tossed their trail after receiving word from the girl's mother in Toronto, and both were taken into custody. Grant was held as a defaulter under the Military Service Act and a house of correction loomed as the girl's destiny. The authorities thought of the associations the girl might form at the Mercer and when the young couple expressed a desire to marry, the way was made straight for them. After becoming a bridegroom Grant was to be handed over to the Military authorities with a chance to make good.

WASTE OF COAL.

In passing along the streets in places sees things that excite us to the extreme stringency in the coal situation. This morning on Gilmour street, a garbage collector was seen emptying ashes left on the street for removal, and some, if not most of the receptacles, seems to contain large quantities of unburned or half-burned coal mixed with ashes, constituting apparently about one-half of the contents. That this condition is not confined to one street was shown by an assertion of the garbage collector. His reply to a remark that he was carting away considerable coal was—"If I had all the good coal sifted from the ashes I collect, I would be able to start a coal yard myself."

At any time, but especially at this time, such wasteful treatment of precious coal is almost criminal. A few pounds, more or less, of good coal set out for removal by a householder, may not seem to him to amount to much, but according to the evidence of the garbage collector, this thing going on all over the city, must account for the waste of tons every time a collection is made.

When coal is so hard to get, when homes and churches have to close to save coal, one would think that every piece of black diamonds would be treated as gold, which can be done by sifting; sifting means dust, and a little trouble; but it is not so much the trouble as to get coal now—and nothing like the trouble that would result from the inability to get coal at all. In the matter of coal conservation, householders must come to realize that economy in the use of coal is an individual matter, an individual duty, and that it is only the aggregate of individuals collectively practising economy and saving coal by sifting, that will help relieve the situation. It is probable that on every residential street enough coal is set out to be taken to the dump to entirely supply a family on the street.

The national sin of Canada is waste; and it is safe to say that in many cases almost as much of food, fuel and other things is wasted as is effectively used. This may not apply strictly to coal, but from what is seen there is the most criminal waste of coal—thrown out with the ashes, that might be reclaimed.

There are, however, beginning to see, and this morning a citizen who occupies a medium sized residence, said he was going to get an ash sifter. He was sure he could save every winter a ton and a half of coal by carefully sifting his ashes and furnace ashes and salvaging the unburned and partially burned coal.

Secretary Lansing paid a high tribute to Canadian war achievement when he said the highest honour the United States could ask, was to have its name written, not above, but beside with that of Canada."

WORK FOR EVERYBODY.

In presence of the keen weather of winter and the extraordinary demands arising out of the Halifax disaster upon Red Cross stores, make urgent demands upon the women engaged in the work of furnishing Red Cross supplies, though how some of them can do more than they are doing does not seem possible. There is the great need for socks for the soldiers, and other supplies; and there is no rest for the women at home, any more than there is rest for the soldiers who are always at "attention" in the firing zone.

The urgency demands the greatest devotion and industry of the women who are originally associated with Red Cross work; but there are many women, who have not heretofore been actively associated with the work who are called upon by the voice of duty, the demands of service to volunteer for the work. These women are needed to help; they need not forego social pleasures, though how social distractions, social functions, etc., can consist with the serious state of things in which we find ourselves, is a little hard to understand. When we remember the sufferings of the soldiers from wounds, weather and sickness, we should all bend ourselves to the noble work of giving the urgently needed relief represented by adequate Red Cross supplies.

The meetings for work in Peterborough, on Wednesday afternoons in the Public Library, occupy only one afternoon a week, and leave the remainder of the week for—knitting. We don't know how our soldiers, sick, wounded and fighting, would have suffered but for the socks, and hospital and other comforts supplied by the noble women of Canada. They have shown themselves tireless, and will continue tireless. They well illustrate in Red Cross and other work the truth of the saying in regard to other duties—"woman's work is never done." They are to be given the credit for all they have done; but they deserve more; they deserve it, not only for the splendid work they have done and are going to continue doing; but they deserve a voice in political affairs, if only to show men an example of service, sacrifice, effective organisation, tireless toil for patriotic purposes, unmixed with motives of self-seeking, preferment to office, or any other reward, than the sense of helping win the war, and the consciousness of duty discharged to the extent of their ability.

Now, new and larger demands need more recruits to the service—more women added to the ranks of those who have done and are doing much work to meet whose need is beyond the capacity of their busy hands.

But others than women can help. There are many men who can't fight, and can't knit or sew, who can help in a most important way. "Canadian Red Cross Society" for January tells of one branch of Red Cross work that might be added to by voluntary effort of our men. The Canadian soldiers in convalescent homes, base depots, and in the trenches are, as one soldier writes, "hungering for home papers." To meet this hunger only needs a little thoughtfulness, and taking a very little trouble. We get our daily papers, read them, and cast them aside; they are not worth saving for "waste paper," whose price has gone so low that these papers are not worth collecting. To get the addresses of some soldiers, and send home papers regularly, would mean little time or effort, and would be greatly helping to give the Canadian soldier his best asset, good morale.

This weary war is dragging on and the demands upon our patriotism and our energies are continuing and growing greater. Everybody is interested in the victory we are fighting for, and everybody can help in some way—if we would only think and realise.

"Actual want of any commodity," says "Conservation," "provides the most direct appeal for its conservation." Think of this, and sift your coal ashes.

BE EASY ON THE MOTHER LAND.

At the meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association at Perth some interesting facts came out about Canadian cheese, and its purchase by Great Britain. Mr. Ruddick, a member of the Commission that handled Canada's cheese export last year, said that this country was "many million dollars ahead" as the result of the Commission handling the business for the British government.

The cheese was sold at 21 3-4 cents f.o.b. Montreal, a figure which was considered fair if not liberal, compared with the price of 19 cents f.o.b. to New Zealand. The Canadian government financed the business to the extent of 40 millions, and the British government furnished tonnage, and sale convoy to the ships carrying our cheese.

Yet at the meeting while some farmers thought the price was reasonable, others claimed that there should be an advance in price for next year, owing to the sharp advance in cost of all stock feeding materials.

Whether this contention justifies an advance in price, is it not reasonable to ask that cheese producers be reasonable, and, to some extent, be willing to share the sacrifices which we are all making in some form? It is to be remembered that the cheese we are supplying is a part of the contribution Canada is making, and Britain is paying for, as a means of winning the war in our interest—farmers as well as everybody else. The cheese producer is given a top price, an assured market, and takes no risk in the transaction—his money is as sure as the bank, whether or not the cheese reaches Great Britain.

The government shows much consideration of the farmer's interests, as the most important interest in the country. Farmers' sons are freely exempted from military service, and it seems reasonable that a little patriotism and interest in the cause of the allies should colour the demands that some cheese producers are making upon the British government for an increase in the price of cheese

With All The Waste Of War Great Britain Wastes Nothing

LONDON, Dec. 15—(by mail)—The amount of material which was wasted and is now being saved by the Army is almost beyond belief. In 1914, good manufactured materials were thrown away with abandon. In 1917 they are saving the grease off the Army dirt water.

This saving spirit is not localised to any particular unit, but is general and one unit would serve as well as another to illustrate it.

On a recent visit to Number 1 Canadian General Hospital, France, commanded by Colonel R. M. Simpson, of Winnipeg, the writer saw a very good example of the system.

The patients in the hospital are exceedingly well fed at a cost of one shilling and two pence per day. The dinner diet consists of soup, fish, chicken, hot meat, and dessert. It was the sort of a meal that a man would require after a strenuous day's work.

All the bones, gristle, and other unused portions of meat were put into pots and the grease boiled out. All used water is put through a series of seepage tanks, and the grease secured. Used cotton batten, bandages, etc., are sent to be sterilised, and then go on to be used in making gun cotton. Tins are collected, all refuse is incinerated, and all the metallic slag left in the incinerator is sent back for munitions. In this way millions of dollars' worth of material are salvaged for further use in the war.

Clothes and Men Sterilised.

When men come into hospital from the Front, all their clothing is sent straight to a sorting room. There, such things as leather buttons or anything else that will be destroyed by heat is removed. The clothes are then put through a steriliser, the good clothes are re-issued, and the rest sent to Paris for repairs.

Incidentally, the men themselves are sterilised. They are washed with a solution of acetic acid which kills the nits, with coal oil which extirpates the lice, and if anything still lives, a special report is submitted. When all signs of life are gone, the men are given a bath. One hundred and forty men have been put through this process in an hour.

With reference to the commissariat of all hospitals in France, it would be unfair if one failed to mention the splendid contribution which the National Egg Gift Collection Society, 154 Fleet Street, gives. This society sends fourteen hundred eggs a week as a gift to patients in this hospital.

Major Orr has brought distinction to the hospital. One of the most noticeable and important characteristics of this hospital is the splendid spirit of the staff. Neither Colonel Simpson nor any of his staff have ever put in a request for comforts for the officers. But they have put up some hard fights for improved conditions for the patients.

Col. Simpson's stand is that the doctors are in good health and have an equal chance, while the patients are in a weakened condition as a result of fighting for their King and country.

And even on this ground he does not always get what he deems necessary. And patients have been compelled to live in cold tents (in spite of all he could do) long after the time when able-bodied men were ordered into billets in England.

The Canadian Red Cross is doing excellent work at Number 1 as elsewhere. The recreation hut, under two charming girls, Miss Amorel Thomas, of Montreal, and Miss Alice Bell, of Victoria, is a very attractive depot for convalescing lads.

Great Britain is in this war for the good of us all, and all should help by contribution of service, or some sacrifice for the cause.

Loyalty and patriotism counsel the largest consideration for Britain in her time of stress. Britain has enrolled seven million fighting men, a number almost equal to the entire population of Canada; and, in equipping and feeding them and financing their fighting, has spent money like water. In consequence, Great Britain's national debt in September last amounted to the inconceivable total of 25,000 million dollars, equal to $422.60 per head of the population; and it is growing at the rate of 5,000 million dollars every six months. When the Mother country is spending so much money, and paying a good price, cash down, for Canadian cheese, one would think that we might strain a point and accept a little more moderate profit, instead of demanding an increase in price. Of course, a slight advance in Canadian cheese would not break Great Britain; but when she is bearing such tremendous financial burdens every little counts, and bears its relation to her success in winning victory in the interests of Canada and the world.

Germany is opposed to woman suffrage. Naturally the Hun would, in the matter of women, prefer the boot or any other form of brutality, to the ballot or any other benefit for women.

THE WISH IS FATHER TO THE THOUGHT.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been consigned to political oblivion on many occasions by the Conservative press. Whether the Liberal chieftain sees fit to hold a conference with his supporters, the certainty is expressed that he has at last cut the painter. The wish is father to the thought, on each of these occasions, and nothing more strongly indicates the unsapped strength of Laurier than the eagerness with which his newspaper enemies seize upon his every movement as an indication of retirement. They hope that he will retire, for they fear him. They may believe that the power of suggestion will eventually work their will, but Sir Wilfrid will continue to disappoint them, because, to judge from his appearance and from his virility in the last campaign, the grand old man was never more fit to lead, never more needed as leader, than at the present time. The fogs and gases of the recent campaign must blow away before the clear ventilation of public affairs at the next session. The public will wish to see where the country stands as to war policy and domestic welfare, and it will be Sir Wilfrid Laurier who will reveal this to them. He is just as strong, just as commanding a figure in Canada's public life to-day as any other man. His very merit of honour and the consistency of his lofty statesmanship will stand the test; his health will stand the strain and he will be found at the helm for many years to come, and with many of his old lieutenants, again glad to serve beneath his banner.

"Are all your family observing the meatless day now?" "Yes, all except Carlo. We can't make him realize that he mustn't bite strangers on Tuesdays."—Baltimore American.

BRITISH TOMMY NOW HATES HUN BECAUSE HE FIGHTS DIRTILY

Continuous Hitting Under Belt by Germans Has Turned Early Indifference of Britisher to Hate—Will Last Long After War.

WHEN THE CAT EXPLODED

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD.—"E's a stiff fighting man, Fritzie is," says the Briton. "I give 'im that. But 'e don't fight clean. 'E's dirty, Fritzie is."

Perhaps "hate" is not precisely the word to use. Perhaps it is more a slow and enduring distaste that fills the British soldier to the very soul. When a German hates he likes to hire a hall and lite his whiskers and throw foam in public. A Frenchman is dramatic. An American, whether from Canada or the States, is more volatile in temperament than is his British neighbour. He talks more of his emotions and shows more of them. Mr. Atkins seems rather embarrassed by his feelings. He sometimes wears an apologetic smile when he explains that he dislikes Boches. His attitude seems to be that he is engaged in a very unpleasant job, and there is no use making a fuss about it.

The good-fellow attitude of the men on both sides was constant during the first two years of the war. On the first Christmas British and German soldiers met quite openly between the trenches and exchanged the small gifts of bottles of beer and chocolate and sausages that were in their power to give. The attitude of the men on both sides seemed to be that, inasmuch as they were not responsible for the war, there was no reason why they should hate each other.

British Soldiers Now Hate.

That spirit, I believe, has completely passed away on the British side, because the British soldier has finally come to a realisation of the true nature of his antoganist. Officers have told me that they tried to "pump up hate" in their men without success. The men listened to them quite respectfully, but they were not moved. They fought most excellently, but they lacked a personal venom in their thrusts. They killed as a matter of patriotic duty. It took almost four years, packed with testimony, before the somewhat slow-moving British mind brought in a verdict. The soldiers were not stirred by the speech of the prosecuting attorney. Tny examined the evidence. Few of them, I think, believed the stories of atrocities at the outset of the war. That sort of thing is foreign to the Anglo-Saxon mind, and therefore quite naturally to be disbelieved. Conviction began to come when the Germans developed their pleasant habit of surrendering in bodies and then picking up their arms and firing upon their captors when they could do so with safety. The practice has recoiled upon its inventors. The use of gases was forgiven by the soldiers as being merely a particularly unpleasant war, but the abuse of British prisoners has never been forgiven.

More recently the tricks to which the Germans are resorting is hardening is growing hatred. It is not because the tricks are murderous—or at least it is in this way that I read the soldier reasoning—but because they are essentially contemptible. The cat trick at Bapaume is one of this sort. From the German point of view the cat trick was highly successful, because it killed several British soldiers. A judicially minded onlooker would hold the cat trick one of the most thorough failures of the Germans, because in the long run the score is heavily against them, and it is not through mounting.

When the Cat Exploded.

Bapaume was thoroughly destroyed by the Germans before they left it. House after house on street after street was mined or fired. Here and there half-destroyed houses were left standing, and it was from one of these houses that the first British soldiers to enter heard the mewing of a cat in pain. They entered the house to find a cat tightly wired to a plank. Its steel bonds cut into its flesh so that its wailing was unbearable. Of course, they hurried to release the cat. In so doing they set off a concealed mine.

There were other tricks at Bapaume. A helmet was picked up and that discharged a mine. An overcoat hanging on a wall and a crucifix on a dresser and a broken machine gun were all wired to mines so that when they were moved the mines detonated. The fine old church had been bombed by the departing Germans, and on one of the blank walls that was left standing was written these words:

"With the enemy's love."

Things of that sort are abominated now, so they have lost their danger. When the British take a new town they see to it that the hidden mines are harmless. But the German tricks are every day adding to the detestation in which the German people is held by the British soldier. He refuses to accept the dictum that he is not fighting the German nation. It has taken him some time to work it out, but a process of logic has convinced him that he is fighting the nation which gives birth to such soldiers. For the time at least he hates with a whole-hearted and very sturdy hatred.

There are those who say that the Briton will not hate when the war is over. I take leave to disbelieve that. It seems to me that just as the ability to hate was a plant of very slow growth, rooted in a very reluctant conviction, that it will be equally hard to extirpate when peace comes again. I cannot believe that the soldiers I know will forget this overnight. They are very free to give credit to the German as a first-class fighting man, but they add a condemnatory clause.

"E won't do. 'E's dirty. 'E don't fight clean."

That, plus the knowledge all hold of the treatment of prisoners by the Germans, explains why the Germans take so few British prisoners nowadays. The Briton usually fights to the last in a fierce determination to take as many Boches with him as possible. The Germans on the other hand good fighting men as they are, surrender complacently when they are nipped. They are sure of fair treatment as prisoners. So sure are they of it that the German Government has been forced to organize a propaganda at home, in which the statements made in letters by German prisoners are denied.

NEURALGIA CURED IN A FEW DAYS

And Has Never Returned—Nervous System Was Built Up—Now Sleeps and Eats Well—Husband Also Benefitted by This Treatment.

Mrs. W. T. Abbott, 536 Patterson street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run down condition, and I was troubled with nervousness and sleeplessness. For some time, also, I had been bothered with neuralgia, and although I tried many remedies, it was without success. Upon the advice of a friend, I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found in five or six days that my neuralgia was cured, and I have not been troubled in this way since. I also find that now I can eat and sleep well, and I give full credit of this great benefit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I might also mention that I lost considerable in weight, but after using the Nerve Food, I gained back the flesh I had lost. My husband has also found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food of great benefit to him, and uses it when he feels run down from overwork. I have recommended the use of this great medicine to many of my friends and acquaintances."

We know that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food poossesses exceptional potency as a means of building up the strength of the human body. We have seen it tested in so many thousands of cases that there is no question of the effectiveness of this treatment.

But how are we going to prove this to you unless you try it. You are the one to be benefitted and so it remains for you to make the test. Try it when you feel tired out and discouraged. Try it for sleeplessness and irritability. Try it for nervous headaches and indigestion.

It is not a mere relief for these ailments, and for this reason you must persist in its use until the last vigor is restored to the nerves.

But of one thing you can be certain—that each dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food contributes something towards building up the exhausted nervous system. 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75; at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Refuse all substitutes, as they only disappoint.

IF YOU want to BUILD UP YOUR BUSINESS, you must USE THE PAPER that goes into the Home.

$ DOLLAR $ DAY $

THE EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

The day when the Dollar Bill talks louder in Peterborough Stores than any other day in the year. This Year it will be held on—

THURSDAY, JAN. 24

About 30 of the principal stores in the City are participating, and are busy preparing the best list of bargains they can possibly find in their splendid stocks, and shoppers will certainly appreciate the extremely varied offerings such a large array of stores will assure. As usual the big list of Cash Bonuses is a liberal one, as the Merchants are giving away

$175 CASH PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every Dollar Purchase on that day, an Estimating Blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and dropped into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10.15 p.m. on DOLLAR DAY.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the 1st Prize of $25; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15, and so on.

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, 1st prize	$25.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd prize	20.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd prize	15.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th prize	10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th prize	10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 6th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 7th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 8th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 9th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 10th prize	$5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 11th prize	5.00
Next 5 nearest correct estimates, 5 prizes, each	3.00
Next 10 nearest correct estimates, 10 prizes, each	2.00
Next 30 nearest correct estimates, 30 prizes, each	1.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 10,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 24th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

You can recognize all the Stores where DOLLAR SPECIALS are being given by the RED LETTERED PENNANTS IN THEIR WINDOWS.

The following Merchants will display the Pennants, and issue Estimating Blanks with every Dollar Purchase in their Stores on DOLLAR DAY:

The third anniversary of the completion of All Saints' Church will be observed by special services next Sunday. The special preacher for the occasion will be the Venerable Archdeacon Perry, M.A., of St. Catharines.

Coal Supply For Lindsay

LINDSAY, Jan. 17.—The coal situation of Lindsay, for the time being, will be solved. His Worship Mayor Kylie having received word from Ottawa to make use of fifty tons of coal at present used in the Armouries.

Little information is yet to be had concerning the offer of the Government, but it is expected that Lindsay citizens will be given the coal at cost price. This will materially help tide citizens over the winter, as only the needy cases will be relieved. In all probability His Worship will appoint some person as controller, whose duty it will be to investigate all cases before supplying further coal.

Quick, Painless Way To Remove Hairy Growth.

(Helps to Beauty.)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hair. With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the genuine delatone in an original package.

The Use of Wheat Has Been Curtailed By Cereal Food Manufacturers

Several Firms Have Decided to Give up the Sale of Package Goods During the War—Corn is Being Substituted for Wheat.

OTTAWA, Jan., 17.—Since the new regulations came into force governing the sale of cereal packages there has been a decided curtailment in the use of wheat by cereal breakfast food manufacturers, and corn and other substitutes are taking its place among the popular breakfast foods.

The big manufacturers, the names of whose cereal products are household words in Canada, are showing their willingness to co-operate in the wheat saving asked for by the Food Controller, by making conciliatory overtures which entail radical changes in their trade. As a result of the regulation requiring specific data from the manufacturer as to the cost of the container and advertising, definite information has been secured as to how much the public have been paying for the product and how much for wrappings. From now on they will be getting full value for their money as the most inexpensive of containers only are to be allowed.

A number of licenses have already been granted. Several firms have decided to give up the sale of package goods during the period of the war, and have made arrangements to sell their products in bulk. The majority of the licenses issued to date have been been for breakfast foods and cereal preparations to be sold in packages ranging from three to seven or eight pounds. This is prefered by the Food Controller to small packages of a few ounces and, to meet his wishes, the manufacturers are inclined to push the sale of cereals in cheap packages and large quantities rather than in cartons.

No licenses are being granted for the sale of flour in small packages—either grain, whole wheat or ordinary flour. A similar policy is being pursued in the United States and Mr. Hoover is pointing out to the millers that while it may seem hardship to them in the meantime, yet it is a war-time necessity and they are doing it for the sake of the Allies and the men overseas.

In some cases manufacturers are using a label on their product indicating that they are assisting the Food Controller by substituting other grains for wheat. In one case a manufacturer proposes to increase the size of the package he produces from 10 to 12 ounces without increasing the selling price. He also proposes to substitute 33 1-3 per cent. corn for wheat. Another offers to substitute corn for the wheat which now constitutes 95 per cent. of the composition of the cereal which he manufatures.

In the ase of one firm it was found that there had been an excessive "spread" between the cost of the raw material and the selling price. In conformity with the regulations the manufacturer increased the weight of the packages by a quarter of a pound without increasing the selling price. It was further agreed to substitute 20 per cent corn for wheat.

The gain to the consumer is illustrated in these instances, while the biggest factor of all is the saving of the wheat needed for overseas.

SWEEPING PLANS FOR CONSERVING FOOD IN STATES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Sweeping powers to compel food conservation in every American kitchen are given the President in a measure introduced by Senator Pomerene to-day.

The Bill is aimed primarily at proprietors of hotels, restaurants and public eating houses, but it also is broad enough to include domestic consumers.

Specifically the measure provides that the President may limit or discontinue entirely the use, also manufacture or distribution of foods "to the extent he deems necessary from time to time.

That persons conducting public eating-places, manufacturers, carriers producers, distributors, or other persons who fail to obey the President's orders shall be fined up to $1,000 and imprisoned up to six years.

The the filing is a part of the records of the Department of State of any regulation issued pursuant to this Act shall be deemed necessary notice to the public.

MORE POWERS FOR HOOVER.

Administration Bills empowering Herbert Hoover to enforce wheatless and meatless days and stipulate war bread, if necessary, for the country, have been completed. As drawn by Senator Pomerene and Rep. Lever at the suggestion and with the help of the Food Administrator, Mr. Hoover, the measure provides:

That the Act shall cease to be in effect when the war between the United States and Germany is terminated. Citing that such powers as carried in this bill are necessary "for the national security and the common defense" the measure gives in effect complete control of food to the President. As existing circumstances warrant, the President is empowered to further limit, or even discontinue entirely the production and consumption of all varieties of food and food stuffs.

Authority to compel observation of meatless and wheatless days; license hotels and restaurants; control milling concerns to increase the flour output; power to enforce substitution of greater quantities of rye flour and corn meal for wheat flour; authority to compel use of locally manufactured products with a view to eliminating cross hauling, and other measures necessary for greater food regulation.

Britain, France and the United States are leagued to prevent sailing ships from crossing the war zone, and coincidentally thus divert them automatically to crossing Australian and South American trade. If voluntary arrangements now in effect fail to operate, then, it was stated officially to-day, this Government will take over the sailing vessels.

This plan, plus the creation of a 250,000 man power shipbuilding reserve, announced by Mr. Hurley, chairman of the Shipping Board, constitute the latest steps toward increasing America's shiping resources.

Sailing vessels, because of low speed, are easy prey for the submarine. While many skippers are anxious to gamble on getting through, there is too much chance of losing not only the ship, but valuable cargo, so the nations are pledged to keep these craft out of the war zone.

SAYS A CORN ACTS LIKE ELECTRIC BELL

Press an electric button and you form a contact with a live wire which rings the bell. When your shoes press against your corn it pushes its sharp roots down upon a sensitive nerve and you get a shock of pain.

Instead of trimming your corns, which merely makes them grow, just step into any drug store and ask for a quarter of an ounce of Freezone. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. A few drops applied directly upon a tender aching corn stops the soreness instantly, and soon the corn shrivels up so it lifts right out, root and all, without pain. This drug is harmless and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin.

IRSING SISTER MOWRY SPEAKS TO RED CROSS

er 200 keenly interested workers d Nursing Sister Bertha Mowry k yesterday at the Red Cross a on conditions at the front as herself found them. The speaker wore her military uniform, painta very realistic picture of the hos- s in France and Belgium, where has been nursing for 19 months from which work she is at home a 14 days' leave.

Red Cross Organization.

The Red Cross organization," Miss ry said, "is marvellous. Never in ast 19 months' experience has she lied for supplies but what she met ady response. The long arm of the Cross stretches from the instant an is wounded, when Red Cross plies render first aid and the h needed hot drink, to the time arrives home.

The need for supplies is greater at than ever before and will be greater during the coming sum- . Flannel shirts, pyjamas and s, especially socks, are a God- t to the wounded, mire-stained, d-drenched Tommy. Nothing is ted by the Red Cross. War should apeit waste, but the Red Cross es the exception.

C.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A.

he Canadian War Contingent k is allied to the Red Cross and ng much the same work. The So- y sees to the needs of the boys in trench, sending him the ever need- socks and allowing him just a lit- more food than the regular issue, thus allowing for the inevitable shortage in food through war conditions.

The Y. M. C. A. work is wonderful. Through this organization the relatives of the wounded, who will never return to England and have a few days before "going west," are brought out to France free of cost and through the Y.M.C.A. alone the relatives, rich or poor, are permitted to come to the bedside of the dying.

Criticisms of Red Cross.

Miss Mowry said she had heard more criticisms of the Red Cross and C.W.C.A. since she arrived in Canada than in all her experience at the front. Over there there is no grumbling.

Sending Socks.

In sending socks Miss Mowry advised the society that outside of 1 or 2 pairs sent to a particular person all should go through the Red Cross, which is just, unprejudiced and methodical. In sending to a particular officer a number of pairs for distribution the sender risks the arrival of the consignment perhaps an hour before the order to advance comes when the socks are necessarily left behind.

Mrs. Matthews Chairman.

Mrs. Matthews, who occupied the chair cautioned the Red Cross workers against any waste of wool, of which Mr. Edgar Worth had, in a letter received to-day, advised Mrs. Matthews there is a serious shortage. Mr. Worth, however, assured Mrs. Matthews the Peterborough ladies will receive first consideration.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 17.—More than $85,000,000 will be lost to workers in the State of New York in unpaid wages for the five day period and the Monday holidays during which industries must be closed down, it was estimated here to-day.

Fuel Administrator Garfield's order for the conservation of coal means a condition approaching starvation to New York's poorer classes for the time being, it was declared. Workers on the lower east side and in other poverty stricken districts of the city live virtually from hand to mouth.

ADVERSE CRITICISM.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The surprise and in many instances frank adverse criticism that greeted the first news in New York of the drastic measures promulgated by the National Fuel Administration for conservation of coal to-day, found officials, employers and employees studying the provisions of the order, and their possible effects on industries.

Fuel administrators frankly admitted that they were not prepared for such startling announcement from Washington, and that it would be some time before they could familiarize themselves with the complex details of the plan. Opinion among business men and officials as to whether the results would be beneficial or otherwise was widely divergent. In the opinion of industrial statisticians, approximately three million wage earners in New York State alone will be affected by the temporary shut-down of industry. The wage loss for fifteen days, according to conservative unofficial estimate, will be one hundred millions.

Speaking of the play the Pittsburg Dispatch of December 23 says, in part:

"A Daughter of the Sun," a new Hawaiian play by Lorin J. Howard and Ralph T. Kettering, was given its first presentation here last night at the Lyceum Theatre, and it is probably the most pretentious production seen at the Lyceum this season. The scenes are laid in the Hawaiian Islands, while the atmosphere of the "Paradise of the Pacific" is visualized by the appearance of a number of Hawaiians, whose splendid voices are heard to advantage in native songs, accompanied by ukuleie and guitar."

RECEPTION TENDERED BY ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Major J. C. Davidson, the Rector and Other Returned Officers and Men Were Warmly Welcomed Last Night—Major Davidson's Talk On His Experience in France a Feature.

Under the auspices of the Church-women's Association a very enjoyable reception was tendered by the congregation of St. John's church last night to Major J. C. Davidson, and the other officers and men of St. John's who have returned from overseas service. The affair was held in the school house, which was crowded by members of the congregation anxious to welcome home their rector and the other members of the congregation who have been spared to come back from their duties across the Atlantic. Among the other returned officers present were Lieut.-Col. T. W. H. Young, Lieut.-Col. Jos. Mills, Majors S. T. Medd, Capt. Lancaster and Lieut. Geo. Perks, while Nursing Sister Mrs. Douglas represented the noble band of Peterborough women who have or are serving the Empire in the hospitals of the Expeditionary Force.

After the programme had been opened with the singing of the National Anthem, "Oh Canada" and "Blessed be the Tie that Binds," Mrs. Boucher, president of the Churchwomen's Association, welcomed Major Davidson and the other officers and men of St. John's who were present. In doing so she remarked that it was hard for the people at home to realize and visualize the work that these officers and men had done overseas. She paid a warm tribute to the services rendered by Major Davidson and his comrades and remarked that they belonged to Canada and Canada belonged to them. Mrs. Boucher said that she was sure the people of Canada were prepared to endure to the end until the inhuman Huns were brought to their knees.

Major Davidson, after acknowledging the welcome on behalf of himself and comrades, and after expressing a wish that it might have been possible to have all the returned men in the city present, gave a most interesting address, dealing with his work overseas. He had, he said, looked upon himself not only as a representative of St. John's, but as a representative of Peterborough, and he had not lost an opportunity of saying a good word about the beloved city in which he had resided for twenty-five years.

After expressing his regret at severing his relations with the 93rd Battalion, Major Davidson passed on to describe the wonderful Ontario Military Hospital at Orpington, the gift of the Province of Ontario and probably the finest Canadian hospital overseas, containing 2,200 beds. The equipment he described as complete.

After four months at Orpington, Major Davidson was transferred to France to No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital behind the Somme front. His description of the work of this institution and of his impression of what he saw and heard there was most interesting and entertaining. The work of the hospital was almost altogether among Imperial and Australian troops, but was not confined to soldiers alone, the civilian population claiming the services of those connected with the hospital, while as the Imperial units had no dental corps, the Canadian dentists were in great demand.

Major Lay'd in paid a hearty tribute to the work of the 42 Canadian nurses at this hospital. One of them, Mrs. Douglas, he was glad to say, was present at the reception, and he felt that too much could not be said about her services with the hospital, both in the Mediterranean and in France.

The speaker referred in terms of highest praise to the officer commanding the hospital, who was the type of officer who had reflected the greatest honour upon Canada. In this connection Major Davidson said that what had been said of his commanding officers might be said also of Lieut.-Col. Young, whose work had been most highly praised and recognized.

Of his own work as chaplain, Major Davidson said that he felt sure that he had been helped by the prayers of the people of St. John's in being given strength to carry on. It was a wonderful privilege, he felt, to have been able to do such work. It gave one an opportunity to better understand human nature. Preachers had been kept too much in glass cases, he said, and did not, or had not, taken the opportunity to know their fellow men as they should. But in France the glass cases were smashed and the chaplain was just one of the army. During the year that he had been with No. 3 Stationary Hospital over one hundred soldiers had been confirmed and he was sure that if they were spared to come back to their respective parishes they would be a power for good, or if it were their fate that they should make the supreme sacrifice in France they were ready to meet death.

Interesting indeed was Major Davidson's description of a trip to the front, which he was privileged to make after he had sought the opportunity for some time. He told of Ypres, which, he said, might almost be called a Canadian city—at least the name would live for ever in Canadian history. And of the great work of the Canadians at Passchendaele.

An amusing description of how the transportation problem is solved in France was given by Major Davidson, the audience greatly enjoying the story of Major Davidson's trip back to his hoospital, as they did his account of a trip in an aeroplane, which he gave at the request of some of the ladies.

Major S. T. Medd was the next speaker. In the course of an interesting address he paid a hearty tribute to the work of the ladies of the congregation in sending comforts to the men at the Front. Referring to a box he himself had received he remarked that the maple leaf inside the package was the best thing of all—the one most thoroughly appreciated, as it was a touch of home.

Major Medd told the audience some interesting things about the life of an Army chaplain, or padre, as he is generally called by the men. To be a successful padre Maj. Medd said that it took a bigger man than it did to command a unit. The padre had to be a man of the world to deal successfully with the problems that come before him in his life among the troops.

Mr. Harvey Stannton, president of the Great War Veterans' Association, neatly expressed his pleasure at the opportunity to be present to welcome Major Davidson and the thanks of the members of St. John's Church who had gone overseas, to the ladies of the congregation for the many comforts they had sent.

An enjoyable musical programme was given, delightful solos being rendered by Mrs. Ames, Miss Ruby Quartermaine, Mr. James Browne, and Master Sherwood Kennet, the accompaniments being played by Mrs. Evans and Mr. R. J. Deyer. The latter also acted as chairman during the evening.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Boucher and the members of the Church Women's Association for the successful manner in which they had arranged the reception.

The annual meeting and election of directors will be held at the Association building on Friday evening, January 18th, at 8 o'clock sharp. Every active member of the Y.M.C.A. is earnestly requested to be present. This meeting will be preceded by a meeting of the Nominating committee which will be held at 7.30 o'clock.

TURN OVER COAL TO NEEDY.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 17.—But one car of coal came in here yesterday, this being secured by the Brantford Patriotic Fund for division among the soldiers' families in this city.

In response to the city's appeal for the well-supplied to turn in quantities to ride the people over until the transportation of coal is resumed, 25 tons were placed at the city's disposal.

The merchants yesterday decided not to open their stores until nine o'clock and to close at five, thus cutting off two hours' use of coal.

Physicians Explain Why Women Need More Iron in their Blood Today than 20 Years Ago

Say Anaemia—Lack of Iron is Greatest Curse to the Health, Strength, Vitality and Beauty of the Modern American Woman.

DR. FERDINAND KING, New York Physician and Medical author, says physicians should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to supply the iron deficiency. Opinions of Dr. Schuyler C. Jacques, Visiting Surgeon, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City; Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital, and a Medical Examiner; Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital, and other physicians who have thoroughly tested the value of Nuxated Iron.

Any woman who tires easily, is nervous or irritable, or looks pale, haggard, and worn should at once have her blood examined for iron deficiency—administration of simple Nuxated Iron will often increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, careworn women 100 per cent. in two weeks' time.

"There can be no strong, healthy, beautiful, rosy-cheeked women, without iron," says Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, "in my recent talks to physicians on the grave and serious consequences of iron deficiency in the blood of American women I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—nuxated iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of an anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags, and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks.

"In the most common food of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farinas, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another grave iron loss. Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful vim and vigor to a ripe old age you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would salt when your food has not enough salt.

Dr. Schuyler C. Jacques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But as many American women suffer from iron deficiency with its attendant ills—physical weakness, nervous irritability, melancholy, indigestion, flabby, sagging muscles, etc., and in consequence of their weakened, run-down condition they are so liable to contract serious and even fatal diseases that I deem it my duty to advise such to take Nuxated Iron. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimor Hospital and a Medical Examiner, says: "Throughout my experience on Hospital staffs and as Medical Examiner, I have been astonished at the number of patients who have vainly looked for various diseases, when in reality their delicate, run-down state was simply the result of lack of iron in the blood. Time and again I have prescribed organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the weakness and general debility were replaced by a renewed feeling of strength and vitality. I took Nuxated Iron myself to build me up after a serious case of nervous exhaustion. The effects were apparent after a few days and within three weeks it had virtually revitalized my whole system and put me in a superb physical condition."

Dr. E. mayer, a famous physician, who has studied both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions, says: "I am a great believer in Nuxated Iron, it often acts almost like magic. Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was in taking Iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 45 he was nervous and nearly all in—now at 60, after taking Nuxated Iron, a miracle of vitality and his face beams with the buoyancy of youth."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Thousands of persons go on suffering year after year, doctoring themselves for all kinds of ills when the real and true cause underlying their condition is simply a lack of sufficient iron in the red blood corpuscles to enable nature to transform the food they eat into brawn, muscle, tissue and brain. But beware of the old forms of metallic iron which frequently do more harm than good.

"Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases, to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages, and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a secret medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in nuxated iron that they offer to forfeit $1000.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron, and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

Dealers—McDermid and Jury, druggists.

The Child's Appeal—What Is Your Answer?

"Mother, why don't you take NUXATED IRON and be strong and well and have nice rosy cheeks instead of being so nervous and irritable all the time and looking so haggard and old—The doctor gave some to Susie Smith's mother and she was worse off than you are and now she looks years younger and feels just fine."

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful healthy rosy cheeked women full of Life, Vim and Vitality—while those who lack iron are often cross, nervous, irritable, weak, tired complaining creatures whom nobody wants to have around.

Important Conference In Boys' Work Was Held At The Y. M. C. A.

On Tuesday evening, January 15th, Leaders in Boys' Work in our City met at the Y.M.C.A. for a Supper Conference. Following the supper Mr. W. H. Vaughan, Associate Boys' Work Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and Council, brought before those present the importance and need of using Efficiency Methods to insure Quality in Canada's Future Man-Power. His opening remarks were as follows:

"Back through the early dark of an April night reeled the Zouave and Turco troops. Across the canal and through the village of Vlamtinghe they came, gasping in agony, and their faces distorted with pain. Behind them rolled a cloud of German gas, while through the ragged four-mile gap in the Allied line swarmed the German hordes. And then, for two days and two nights, with German machine-guns playing upon them "like watering-pots," Canada flung her manhood into the gap and saved the road to Calais.

"Ypres, Festubert, Passchendaele, and Vimy have spelled a new page in the history of Canada, and Canada has paid the price, 80,000 Canadians lie dead in France.

"When the last leaf of the ledger of international bookkeeping is written and we attempt to strike a balance, our greatest liability will be found in the stupendous loss of man power, in the destruction of the human machine, for the machine that does things is being destroyed, not temporarily destroyed, but destroyed. The greatest asset that any country can possess is hourly slipping from us.

"We are to-day facing the serious problem of rehabilitation, and that problem we must solves or be confronted with the alternative, national disaster. More men and better men must be our slogan. A new generation faces us, one which must bear new burdens and meet new responsibilities, for when the melting pot cools a new order of things will be evolved that will tax the coming generation to the utmost."

Mr. Vaughan, having presented the need, showed us the plan for helping the Boy Life of our City, and then threw the meeting open for questions regarding the Canadian Standard Efficiency Test Work.

Dr. Middleton of George Street Church asked the question "What are the qualifications of a Mentor of a C.S.E.T. Group? In reply, Mr. Vaughan emphasized the fact that a Mentor must be a Christian man and must be young in spirit. Mr. Joseph Wearing, Superintendent of Murray Street Sunday School, then asked if the programme was a growing one and suited to fellows of all ages. Mr. Vaughan pointed out the fact that there were nine separate grades to suit the needs of every teen age fellow. Mr. Wearing then said that he felt that the work could be promoted in Murray street and that, as a beginning, two delegates were going down to Belleville Boys' Work Conference to train for this work. Further discussion proved that the plan could be used in all our Sunday Schools.

Mr. Vaughan also spoke to the father and mothers of the boys in the gymnasium after the Mentors' meeting.

We feel that Peterborough will make a decided move along the line of training by Boy Life, and as a help to Mentors we plan to have a Mentors' meeting at regular intervals.

"There was a great deal of applause for your speech." "There ought to have been," explained Senator Sorghum. "As originally written it would have occupied two hours. I cut it down to forty-five minutes."—Washington Star.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

TWO HARD FOUGHT GAMES FEATURE THE CHURCH LEAGUE OPENER

George Street 7, Knox-St. Andrew's 3
St. Paul's-All Saints 6, Mark St. 5

The above scores represent the concrete results of the first night's games in the Junior Church League. A fair-sized crowd saw two hard-fought battles, in neither of which had the winners a big margin on their opponents. The teams are all promising, and will improve with practice.

George Street, last year's winners, tackled a combination representing Knox and St. Andrew's in the opening game last night, and although the Methodists won by 7 goals to 3, they had their work cut out for them, especially in the first two periods. They scored the only counter in the first session, and in the second opened up a lead of 4 to 1, only to have their opponents find the nets twice in succession. It was 4 to 3 at the end of the period, and it looked like a battle royal to the finish, but Knox-St. Andrew's faded in the last period, the George Street aggregation coming through with three goals, and holding their opponents scoreless. Nelson led in the scoring for the winners, finding the nets on four occasions. The winners lined up as follows:

Goal—Rutherford.
Defence—Head and Northey.
Rover—Graham.
Centre—Rutherford.

In the second battle of the night the team representing St. Paul's and All Saints' squeezed a one-goal victory over Mark Street, the final score being 6 to 5. The East City lads, who made such a gallant fight for the honours last year, have contributed two of their stars, Hagerman and Williams to this year's Junior O.H.A. team, but still have a lively team left. They led at the end of the first period by 2 to 0, but St. Paul's-All Saints came strong in the second, blanking Mark Street, while they scored four goals themselves. In the last period, with the score 4 to 2 against them, Tom Hendry's kids made a game fight to put the game out of the fire. They succeeded in out-scoring their opponents 3 goals to 2, but could not get the tying goal.

The St. Paul's-All Saints' team was as follows:

Goal—Bailey.
Defence—Anderson and Thirnbeck.
Rover—Mahood.
Centre—Lundy.

"Jerry" Coughlin handled the bell in both games satisfactorily.

RED HOT BOWLING GAME BETWEEN TWO DE LAVAL TEAMS

An interesting bowling match is to be played on the Water St. Alleys at 7 p.m. sharp, Saturday evening, January 19th, between a picked team from the office and a picked team from the factory of the De Laval.

Very great interest is being taken in this match as a picked team from both of the teams entered is to play the regular De Laval team, at a later date, for an oyster supper.

The following is the line-up of the two teams entered:

Robinson's Colts—Ten Pin French, Musty English, Faraway Pitchford, Strike-out Lawrence, Comeback Robinson.

The following rules will be strictly enforced:

No. 1—Only one ball will be allowed to be rolled at one time.

No. 2—No player will be allowed more than half way up the alley when he is rolling his ball.

No. 3—No bribing of Pin Boys, as they cannot beat the Pin Setter.

No. 4—No bribing of referee, as he is old enough to know better, which makes it worse than bribing the Pin Boy.

No. 5—Any player showing signs of exhaustion will be canned early enough to allow him to catch the last street car.

No. 6—Any player breaking a pin will be awarded in the usual way.

No. 7—Any player throwing a ball over the light will have to replace any lights damaged.

No. 8—No admission to be charged. However, this is no cheap show. The only cheap thing about the game will be the players.

No. 9—No captains of league teams will be rewarded in the usual way, until the three games are completed.

No. 10—Talking is strictly prohibited (they can shout as much as you like).

No. 11—Several physicians have offered their services free but none have been accepted. Individual players must take the risk.

No. 12—If a player does not average up to the requirements bowling with his right hand he is allowed to use his left for pinch-hitting.

No. 13—It must be strictly understood that when a ball is delivered it must be delivered with one hand only. Under no consideration will any count be allowed where a ball is delivered with two hands.

No. 14—If any player finds that he is unable to use a ten-pin ball he will be allowed to use a five-pound ball, providing he pays for all broken windows, etc.

A large attendance of the supporters of both teams is asked for to be in readiness to settle any disputes that may arise from close decisions throughout the games.

Sporting Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—"M" has score of 6—3 for Peterborough, "C" has score of 4—9 for Lindsay, which one would win a pool on last Friday night's game.

READER.

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The disposition of the 93rd Battalion Band instruments is the simplest problem the City Council has ever had to solve. Every fair-minded and intelligent man, woman and child in the city must know that the G.W.V.A. has the only and just right to them for reasons that are too obvious to need recapitulating. If the City Council fears to take the responsibility of handing them over to the Veterans let those who subscribed for the instruments decide the question themselves. "Citizen's" letter in the Review, last night, on this subject, reminded me of Aesop's "Ass in the Lion's skin." This signature would have been more in accord with the sentiments of his letter than the dignified word "Citizen".

Yours truly,
C. A. G. FENCE.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Were it not for the malicious and slanderous outrage directed at the G.W.V.A. by the writer who styles himself Citizen, contained in his letter to the "Review" published yesterday one could afford to pass it by as an effusion from a diseased imagination, but mud when slung even by irresponsible beings is apt to stick unless immediately removed.

The G.W.V.A. has already a membership of over 60,000, two-thirds of whom have "fought for the grand old Flag, and Empire"; 30 per cent in addition have done the same in other wars, and the remainder the "chocolate element," to which "Citizen" so contemptuously refers, were only debarred from making the same sacrifice by circumstances over which they had no control.

I must refute the statements that the acquisition of the band instruments would involve an outlay of $1,000 per annum to the Association. We have a "bandmaster" who has voluntarily offered his services in that capacity, and it is the intention of the G.W.V.A. to ask the Government to provide for the several bands a standardized khaki uniform, and as the musical scores are included with the instruments now being solicited, expenses in this regard would be at a minimum.

As for the clique to which "Citizen" refers by which I presume he means the deputation that waited upon the City Council, I think the City Fathers will consider them quite as competent, and more so, to give advice, as one who hides his identity under the "nom-de-plume" of "Citizen," thus prostituting and belittling what should be, and is, an honourable title.

Yours truly,
SIDNEY WHATLEY.

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL ARE STRONGLY OPPOSED TO THE IMPORTATION OF CHINESE HORDE

Also Ask the Council of Women to Co-operate in Securing Shorter Working Days for Young Girls and Boys Employed in Factories.

MR. J. J. HARTLEY RE-ELECTED

WHAT THE TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL DID.

Passed resolution opposing the importation of Chinese labour.

Decided to ask the Women's Council to co-operate in securing shorter hours for girls and boys employed in factories.

Elected officers.

The Trades and Labour Council opened their new year of work and opportunity with the largest attendance that has been registered in months. Practically every "local" was represented and there were evidences of unity and energy that augur well for a successful year.

The reported intentions of the Government to import Chinese labourers in large numbers for work at Halifax, on the railways and farms, evoked a vigorous protest that was expressed in a resolution which the secretary was instructed to forward to the Minister of Agriculture. The members of the Council regard this proposal as nothing less than a direct menace to Canadian labour. It was stated that if 100,000 Chinese are brought into this country now, without any guarantee that they will be deported when the war is over, they will be permitted to remain here permanently.

In British Columbia the Chinese have acquired a monopoly of the fish industry, they are over-running the lumber industry, are numerous as waiters in the hotels and are steadily crowding out the whites from the rich market gardens on the coast.

In Ontario Factories.

"You don't have to go as far as British Columbia to find them," said one delegate. "There are 3,000 Chinese in the Niagara Peninsula and many of them are working munitions shops. Four hundred of them are employed by the Massey-Harris Company, and the International Harvester Company also has them in their shops. They are in Toronto and Hamilton foundries, and the employers state that they do as good work as white men, and at less wages. This is the menace Canadian labour must face. It is stated that there is enough hard coal in China to supply the world for one thousand years. If that is true let them send us fuel, we need it worse than we do their labour."

After the War Prospect.

"We should also remember that when our boys come home there may be a scarcity of work. If these Chinese are brought in they will be competitors of the home men. They may be on the farms, in factories and in other positions. Once they are planted here, it will be impossible to remove them."

Children in the Factories.

There was equally strong opposition to the long hours of employment served by young girls and boys in Peterborough factories, who, it was stated, are apparently under fourteen years. Though they may be over the legal working age, the Council was unanimously agreed that youths of both sexes between fourteen and sixteen years should not be permitted to drudge ten hours a day.

"What are we to expect of the next generation if these young girls are permitted to work ten and even twelve hours a day at tender years. I have seen them during the past week struggling through deep drifts on their way to work at half-past-six in the morning, and returning at six at night. These hours are too long, and I know that last summer some of them worked twelve hours and more."

It was first suggested that the Factory Inspector be asked to investigate these factory conditions, but the members considered that move utterly futile.

Voice of The People

Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I observed in last night's paper a report of the Ministerial Association, in which the recommendation is made that mid-week services in the churches should be discontinued during the shortage of coal. Far be it from me to question the wisdom of our devoted and enlightened clergy, but it seems to some of us that with the echo of our King's call to prayer still sounding in our ears, that is strange to limit or curtail the ordinary services of the church, while the poolrooms and moving picture houses are allowed to continue as usual.

Would it not be feasible to combine forces—to heat one church, auditorium, or basement, whichever seems best, and let all the people who wish attend service there. The stimulus of a crowd is, as all students of psychology know, a powerful thing, which in this case might be especially valuable. I enclose my card.—Yours truly, P. P. H.

CONDEMNED BY PRESS

Many United States Newspapers Condemn Carl Garfield's Drastic Fuel Order as a National Disaster.

"SURRENDER TO HUNS"

Canadian Press Despatch:

NEW YORK, Jan. 17. — United States' newspapers are practically a unit in declaring against Fuel Controller Garfield's drastic order, tying up industries of the eastern and middle States. Many of them refer to it as a national disaster.

The Evening World says the President should immediately rescind the order and remove the men who made it. The Boston Globe describes the order as a surrender to the Huns. The Tribune says the fuel controller is in a panic and acts in a headlong manner.

To Suspend the Order.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Despatches say Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, has introduced a resolution in the Senate to suspend fuel orders for five days. It is stated this resolution has a good chance of carrying unless President Wilson acts in the meantime.

CANADA MAY HAVE TO FOLLOW U. S. EXAMPLE

Although War Cabinet Has not Considered Garfield's Order, Feeling Is That Canadian Industries May Have to be Closed for Five Days.

CONSERVE THE SUPPLY

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 17. — Announcement that Fuel Administrator Garfield of the United States has decided to close factories east of the Mississippi for a five day period was a surprise to the Dominion government. No official indication as to whether or not Canada will follow the example set by the United States is yet forthcoming. C. A. Magrath, Dominion Fuel Controller, and C. W. Peters, Assistant Controller, have gone to Toronto, and the government is not likely to take any definite action without the advice of the Fuel Controller. It was authoritatively stated at noon to-day that the new situation created by Garfield's order has not yet been considered by the War Cabinet. It is altogether likely, however, that it will be before that body at a meeting to be held this afternoon. There is also a somewhat general impression at the capital that in view of the fact that Canada is largely dependent upon the United States for coal supplies, the government will probably have to show an equally strong disposition to conserve the supply.

This could only be done by the issuance of a similar order in regard to Canadian industries. The suggestion is made here that Canadian factories might close down for five days following the five days suspension of activities in the United States.

HILL.—In loving memory of Pte. Horace John Hill, No. 195549, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, who was killed in action on 17th January, 1917.

Sleep on, beloved, sleep, and take thy rest;
Lay down thy weary head upon His breast;
We loved thee well, but Jesus loves thee best.
Farewell! Farewell! Farewell!

Calm is thy slumber as an infant's sleep,
And thou shalt wake no more to toil and weep;
Thine is a perfect rest, secure and deep.
Farewell! Farewell! Farewell!

Nay, I but dream; the sky is all forlorn,
And there's the plain of battle, writhing red,
God pity them, the women folk who mourn.
How happy are the dead!
—Inserted by Miss M. McKinlay.

IN MEMORIAM.

WICKER.—In memory of Pte. Fred Wicker, who was killed in action on 17th January, 1917.

The Vacant Chair.

We shall meet but we shall miss him,
There will be one vacant chair;
We shall linger to caress him
While we breathe our evening prayer.
When two years ago we gathered,
Joy was in his mild blue eye;
But a golden cord is severed,
And our hopes in ruin lie.

At our fireside, sad and lonely,
Often will our bosom swell
At remembrance of the story
How our noble Frederick fell.
How he strove to bear our banner
Through the thickest of the fight,
And upheld our country's honour
In the strength of manhood's might.

True they tell us wreaths of glory
Evermore will deck his brow;
But this soothes the anguish only
Sweeping o'er our heartstrings now.
Sleep to-day, oh, early fallen,
In thy green and narrow bed;
Dirges from the pine and cypress
Mingle with the tears we shed.
—From the Family.

In proud and loving memory of Pte. Harold Hatcher who fell in his country's service, Jan. 17th, 1917, in France:

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
—Father, Mother and the Family.

The children cheerfully enter into their studies when they are in normal health with every faculty at its best. A most important part of their equipment is their eyesight. If the eyes are weak, study is too much of an effort, and progress slow. (Quotations by Erickson, Perkins & Co., Brokers, 14 King St. W., Toronto.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Wall Street took the news from Washington with scarcely a blink. It was accepted amongst most traders that the move was constructive and not destructive. Early selling movements that had forced prices down, gave way to a cheerful feeling that sent prices up quickly. Gains of more than a point were registered in most industrials in the first hour.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Stocks dropped from fractions to over three points at the opening of the Stock Exchange to-day, reflecting the attitude of Wall street toward the Fuel Administration's drastic fuel order. Sharp rallies in stocks were made later in the day.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR PETERBORO

Major Good, a vocational officer, with headquarters in Kingston, was in the city yesterday, and while here met a number of members of the Industrial Committee of the Board of Education, including Dr. F. C. Neal, G. N. Gordon, V. Eastwood, T. H. G. Denne, William Sangster, A. F. Hagerman, also Harvey Staunton, representing the Great War Veterans' Association.

If Peterborough could persuade the authorities to establish a convalescent hospital in the city, a vocational training school would follow as a matter of course. The creation of a vocational training school in Peterborough would pave the way for a technical school, as the subjects are akin, and many of the returned soldiers are qualified to act as instructors in various lines. Efforts will be made to have the Government move in this direction.

NO CHANCE.

The sergeant-major was impressing upon a batch of recruits the art of bomb-throwing and the many dangers caused by carelessness in handling.

"Now," he queried, "would any of you chaps like to ask me a question?"

A spectacled soldier held up his hand.

"Speak up, me man," urged the sergeant-major, and the soldier did, as follows.

"Is there any chance for a likely chap like me to get into the Army Pay Corps?"

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage, Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

AMERICAN BREAKDOWN CAUSES DISAPPOINTMENT IN FRANCE

Nine Months After Declaring War Uncle Sam is Compelled to Borrow Equipment Essentials Which France Can Ill Afford to Loan

PEOPLE SHOULD KNOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Writing in The Tribune of the unpreparedness of the U. S. expeditionary force in France, Caspar Whitney says:

Secrecy between a people and their Government is a mischevious element in national life. Lloyd George told England in one of his stirring speeches not very long ago that a nation which is not virile enough to hear the truth about itself is not a first-class power.

In America, as in England, the people are entitled to the truth, even though it be ugly and uncomplimentary, even though it fall on devoted theories or heads of prejudices. In America, as in England, we need to look uncoloured facts in the face. This is a moment for us to hear such truth. I believe we can hear it, though Germany is banking on our not being big enough and strong enough to tell the truth to ourselves. Germany says we are not a first-rate power; that we are so saturated with greed and materialism that we cannot rise to this our great occasion. And none of us can be sure that we shall; none of us can say if indeed we have found our national soul, if ours is the national spirit that will pay, and endure and pay again. We have shown our greatness in material things, but 'material things alone do not measure a nation's greatness,—there is the moral fibre without which the measure is but half reckoned.

Talking with French officers on this subject, I asked if they could spare the guns and ammunition and gasoline they were giving us. They answered: "What will you? You must have them; your army has none; we must let you have them so long as we possibly can; we do our best; it is reducing our reserves; we have no ample surplus; we hope you will quickly be able to bring your own supplies."

We have made high promises, there has been large talk of our potentialities, but our actual showing thus far is in competence in the outfitting and purchasing and forwarding departments of our quartermaster; and wrangling, red tape and disorganization, which are responsible for our present inability to furnish our soldiers with machine guns, rifles, ammunition, ordnance and suitable clothing.

It is a lamentable breakdown and the cause of much disquiet in France, not only for its disappointment in our widely heralded efficiency, but for the further sacrifices it suggests as likely to cost her.

It is not too much to say that our failure to equal our allies' nautral expectations of this great, wealthy industrial nation is answerable for the very grave situation which makes the coming six months as critical as the first six months of the war.

BORROWING FROM FRANCE.

Nine months ago we entered the war. To-day we are giving no land aid to our allies in a military sense. While we are drawing on them for our equipment essentials of which they have no surplus to spare us easily.

It isn't merely that there have been blunders; blunders we would and do expect as the inevitable accompaniment of an unmilitary democracy going to war; but it is the absence of an appreciation of the necessities of the hour by the responsible men of bureaus; the failure to grasp the demands of this kind of a war game; the narrow vision; the strangling red tape; the fact that a condition could exist where such a delay as such a time as in the matter of the machine guns and rifles, would be possible.

Thus far we have taken little profit from British and French experience. With ample warning and time for preparation, with unlimited manufacturing facilities, untold wealth and the models and counsel of Great Britain and France to guide us, we should have put our men afield with the very best possible equipment, instead of which we have sent them to trials of body and spirit, of endurance and patient courage such as men never have met before this war—with an equipment in some respects the least practical, the least comfortable and serviceable.

The efficiency and organization upon which we plumed ourselves and for which the world took us at our word, have been conspicuously absent so far as the proper equipment and maintenance of our little army in France is concerned.

We are in danger of receiving a crushing blow to our material and spiritual well being unless we come promptly out of all dreams of immunity from a victorious Germany, and awake to a realization of what this war means to us, to you and me, to our business and our homes.

GERMANY SAYS WE CAN'T.

We have voted great sums for the war and made huge programmes, but not yet as a people have we risen above selfish individualistic ambitions for comfort or power or profit. Democracy, narrowly viewed, makes for individualistic development for individualistic rewards. It is for us now in the face of menace and the call of our allies in our ears to show if we can merge the individual into united effort for the State and for the cause on which hangs the fate of the very democracy by which we live and prosper.

We must prove big enough to rise to this need, else we shall be too late next spring in France, and so justify Germany's estimate of us.

Some of us, through the press, are still patting ourselves on the back over what "we have done"; but it behooves us to be modest before the great deeds, under greater handicaps than ours, of England and France and Canada and Australia.

We have not organized ourselves as well as France did at her beginning; we have not shown the thoroughness of the British. Unprepared England two and one-half months after the declaration of war stopped the Huns at the Yser—at great cost—but stopped them; and saved Calais and probably the war. Unprepared America nine months after coming in and six months after reaching the front, is still considering the problem of supplies and the line of communication.

"Slow" Old England has beaten Young America in speed, efficiency, organization!

FULL KNOWLEDGE.

Thus very shrewd student of human nature, M. Clemenceau, said the other day in response to the question whether its considered it wise that people should be taken into confidence of Government: "I believe self-governing people fight better when they have full knowledge of the actual situation."

The American people, in full knowledge of the portent of this hour, must demand of their Congress and its appointed committees speedy fulfilment of the tasks intrusted to them by the people and their President.

A democratic Government goes no faster and no further than the people who constitute the Government insist. It is the temper of the civil population that propels or retards a great effort such as we are now called on to make. We get the kind of legislation, the kind of men in office that we want; they reflect accurately either our desires or our indifferences—our neglects of citizen duty. If we have no machine guns and not enough rifles, and our troops are illy equipped it is because the people have failed to demand them of the War Department. If there has been a breakdown in the supply and transportation service, it is because the people have not insisted that this most important department of an army keep pace in method and personnel with the scope of its duties. We have to confess these plain facts.

THE PEOPLE'S PART.

It is up to the people to recognize their failures and make now their demands:

That the seniority which keeps inefficiency in the army and disloyalty in the Senate be effaced.

That Senators and Representatives abandon politics for patriotism and get behind the President.

That red tape be cut clear of the medical and all departments concerned in the prosecution of this war.

That top-heavy and ineffective committees be abolished or remodicled.

The people are behind their President, whose present attitude reveals an understanding of the character and the size of the task upon us, and whose well-chosen words breathe the spirit of a stalwart patriotism and a grim determination to fight this fight through to a victorious and a just and lasting peace.

We must get on a war basis; we the people individually as well as collectively, must strip for war, else we shall fail.

And if we fail, sooner or later Germany will be in our ports.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS

Mr. W. R. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes, "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years old, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for us and find that it goes extra cough and cold."

DYING BY SCORES FROM PNEUMONIA.

Fenghuan, Shansi Province, China.—The hotbed of the pneumonic-type plague prevalent here, and in other parts of Shansi Province, is at present Pantachow, on the Hoang-Ho, west of Ningwufu, and the villages surrounding it. The natives are dying by scores in the streets. Appeals for help are being sent broadcast by the American doctors, especially those into the province to investigate the plague conditions.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"
A DETECTIVE STORY

"Still, it's the fellows younger than me that are coming up, inspector. But it was like old times, to-night. I was saying to Cunliffe not ten minutes before that poor creature lit on the sidewalk in front of me, that when any one does pull off a crime up here in a good-class residential neighborhood, they pull it off big. You'll be calling it a day, all right, when you have laid the laddie-buck by the heels that did this."

"We ought to go a good way towards finding out the truth when the body is identified," remarked the inspector. "If we once get a line on the young woman herself and her friends, and trace her movements for the last few days or weeks, it ought to be easy to put our hands on the flying man she spoke of, to say nothing of the stepfather."

"Maybe so, and maybe not. I've seen the cases where half the truth batted up every theory you could frame. No matter who she is, 'tis the man you want—the man who flung her from the window and made his get-away as if he did actually fly off, like she said. Here's my corner. I'll be on hand for the inquest, and if you should want me before, inspector, you'll know where to find me."

McCarty, through the munificence of his uncle and by virtue of his own judicious investments thereafter, had attained the dignity of bachelor apartments. It is true that they consisted merely of two rooms and an antiquated, wooden-cased bath on the second floor of a somewhat dilapidated three-story brick building over a bogus antique shop; but it afforded him immense satisfaction.

The fact that he had, by virtue of his lavish hospitality at fires and strike riots, attained the dignity of a "buff," with both fire and police calls affixed to the wall of his sitting room, enhanced its attractions in his eyes.

He had secured it through much local wire pulling, and the greasing of many intermediary palms, as an insurance against ennui on his retirement from the force.

Congratulations had always possessed an unholy fascination for him, and he had followed his life long friend, Dennis Riordan, to many, even before the acquisition of the private call elevated him to the aforementioned position known as a buff in the parlance of the department, and the envy of all his associates.

Engine Company 023 was stationed just around the corner, and Dennis being one of its ornaments, McCarty lacked neither social intercourse nor excitement in the daily round, but this tragic mystery was as breath to his nostrils.

The early dawn of midsummer was already manifesting itself by pale, warning streaks of light in the eastern sky when he finally composed himself for sleep. The night's rush of events crowded his mind, but through them all the faint, broken whisper of the dying girl still echoed in his ears.

Who and what could have been the "flying man"? Was it a fantasy, a mere figment of a distraught brain, or had some monstrous, inexplicable shadow frightened her so that she recoiled and fell from some room to which she had effected an inexplicable entry?

In all his experiences he had not encountered so baffling a mystery, and his blood ran more swiftly through his veins than it had for many aimless months, alas, with energy and the old eager, almost automatic, response to a call of duty.

It was broad daylight when he awoke and dressed hastily, impatient for a glimpse of the morning papers. The earlier editions would have only a brief scare head, but the event of the night seemed now in retrospect to have been so vague and unreal that it would be a relief to see it chronicled in cold print.

"You-a like-a de paper?" announced the Italian at the corner news-stand. "Beega murder, great-a-excite'! You get-a de woman fall-a smash, boss?"

So the suggestion of suicide or accident had gone by the board, and murder was an accepted fact. McCarty eluded the Italian's inquiries, and hastened to the little restaurant where he customarily breakfasted; but the proprietor came out from behind the cashier's cage and bombarded him with questions, and he gulped his coffee hurriedly and departed.

Once more securely entrenched in his own rooms, he spread the papers out upon the table. From the first one his own face glared back at him, grimacing malevolently in the effort to look pleasant before the hostile eye of the camera. It was a formal picture taken in the pride of his first promotion and bore a striking resemblance to something between a butcher and a brigand.

The snapshots which peppered the other papers were more life like, but he did not favor them with a glance—he was eagerly absorbing the printed account of that had taken place.

It varied little in the several records, and although terse and sketchy as in the main correct. To the moment of going to press the body had remained unidentified, and there was course no mention of personal interviews with the tenants as yet.

McCarty was deep in cogitation when the door bell pealed insistently, and crossing the room, he stuck a cautious head out of the window. A young man in a trim, dark-blue suit, with a straw hat on the back of a shock of very red hair, stood upon the steps.

With a muttered imprecation McCarty was withdrawing his head, turtle-fashion, when the young man looked suddenly upward and caught his eye.

"Mac, you old hermit, come down here and let me in! What do you mean by keeping an ornament of the press languishing on your front door step?"

McCarty sighed in resignation.

"All right Jimmie, he responded. "I suppose it might as well be you."

Jimmie Ballard was a regular reporter. As evidence of it, he did not on gaining entrance, pull a notebook from his pocket and assume an inquisitional air. Instead he perched himself on the edge of the table, swinging his long legs and observed with boyish heartiness:

"That was a rum thing last night, wasn't it? Must have given you a turn, Mac, when that woman dropped almost on top of you! Tell us all about it."

McCarty was well aware that the guilelessly ingratiating air was arrantly assumed to invite confidence, but he could not forbear a responsive grin.

"It's all here, my lad." He motioned to the heap of newspapers. "All that I know, anyway. The woman fell and we carried her in, and she died, and that's all about it."

"Not by a long shot, it isn't! You went through the house with Inspector Druet—oh, we've got his report down at the shop; it will be all out in the next edition—and of course somebody was lying. The woman could not have dropped from the clouds. You must have hit on something; you used to be able to dope out the answer to harder questions than this.

"Remember when the whole department was stumped on that Throckmorten jewelry robbery, you picked out your man and stuck to him in spite of ridicule and orders and everything else until you proved it on him? There wasn't a man on the force who could beat you at the game in those days, Mac, but of course if you have grown rusty——"

He paused expectantly, but McCarty refused the bait.

"Maybe I have," he admitted quietly. "It was the inspector's job, not mine. What does he say about it."

"Oh, you can't get near him now with a ten-foot pole." Jimmie veered off suddenly on a new tack. "But the girl now; did she really say that to you or did you dream it—that preposterous thing about a flying man?"

McCarty was on safe ground there. That was already public property.

"Sure, she said it," he affirmed. "You got it the first time."

"What did you make of it?"

"What would anybody? Nothing. She was waiting for him.

Gathering her brows like gathering storm, "nursing her wrath to keep it warm," as Robert Burns would say, and when he entered the room she began:

"This is a nice time of night—"

"I—er—know I'm late," he hastily interrupted, "but I couldn't help it, my dear. Club had—er—big discussion on female beauty."

"And what had you to do with that?" demanded the fretful wife.

"More'n any one there. I was the one—er—who had the most beautiful wife, an'—er—course the best authority on female beauty, an'—"

"Why don't you take off your overcoat, Henry? Let me get your slippers for you. It's awful cold outside; I think you must be half-frozen."

MOTHERS OF CANADA

PREPARE FOR TROUBLE

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, and when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by serious organic disturbances. Many thousands in this section would testify as do the following:

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Over forty years ago I was restored to health by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It was after medicine and doctors had failed to help me or give relief. I had, through overwork, become all run-down in health. I was weak and finally became a nervous wreck. The 'Prescription' was recommended to me, and at the time I started to take it I had not been able to do anything for over a year. I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' as well. It took several bottles, but I was completely restored to good health and since that time when I have felt the need of these medicines I have taken them and always with perfect satisfaction."—Mrs. Wm. Baker, 33 Page St.

Stratford, Ont.—I was all run-down, weak, nervous. I also suffered with severe pains through my back. I was very miserable when a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one bottle seemed to give renewed strength. It stopped the pain in my back, also helped my nervous condition. It is surely a good tonic for women.—Mrs. Florence Cullum, 100 Milton St.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

NINE BOILS
Kept Coming On Neck One After the Other

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you are about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness. All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are simply bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood has be made pure before the boils disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system and removes every particle of foul material from the blood, then never another boil comes and the cure is permanent.

Mr. Geo. Ayers, 302 Gloucester St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I wish to tell you what I know about your wonderful Burdock Blood Bitters. In the spring I suppose my system needed cleaning out, for I had nine boils come on my neck one after the other. I quickly got a bottle of B.B.B., and before it was half finished I felt a great change, and it certainly put an end to my boils, otherwise I might have had a lot more. I recommend B.B.B. to all I can, for I know it to be a great remedy."

"Look for the trade mark dog on it."

THIS WEAK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt miserable almost all the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it; I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. Wortmeldt, 2362 North Taylor St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays sweat, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SAVE FOOD

In a time needing food economy many people are not getting all the nourishment they might from their food. It is not how much you eat, but much you assimilate, that does you good.

The addition of a small teaspoonful of Bovril to the diet as a peptogenic before meals leads to more thorough digestion and assimilation and thus saves food, for you need less.

The Too Good Man

His Kindness Is Always Repelled.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, ... by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

I've figured it up with slate and pencil, and I've chalked it down and added it up and subtracted it and multiplied it on the barn door, but it always comes out the same—the too good man has no place in this world. He is a sort of cross between a burdock and a sunflower—not ornamental enough for wear nor good enough eating for cows.

Coming up from Red Bank the other day, I followed an old man into the passenger coach. I had noticed him on the platform, and I recognized him as belonging to the species I have named.

The train had scarcely begun to move when my too good man, who had a rear seat, rose up and announced:

"Don't nobody be skeered, now. This hain't no collision. It's just like they allus move off. I've rid on 'em more'n a dozen times, and I'll tell you when to jump off."

Everybody looked at him, while some deluded him with smiles meant to be encouraging. He stowed away his satchel and removed an old slouch hat he had been wearing.

There was a woman sitting alone a few seats down the aisle. She had an umbrella, a bundle secured with a shawl strap and two or three parcels on the seat, and as Uncle Jerry passed down the aisle he stopped before her and cheerfully observed:

"Face kinder familiar to me, but I can't remember your name. Never been much of a hand at remembering names anyhow. Husband flew around and helped ye to git ready, I suppose? Leave the children all right? Been lots o' measles around this year. Didn't leave the outside cellar door open, did ye?"

"I don't know ye," she said as she looked up.

"What! Hain't ye Hanner Jones of Jones' Crossroads?"

"No, sir."

"Waal, I swow! I'd bet a two-year-old steer agin a cider bar'l that ye was."

An Improvised Boat

By JOHN TURNLEE

During the war between the states the singular methods used by prisoners of war for escape sound very gauzy today, fifty years after they occurred. But when one considers the number of men under arms, then figures the proportionate number of prisoners and remembers that one in fifty is not a large proportion of prisoners who made attempts to escape, he will see that quite a little army made the venture. For example, suppose there were 100,000 prisoners taken during the war, 2,000 men tried to escape.

Among the curious ventures made by Union prisoners in the south between 1861 and 1865 was that of Charles Dorrance, a private in the Union army. Dorrance was wounded during the operations around Vicksburg and taken to a house on a small plantation where he was nursed by a young southern girl.

Every one knows how conducive to love is nursing. Mabel Owen captured her patient without any trouble, and he captured her the first time she saw him. She was a country girl, and Charlie was a city boy, with a clear, honest eye and a pleasant smile. It was not to be wondered that she surrendered on sight.

Had the captive of Cupid rejoined his command as soon as he was well enough to do so he would probably not have been made a captive of Mars. He dallied, and a troop of Confederate cavalry came along and took him to the camp of an infantry brigade on the bank of the Mississippi river. Mabel, on seeing her lover taken away from her, was disconsolate. When he bid her goodby, moved by the strongest impulse in humanity, love, he whispered in her ear:

"Be on the lookout for me, for I'll come back to you if I have to come in my coffin!"

The day Dorrance was taken to the Confederate camp two deserters were tried by court martial and sentenced to be shot. A carpenter was at once set to work to make the coffins. He was doing the job in sight of the guard tent where Charlie was confined. Charlie noticed that he was making slow progress and heard an officer berating him, saying that if he didn't work faster he wouldn't get the job done in time for the execution, which was appointed for half an hour after reveille the next morning. Charlie told the officer that he knew all about making coffins—which was false—and would help if permitted. The officer accepted the offer, and Charlie went to work.

One of the coffins was a very large one and the other a very small one. Charlie worked on the large one. He did not finish it till long after dark and was permitted to go on, a sentinel being placed over him to see that he remained in camp.

It was about an hour after taps and the command was asleep, all except the chain of sentinels surrounding the camp, and so was the guard detailed to watch the prisoners. There was a way open to Charlie—the river. Unfortunately he couldn't swim and had no boat. But Charlie conceived an idea. Boring holes in the upper edges of the coffin, he drove pins in the holes, then roughly shaped a couple of four inch planks into a pair of oars.

The pins were the right distance apart for rowlocks. The blades of the oars were the right thickness, but the rest was rather thin.

He was working within a few yards of the river, and, putting the oars in the coffin, he carried it to the water, launched it, got in, and the friendly current carried him out into and down the river. As soon as he had gone far enough from shore he took up his oars, thereby steadying his improvised boat, which was topply.

Charlie had been taken up the river some distance above the plantation where he had been nursed and floated back to it. He kept awake till morning; then, being young and the young requiring sleep, he lay flat on his back and settled to slumber.

Mabel Owen arose early that morning, got the breakfast for the family and went out to mourn for her lost lover. She was sitting on a stump on the bank of the river when, looking northward, she saw something like a boat in the distance. As it approached it did not show the curved outline of a skiff. It was rather a parallelogram with bulged sides, at no angle. When it came near enough to be distinguished she saw that it was a coffin with a body in it.

Her first thought was that the ever changing Mississippi had washed into a graveyard and let out a corpse. But she couldn't understand why it had no lid. The grewsome boat came on with the current till it floated directly under the bank where Mabel sat. A recognition of her lover and a remembrance of his promise to come back to her if he had to come in his coffin came to her simultaneously, and she gave a shriek sufficient to raise the dead.

It certainly raised the living, for it wakened Charlie, who opened his eyes and saw his girl bending over the bank directly above him. He sat up, grasped the oars, turned his boat to shore, and in a few minutes the lovers were clasped in each other's arms.

Charlie didn't stay long with her, however. He rejoined his command, but after the war returned for his sweetheart.

There is no record as to how the big deserter got on without a coffin.

SPOKE ENGLISH IN BERLIN CAFE; WERE EXPELLED

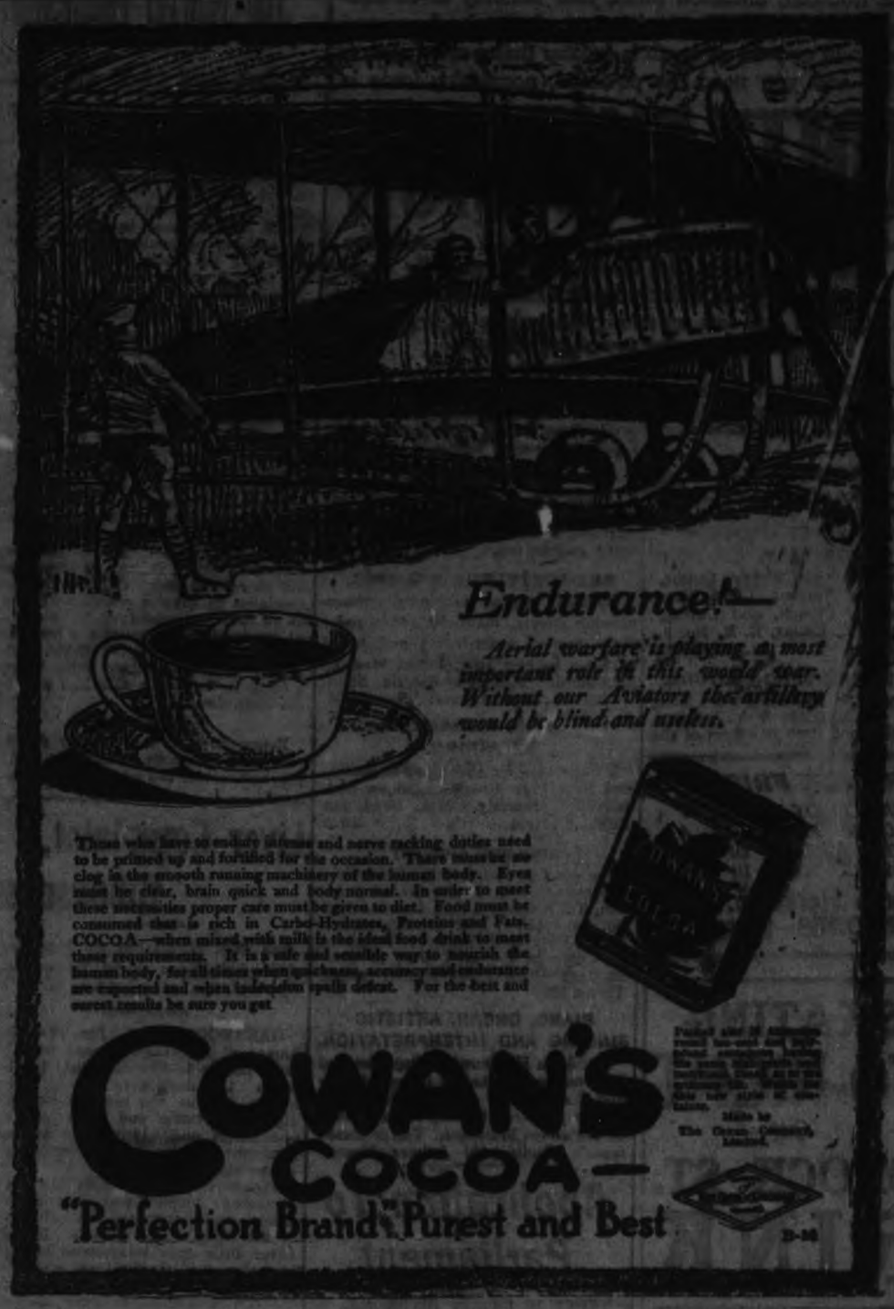
As we dined together one evening in a widely known Berlin restaurant, we were conversing in English. Seated at the next table was a quartette of officers home on furlough. Presently a waiter stepped up to us and said that the officers objected to our speaking the English tongue.

Knowing that we were well within our rights we refused to discontinue the conversation. The four officers then rose, stood stiffly at attention, and demanded that we be ejected from the restaurant. It was a very unpleasant and humiliating experience; but, when we look back, we cannot fail to see the humour of it, with the man standing so ridiculously straight in the centre of the place.

The American, as host, approached the group and endeavored to explain; but he was swept aside with haughty gestures. When he returned to the table, the proprietor informed him that he would be unable to serve the rest of the meal, and we were compelled to leave the restaurant.

This incident leaked into print and caused considerable discussion. The verdict, however, was in favour of the officers, and their very rude and uncalled for action met with universal approbation.



Those who have to endure intense and nerve racking duties need to be primed up and fortified for the occasion. There must be no clog in the smooth running machinery of the human body. Eyes must be clear, brain quick and body normal. In order to meet these necessities proper care must be given to diet. Food must be consumed that is rich in Carbo-Hydrates, Proteins and Fats. COCOA—when mixed with milk is the ideal food drink to meet these requirements. It is a safe and sensible way to nourish the human body, for all times when quickness, accuracy and endurance are expected and when indigestion spells defeat. Application To Parliament

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an application will be made by the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, at the next session thereof for an Act for the following purposes:

1. TO CONFIRM By-law Number 2043, being a By-law entitled, "A By-law to authorize the borrowing of $320,000.00 by the issue of debentures, to construct a high level bridge over the Otonabee River at Hunter Street, and a bridge across the Otonabee River at or near London Street, to at or near Hazlett street," and to provide for the amendment of said By-law that debentures may be issued thereunder for thirty years instead of twenty years, as provided in said By-law, and to carry out such amendment and variation in said By-law.

2. TO AUTHORIZE the said Corporation and the Peterborough City Trust Commissioners, (a) to apply any surplus which may arise in the general administration of the City's sinking fund as a whole, after full and adequate provision has been made for the individual sinking fund of all debenture debts, as required by by-laws, constituting them, towards the creation, addition to and maintenance of sinking funds for the purposes of providing for the payment in full as they mature, of those debenture debts of the Corporation which do not now provide for sinking funds, or which only provide for partial sinking funds; (b) instead of investing separately the annual sinking fund levy in respect of any particular debenture debt, or the interest arising from the instruments in the sinking fund applicable to any such debt, to invest from time to time the whole or any part of the sinking fund moneys which may be on hand in such amounts as may be deemed desirable, provided that a return shall be made to the City as at the 31st December in each year, showing the exact amount that should be accumulated as a sinking fund for each individual debt, in accordance with the terms of the By-law constituting such debt, and the aggregate of the securities held applicable to the sinking fund as a whole; (c) and to transfer to the sinking fund from time to time the unrequired balance of any loan which may have been secured through the issue of debentures, also any other moneys which may from time to time be received by the Corporation in the realization of real estate or other permanent assets.

4. TO PROVIDE that any member of the Peterborough City Trust who absents himself for resolution of the said City Trust, without leave being granted to him, or being authorized to so absent himself by resolution of the said City Trust, shall thereby vacate his position as a member of the said City Trust, and cease to be a member of said City Trust, and that the other members of the said City Trust may then appoint in the place and stead of the said member, whose position is vacated, a new member who shall hold office during the unexpired period of time for which the said member vacating his office was appointed.

5. THAT Chapter 56 of the Ontario Statutes, 1892, be amended to permit the said City Trust to expend any moneys in its hands not required for immediate use, in the alteration or reconstruction of buildings owned by the said Corporation or the said City Trust or in rebuilding the same or for any other purpose mentioned in the Act set forth in Chapter 56 aforesaid.

6. The amount of the rateable property of the Municipality of the sum of $21,206,155, and the existing debentures debt, exclusive of local improvement debts, payable by local special rates, is the sum of $2,209,252.31, of which the following are the particulars: Waterworks $316,000.00 (secured by waterworks rates and sinking fund), local improvements $236,000.00; local improvements, $209,252.31; public schools, $266,500.00; Collegiate Institute, $75,421.00; Protestant Home, $19,000.00; general city debentures, $1,043,500.00.

S. T. GORDON, City Solicitor.

SPECIAL VERSUS SIDE LINE POULTRY PRODUCTION

The Back Yard Flock Will Take Care of all Waste—Poultry Can Be Kept to Good Advantage.

At this time when economical production is of first consideration, the question of whether production should be increased by encouraging the number of poultry farms or by increasing the flocks kept on farms and in back yards in the towns and cities becomes of special interest.

Poultry Specialist.

That the poultry specialist usually gets better results than the farmer, goes without saying. He gets better results because he has to; if he did not he would soon be out of business. He has nothing but his poultry to depend on; he must show a profit. It costs him so much more to feed his poultry than it does the farmer that his only salvation is in increased production. He must get it or fall by the wayside—one of the failures in the poultry business.

With the present high and ever ascending prices of feed, it is becoming more and more difficult for the specialist to show a satisfactory profit so that we must turn for increased production to sources where the feed problem is not so acute. This brings us to the mixed farm where a flock is kept as a side line and to the town dweller.

Farm Flocks.

Every farm in the country should carry a flock large enough to make the best use of the unsaleable grains, vegetables and waste milk. There are few farms that could not to great advantage carry a flock of at least one hundred hens. But the flock must be put on a business basis. One member of the family, preferably one of the younger members—should be given full charge. Careful records should be kept and all wasters promptly disposed of. In this way the production may be greatly increased without any corresponding increase in cost.

Most of the work will be done by one of the younger members of the family. It will interfere very little with the general farm work. It will generally be necessary to purchase some feeds to supplement these available on the farm, but by so doing much of the lower grade products may be fed to produce a greater profit than if sold or fed to any other live stock.

The Back-yard Flock.

The greatest hope for increased production at the present time lies in the back-yard flocks. There is no reason why every city, town and village should not be wholly or in great part at any rate, self-supporting from an egg standpoint. There are hundreds and thousands of dollars' worth of good feed thrown in the garbage pails every day. The waste going on even yet in our cities is simply appalling. The kitchen waste from the ordinary family of five or six people may be fed to best advantage to a flock of about twenty-five birds. This is more than many will want to keep, but a flock of this size will only require a house about twelve feet square—even a little less will do—no yard room is necessary and the eggs produced should keep the house supplied and still leave enough to sell to less thrifty neighbours, to pay for all the supplementary feeds which it is necessary to purchase.

What is more tempting to the appetite than an absolutely new laid egg from a flock that has been cleanly fed? Once used to home produced eggs, the consumer will never be content to depend on store eggs. If you don't believe this, try it.

Under present conditions, increased production should not be brought about by increasing the number of poultry farms, but rather by increasing the size and number of farm flocks, culling closely, and keeping nothing but good producers and last but of primary importance—by the increase in number of back-yard poultry plants where flocks may be kept largely on feed that would otherwise be wasted.

Liver Complaint, Biliousness

And Sick Headaches Go Hand-in-Hand and Are Cured When the Action of the Liver is Awakened.

GANANOQUE, Ont., Jan. 18.—"Biliousness" is the one word used by most people to describe their trouble when the liver gets out of order, leaves bile in the blood, upsets the digestive system and brings on sick headaches and irritatable temper, stomach troubles and irregularities of the bowels.

The trouble begins with the liver becoming torpid and sluggish in action, and disappears when the liver is set right. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure biliousness promptly because of their direct action on the liver. They thoroughly remove all the symptoms because of their combined action on kidneys, liver and bowels.

Rev. George Alton, Gananoque, Ont., writes: "I had been suffering from bilious attacks for four years. I was very weak, had headaches, and my stomach was so bad that I could hardly eat anything without being troubled by it. I had tried cures, herbs, pills and salts, and was under the doctors care for some time, but instead of getting better I seemed to get weaker. I was unable to fulfill my appointments on Sabbath and had to secure help. I used to take dizzy spells and could not walk across the floor straight. I had almost given up all hope, and my wife said that if I did not get better we would have to quit the work of the ministry. However, in looking over The British Whig, the well-known Kingston paper, I saw Dr. Chase's advertisements in it, and read how Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills had helped others who were troubled as I was. I resolved to give these pills a trial, and I must say that in a short time I obtained relief. I continued taking them for some time, and now I am able to resume my work again. From the benefit I have obtained from these pills, I would recommend them to all who suffer as I did."

(Endorsed by Rev. C. Cunningham, 124 First avenue, Toronto:—"This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with George Alton of Gananoque, and believe his statement with reference to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct.")

AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

EASED BY SECOND DOSE OF Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all-gone" sinking feeling, or, again you may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die.

In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond question, marvellous.

Mrs. Frank Arsenau, Newcastle, N.B., writes: "I have awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At present my sister is using them for nervousness, and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price, by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Rheumatism Overcome By Tanlac and Garbett is Able to Work Again

"It's thirty-five miles from here to Schomburg, where I live, but I'd go that far for Tanlac any day," said James Garbett in an interview at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Berry, 14 Jillson Avenue, Toronto, recently. Mr. Garbett has lived in Schomburg for more than thirty years, owns a valuable farm near the city, is also noted as a hunter and trapper, and is highly respected by all who know him. Continuing his statement, Mr. Garbett said:

"My daughter has been telling me for a long time that Tanlac was the best medicine in the world and now I know it for myself. For the past two or three years I have been bothered with rheumatism which got so bad during the past summer and fall that I couldn't do a bit of work. In fact, I was so crippled up I just had to hobble around. Every muscle and bone in my body seemed to be affected and my left arm hurt so bad I couldn't raise my hand to comb my hair. My shoulders and sides, hips and legs and back were all right stiff and hurt so bad when I got up out of my chair the folks could hear me groan all over the house. The leaders and muscles of my legs cramped and hurt so I could hardly walk and kept me from getting my rest at night. My joints just ached and pained and kept me in agony nearly all the time.

"All my neighbours know how I suffered and now they can see how Tanlac has helped me. I always believed in the old fashioned remedies but now I have to admit that Tanlac has them all beat. I have hardly finished my second bottle yet and I have never seen anything knock out rheumatism like it has mine. Being well along in years, I didn't expect it to help me, but I can see the biggest difference in the world. I haven't been bothered by that pain in my muscles and bones since I started on it, and my stiffness is fast leaving me. My legs don't cramp any more, my back don't hurt and I rest well at night. I'm able to go to work now, and when I get back home I'm certainly going to take some Tanlac with me. In fact, one of the reasons I'm here is to get Tanlac."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—There was an urgent request for a different purpose, and we ask what is prayer. In the language of the poet Montgomery:

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire,
Uttered or unexpressed,
The motion of a hidden fire
That troubles in the breast.

Prayer is the burden of a sigh,
The falling of a tear,
The upward glancing of an eye
When none but God is near.

Prayer is the simplest form of speech
That infant lips can try,
Prayer, the sublimest strains that reach
The Majesty on high.

Prayer is the Christian's vital breath,
The Christian's native air,
His watchword at the gate of death,
He enters heaven by prayer.

Prayer is the contrite sinner's voice
Returning from his ways,
While angels in their songs rejoice
And say: Behold, he prays.

The saints in prayer appear as one
In word and deed and mind,
When with the Father and His Son
Their fellowship they find.

Nor prayer is made on earth alone,
The Holy Spirit pleads,
And Jesus on the eternal throne
For sinners intercedes.

O thou by whom we come to God,
The life, the truth, the way,
The path of prayer thyself hast trod,
Lord, teach us how to pray.

S. D. Gordon says: The greatest thing anyone can do for God and for man is to pray. The great people of the earth to-day are the people who pray. Well the week of prayer is past. How grand to know the churches united in this wonderful privilege.

There is a place where spirits blend,
Where friend holds fellowship with friend,
A place than all beside more sweet
It is the blood bought mercy seat.

No sooner had the United States entered the war than the Northern Presbyterian church of that country, through the moderator and other delegates, went to the President and said:

Mr. President, we offer you the resources of our church at this time of the nation's need. The President replied: If you would assist the government in the great task which it has undertaken, go back to your churches and maintain the spiritual life of the people at flood-tide.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, who is on a visit here in the interests of our holy Christianity, said: Some people say the church has failed. He exclaimed: I tell you the church has not failed. The very first to come forward in the time of the nation's need was the church, The Red Cross sprang up. Walking our hospitals, ministering angels of mercy to our wounded are The Y.M.C.A. look hold, cheering the homesick lads. The Y.W.C.A. built huts to house the wives and mothers of our men. All these are merely the church in action. I say again, the church has not failed, and don't let anyone tell you she has, he said. However that, the church needed a spiritual revival. God cannot trust us with peace until we return to Him. Eph., 3.21. "Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end, amen."

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards — Receipts: 50 cars, with 650 cattle, 79 calves, 1,600 hogs, and 138 sheep and lambs.

Cattle are beginning to arrive at the market, and for the first time this week there was some semblance of activity in the trading yesterday. Supplies, however, were woefully short, and under the quite abnormal conditions prices were necessarily high, but, of course, not an actual criterion of the market as it would be were receipts normal. As it was, a load of steers sold at $13.30 and a half-load sold at $13.50. Good to choice butcher lots sold strong at $11.50 to $12.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and half sick the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

PETROGRAD IS UNDER MARTIAL LAW

THE CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY MEETS TO-DAY

BOLSHEVIKI PLACE PETROGRAD UNDER MARTIAL LAW TO-DAY

"All Attempts at Revolt Are To Be Vigorously Suppressed" Declares the Degree--However Messages Show That Anarchy is Reigning in Parts of Russia and That Transportation is Disorganized--Austrians Shot For Their Sympathy With Russian Socialistic Views.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 18.—Petrograd was declared under martial law to-day by the Bolsheviki Safety Commission.

"All attempts at a revolt are to be vigorously suppressed," the decree declared.

The martial law declaration is evidently designed to suppress any possible disorder incident to the meeting of the Constituent Assembly, scheduled for to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, January 18.—A Russian wireless message picked up instructed all Peoples' Councils throughout the land to "take most drastic measures" to suppress anarchy. The message recounted disorders and excesses at railway stations; and declared railways were in the hands of mobs and that cars were plundered.

"This start of anarchy has entirely disorganized transportation, creating indescribable sufferings," the wireless asserted.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 18.—There is nothing of interest to report, says to-days official announcement.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, January 18.—Orders forbidding all Socialist propaganda in the German army have been issued by the German military authorities, according to a despatch to-day from Switzerland. Socialist newspapers are forbidden to be sent to soldiers.

(By Jos. Shapiro.)

PETROGRAD, January 18.—Whole companies of Austrian troops have been ordered shot for their sympathy with Russian Socialist views, according to reports reaching here to-day.

The German Government is making strenuous ekorts to stop the spread of the Russian propaganda and of sympathy with the Russian beliefs.

Foreign Minister Tretsky himself telegraphed from Brest-Litovsk today that the German Government was "deliberately garbling" reports of the peace negotiations.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 18.—The capture of 1,300 Kaiserenite officers near Kharkoff was announced to-day. The Bolsheviki troops have occupied the towns of Voroshba, Padolsk and Parfa in the Chernigoff districts.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Eng., January 18.—A fever of opposition to the Government and demand for peace is spreading over Austria as the masses of the people begin to realize the likelihood that peace they crave may collapse through the arrogance of their militarist leaders.

Lausanne, Berne and Zurich despatches to-day reported numerous demonstrations. Strikes are reported to have started in scores of factories at Vienna, Gratz, Brunn, Linzan and elsewhere.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BERLIN, via London, January 18.—Livelier fighting southwest of Cambrai, was all to-day's official statement had to report.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 18.—Germany has made "tempting inducements" to Serbia, in a fruitless attempt to secure a separate peace, it was authoritatively learned in diplomatic circles to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS (Official), January 18.—The Germans made two raids last night on the Champagne front, but were repulsed at all points. There was heavy gunnery all along the line.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 18.—Serious strikes, accompanied by rioting, have taken place at Vienna and in other cities throughout Austria, according to News Agency telegrams to Zurich and other points in Switzerland.

PRESIDENT IS BEHIND THE FUEL CONTROLLER'S ORDER

Will Not Revoke the Regulation and Feels That the People of the Country Will Accept It as Having Been Totally Necessary

BENEFITS EXPECTED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By R. J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Wilson stands squarely behind Fuel Administrator Garfield in enforcement of his unprecedented industrial suspension order, effective to-day east of the Mississippi.

It may be stated officially that the President will not revoke the order and feels that within three weeks the people of the country will accept it as having been vitally necessary.

That the move has created an "unfortunate situation" is admitted, but that things "will assume an entirely different aspect soon" is predicted. The administration basis its hope for this on the following:

Ships loaded with supplies tied up in American harbours will be on the move.

Loaded coal cars stalled along the tracks, while great fuel needs are suffered at many points, will be delivered to their destination.

Freight congestion at all terminals and ports will be smashed.

The way will be cleared for industries, after a period of suspension orders has passed, to resume normal operation with as, or nearly as, normal delivery henceforth.

That this may prove true is admitted by all, but there is violent opposition in the committees against the manner of accomplishing these things. Leaders in Congress, many of them long administration supporters, and government officials declare Garfield sought the "path of least resistance" and avoided a business-like plan.

They insist that an order could have been issued providing that coal should be withheld from industries until the ships had been provided with bunker coal. By this system firms having coal could continue and a considerable portion of those now shut down would have been able to go on.

F. J. SQUIRE IS ACQUITTED

Evidence of Many Havelock Citizens and Dr. Jukes Johnston of Toronto Showed That He Had Suffered Physical and Nervous Breakdown

BOTH CHARGES DISMISSED

Fred J. Squire, a prominent citizen and business man of Havelock, was discharged yesterday afternoon by Judge Huycke in the County Court on two indictments of perjury that were based on his evidence at Fire Marshall Rogers' inquiry into the circumstances of the fire that destroyed the warehouse belonging to J. L. Squire & Son, on Saturday, 17th November. At that official investigation, whose judicial power the Court recognised, Mr. Squire falsely stated that he had received a threatening letter as chairman of the Military Exemption Tribunal, at Havelock, and that there were "about thirty" tons of coal consumed in the fire.

The evidence of an imposing array of witnesses, including his physician, Dr. Holdcroft, Rev. Mr. Adams, Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., Private Wm. Andrews, Capt. Stuart, and others, showed that Mr. Squire had not been in good health for more than a year, that during the last six months his physical decline had been particularly marked, and that this condition was accentuated by worry and anxiety over the responsibilities of the Military Tribunal. To Mr. Thompson he said that great pressure and influence had been brought to bear on him by men who were interested in exemptions, and he had told them that he would not be swayed in the performance of his duty. He is of a nervous, high-strung temperament, and his fellow-citizens declared their conviction that at the fire inquiry he was not responsible for the statements from which the perjury charges developed.

His evidence was supplemented and interpreted for the Court by Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnston, Chief Coroner of Toronto, whose reputation as an alienist is Dominion-wide.

In his address Judge Huycke pointed out that the only evidence against the defendant was the accusatory statement he delivered to Chief Thompson, admitting that he had not received a threatening letter and that the quantity of coal lost was considerably less than "about thirty tons."

"That statement," Judge Huycke observed, "is confusedly jumbled and bears indications of a lack of recollection and capacity. If I had to depend on that written evidence alone I'd have to find him not guilty. But in addition, there is the evidence of o enof the greatest alienists in Canada, who stated that through worry, illness, and for other causes was so confused and unstrung that the accused didn't realise what he was doing. There is also the evidence of his condition during the year, I can understand the worry and anxiety he had. I have no hesitation in finding him not guilty on both charges."

Immediately Mr. Squire was surrounded and congratulated by his Havelock friends, who had remained with him all day.

Overheard a Threat.

Robert Crawford, one of the many witnesses for the defence, swore that [illegible] had overheard a threatening remark that "Squire and his property should be blown to atoms." "I knew the man," said Mr. Crawford, 'and apparently he was not joking. I told Mr. Squire in order to put him on his guard. That was a few days before the fire, and while the Tribunal was in session.

Private Wm. Andrews, of the 93rd Battalion, in his testimony, said: "Mr. Squire told me he was unfortunate enough to be placed on the Tribunal, and had created a chain of enemies."

All the witnesses discussed Mr. Squire's condition and related incidents which revealed a general condition of debility, overtaxed health, and nervous tension that led to the conclusion Judge Huycke drew and which Dr. Johnston dicated as symptomatic of a certain crisis.

TRANSPORTATION MORE IMPORTANT THAN PRODUCTION AT PRESENT TIME

That is Fuel Administrator Garfield's Justification For Drastic Order—Prompted by the Necessity For Moving American Troops Abroad and Furnishing American Army and the Allies With Food and Supplies.

SIGNED LAST NIGHT

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.— America felt the pinch of war perhaps for the first time to-day with its industries hanging idle under the fuel conservation order issued to relieve the coal shortage and release fuel for ships loaded with supplies for the American army and the allies.

In face or protests predicting disastrous consequences and a formal request from the Senate to stay its execution temporarily, the order was signed last night by Administrator Garfield, with the approval of President Wilson. As sent out to the State, the fuel administrator's order contained but few changes from the form of abstract made public Wednesday, nor did it clear up to any great extent the confusion resulting from its lack of detailed interpretation. The fuel administrator justified his action in a lengthy statement last night, in which he was prompted by the necessity for moving American troops abroad and furnishing the American armies and Allies with food and supplies. The country, he said, has reached the point of overproduction as far as distribution and cantonment and manufacturing plants could well afford to remain idle for a short time until transportation, both rail and water, could catch up.

UNITING PRAYER SERVICES TO CONSERVE THE COAL

A committee composed of Messrs. Ackerman, Dumble, Armstrong, Fiske and Dr. Middleton, representing George St. Methodist Church; Messrs. Pettit, Wearing and Dr. Scott, representing Murray St. Baptist Church, and Messrs. Moore, Scott, Madill and Mason, representing St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, with the respective pastors of those churches, met yesterday to consider joint services to relieve the coal situation. After some discussion it was unanimously decided on motion of Messrs. Wearing and Ackerman to hold a joint mid-week prayer service in each of the three churches successively, commencing at George St. Methodist Church, Wednesday evening, January 30th, and continuing throughout the winter. It was also resolved on motion of Mr. Fiske and Dr. Scott to leave the matter of joint Sunday services to the decision of a committee composed of the pastors of the three churches and Messrs. Ackerman, Scott and Dr. Scott.

GERMAN CAMPAIGN TO BOLSTER UP THE MORALE OF SOLDIERS

Lectures, Pamphlets and Moving Pictures Are Being Used to Restore to the Huns the Belief That They Are Unconquerable

CONTEMPT FOR U.S.

Peterborough Examiner.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Jan. 18.—The Prussian propagandist guns are to-day turned toward their own troops. By lectures, pamphlets and movies, the attempt is being to restore in a self-doubting soldiery the before-the-Marne belief that they are unconquerable.

The propaganda is not ineffective. Prisoners talk confidently of the proposed drive on the west front.

From German prisoners it is known that America is being ceaselessly ridiculed. The United States has taken the place of Britain as "contemptible" in the German lexicon. The German soldiers are being told that the stories of a big American army are "bluff," that when the "Yanks" are put to the test they will fail to make good. None of the prisoners consider America a factor, believing the war will be finished before "the wind bags," as their propagandists term the American, can get under way.

DO NOT FAIL TO HEAR MR. ADAMS THIS EVENING

To-night, commencing at eight o'clock, Mr. Thomas Adams, town planning expert, will address a public meeting to be held in the Public Library. At six thirty o'clock Mr. Adams will meet members of the City Council and other municipal bodies at an informal banquet to be held in the Empress Hotel. Mr. Adams is visiting Peterborough at the request and invitation of the Engineers' Club. A treat is in store for those who plan to hear him tonight. At present Mr. Adams is on the staff of the Conservation Commission.

Seats for Sir Wilfrid Mentioned

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—The problem of securing seats for some of his most trusted lieutenants has been engaging the attention of Sir Wilfrid Laurier who has just returned from Montreal. Among those whom Sir Wilfrid desires to sit at his right hand in Parliament are Hon. Frank Oliver, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and E. Macdonald, M.P.

NEW FUEL ORDER MEANS HEAVY LOSSES TO U. S. MERCHANTS

In New York Alone Loss is Estimated at $12,000,000—Closing of Industries Will Affect the Pay of Millions of Working People

CAN'T BE ENFORCED?

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 18.—The fuel conservation order will result in a loss of $12,000,000 daily to New York merchants, according to estimates by the Merchants' Association. Of this amount clothing dealers will lose $2,000,000, it was stated.

John Mitchell, former head of the mine workers, and one of the best posted men on labour conditions, estimated that 2,500,000 men would be thrown out of work in New York State. The pay loss for the State, he estimated, would approach $7,000,000 daily.

The Retail Clothiers' Association alone estimated that 1,000,000 men employed by its members would be out of work. Business failures are certain, it was stated.

Lindley M. Garrison, former Secretary of War, expressed the belief that Fuel Administrator Garfield's order could not be enforced. He doubted the law's existence that clothed the administration with such power. The city stores will remain open to-day and to-morrow, it was stated, but they are uncertain what will be done Monday.

Eleven ships were coaled yesterday in this port. There were then on the waiting list 114 vessels.

PASSED THE EXAMINATIONS

Successful Candidates in the First Aid Tests

Following is a list of those who were successful in passing the "First Aid" examination, under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Association. The lectures were given during the fall by Dr. G. S. Cameron, and the examination was conducted by Dr. Greer and Dr. Eastwood; Mrs. Emma Morrison, Miss Minnie Poole, Mrs. Bertha Purdy, Miss Eva Rae, Miss May Wilson, Miss Jennie Richardson, Mrs. Gertrude Brown, Mrs. Gertrude Lemay, Miss Margery Hatton, Mrs. Lily Fairbrother, Mrs. Alice Stilson, Miss Mary Lees, Miss Carrie Saunders, Miss Ruth Denike, Miss Kathleen Thorndyke, Mrs. Mabel Gardiner, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, Mrs. Agnes Douglas, Mrs. Jessie Wood, Mrs. Grace Cameron, Mrs. Bertha Whitaker.

The certificates issued by the St. John Ambulance Association have arrived from Toronto, and are at the office in the Y.W.C.A. There are also a few certificates for candidates who passed the examination in Home Nursing last year. These may be had if called for.

A class in Home Nursing is being formed, to be conducted by Dr. G. S. Cameron, on Tuesday evenings, the first lecture to be given next Tuesday at eight o'clock. All who intend taking this course should register at once at the Y.W.C.A.

MAYOR DUNCAN WILL START BICYCLE

At 9 o'clock Saturday morning His Worship Mayor Duncan will set in motion the Oak Hall bicycle to be given away on Dollar Day. The wheel is now in the window, ready for starting. A new "Ivanhoe" bicycle, in grey enamel finish. The wheel was purchased from Mitchell's bicycle works; and the winner may have a choice of any finish of wheel and select a man's, lady's, boy's or girl's. Extra inducements will be offered, commencing Saturday and continuing to Dollar Day closing, and a ticket will be given with every dollar purchase from this time the wheel starts, so all purchases made Saturday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Dollar Day up to 6 p.m., will be entitled to a guess.

Prices will be attractive and savings considerable. Our goods are all well bought, having been purchased before the great advance in prices.

With Dollar Day on Jan. 24th, and our stock-taking on Jan. 28th, (the following Monday), you may rely on savings and at the same time a chance to secure a bicycle free.

Statement of Hun Aims Postponed

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Jan. 18.—German Chancellor Hertling has once again postponed his oft-advertised speech of German war aims, according to rumours which reached here this afternoon via Holland.

He had been scheduled to address the Reichstag Main committee this afternoon, presumably in reply to President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, JANUARY 18, 1918

AN ENERGETIC EXPEDIENT.

It may be or seem a little selfish to insist upon the fact that in the matter of the most urgent need, coal supply, Peterborough is favoured above other places, and to point out that Ontario is equally favoured compared with other countries. We have a scarcity of coal here, but fortunately we do not chiefly depend upon it to move the wheels of our factories and public utilities. For our purposes we have abundance of water power and electrical energy. Ontario, too, is favoured in that it has a pretty generous supply of electric power, lessening her dependence upon coal. Hon. Sir Adam Beck has brought into being a new block of 50,000 horse power, and when the great Hydro Chippawa power canal is complete, we shall have 300,000 horse power developed or developable. Per contra, in the United States, the home of coal, and the chief source of our domestic coal supply, the government proposes the extreme measure of ordering all manufacturers east of the Mississippi to shut down entirely for five days to conserve coal and permit the mines to overtake demand. This action will mean great financial loss and loss of employment; and having recourse to it shows the United States is determined to do everything it thinks should be done to help prosecution of the war. And it is possible that for the sake of peace and even-handed justice, Canada, which depends largely upon the United States for its coal supply, may be constrained to decide upon a similar action. We think, some of us, that it is rather high-handed of our fuel controller to threaten domiciliary searches for private hoards of coal; but in comparison with him, Uncle Sam's fuel controller is an elaborate autocrat.

Geologists tell us that there is no hard coal in Ontario; but in the play of nature's well known scheme of compensation, we have been endowed with extraordinary water powers which, as at this time, form a great substitute for, and conservation of, coal. We have not only the equivalent of abundant electrical energy, but we have splendid substitutes for fuel coal. We have, is properly utilized, still plenty of wood fuel; and we have immense peat deposits, the raw material of excellent fuel. Ontario is, after all, a favoured province, with valuable natural endowments, of which not the least are the supply of equivalents of fuel and industrial coal.

"What will Canada be after the war?" A much better and greater Canada in name and fact, or no Canada at all. And it's "up to" all of us to see that the latter condition doesn't come.

LEARNING HOW TO LIVE.

Hereafter the mills of the millers will not grind so "exceeding fine" as they have been wont to do. Beginning January 28th the flouring mills of Canada are to produce flour in a way to obtain a larger proportion of the wheat contents; that is, use 265 pounds of wheat to make a barrel of flour, instead of as formerly, using 300 pounds to a barrel. This will produce more flour from a given quantity of wheat, without impairing, but increasing, the nutritive value of the flour.

This process, saving 35 pounds of wheat in producing a barrel of flour, will not only increase the quantity of exportable flour for export, but save a very considerably larger amount of wheat for the same purpose. A saving of 35 pounds of wheat upon every barrel of flour will mean a saving of 600,000 bushels upon every million barrels ground. It takes a long time to get down to the fundamentals of saving, but the practice of economy is well worth while, both in the matter of material results and in the lessons of thrift we are thus taught.

This brutal war has literally enforced extensive practice of thrift, and thereby has taught us how to live. The enforced economy thrust upon our people in numerous ways has not done us any harm; it has shown us that we can live comfortably and without impairment of health, upon a more economically ordered diet, and that physical comfort can consist with the avoidance of wasteful use of the means of living.

War conditions and demands, and the accompanying aeroplane prices have not been altogether an evil. They have combined to teach us how to live in the way of more economical use of the means of living. The lesson, well learned, will fit us for better discharge of all our duties when peace conditions come again.

Hon. Frank Carvell says that the railways of Canada have always been self supporting. So has the son who has lived on his father—in the matter of legs; but the paternal purse, like the national purse, has been flattened all the same

ORGANIZE FARM PRODUCTION.

A news paragraph states that seven thousand five hundred workers are needed by Ontario farmers to help them meet the demands of crop production. The time is getting on for spring work on the farm; and if these men are needed, there will, it seems obvious, also be needed systematic and organised effort to supply the labour demand. Though the work on the farm is nothing as hard as, nor as dangerous as fighting, it does not seem probable that the army of farm labour will be recruited by the voluntary system. Then since the production of food is held to be, and is, as important for war success as military operations—and is, indeed, a condition of their success—why not apply military methods to the provision of more farm help as well as the greater general productive operations? The application of the Military Service Act has brought many thousand men under the control of the governmet; and, of these, the majority are registered as not physically fit for active field service on the war front, but are abundantly fit for field service on the farm front. While the government is enrolling and equipping and mobilizing the figthing force, and has authority to send them where they are needed, why not at the same time mobilize out of the abundant material at command, a few regiments of farm workers, under military, or quasi military, discipline, and its members drafted to whatever point or places their services may be utilized.

Of course the details have to be worked out as can be done by the abundance of competent organizing ability available. By some such means as this the problem of farm labour may be solved—by system applied by authority, instead of being left at loose ends to solve itself, or rather not to be solved at all. The advantages of organization and system as conditions of effective accomplishment, are by no means confined to military operations proper.

If official—government — interest, initiative are necessary to the success of the larger operations for greater food production, similar conditions are demanded by the work of production, by utilization of vacant lots and back gardens. The City Council might head the crusade and, assisted by others, might inaugurate a little local Victory Loan "hurrah" in the interests of exciting interest and arousing enthusiasm in the vacant lot and back yard garden enterprise. Business cannot be successfully conducted without advertising; and many other things, like greater production even on a small scale—of food supplies, needs the application of energetic and stimulating missionary work.

HOW HEARST GOVERNMENT DEFIED PUBLIC OPINION IN INTERESTS OF MORALITY

If the little Attorney-General of Ontario who talks about "camouflage" still has his ear to the ground he may eventually learn that the people of this Province are most seriously concerned in certain war-time camouflage which has been carried on at Queen's Park.

Take, for instance, the handing of Provincial licenses to alien promoters and speculators for the operation of new race-courses, protested against by the citizens of Ontario. The public have not forgotten the sense of war-time responsibility which prompted the Government to grant such a licenses for the operation of the so-called Devonshire track, near Windsor, in a community where two courses were already operating, and in the face of petitions and protests from the residents. They have not forgotten that as a result of the action of Hon. I. B. Lucas and his colleagues, the late Oliver Wilcox, Conservative member for North Essex, rose in Parliament and appealed for redress to the Federal power. "I come to this House," Mr. Wilcox is recorded in Hansard as saying, "as the representative of a free constituency that has been outraged to ask that this evil may be remedied."

Appeals to the Government in which Mr. Lucas was Attorney-General had been met by the administrative declaration that the Provincial Government had no option in the matter, that the license must issue as a matter of course under the law.

Was this camouflage? In June, 1911, when the people were faced with no war-time stress, when Sir James Whitney was Premier, and Hon. J. J. Foy was Attorney-General, no such excuse was set up. At that time the Niagara Falls Driving Park Association applied for a Provincial license, and the money for the same was tendered to Hon. A. J. Matheson, then Provincial Treasurer. There were no tracks already operating at Niagara Falls, and no public protests or petitions from the residents against granting the license. As a matter of fact the local member supported its issue. The application was referred by the then Provincial Treasurer to the Whitney Cabinet, and Mr. Foy, the Attorney-General, communicated the decision of the Government to the Press on June 28. "The application is refused in the public interests," was his brief announcement.

The Government of Sir James Whitney, with Hon. J. J. Foy as Attorney-General, refused a peace-time application of Canadians to operate a racing track at Niagara Falls, where none existed and where no protest was forthcoming from the community. It did so "in the public interests." The Government of Sir William Hearst, with Hon. I. B. Lucas as Attorney-General, granted the war-time application of aliens to operate a racing track at Windsor, where two already existed, and where petitions and protests against its granting had been registered from the community. It explained that it "had no power to refuse."

Camouflage? Or simply the difference between the principles and standards of the Whitney Administration with Mr. Foy as Attorney-General, and the Hearst Administration with Mr. Lucas as Attorney-General.—The Globe.

PEAT TO SOLVE FUEL PROBLEM (?)

After making careful investigation, Controller John O'Neill believes that peat can be delievered in Toronto at a cost of $6.80 per ton, and would go a long way toward solving the domestic fuel problem.

Mr. Eugene Haanel, Director of the Department of Mines, Ottawa, states that large quantities of peat are to be found at the door of practically every large town in Eastern Canada. In 1910, through government experiments it was learned that the cost of preparing raw peat ready for loading on cars amounted to $2.70 per ton. In 1913, when a private company took over the plant, it was found that the cost of the peat loaded on cars could be reduced o $2.10 per ton. Owing to a shortage of capital, however, the firm had to cease operations after the outbreak of the war.

If conducted on economic lines Mr. Haanel believes that even this price could be reduced. He suggested that a representative be sent to Ottawa for a conference if the city intends taking up the matter.

WILL INVESTIGATE THE PEAT QUESTION.

Controller O'Neill intends to investigate the proposition, and believes that the government should develop the peat bogs at once, so that a supply may be obtainable next winter.

Past efforts to market peat have not met with success owing to there being an abundant supply of anthracite coal obtainable at a price ranging around $6 per ton. Controller O'Neill is convinced that never again will coal be obtained at such a price, and thinks that peat would provide an abundant fuel supply at a considerable saving over the present prices.

"If a new fuel supply is not secured I am afraid there will be great suffering next winter," said the Controller.

According to government statistics there are over 7,000,000 tons of dry peat available within a radius of 10 miles of Toronto.—The Globe.

ANNUAL MEETING OF COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Officers Elected and Reports of the Past Year Presented —Local Council Will Have Representatives at Police Court Cases in Which Women Are Involved—Food Conservation Will Be Studied.

At the 5th annual meeting of the Local Council of Women, held yesterday, the following election of officers was made for the work of 1918:

President—Mrs. Harstone (acclamation).
First Vice-President—Mrs. Kendry.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Mowatt.
3rd Vice-President—Mrs. Gardiner.
4th Vice-President—Mrs. Stevenson
Cor.-Secretary—Mrs. Jamieson.
Rec.-Secretary—Mrs Morris.
Treasurer—Miss Nina Davidson.

COMMITTEES.

Laws for Better Protection of Women and Children — Mrs. Cruick-shanks.
Suppression of Objectionable Printed Matter—Mrs. Cannif.
Care of Mentally Deficient — Miss Lundy.
Finance—Miss Davidson.
Immigration—Miss W. Parker.
Press—Mrs. F. C. Neal.
Citizenship—Dr. Jessie Birnie.
Supervised Playgrounds — Mrs. Mowatt.
Moral Standard—Mrs. Stevenson.
Public Health—Mrs. Mann.
Profession and Employment of Women—Mrs. Boucher.
Conservation of Natural Resources.—Mrs. Parsons.
Household Economics — Domestic Science Teacher.

AFFILIATED SOCIETIES.

The roll call of the affiliated societies was added, each society reporting on the work done and each indicating considerable activity in war work.

RESUME OF WORK.

Mrs. Neal, the retiring President of the Society, gave a brief resume of the work accomplished by the society, which showed how the Council of Women was a proper medium to bring about reforms, being a representative body of the women of the city, who are better informed on public matters.

FOOD CONSERVATION.

A letter from the Food Controller's Office, urging the conservation of food and the substitution of such foods as will save that which is necessary for the armies on active service, was read. So important is this question the Council of Women will take up the question and call a meeting to discuss what steps can be taken.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The financial statement, read by Miss Nina Davidson, showed a balance on hand of $22.86.

ALL MEETINGS OPEN.

All meetings of the Council of Women will be open to the public. In the matter of voting the vote will be confined to the President and three members of each affiliated society. All matters of discussion will be open to the general public.

WILL ATTEND POLICE COURT

The Council of Women has been repeatedly urged to take some steps in sending some responsible woman to the police court when girls or women come up, both for the protection and comfort to the woman, and to gain information which is too often repressed to protect the man in a case. In this way the Council felt they could save the hushing up proceeding which is done by men who "hang together," whilst the woman's name is given away. The sub-executive will find out details of how entry may be secured to the court for information of what case is coming up can be obtained, and report at the next meeting.

VOTE OF THANKS.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Neal for her service during her term of office as President of the Council was moved by Dr. Birnie who, in moving the vote, heartily congratulated Mrs. Neal on the manner in which she has overcome difficulties.

MRS. HARSTONE.

Mrs. Harstone, in accepting office, as President, expressed her intention of devoting her best energies to the interests of the important office which she now occupies.

DR. BIRNIE.

Dr. Jessie Birnie gave a brief illustrated talk of the social evil upon which she is giving a course of lectures. Mrs. (Dr.) Gallivan also spoke briefly on the methods of treating contagious disease, which is prevalent amongst immigrant children who come through Ellis' Island.

BOARD CONTEMPLATES A FREE HOSPITAL FOR CARE OF CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

Adjoining Townships Will be Invited to Unite With the Peterboro Board of Health in Giving Effect to Recommendation of Medical Officer of Health—Annual Report of the Acting Matron.

At last night's meeting of the Board of Health, Ald. W. Langford was elected chairman for the current year. Those present at the meeting were Mayor G. H. Duncan, Ald. J. Saunders, James Murty, Ald. W. Langford, and Dr. C. H. Amys, medical officer of health.

A letter was read from S. Kemp, stating that he had complied with the order of the Board and had put conveniences in his house, and asking that others be obliged to do the same.

Accounts Passed.

The following accounts for services rendered under the direction of the Board were ordered paid:

Peterbrough Utilities Commission, $15; also another account for $5.36; Miss H. Reid, $1. Mr. William Brown's tender for filling the ice-house at the Queen Mary Hospital at a contract price of $45, was accepted.

It was moved by Mayor Duncan, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the Board approve of the recommendation of Dr. C. H. Amys, M.O.H., that the present system of having "stock books" in the schools, which in other words means the handing down of the same books from one pupil to another, year after year, be discontinued, as it is unsanitary, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Board of Education and the Provincial Board of Health. The resolution carried.

The recommendation of the Medical Officer of Health regarding a roadway through the Hilliard Farm was referred to the Peterborough City Trust Commission.

A Free Hospital.

The Councils of the Townships of North Monaghan, Otonabee, Smith, and Douro will be informed that the Board is contemplating making the Isolation Hospital free, and they be asked if they wish to unite with the city in maintaining the hospital for the benefit of the residents of the townships and the city.

Miss H. Reid, acting matron of the Queen Mary Hospital, submitted the annual report covering the work of the hospital for the past year. Forty patients were admitted during the year, and of that number two deaths resulted from diphtheria and one from scarlet fever.

City Cases—

Scarlet fever	18
Diphtheria	12
Measles	2
Spinal Meningitis	1
	33

Out-of-Town Cases—

Diphtheria	6
	7

The Expenditures.

The expenditures were as follows:

Drugs and medicines	$153.71
Fuel	345.25
Groceries and provisions	1031.60
Light	43.32
Salaries	2030.91
Telephone	45.70
Water	60.00
Incidentals	391.89
Total	$4112.38

Mr. H. Beavis was recommended for a substantial increase in salary as caretaker of the hospital. He was said to be a very efficient caretaker.

Miss Reid also suggested that the hot water boilers be attached to the furnace, which would save at least three tons of coal that is now required for this purpose. Repairs are needed in the interior of the building, and the Board may make them during the present year.

MUST GO ON OR GO UNDER

Lloyd George's Emphatic Speech on Man Power Bill

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 18.—No man standing on the watch tower to-day could deny the urgency of the need for more men. No democracy had ever long survived when its adherents are not willing to die for it. This was the assertion of Lloyd George in the Commons to-day, discussing the man power bills.

"If any man here can find an honourable way out of this conflict without fighting it through," the Premier said, "let him tell it. My conviction is that the people must either go on or go under."

The Premier said that Germany had answered "never" to his demand for a reconsideration of the wrong of Alsace-Lorraine and had declared that Germany would go on until Mesopotamia and Palestine were restored to the tyranny of the Turks.

Mr. Lloyd George said there had been no answer from Germany to the recent statements of the Entente Powers on war aims. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Von Ludendorff were brought back for a conference, but Foreign Minister Von Kuehlmann was not allowed to speak.

"Why?" asked the Premier. "Because Prussian military power is dominant. The answer to be given will be given from the cannon's mouth."

SOME FOOD ARTICLES MAY BE PROHIBITED

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 18.—"White flour, beef, bacon and other foodstuff may soon disappear from the Canadian household," announced Food Controller Hanna to-day.

"The people of Canada are willing to go a long way in accepting food restrictions. They are pretty well prepared for absolute prohibition of the use of certain articles of food, even to a degree that is not without its danger to public health.

"Absolute prohibition of some foods is a problem of the day in Canada as well as in the United States.

"The time may be not far distant when the choice of the consumer will be between eating what's left and going without.

"The price of flour will likely be fixed within a short time. Beginning February 28th all bread in Canada will be of one standardized quality.

"Experts are now at work figuring out the decrease in cost of production of flour and what price may be fixed with a view to lowering the price to the consumer."

"Certain foodstuffs must go overseas," Mr. Hanna states. "Beef and bacon are two of them. The boys at the front must have these. It will, therefore, be up to the public to substitute other foods for beef and bacon. If the people insist on eating meat they will have to pay more for poultry, lamb, veal and so on. If they don't care to pay more and insist on getting these at any cost, well, there is nothing left but to become genuine vegetarians."

Churches To Hold Union Services

A Measure to Conserve Coal —Meeting Yesterday

Following are the minutes of a meeting of committees representing St. Paul's Presbyterian, Murray Street Baptist and George Street Methodist Churches held yesterday, (Thursday), to consider action for the purpose of conserving coal.

There were present:

Representing St. Paul's Church — Rev. R. Pogue, Messrs. W. Madill, H. O. Fiske, Wm. Scott, D. H. Moore and E. F. Mason.

Murray Street Church—Rev. J. R. Webb, Dr. W. D. Scott, Messrs. Jos. Wearing and L. J. Petzit.

George Street Church—Messrs. D. W. Dumble, B. F. Ackerman, Dr. J. E. Middleton and S. R. Armstrong.

Moved by Mr. Wearing, seconded by Mr. Ackerman, that the three churches here represented unite in a week-night service, the first to be held in the George Street Church on January 30th, the next on the following Wednesday night in St. Paul's Church and the third on the next Wednesday night in the Murray Street Church, and that the meetings be held during the remainder of the winter in the churches in this order.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Armstrong, seconded by Dr. Scott that the matter of union services of the congregations of St. Paul's, Murray Street and George Street churches be referred to a committee consisting of the Pastor and one layman from each church with authority to take such action as they believe the conditions require.—Carried.

The laymen appointed on the committee were Dr. Scott of the Murray Street Church, Mr. Fiske of St. Paul's Church, and Mr. Ackerman of George Street Church, and Rev. Mr. Pogue was appointed convenor of the Committee.

Miss Agnes Logan's New York Piano Success

New York's Great Artists and Critics Give High Promise of Her Piano Playing

Miss Jeannette Kilmaster, piano and vocal teacher of the Conservatory of Music faculty returned to the city yesterday from what may be termed a triumphant trip to New York.

She went to New York, taking with her her pupil, Miss Agnes Logan, Peterborough's phenomenal young pianiste, who, though only twelve years of age, has, under Miss Kilmaster's splendid instruction, made remarkable progress, and attained a pianistic proficiency that rather opened the eyes of the New York critics and artists who had the pleasure of hearing her play.

Miss Logan first played for Mr. Riegler, manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, and Signor Poppi, Conductor of the Orchestra, and both agreed that she possessed remarkable technique.

She was also heard by Mr. Lamonde, the noted English organist of Trinity Church, who praised her general proficiency, warmly emphasizing especially the artistic spirit of her performance, and her interpretative intuition.

She also played before Gabriel Owitch, the great Russian pianist, who added to his hearty praise of her playing the comment that she had been well taught and had had well laid the foundation for the brilliant future development of "her remarkable natural musical talent."

Perhaps the most practical tribute to Miss Logan's exceptional ability was that paid by Mr. R. E. Johnson, a prominent concert impressario. He not only expressed the sum of what the others had said in praise of Miss Logan's ability and promise as a pianiste, but booked her for a concert performance in New York, in the company of distinguished artists, some time in April or May.

The concensus of opinion among those competent judges who heard Miss Logan play was that she had a brilliant musical future. They also agreed that so well was she being taught—by Miss Kilmaster—that she could, with advantage, remain under her tuition two or three years longer, before seeking the services of some great master, such as Hoffman or others.

Miss Logan and the family, including another very capable musical member, Miss Laura Logan, the capable violinist, who accompanied the party to New York, are to be congratulated on the success of her "trial trip," not forgetting congratulations to Miss Kilmaster, upon the creditable result of her capable piano instruction; and not forgetting the Conservatory of Music, which has in training the second great piano artiste to begin a career there.

Almost every style is in fashion, but straight-line models are most favoured.

Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author Says

EVERY WOMAN EVERY MOTHER EVERY DAUGHTER NEEDS IRON AT TIMES

There can be no beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women without iron. The trouble in the past has been that when women needed iron they generally took ordinary metallic iron, which often corroded, ruined stomach and did far more harm than good. To-day doctors prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron. This particular form of iron is easily assimilated, does not blacken nor injure the teeth nor upset the stomach. It will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, irritable people in two weeks' time in many instances, as I have used it in my own practice with most surprising results.—Ferdinand King, M.D.

NOTE: NUXATED IRON recommended by Dr. Ferdinand King can be obtained from any good druggist who will guarantee results or money refunded. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

fendant, stated that their business was flourishing and prosperous.

Rev. M. Adams, Methodist minister at Havelock, said he had consulted the Mr. Squire had unduly taxed himself by his business, his duties as Clerk of the Court, and the adverse criticisms directed at the Tribunal. Mr. Squire had said, excitedly, "I'll do my duty, though the yours me up or blow me up."

In Last July.

Heby Chase, a Belmont farmer, had noticed Mr. Squire's illness last July. He acted as if he had suffered a slight sunstroke. "I urged him to come out to the lake with me for a month, and told him he wouldn't be here long if he didn't. He said he'd like to go, but he had all his business to look after. He looked terribly bad in October," Mr. Chase observed. "He was always talking about the war and said that if the Germans were to take this country he would shoot his wife and himself. I told him he shouldn't have accepted the Tribunal work."

Joseph Chase testified in part: "I asked him why he didn't resign from the Tribunal. He answered, 'I can't resign, and all my friends have turned against me now. I feel that I am standing alone in doing this Tribunal work.'"

Mr. James Thompson said that Mr. Squire felt that the whole burden was upon himself. He had greatly failed in his physical appearance. "The work affected him just as I expected it would."

Capt. Stuart.

Capt. Stuart, the military representative at the Havelock Tribunal, stated that on 20th October he first noticed that Mr. Squire was worrying about the work.

"He asked me to explain to the people the operations of the Military Service Act. We held a public meeting and Mr. Squire seemed brighter for a day. He worried more than an average man would, and the rumours of threats showed their effects on him."

Dr. Biddlecombe: Mr. Squire has been on the verge of a nervous breakdown for a year, since a workman named Foley was found dead in the warehouse. Mr. Squire seemed to have a feeling that blame was attached to himself. I saw that the man had died of heart failure and in falling had knocked over a bag of bran that fell across his feet. From that time I saw that his nervous system was shaky. I advised him to take a holiday, but he said he was tied to his business.

Other details were adduced by witnesses and a number were not called by Mr. F. D. Kerr, counsel for the defence. Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution.

HAD LEG BROKEN

Last night Percy Revoy, while tobogganing with a number of other boys was proceeding up Cox's Hill, when a toboggan load ran into him and knocked the boy over, the result being that his left leg was badly broken.

He was taken to the home of Mr. Brady, Douro street, where every kindness possible was shown until Comstock's Ambulance arrived to convey him to his home at 292 Woodbine avenue. Dr. Baker and Dr. Amys were called in and rendered the very best services possible.

ANNUAL CONGREGATIONAL MEETING OF KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Encouraging Reports From All Departments of the Church —Increase in Salary for the Rev. J. A. McKenzie —Church Membership on the Increase—A Financial Statement.

The annual congregational meeting of Knox church was held on Wednesday evening. There was a large attendance of the members present, who took a keen interest in the proceedings. Mr. J. F. Morrison was appointed chairman for the evening, and presided over the meeting in his usual efficient manner. The meeting opened with scripture reading and prayer by Mr. Morrison, after which Mr. J. W. Buyers, secretary of the Board of Managers, was called upon to read the minutes of the previous annual meeting, which were duly approved.

The Reports.

The reports from the various organizations were then read. The message from the Session as submitted by Mr. T. R. Kenntdy, was read by Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, referred in part to the guidance and blessing of God, whose strength and comfort had been generously given to all who asked of him. There had been heavy strain and anxiety for the people, as a number of homes had been visited with great sorrow, and many had spent anxious days in thought and prayer for loved ones overseas.

The membership at present is 545, and the number of new members added during the year was fifty. We appreciate the faithful service accomplished by our workers whom we feel are the strength of our congregation. Mr. W. Watt, treasurer Missionary Fund report compared favourably with former years.

The Sunday School.

The report of the Sunday school was read by Mr. Roy Laing, secretary. It referred to the untiring efforts of Mr. M. Clark, superintendent and his assistant teachers to make the school as efficient as possible under the conditions, and with equipment which has been somewhat improved since the school was held in the church. It is much easier heated than the lecture hall, and thus effects a saving in fuel. The number on the roll is 560, averaging an attendance of from 200 to 300. Mr. Cecil Williamson has been appointed assistant superintendent, Miss Jessie Miller treasurer, and Mr. Jas. Gerrard vocal leader. ... ...

The report of the Berean Bible class was read by Mrs. Lyburn and showed excellent work under the leadership of Mrs. Rogers.

The report of the Volunteer Bible class was read by Miss Ruby Carr, showing good work under the guidance of Mrs. A. MacKenzie and Mrs. Ross, with a membership of 53 and receipts of $64.92. Flowers had been sent to the sick, and Red Cross work performed.

The report from the A. S. K. class was read by Mr. H. Henry, showing good work, and G. Cunningham, treasurer's statement, showed receipts of $79.81.

Brotherhood Class.

The report of the Brotherhood class was given by Mr. W. W. Yale, which showed that a successful and enjoyable excursion was conducted, and a play was held recently, which both netted a good return, which was turned over to the management.

The report of the Primary Department of the Sunday school was read by Miss M. Cunningham. There are 143 names on the roll. These are divided into five classes, with Miss MacDonald as superintendent.

The report of the choir was read by Miss Mabel Crocker, showing receipts of $81.65. The report from the Women's Missionary Society was read by Mrs. McPherson, showing that clothing had been forwarded to various places in the Northwest. The receipts were $81.31.

The report from the Go-Forth Club was read by Miss Ethel Buckham showing a membership of 54 and receipts $47.15,. With Mrs. A. MacKenzie as teacher, the ladies had taken the study of the social aspect of Foreign Missions. Clothing had been sent to various points.

The report from the Junior Mission Band was read by Miss Jean Mervin, showing a membership of 40, with Miss Margaret MacIntyre as President and Miss Lilian Cadwell as leader of the Society, has done excellent work. Christmas gifts were forwarded to the children at various points.

The report from the Ladies' Aid Society was read by Mrs. D. Beavis, showing that very efficient work had been done during the past year, with Mrs. W. Watt as president. The receipts totalled $649.67. Mrs. W. Watt read a statement regarding the Christmas boxes sent to the soldiers, showing that $89.63 had been collected for that purpose.

Financial Statement.

Mr. T. Carpenter, treasurer, submitted the financial statement, which showed the revenue to be $4,750.30, and the expenditure $4,640.78, balance $118.52. Mr. Carpenter also made a statement regarding the Building and Interest Funds, showing that the interest had been paid and $1,000 paid on mortgage.

Mrs. E. J. Mulligan's report of the expense fund of the W.M.S. showed receipts of $7.80. The report from the Young People's Guild, which was read by Mr. A. McLeish, was punctuated with moonlights and masquerades, which evidently proved very successful and netted the substantial sum of $285.67, the major portion of which was turned over to the management.

The report from the Board of Managers was read by Mr. J. W. Buyers, secretary, stating that the Interest and Buildings Funds had been amalgamated, and that contributions to this fund would now be collected monthly instead of annually as previously. The year had been characteristic of harmony, all having worked in unison. The social functions had been limited, partly owing to war conditions, and out of respect to members who are defending our Empire in France, to whom all honour is due. Reference was made of the efficient services of Mr. George Kenyon, organist, and members of the choir, to whom a vote of thanks was accorded.

Managers Re-elected.

The following managers were re-elected in order, according to ballot: Dr. J. M. McCulloch, J. W. Buyers, J. Tully and J. Morton, and the new managers elected were Messrs. A. MacKenzie and J. Waldie.

The following appointments were made:

Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, representative Protestant Home.

C. H. Huffman, representative Charity Board.

T. Carpenter, treasurer Building and Interest Fund.

M. Clark and W. H. Croft, auditors.

W. Watt, treasurer Missionary Fund.

Mr. Robert Mulligan, chairman of Board, took occasion to call the Rev. Mr. MacKenzie out of the meeting. The members might suppose he went out to inspect the buildings, but this was not necessary, as under the watchful eye of the genial caretaker, Mr. D. Beavis, everything is in good order. Probably the chairman wished to view the sky and get a glimpse of the first new moon of the year with his hands full, as this is said to be a good omen. However this may never be known, but they returned after a brief period and were admitted to the meeting. Mr. Morrison then, in a brief speech, reviewed the excellent work done by Rev. Mr. Mackenzie since coming to Knox church and referred to the kindly feeling and strong friendship existing between the pastor and members, and incidentally informed Mr. MacKenzie that as a mark of their appreciation the congregation had decided to increase his salary by $200.

Mr. MacKenzie, although taken by surprise, made a very suitable reply, thanking the members for their kindness, which in this form, was entirely unlooked for by him.

The hour being late, the Benediction was pronounced, but before dispersing, Mr. MacKenzie was subjected to numerous hand-shaking from the members, who showered their pastor with expressions of good will.

SIGNALLER JOLLIFFE TEMPORARILY BLINDED BY A GAS SHELL

Peterborough Boy However Has Recovered His Sight Thanks He Says to the Never-ending Patience and Care of the Nurses and Doctors.

SIGNALLER ROY JOLIFFE

Mrs. S. Jolliffe has received the following interesting letter from her son, Signaller Roy Jolliffe, formerly of the 39th Battalion, who was gassed at the Front on 13th December:

Ward 5,
Norfolk War Hospital,
Thorpe, Norwich,
22|12|1917.

Dear Little Mother and Dad,

How you must be worrying again, for by this time you must have had word that I am in hospital, having been gassed on the 13th December. Well, you must cheer up, for I shall be quite all right in a day or so. I expect I shall be in hospital for Christmas, but the doctor tells me that I shall be out within a week or so. I first felt the gas in my eyes and went completely blind, but thanks to the never-ending patience and care of the nurses and doctors I can see just as well as ever. Of course, I could not help making a meal of it when the shell dropped right at my feet. For two days I did nothing but vomit, and could hardly breathe; lived on milk alone for seven days. However, the danger is all over now, and all I need is a good rest and lots to eat, and I shall be O.K.

It is very strange the way this Blighty atmosphere cheers a fellow up. I hadn't been here more than 24 hours when I could see and almost speak. We had a very nice trip over. Arrived at Dover early yesterday morning from Calais. We receive every attention from the sisters and nurses here. They do anything we ask them. They are surely Angels of Mercy. May God bless them every one. The food is very good, too. In fact, I have felt a great deal better these last few days than ever I did in France.

I sent a card to both Harold and Hilda on Thursday, and the authorities here sent one to granny. Have just received a letter from Harold, and, of course, he is very pleased to know I was back in Blighty. They are getting married to-day, 22nd. I wish I could be there. However, I am content here. No doubt we shall have a good time. They are going to try and get up to see me. They'll have to hurry or I shall be away down to see them first. Now, dear, you will understand that this little illness has upset my plans for Christmas, for I was going to send you all a present and do lots of other things, but I missed my double pay for Christmas in France, and cannot draw my money until I come out of hospital; so I shall have to send Christmas presents then. I feel sure you would all rather know I was in Blighty, safe, than receive all the gifts in the world. It's too bad that I shall miss all those good parcels and cigs which I know you have sent, but still I would willingly lose them all to be in Blighty any time. Yes, and I'd give a limb to be back with you again, mother dear. I would not advise you to send any more until I get settled down, but if you can possibly spare a little money, please send it to Hal and he will send it to me. I shall have to send to him for a little, as I haven't a red cent for a stamp.

Well, mother dear, I hope you will all have a very happy Christmas. Don't be downhearted because of me. Tell the girls I will send them something later on. I hope dear old dad is getting along O.K. Now, tell him to be sure and have a good job, for I might surprise you all and come home any day. I intend to dig right in and make good.

Well, mother, I shall have to quit, for it is hard writing in bed. I shall write again in a day or so. Now, be sure and don't worry, any of you; but accept my wishes for a happy Christmas and a bright and prosperous New Year.

Please give my love to aunty, uncle, also the girls. Love to dad and yourself. Hoping this finds you all well.—From your ever loving son,

Roy.

WORKED HIS NERVE AND GOT THE COAL

Enterprising Hamiltonian Determined to Get Fuel at all Costs.

Hamilton, Ont. — The nicest guy in town has bobbed up again. And to prove that he is wise, he got a ton of coal in a manner that would have made Sherlock Holmes shiver with envy. After trying to purchase even a scuttle or two of the black diamonds, he found that he could not get any, and it looked as though Jack Frost would soon take possession of his home. He had just about made up his mind to break the 8th commandment, when his eye fell on the help wanted column of the morning paper, and the first thing he saw was a driver wanted by a local coal firm. He was on the job bright and early the next morning and secured the situation. He loaded a ton of coal as per instructions, for a customer, but it never reached the destination for which it was billed. Instead he took the coal to his own home, dumped it in the cellar, and then returned to the office and told the manager of the company what he had done, at the same time paying for the coal. There was nothing for the manager to do but like it, but the driver was fired right on the spot, despite the fact that he offered to finish out the day.

Foreigners Jumped A Hydro Contract

Six Italians and Finlanders were arrested here on Wednesday night of last week, on the charge of the Hydro-Electric Company operating at Healey Falls, of jumping a labour contract.

The me nwere imported from Montreal, their fares being advanced. They refused to work when they arrived at the Falls, and started out for Havelock to make their way back east. Thev were arrested when they reached here on instructione from the Hydro, and appeared before Magistrate Mathison on Thursday afternoon. They refused to fulfill their contract and were committed for trial at Peterborough. — Havelock Standard.

Semi-Annual Lonely Sale of Men's Clothing

Before you read the remainder of this advertisement, let it be clearly understood that we are giving you plain, honest statements regarding the former prices and reductions. No attempt is being made to over balance your judgement, with 'Hurrah! Prices Were Never Lower.' The Semi-Annual Lonely Sale has never been that sort of a bargain event and its success has increased year after year since its inauguration ten years ago. It serves the same purpose now as it did then. To clear such lines that have been sold down to one, or two garments—hence, the name Lonely—and to stimulate trade in January, which otherwise is a dull month. This is no store secret, it is only what we wish you and all to know who come to us during the Semi-Annual Lonely Sale.

PETERBOROUGH JUNIORS PLAY LINDSAY TO-NIGHT

The Peterborough juniors leave for Lindsay on the 5.35 G.T.R. train this evening for the third game in the series of home and home fixtures to decide the championship of this group of the junior O.H.A. The Petes are one down as a result of the first two games, but are confident of their ability of giving Lindsay a warm battle to-night and pulling out a victory on the round in the final game, which will be played in Peterborough a week from to-night. Stan Burgoyne, who refereed the other two games between the two clubs, will handle the bell in to-night's match. The Peterborough team will line-up as follows:

Goal—Murray.
Centre—Cherrett, capt.
Right wing—Park or Williams.
Substitute—Williams or Park.

To-night: Printers vs. The Macs.

In a game between the High Rollers of Water Street and the George Street Colts, played on the George Street Alleys, the Water Street bowlers won in a three-round game, and incidentally walked away with a box of cigars.

The total scores for the three games follow:

George Street Colts—
Hayes	518
Ballard	449
Sharpe	490
Patterson	574
Flaherty	403
	2454
High Rollers—

Solomon	493
	2526

The return game will be played on the Water Street Alleys next Wednesday night.

The Ackerman team challenges the Great War Veterans to a game to be played some time next week on the George Street Alleys, and the Bankers have agreed to play the winners.

WAR MENUS

How to Save Wheat, Beef and Bacon for the men at the front. Issued from the Office of the Food Controller for Canada

MENU FOR SATURDAY.

Breakfast.

Fried Herring
Graham Bread Marmalade
Tea or Coffee

Dinner

Boston Beans
Brown Bread Potatoes
Codilled Apples

Supper

Tomato Soup Toast
Cornmeal Cookies Jam
Tea

The recipe for Cornmeal Cookies, mentioned above, is as follows:

Cornmeal Cookies—

1-2 cup melted fat
1-2 cup molasses
1-2 cup corn syrup
1 egg
6 tablespoons sour milk
1-2 teaspoon soda
2 cups cornmeal
1 cup wheat flour

Combine the melted fat, molasses, syrup, beaten egg and milk. Sift the dry ingredients and combine with the liquid. Drop from a teaspoon onto a greased pan and bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes. This makes 55 to 60 cookies about 2 inches in diameter.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—At the meeting of the Western Dairymen's Association, at Stratford, on the 16th inst., the President in expressing his views, said that the importation of oleomargarine is still a grievance of the butter men, and put the blame on the Food Controller, and gave it as a reason for not co-operating in the interests of the country as a whole with its war economy, and he urged the Association to see to it that the end of the war also ends the life of oleomargarine in Canada. The Directors' report showed that the season was favourable for milk production, and no prolonged period of warm, dry weather prevailed. The report also admitted that factory cheese and butter making are conducive to live stock raising, the by-products of whey, skim milk and butter-milk being among the cheapest and best foods for young stock and of immense importance in the economic production of hogs and beef. Notwithstanding all these admitted facts so conducive to the high price of cheese and butter, the Association makes this unjust complaint.

How is that for loyalty to the Empire while passing through this dreadful war crisis? Would they have millions of poor people in the country, who are making sacrifices for the war, and some of them on the verge of starvation, deprived of the only butter they can afford to buy so that their food profiteers might swell their profits beyond all bounds? What a contrast between their loyalty and that of the United States citizens, whose oleomargarine sells for 28c while we pay 37c.

Profiteering is not confined to one man or set of men, but is far reaching according to the opportunities that present themselves.

Yours truly,
"PATRIOTISM".

Canada's Problems Not The Same

Fuel Controller Says they are Not Identical with Those of the United States

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—C. A. Magrath, Canadian Food Controller, commenting on Dr. Garfield's coal order, said to-day: It is merely an indication of the afct that the United States is at war. When a country is at war, one never knows what will happen at any moment.

"So far as the present situation in Canada is concerned, our problems are not identical with those of the United States. Canada gradually worked don to a war feeling a couple of years ago, and I believe it is generally felt that she has reached her present efficiency by a gradual process, which in a small country like this, can be done without any extraordinary measures being necessary."

Magrath said that when extraordinary measures were necessary in Canada the matter would be brought to the attention of the government immediately.

No Orders For Arrest

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shapiro.)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18. — Flat denial was made by the Smolny Institute, headquarters of the Bolsheviki government to the United States today, that any orders had been issued for the arrest of the King of Roumania.

The Bolsheviki officials expressed the belief that the attempt on Nicholai Lenine Monday evening, was part of a counter revolutionary plot.

Lenine, it was stated, would probably personally open the Constituent Assembly meeting and demand approval of the present government.

OBITUARY

MRS. W. H. IRWIN.

Julia, wife of Mr. W. H. Irwin, of this city, died last night, after an illness of some weeks' duration.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from Comstock's undertaking parlours. Rev. Mr. Wilson will officiate.

WILFRED KENNEDY.

The death occurred in Grand Rapids, Michigan, on Jan. 8th, 1918, of Wilfred Kenendy, formerly of Douro. He had resided in Michigan for almost twenty-five years.

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss a wife and three children, all of Grand Rapids; four brothers and one sister, namely: Patrick and Daniel of this city; Michael, John and Catherine of Douro. His mother predeceased him about six weeks ago.

The funeral took place in Grand Rapids, Mich.

JESSIE ANNIE SHINER.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred G. Shiner, 311 Frederick Ave., will sympathise with them in the death of their seven-year-old daughter, Jessie Annie, which occurred this morning after a short illness from appendicitis.

The deceased was a bright, lovable child, who will be greatly missed.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning. Service at the house at 10 o'clock.

Social and Personal

Mr. Dick Collinge, of Peace River, is here on a visit to his sister, Mrs. T. W. Meredith, Lansdowne Street. He brought with him a sample of petroleum from Oil Well No. 2, which is at the dawn of new development in the near future.

Visitors from out of the city, called here by the death of the late Mrs. Kelly, included her four sons, John of Detroit, Michael of Buffalo, James of Pittsburg, and William of Chicago, also Mr. Tangney of Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. Hoye, Mr. and Mrs. Barrie and Mr. and Mrs. McFadden, of Hastings.

Mrs. Cottrell and Mrs. Sharpe, who were in charge yesterday of the 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E. tea, had a most successful afternoon.

Mrs. Edgar Worth returned last night from Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Thurston of Portage La Prairie, are visiting friends in the city.

Last evening the lady members of the staffs of the Public Utilities and other City offices in the City Hall, met together to say good-bye to one of the deservedly popular members of the staff in the person of Miss Maud Adams, whose marriage takes place next week. Luncheon was served, and a very pleasant evening spent.

Miss Margaret Bryce of Keene is in the city visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bert Howson, and will be the guest of honour at a family reunion dinner at Mr. Howson's house this evening.

Miss Laura Logan and Miss Jeannette Kilmaster of the Conservatory of Music staff, returned last night from a two weeks' visit in New York.

Mr. Killaley returned last night from Toronto.

KILLED IN ACTION

Former Havelock Boy Meets Death at the Front

Pte. William White of Vancouver, a son of Matt White of Belmont, and a brother of Messrs. James, Archie, and Charles White of Havelock, was killed in action at the front on Nov. 4th last. Pte. White was married and leaves two small children. He enlisted in the 11th C.M.R. at Vancouver and went overseas about the same time as the 93rd. His death makes the first break in the family of eight children

Coal Shortage In Buffalo As Marked As In Peterboro'

Mr. Robert Hicks has returned from Buffalo, where, he states, mechanics and business men are losing a day's work and wages to stand in the fuel lines waiting for coal tickets, without which they are unable to obtain fuel. And under this system of apportioning supplies they receive only small quantities of from 300 to 500 pounds.

The conditions in Buffalo and Toronto are practically identical with those in Peterborough. In fact, there is a growing feeling in the United States that Canada is better off than the Eastern States.

Mr. Hicks stated that there was no occasion for alarm in Peterborough. The quantity of coal here has reached its lowest point, but by continued co-operation the distribution could be continued as effectively as it has been up to the present.

Lindsay Route To Toronto Open After A Week's Blockade

The first G.T.R. train from Toronto through Lindsay since last Saturday arrived here this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, nearly three hours behind the scheduled hour of arrival.

The G.T.R. service between Toronto and Peterborough has been directed through Port Hope since the blockade, but the entire Lindsay route has been cleared and the regular service resumed. The last train over this section was just a week ago today.

The Haliburton and Whitby lines were opened this morning, and a plough is working on the Coboconk road.

The Montreal superintendent of track personally directed the work on the Whitby road, using one of the big ploughs from the main line. It throws the snow to one side only, because of its use on the double-track system.

To Assist Government

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—A. E. Warren, assistant to the general manager of the Canadian Northern at Winnipeg, will assist the government in the capacity of expert adviser on railway operation during the existing critical railway situation in the Dominion. He has been loaned to the government for that purpose.

The report to the effect that Mr. Warren has been appointed director of all the Canadian railways with the exception of the C.P.R., is denied here.

A Letter From An "Anzac"

Australian Soldier Acknowledges Receipt of a Gift From Peterboro'

Mrs. S. Thomas, 516 Chamberlen street, has received the following letter from a wounded Australian soldier, who is in the Queen's Military Hospital, Beachborough Park, Shorncliffe, Eng. It is written in acknowledgment of the receipt of a pyjama shirt sent many months ago in a shipment from the local Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club. The letter is as follows:

Dear Unknown Friend,—To-day, after I had my bath, I was given a beautiful new pyjama shirt to put on and in the pocket of it I found your card and address, and as it requested the receiver to drop a line I have made up my mind to do so, so I hope you will be pleased to hear that the labour of making it was not in vain and that it is being worn by a wounded trooper. I am an Australian, and when I first came to England from an hospital in France I was awfully disappointed at not getting to one of our own hospitals, but I am not at all sorry now. I have had three happy months here and will always remember Beachhboro and the matron, sisters and V.A.D. nurses that I have got to know during my stay here. I often say if Canada is as nice as the ladies who come from there it is worth seeing.

It is rather quiet here. We don't have many visitors, but apart from that it is splendid. We have splendid food and are treated in tip-top order. All the up patients have been very busy this last few days getting the ward decorated for Christmas. They have strings of holly hung from the ceiling and it looks lovely, I am sure we are going to have a splendid time.

I was wounded at the Messines battle in June and am still in bed, so that I have had a long run in hospital. I was up on crutches for a month but my wound would not close up, so I had to go under another operation—the fifth one—an get it sewn up so I think I will put the remainder of this year in bed. Worse luck, but I suppose there is a lot in France would exchange with me.

I hope Mrs. Thomas that your husband is still dodging the tragic happenings of war. I wish this old war was finished.

Although this is a Canadian hospital there are very few Canadians in it. The majority are Imperials and I suppose about 20 Australians altogether, so I have plenty of company.

Owing to so much of our mail getting torpedoed on its way from Australia, letters are very rare, so hoping you will drop me a few lines and that this note finds you in the best of health, I will remain,

Yours truly,

Corp. D. H. Thom, A. I. F.

Nominations In East City

At the nominations held in East City to-day at noon three nominees were selected to contest the aldermanic vacancy caused by the death of the late Ald. J. H. Smith. The results follow:

James E. Ellis—Whose nomination was moved by Dr. W. A. Baker, and seconded by Morris Ketcheson.

George Evans—Proposed by G. L. Hay, and seconded by A. Taylor.

Malcolm McIntyre—Proposed by K. Throop, and seconded by H. Wheeler.

It is hardly likely that ex-Ald. Malcolm McIntyre will stay in the field, as he is known to be averse to sitting on the Council board in company with Ald. A. A. McIntyre, a brother, and Ald. A. A. Weir, a brother-in-law. This is no reflection on the parties concerned as nothing but the friendliest relations exist, but there is reason to believe that the ratepayers might find disfavour with a triple combination of relationships. All three are good men, and each of them have given valuable service to the city.

The nominees have until to-morrow to qualify and the election will be held one week from to-day should a contest be held.

Canada's Winter Sport

The ideal skating weather of this winter has been taken full advantage of by the devotees of the popular old sport. As in everything else, styles change in skating requisites, and the oil fashioned skates that older boys and girls remember are never seen now-a-days.

The new styles, especially in nice looking, and ankle supporting boots, are a feature at Peterborough Shoe Store, and very low priced just now: Men's hockey boots, regular $4.00 for $2.75; Ladies, regular $3.50 for $2.25. Boys' regular $3.25 for $2.00, and Misses', regular $2.50 for $1.75. This is only a sample of Peterborough Shoe Store bargain prices, as every line in the store is equally reduced. Find the right place at 291 George St., New Lundy Block.

TENDERS FOR ICE

Ontario Is Short 7,500 Farm Hands

TRAIN GIRLS FOR FARM

Special Class to Be Opened for Volunteers From University.

Despite all that the Ontario Government can do to provide farm labour for the coming summer, there will be an estimated shortage of at least 7,500 farm hands, and these men the provincial authorities are looking to the Federal Government to supply. Ontario's needs, together with a statement of what the Provincial Government has done to overcome the scarcity of farm help, will be laid before Hon. Mr. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture, in Ottawa at the conference of provincial representatives called to discuss the situation from a Dominion standpoint. C. F. Bailey, Assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Dr. W. R. Riddell, superintendent of the Trades and Labour branch, will represent the province at the conference.

The Ontario officials will submit the fact that this year 12,000 High School boys will spend their summer on the farm, and that the mobilization of women for farm work will provide several thousands of helpers. In this connection it was announced by Mr. Bailey yesterday that the Department of Agriculture had arranged to provide special classes in general farm work for young women who want to do their "bit" this summer.

While it is expected that a fair number of returned soldiers will be available for farm work, Government officials are not counting too greatly upon soldiers. A large percentage of the returned men, willing though they might be, are not physically able to stand a heavy summer's work on the farms. Needless to say the provincial officials will not countenance any suggestion that Chinese labour be used in Ontario.

The fact that Ontario will be 7,500 men short suggests that the Federal Government will have to take some measures of a radical character, either by calling out drafted men of the lower categories or by shutting down unessential industries in order to provide needed labour.

BEFORE and AFTER Using Cuticura

The first thing to do in restoring dry, thin and falling hair is to get rid of the cause, viz.: dandruff, itching and irritation of the scalp. Rub Cuticura Ointment into the scalp skin, especially spots of dandruff and itching. Follow at once with hot Cuticura Soap shampoo if a man, next morning if a woman. Rinse with tepid water. Make Cuticura your every-day toilet preparations.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. N, Boston, U. S. A." Sold by dealers throughout the world.

Food Lessons From A Land Slowly Starving To Death

English Mother Who Escaped From Germany Brings Home Some Interesting Facts About Conditions in Hunland —Hatred of England is Growing Less.

An Englishwoman who has just escaped with her two young children from Germany, where she has been all through the war, writes the following remarkable article in the Manchester Weekly Despatch:

When I arrived in London a fortnight ago I was astonished to find the shops so full of good things to eat and so remarkably cheap compared with German prices. For I had seen such sad results of war in Germany—a need and misery that words fail me to describe. I, too, have starved that my babies might be kept alive. I write of my experiences because, maybe, Englishwomen may "save a stitch in time" ere it be too late.

Before the card system for food started in Germany the Government appealed to the nation, especially to the women, just as Lord Devonport is doing here now. A great many responded to the call and did their best to be sparing with materials that were growing scarce. But, as in England to-day, this caused more foresight, trouble, and work for the cook, so there were many who shirked.

The old way was so simple—chops and steaks, with potatoes, for dinner, and sausage or ham, with bread and butter, for supper and breakfast—that many of the middle-class were too lazy to alter their menu at all. The necessity for the ration system, therefore, became insistent earlier than would have been the case if economy had been general, and when the rations were fixed they were necessarily on a lower scale than the people had expected. It seems to me there is a lesson in that for English housewives. Surely the British woman is not going to let the German hausfrau get the better of her now.

Some at least of the suffering today in Germany might thus have been saved, or at least postponed. As it is the people are being slowly starved to death, and the process is none the less torturing because it is gradual.

At the beginning of the war the German women sent food to the men in the trenches; to-day the case is altered, and it is the men in the trenches who are sending food home to the women and children, whose plight is so hard. There would have been a revolution long ago if there had been enough able-bodied men at home in the country. But there are only boys, old men, cripples, and women—none of them strong enough to resist the Government.

High-Spirited Women.

But let me say this of the German women. They are sad at heart and know that this state of things cannot go on much longer, for they can only just keep body and soul together as it is, and the worst two months are yet to come. Yet they preserve outwardly as good spirit as possible, and make pitiable efforts to be jocular. From first to last I was treated well, though I had to starve with the rest.

In the rural districts they seem a little better off than in the towns, for the land and its produce are there at the door. But the towns are full of mourning and suffering. The wounded are everywhere. At Dusseldorf, where I worked for months in a hospital, they had a special institution, formerly a huge restaurant, for the treatment of jaw injuries, and another for the blind.

The effect in the streets is particularly sad in Germany, because the women wear long black veils for other male relatives who have been killed, besides their husbands. Nothing is to be seen but the black of the mourning women and the field-grey of the uniforms. The songs and cheery good-byes of the early drafts to the front have all gone.

The scenes to-day as the soldiers leave are tearful and laden with a heavy weight of foreboding. The men no longer sing with high spirits, or if they do sing they have altered the words to "In der Heimat, in der Heimat es gibt kein Wiedersehen." The women have ceased to wave goodbye—it is with a prayer upon their lips that they gaze after the departing trains.

Though bread tickets began in February 1915 the allowance was sufficient for most people until other things became so scarce. By last September I could not manage with my allowance, anad more than once I bought smuggled white flour and baked a loaf myself—a 4-lb. loaf that cost over 1ls., and lasted myself and my family only two days. There was a black fortnight in that month when we could get no milk powder or condensed milk, and to secure enough food for my children I went without dinner and supper. Cakes are still allowed to be baked, with certain restrictions as to ingredients, but there are very few cakes to be had at exorbitant prices, and of such inferior quality that most people prefer not to eat them.

Great is the grumbling over the price of bread in London. But in Germany a 4-lb. "white loaf" costs 1s. 1½d., and its colour, far from being white, is similar to that of the Australian uniforms I see around.

Hunger Never Satisfied.

As to meat, I would mention that if one eats it at a restaurant in Germany it is deducted from one's allowance of half a pound a week. Even when one eats fish, which is not rationed, one gets so little at a German restaurant now that it is necessary to go to three restaurants before one can get enough for a satisfying midday meal. I can tell you that it is horrible to live day after day and never be able to satisfy your hunger.

Families get up from the table in Germany to-day after every meal as hungry as they sat down, for they rely chiefly on potatoes and other vegetables, and the supply is giving out. It is cruel to have to say to children "You mustn't eat any more to-day or there will be no more to-morrow." That is why German boys are fainting like anaemic girls.

The great German beverage is beer, but many a Sunday I have seen the beer gardens put up the sign that they were sold out, and I heard a barman call out to an approaching customer on a recent Sunday "No beer to-day. Perhaps next Sunday we shall have some."

Tea is not so popular there, but the cheaper varieties were exhausted long ago. The last I had cost me ten shillings a pound. But the shortage that is most felt is fat. It is a triumph indeed to secure any fatty food. I saw no cheese for many weeks until I reached Holland. One of the most trying experiences is waiting in line for food or clothes tickets, or waiting in the shops to get your tickets dealt with—if the supplies will allow it, which is by no means always.

Only the silks and more expensive costumes are exempt from the ticket system, and for that reason those who have plenty of money buy the high-priced goods, to avoid having to spend hours in the queues waiting to get tickets and having to prove to the local officials that the articles on which their heart is set are really necessary. Boots are not yet on the ticket system, nor are clothes for children under two. Cheap clothes and boots are very scarce.

The appeal is now being made in England for women to cultivate the land. In Germany from the very beginning of the war we started cultivating all the available land. It was very hard work, with all the men gone, but the women managed it. I, too, the wife of an officer, have dug my part of a field and made a kitchen garden of it, manured it, and grown by own potatoes and vegetables. Nearly all my neighbours did the same, and few had a man's help.

Growth of Food.

I know London women have not all the space, with small, boxed-in gardens, but I do hope that wherever it is possible throughout these islands the land will be cultivated. Let us be on the safe side and not shirk our share of food production. In Germany also every camp has a large space to cultivate, and when a regiment moves to the front another comes and takes up the cultivation.

I saw many British, French, and Russian prisoners working on the land and the roads at Crefeld. They seemed in pretty good spirits, though doubtless suffering from the food shortage like the Germans themselves. Conversation with them was forbidden, so I had no opportunities of questioning them.

The women of Germany want peace with growing intensity. Socialists and Catholics, though usually opposed, are now united in their advocacy of peace. Both parties have sent petitions, signed by millions of women, to the Government in Berlin praying for a stoppage of the war. They have not yet quite lost heart, but after playing Mother Hubbard for the past year they are full of anxiety for the future.

LADY PINK TOES HAS HER INNINGS

There is no excuse today for women to have ugly, painful corns

For a few cents you can get a quarter ounce of the magic drug freezone, recently discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Apply a few drops of this freezone upon a tender aching corn or callus and instantly, yes, immediately, all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of the feet, just seem to shrivel up and fall off, without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

"The People Must Either Go On Or Go Under," Lloyd George's Statement To Labour Delegates

If Men at Home Can Say They Won't Fight, Soldiers Should Have the Same Privilege—Urgency of the Situation Cannot Be Denied Must Have the Power to Enforce Our Terms.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Premier Lloyd George, addressing the Labour delegates to-day, said no man standing on the watch tower could deny the urgency of the need for raising more men.

The Prime Minister said no democracy has ever long survived the failure of its adherents to be ready to die for it.

He and President Wilson, without previous consultation—there was no opportunity—had laid down substantially the same programme of demands for the termination of the war.

VON TIRPITZ MAKES ANSWER.

"There was no man willing to make peace without complete restoration of Belgium and reparation," the Premier said. "From Germany there had been but one answer," he added, "and it came from Von Tirpitz's soul—Never!"

"Our channel ports," he continued, "are not far from the fighting line, and unless we are prepared to stand up to the people who are dominating Germany, Britain, British democracy, French democracy and the democracy of Europe will be at the mercy of the most cruel military autocracy the world has ever seen."

ANGLO-AMERICAN AIMS.

His and President Wilson's war aims had been acclaimed throughout the Entente allied countries. There had been hardly a voice of criticism save from a few who wished he had made more extreme demands. The Socialists of France, Italy and Great Britain, he said, had accepted them as very fair general demands.

Germany had answered "Never" to his demand for a re-consideration of the wrong of Alsace-Lorraine, and had declared that Germany would go on until Mesopotamia and Palestine were restored to the tyranny of the Turks. No single war aims condition made by the British trade unionists had been answered by any German authority, he added, and there had been no answer from Germany to the recent statements of the Entente powers on war aims. Feld Marshal von Hindenburg and General von Ludendorff were brought back for conferences, but Foreign Minister von Kuehlmann was not allowed to speak.

MILITARISM DOMINANT.

"Why?" asked the Premier. "Because the Prussian military power is dominant. The answer to be given will be given from the cannon's mouth.

"If any man here can find an honourable and equitable way out of this conflict without fighting it through," the Premier said, "let him tell it. My conviction is this — the people must either go on or go under."

The view of the Government, he said, was that it would be folly to withdraw men from industries one hour sooner than the need arose, but that it would be treason to the state, to democracy and to freedom if, when the need did arise, the demand should not be made.

If it should prove to be impossible to defeat the German forces and resist the military power of Prussia, was there any one in possession of his wits who believed that the least of the war aims expressed by the labour conference could be enforced?

The Premier declared he would not have the war on his soul "for a second if he could stop it honourably. But there had been no response from any man in any position in Germay to the statement of British ar aims which indicated a desire in Germany to approach the problem in a spirit of equity.

HIT HARD AS POSSIBLE.

"Let us talk freely here among ourselves," Lord George continued. "You might as well stop fighting unless you are going to do it with all your might. Unless we are going to do it we will let us stop it. There is no alternative. Either put your whole strength into it or do as the Russians, and tell our brave fellows they can go home. If there are men here who say they will not go into the trenches, then the men in the trenches have the right to say that neither will they remain there."

Referring to his declaration that the British must have the power to enforce their terms, he said he was not talking of the demands of the extreme militarists who were "anxious to grab everything and annex the earth and all the heavenly firmament," but of the moderate demands of the most pacific soul.

"Go to Hindenburg with them," he said. "Try to cash that cheque at the Hindenburg Bank. It will be returned dishonoured."

MEANING OF DEMOCRACY.

In plain terms, the Premier went on, democracy was government by a majority of the people. If one profession, trade or sect claimed to be immune from the obligations imposed on the rest, that was a fundamental travesty of the principles of democracy, the setting up of a new aristocracy.

"You and I in the past fought against privilege," he said. "We are now fighting against privileges claimed by a military caste. Democracy means that people of all classes, sections and trades must merge privileges and rights in the common stock.

WHAT WOULD THE END BE?

"Suppose our men should leave the trenches. Would that end the war? Yes, it would. But what sort of an end? When the Russians ceased fighting and simply talked ideals and principles with the German army did the Germans retreat? No, they took Riga and the islands. Fraternization did not prevent their marching forward. If Petrograd had been nearer they would have taken it also."

BREAKING HINDY'S LINE.

The Premier asked what sort of terms his hearers thought could be obtained from Hindenburg. Hindenburg would say they could not turn him out of Belgium with trades union resolutions.

"No, but we can and will, turn him out with trades union guns and trades unionists behind them," Lloyd George added. "They have broken his line already, and if we endure we shall be able to carry to conviction, to triumph, to reality, the great aims that you, this Government, and President Wilson, in his noble language, have been proclaiming in the past few days."

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Sheho, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times I was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

A DUTCHMAN'S IDEA OF INSURANCE.

A certain Dutchman, owner of a small house, had effected an insurance on it of eight hundred dollars, although it had been built for much less. The house was burned down, and the company refused to pay more than its actual value—about six hundred dollars. "If you wish it," said the cashier of the insurance company," we will build you a house larger and better than the one burned down, as we are positive that it can be done for even less than six hundred dollars."

To this proposition the Dutchman objected, and at last was compelled to take the six hundred dollars. Some weeks after he had received the money he was called upon by the same agent, who wanted him to take out a policy of life insurance on himself or on his wife.

"Dat be tam!" exclaimed the Dutchman; "your surance fellows vas all tiefs! If I insure my vife, and my vife dies, and if I goes to de office to get my two tousand tollars, do I get all de money? No, not quite. You vill say to me, 'She vasn't vorth two tousand tollars; she vas vorth 'bout six hundred. If you don't like de six hundred tollars, ve vill gif you a bigger and better vife.'"

A DETECTIVE STORY

CHAPTER V.

THE ATTITUDE OF STEPHEN QUIMBY.

McCarty gaped in genuine amazement at the departing figure of his informant. That the woman who had met her death at his feet the night before was a person of a superior class he had taken for granted from a casual inspection of her general appearance, but that she should prove to be of such prominence and wealth was utterly beyond his conception.

He had heard of Stephen Quimby, of course. The banker's astuteness and masterly generalship had averted a spectacular run on the institution of which he was president at a time of panic and chaos some years before and he had been more or less in the public eye as one of the municipality's financial advisers ever since. There was something else, too, some sport with which he had been identified notably in an amateur way, but for the moment McCarty could not recall its nature.

His memory instantly supplied a vivid picture of the man himself, however. He had once seen the president of the Tradesman and Artisan's Bank in court testifying against a defaulter, and his personality had made a deep impression.

He was well over the average height—lean and wiry, with a thin-lipped, smooth-shaven face and dark hair just graying at the temples. But it was not so much his physical appearance which gave weight and importance to the personal effect he created; it was the suggestion of quiet, relentless force and indomitable will in his bearing and manner.

Of his family life and social side, McCarty, of course knew nothing; but if he were indeed the stepfather of the young victim of last night's tragedy.—

McCarty's train of thought was checked by a swift flash of memory. Her stepfather! The words overheard through the air shaft by the maid, Mary, assumed a significance in direct bearing on the case for the first time in McCarty's mind. Unlike the inspector, he had not attributed much importance to the girl's statement, partly because in itself it denoted no relation with the tragedy, but more because of a belief that she was trying in sheer morbid hunger for sensation to thrust herself into the lime light. Now it struck him with the augmented force of compulsory recognition. It might still prove to be a coincidence, but the chances against that outweighed its serious consideration.

At that moment it was borne in upon him that a confused babel of intermingling cries was resounding in the street below, and as he started for the window, one hoarse voice detached itself from the rest.

"Extra! All about the murder in the Glamorgan! Body identified. An heiress slain! Extra!"

Hastening downstairs he seized a paper from the nearest boy. The owner of the antique shop called him from the doorway, but giving no heed, he returned to his rooms and locked himself in.

As before a picture stared out at him from the front page of the paper, but this time it was that of a sweet-faced young girl with a soft, wistful mouth, straight, delicate brows and thoughtful eyes.

For some minutes he sat gazing back at it, trying to reconcile it with the poor bruised face which lingered so clearly in his memory. With the distortion of mortal agony smoothed away and perhaps a little less weight, she might have been very like her photograph, but he concluded that it had in all probability been taken at a somewhat earlier period.

Mr. Quimby and Miss Beckwith had appeared at the morgue at an early hour, identified the body, and arranged for its removal. They had appeared overcome by grief and refused to make any statement, but in a later conference with police officials it was understood that Mr. Quimby professed complete ignorance of his daughter's whereabouts on the previous evening, declared that to his knowledge she was unacquainted with any one residing in the Glamorgan apartment house, and could assign no reason for her presence there.

He refused to credit the statement of the hall-boy, Alfred Griggs, that she had called there on a previous occasion to look at apartments, asserting that she could have had no possible intention of leaving her own home and acquiring a separate establishment, and should such a thought have been hers, her station in society would have led her to seek a more pretentious habitation than the Glamorgan offered.

Miss Beckwith was in a state of extreme prostration, and could not be interrogated. Then followed an account of Marion Rowntree's life, the schools she had attended, and her social activities, together with a hint at two separate romances in which she had figured, each of which had abruptly terminated before any formal announcement of an engagement was made.

The article concluded with a resume of Stephen Quimby's career, and in the final paragraph there was an allusion which brought McCarty to his feet.

Mr. Quimby had been an ardent devotee of aviation since its first inception in America, and had taken many prizes in amateur events, both here and abroad, before the war. His skill and daring were proverbial, and he maintained several aeroplanes with elaborately equipped hangars, and a retinue of mechanicians on Long Island.

The flying man!

Could it be mere coincidence again? If so, it denoted a marvelous concurrence of events which over-stepped the bounds of the credible. McCarty paced his room in a fever of conjecture.

It was in vain that he strove to remind himself of his own negative position in the affair. He was no longer an officer of the law, but a private citizen, in no way connected with the mystery or its investigation save as a bystander whom chance had made a witness of the initial catastrophe.

He had far better be out at Homevale Park where his bit of money was invested, collecting his modest rents, and discounting the complaints of his tenants, than tramping up and down here, addling his brains with a problem that was distinctly up to the service he had long quitted.

But such specious self-reminder was futile. The problem was there, a concrete puzzle for any man to solve for his own satisfaction; somewhere, there was a skulking criminal to be brought to justice, and in McCarty's eyes glowed the old light which had made him the terror of malefactors in days gone by. He was in this thing from the start, as Inspector Druet had said, and to it he would stay until he had seen it through.

Seizing his hat, he locked the door behind him, and again evading his neighbor of the antique shop, he hurried to the nearest elevated station.

Mother and Children Had Awful Coughs

WERE CURED BY

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Mrs. Arthur Appleyard, Novar, Ont., writes: "This past winter my children and I had awful colds and coughs which we got by being in drafts. I tried a number of different remedies for us, but got no relief. I thought I would try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I found it a most excellent and sure cure. It gave relief to the tickling in the throat, and stopped the cough, and with a few bottles we were all cured."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a remedy that has been on the market for over twenty-five years, and we can recommend it as being without doubt, the best cure for coughs and colds that you can possibly procure.

There are a lot of imitations on the market, so when you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get it. Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $1, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 55 cents and gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, it is splendid.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

you'd been thinkin'. You can take it from me."

"It's the devil's own riddle, and that's the fact," McCarty agreed. "It was me that she almost landed on, you know, when she fell out of the window, and the inspector kept me with him when he went over the house. Nobody seemed to know anything about it. Have a smoke, Bill."

The morgue keeper, who had been tentatively fingering the pocket where his pipe reposed—they were in the outer office—gravely accepted a cigar, and biting off the end, chewed it with gusto.

"You ought to have been here," he remarked. "'Twould have been worth your while to see them two. I had her all put away in her drawer—she couldn't have been more smashed up if she had been in a pulp mill—and her clothes all ticketed, when first of all along came Yost.

"The inspector had sent him down to keep an eye on any one who might come to inquire. He had another look at her, and turned over her things, and then he came back in here, and waied. I was busy—a floater had just been brought in and a wop came looking for his brother—but after I sat down with him and 'twas he told me about you gettin' mixed up in this.

"Well, twas past six, and the sun shinin', when a powerful big car came drivin' up and out got Mr. Quimby, and the lady. Martin, of the inspector's staff, was with them, but they did not pay any attention to him. It seemed as if they'd forgotten he was with them entirely, but him and Yost got together and trailed along.

"They come into the office here and the lady threw back a heavy veil she had got on, and grabbed the rail at the top of the desk as if she was going to fall down the next minute. She was as white as paper and her chin was workin'. She tried to speak, but not a word would come, and while she was flutterin' and gaspin', the gentleman broke in:

"'A man from the police has come to my house and tells me that my daughter met with an accident.' He was as pale as the lady, but his jaw was stickin' out firm, and his voice was very quiet. 'He tells me that she is here. I am Stephen Quimby. Has the body of a young woman been brought in to-night, a young woman—'

"'Oh, God!' says he lady, interruptin' him; not crying, but as if she was talking to herself. 'Oh, God!'

Use Newbro's Herpicide

IN TIME AND YOU WILL NEVER NEED FALSE HAIR

Wearing false hair is a harmless deceit of which many ladies are guilty. These women are all objects for sympathy rather than criticism.

Early neglect in the care of the scalp has caused the loss of so much hair that their personal appearance is sadly marred. To correct this defect they resort to artificial hair hoping by so doing to hide the results of their earlier inattention to the details of their toilet. These unfortunates are deceiving no one but themselves as no artificial hair no matter how costly ever has the snap and luster nor can it be made to look as pretty and attractive as natural hair.

Most ladies would resent any imputation of personal carelessness and neglect. And yet very many permit their natural hair to become so dull, brittle and lusterless that it looks no better than that bought at the store.

All this is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary. Hair that is unsightly or thin may usually be attributed to the destroying effects of Dandruff. This destructive formation shortly robs the hair of life, with the result that it finally loosens and drops out.

There is a preparation, sold and guaranteed by all dealers, the intelligent use of which will kill the dandruff germ. It cleanses the scalp of all accumulations and makes the hair shine with the luster of life and beauty. That remedy is Newbro's Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff. In no way can you add more to your personal charm and attractiveness than by the use of this remarkable and well known scalp prophylactic.

On account of its astonishing merit and its delightful and exquisite odor, Herpicide finds users everywhere among all classes. It may be purchased in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes at all drug stores and toilet goods counters. Applications may be obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Upon receipt of 10 cents in postage or silver to cover cost of packing and mailing, The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich., will send to any address a nice sample bottle of Herpicide and an interesting booklet on the care of the hair.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Force of Habit

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

Thompson was a very commonplace man, and it was difficult for his wife's friends to understand why she loved him so dearly. But an analysis of the heart is not like an analysis of the stomach—that is to say, love is very illusive. We constantly see persons devoted to other persons who are to us unattractive.

However this may be, Molly Thompson was devoted to Bill Thompson—there was not even a grain of romance in his name—and he was the apple of her eye. He was not a successful man, and his wife by various devices supported the family. Every man has some pride at the bottom of his nature, and Bill Thompson did not fancy his position of being taken care of instead of taking care of those naturally dependent upon him. Not that his wife upbraided him. Far from it; she excused him not only to others, but to himself.

One day Bill Thompson went out to look for a position, he said, and when the dinner hour arrived he did not arrive with it. Whatever were Bill's faults, he was never late for a meal. Consequently his wife took fright at once. Within an hour she notified the police that her husband was missing, and a general alarm was sent out.

The alarm did not bring Bill Thompson. A month passed, and he had failed to turn up. His wife was in a terrible state of mind about him, and her friends began to think that it would be better if her suspense were ended by hearing that he was dead. One day a cousin of hers, seeing an unrecognizable corpse in a morgue about the size of Bill Thompson, conceived the idea of palming it off on Mrs. Thompson as her late husband. The ruse was successful—indeed, more so than might have been expected—the good woman surprising those in the secret by identifying a patch she had put in the seat of the trousers worn by the corpse.

It was hoped by the widow's relatives that Bill, being dead, would be buried and Mrs. Thompson's mind relieved. They were somewhat disappointed when she insisted on having her dear William cremated in order that she might have the remains of what had been her husband constantly with her. The cremation cost all the money the poor woman possessed and she had not the wherewithal to purchase an urn for the ashes. She determined to find a temporary receptacle till she might save enough for a befitting one. Unfortunately there was nothing at hand except a cracked soup tureen, which, though it would not retain soup, would do very well for ashes.

The remains of the late head of the house—or supposed head—were placed on a mantel in Mrs. Thompson's bedroom, and every night she wept herself to sleep, with her eyes fixed on their abiding place, lighted dimly by a night lamp. Since the support of the family was solely in her hands and she needed every cent she could earn to feed and clothe her children funds for the marble urn she intended buying were not forthcoming. Consequently the cracked soup tureen remained in use.

The widow, desirous of having flowers wave over her husband's ashes, put the tureen in a low box containing earth and introduced the plants. They flourished, and the good woman had the satisfaction of seeing them bloom. She said it was almost as satisfactory as if they moved over a grave.

In time Mrs. Thompson saved the money to purchase an urn, and the ashes were emptied from the tureen into it. It was of marble and of very attractive shape. For three years she devoted more care to it than to her house. Not a speck of dust was allowed to remain on it, and the plants amid which it rested were in perpetual bloom.

Then one fine morning this beautiful constancy of grief received a rude shock. Bill Thompson walked into the house in the flesh and with a prosperous look on him. His wife stood between him and the urn containing his ashes with a puzzled look on her face. She had for so long accustomed herself to think of him as in the urn that she could not realize he was there in the flesh. Bill in the urn was her romance; Bill in the flesh, unseen for three years, appeared to her, as he appeared to others, a very commonplace person. Duty finally triumphed, and, turning her back on the romance, she embraced the reality.

Thompson had gone away resolved never to return unless in a condition to support his family. He had accumulated quite a property. He desired his wife to remove the ashes she had been weeping over. But to do so was too severe a break in the habit she had acquired. She consented to the removal of the urn from their bedroom the first night Bill slept at home after his return, but her tears were so used to flowing at the retiring hour that they could not be stopped. Bill, hearing a sob, got out of bed, went to a closet where the urn had been placed and put it back on the mantel.

The next day it was removed again, but in the evening, the tears beginning to flow, it was replaced on its accustomed stand. Bill tried to cure his wife by affecting jealousy; but, fearing that if she were forced to choose between him and the ashes of his rival she would choose the latter, he desisted. The urn remains on the mantel

Christmas Menu Was Lavish One

The food crisis did not interfere with the Christmas fare of the Canadian soldiers in England, judging by the copy of a Christmas day menu received by the Examiner from a Peterborough boy overseas.

On one side of the menu is the following greetings:

The General Officer commanding the Canadian forces in the British Isles extends to all ranks under his command his heartiest greetings for Christmas and the New Year.

R. E. W. Turner, Lieut.-General, Commanding Canadian Forces in the British Isles.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

Jesus at work.—Mark 1:21-45.

Golden Text: We must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day. John 9:4.

1. Verse 21. Where was Capernaum situated, and what is it chiefly noted for?

2. The Jewish synagague in those days seem to have been open for strangers to preach or teach in; is there any suggestion in this for our modern churches?

3. Why would you say or not, that every man is under obligation to keep the Sabbath day, in the sense of worship and doing good on that day, as Jesus did?

4. Verse 22. Will any preacher who really knows the mind of God, of his own personal knowledge, always astonish his hearers as Jesus did?

5. Verses 23-26. What is the proof that the very worst of men, possessed of the vilest of devils may, by coming to Jesus, be suddenly made the very best of men?

6. Verses 27, 28 What was the popular opinion of Jesus "throughout all the region round about Galilee" at that time?

7. Verses 29-34. How much of the power that Jesus had in casting out devils, in healing the sick, and in saving sinners, may a preacher or other Christian have to-day?

8 Of how much benefit is it to us, or was it to them, to bring our sick ones to Jesus?

9. Verses 29-34. After a careful reading of this story why would you say, or not, that Jesus cured all the sick and devil-possessed people that were brought to him

10. If Jesus cured sick people that were brought to Him, why did He not also cure the thousands of sick ones who had no opportunity of being brought to Him?

11. What reason is there to believe that Jesus is willing to cure sick people to-day as He did in that day

12. Verse 35. Why was it necessary for Jesus to get up a great while before day and, in a solitary place, engage in protracted prayer?

13. To what extent is it the duty or privilege for every Christian to follow the example of Jesus in the matter of protracted private prayer?

14. Would you say that Jesus had certain set times for prayer, or did he pray only when he felt the need, and which method should we adopt and why?

15. Verse 36, 37: Did Simon and the rest of them do well to disturb Jesus in His private prayer? Give your reasons.

16. Verse 38. What is the difference and the mission of Jesus and that of any of His true followers?

17. Verse 39. Why should a man with a special message confine his work to any one church or to one town?

18. Verses 40-42. If Jesus were in the flesh why would he or not pay the same attention to the cure of physical diseases as He did in that day?

19. In view of the progress of medicine and the marvellous feats of surgery, why may we not conclude that God's plan for the cure of sickness to day is by these scientific methods?

20. Verses 43-45. Which is the greater sin, and why, to make known a thing when God tells us not to do so or to fail to make known that which He bids us?

Lesson for Sunday Jan. 27, 1918. Jesus forgiving sin. Mark 2:1-12.

I KNOW A WOMAN'S SUFFERINGS

I am a woman.

What I have suffered is a far better guide than any MAN'S experience gained secondhand.

I know your need for sympathy and health.

And the treatment that gave me health and strength, new interest in life, I want to pass on to you, that you, too, may enjoy the priceless boon of health.

Are you unhappy, unfit for your duties? Write and tell me how you feel and I will send you ten days' FREE trial of a home treatment to meet your individual needs, together with references to women in Canada who have passed through your troubles and regained health; or you can secure this FREE treatment for your daughter, sister or mother.

If you suffer from pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging down sensations, falling or displacement of internal organs, bladder irritation with frequent urination, obstinate constipation or piles, pain in the sides regularly or irregularly, bloating, dyspepsia, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling up the spine, palpitation, hot flashes, weariness, sallow complexion, with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast or a general feeling that life is not worth living, I invite you to send to-day for my complete ten days' treatment entirely free and postpaid, to prove to yourself that these ailments can be easily and surely overcome at your own home, without the expense of hospital treatment, or the dangers of an operation. Women everywhere are escaping the surgeon's knife by knowing of my simple method of home treatment, and when you have been benefited, my sister, I shall only ask you to pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for all—young or old.

Read My FREE Offer:

To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually dispels green-sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches and backache in young women, and restores them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember it costs you nothing to give my method of home treatment a complete ten days trial, and if you wish to continue it, only costs a few cents a week to do so, and it does not interfere with one's daily work. Is health worth asking for? Write for the free treatment suited to your needs, and I will send it in plain wrapper by return mail. Cut out this offer, mark the ailment that most troubles you and return to me. Write and ask for the free treatment to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

THE CHIEF CHARM OF LOVELY WOMAN

Soft, Clear, Smooth Skin Comes With The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

NORAH WATSON
86 Drayton Ave., Toronto.
Nov. 10th, 1915.

A beautiful complexion is a handsome woman's chief glory and the envy of her less fortunate rivals. Yet a soft, clear skin—glowing with health—is only the natural result of pure Blood.

"I was troubled for a considerable time with a very unpleasant, disfiguring Rash, which covered my face and for which I used applications and remedies without relief. After using "Fruit-a-tives" for one week, the rash is completely gone. I am deeply thankful for the relief and in the future, I will not be without "Fruit-a-tives".

NATIONALIZE COLD STORAGE.

Favoured by Farm Labour Conference —Production Statistics a Necessity.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.— Recommendations contained in a report by one of the committees were considered when the farm labour and greater production conference resumed today. The conference decided to recommend the nationalization of cold storage plants, as those involved little difficulty in their operation, and that adequate cold storage plants be erected at the seaboard to handle food for export.

The problem of obtaining accurate statistics with regard to agricultural products throughout the Dominion in order to avoid over-production of certain foods and under-production of others, was discussed, and J. E. Tweedale, of New Brunswick, referred to the over-production of potatoes in the Maritime Provinces. Plants for the evaporation of surplus potatoes should be established.

It was suggested that information with regard to agriculture conditions throughout the Dominion might best be secured through the school children, as has been done in New York state. The children in farming districts were furnished with question cards, relative to the live stock, crops and farm conditions generally of their parents.

SUNDAY SERMON

For Those Who Do Not Go to Church

Nehemiah calls on the rulers, the nobles, and the chief men of the city to assist him in the building of the wall. He did not tell them at first what he came about, but after consideration, and seeing the condition of the city, he tells them all that God had put into his heart, to build the wall. He does not undertake to do it without them; it could not be the work of one man; nor does he command, but exhorts and excites them to join with him in this work. To encourage them, he speaks of the design as owing its origin to the special providence of God. They are ashamed that they have sat still so long without so much as attempting this needful work, and now resolve to bestir themselves. Many a good work would find hands enough to be laid to it if there was but one good head to lead in it. They all saw the desolations of Jerusalem, yet none proposed to repair them. But when Nehemiah proposed it they all consented. It is a pity that a good work should be lost for the want of one to take the lead. By stirring up ourselves and one another to that which is good, we strengthen ourselves and others. The great reason why we are weak in our duty is because we are cold and indifferent to it, and unstable in our minds. Sanballat and Tobiah were determined enemies of the Jews; when they saw a man come who professedly sought the welfare of the children of Israel, they were vexed to the heart. The enmity of the serpent's seed against the cause of Christ is confined to no age or nation. They set themselves to hinder Nehemiah, but in vain; they had no reason to interfere with the work, neither did Nehemiah take much notice of them, but proceeded with his business. They were the servants of the God of Heaven, the only living and true God; they were acting for Him in what they did, and therefore he would hear them and prosper them in what they did. Though the heathen raged (Ps. 2, 1) God will prosper His people and clear their character from aspersions as well as deliver them from afflictions; but sad are they who have no portion in the new Jerusalem, the city of our God. Nehemiah set to work to build the wall. He divided the work so that every one might know what he had to do, and mind it with a holy desire to excel, yet without contention or separate interests. No strife appears among them but which should most for the public good. Eliashib, the high priest, with his brethren the priests, were first in this troop of builders; ministers should be first and foremost in every good work; their office obliges them to teach and quicken by their example, as well as by their doctrine. If there be labour in it, who so fit as they to work; if danger, who so fit as they to venture? The priests repaired the sheep-gate, so-called, because through it the sacrifices were brought. Many were active in this work who were not inhabitants of Jerusalem, and therefore consulted purely the public welfare, not private interests of their own. Every Israelite should lend a hand toward the building up of Jerusalem. Several rulers both of Jerusalem and of other cities were active, thinking themselves bound to do their utmost for this good work. Here is a just reproach on the nobles of Tekoa, they would not come under obligation to this service; as if their rank were their discharge from serving God and doing good, which are indeed the highest honour and truest freedom. Let not nobles think anything below them by which they may advance the interests of their country; for what else is nobility good for but that it has a higher and a larger sphere of usefulness than that in which inferior persons move? Some females helped forward the work. Shallum and his daughter. St. Paul speaks of some good women that laboured with him in the gospel. Phil. 4, 3. Some repaired over against their houses, and one repaired over against his chamber. When a general good work is to be done, each should apply himself to that part which is within his reach. Of one it is said that he earnestly repaired that which fell to his share (verse 20); others did their duty, but he was more zealous and vigorous in his work. There were some that when they had finished their part, helped others. Every one must begin at home and work before his own door (chap. 3, 10, 23, 28, 30), for it is by getting the work of God advanced in our own souls we shall best contribute to the good of others. Let us all be of one heart and of one mind in relation to this great matter. The work of God advances more rapidly in the souls of men when they strengthen and encourage each other; and whoever works for the good of others will find he is profited by his own exertions. Nehemiah himself, though he undertook no particular part of the wall, yet did more than any, for he had the oversight of them all. Half of his servants worked where there was most need, and the other half stood as sentinels, as we find after (chap. 14, 16), while he directed and encouraged the builders and kept a watchful eye upon the motions of the enemy. May the Lord stir up the hearts of his people of every denomination to lay aside their petty disputes and disregard their selfish interests in comparison with building the walls of Jerusalem, and defend the cause of truth and godliness against the assaults of the enemy. Sanballat speaks with scorn of the workmen; Tobiah speaks with no less scorn of the work itself. Many a good work has thus been looked upon with contempt by the proud and haughty scorners. The labours of those who would promote the gospel will excite the enmity of those who are haters of God; and thus the wisest and most excellent behaviour will be derided as madness and folly. The most sacred things may be represented so as to excite derision. Such contempt is hard to bear, but sometimes it proves the Christian's protection, and gives him time to proceed with his work. They who almost disagree in everything will unite in persecution; the same enmity which dictates contempt will suggest violent and cruel measures. Nehemiah did not answer them according to their folly, but looked up to God in prayer. He begs of God to take notice of the indignities that were done them. God's people have often been a despised people, but He hears and sees all the slights that are put upon them, and it is their comfort that He does so. He begs of God to turn the reproach upon the enemies themselves. This was spoken rather by a spirit of prophecy than of prayer, and is not to be imitated by us who are taught of Christ to pray for them that despitefully use and persecute us. Christ himself prayed for those that reproached Him. Father, forgive them. As impenitent despisers reject the atonement, their sins cannot be covered. Nehemiah had reason to think the hearts of these sinners were desperately hardened, else he would not have prayed that their sins might never be blotted out. The reason he gives, They have provoked Thee; and we can ground our expectation that God will appear against them. (Ps. 74, 18-22.) The builders, notwithstanding these reflections, made good speed, for the people had a mind to work. Their hearts were in it. Good work goes on well when people have a mind to it. The reproaches of enemies should quicken us to our duties, not drive us from them. What quarrel had these men with the Jews? Had they done them any wrong? Or did they design them any? No, they lived peaceably by them; it was merely out of envy and malice they hated the Jews' piety, and were therefore vexed at their prosperity, and sought their ruin. Observe how unanimous they were in their opposition to the work of God. They took crafty counsel and promised themselves success from the secrecy of their plots. But good work is God's work; none can hinder it, and it shall succeed and prosper. At the time when the adversaries said, Let us cause the work to cease, Judah said, We are not able to go forward with it. Information was brought to Nehemiah of the enemy's designs. There were Jews who dwelt by them who gave intelligence of it. God has many ways of bringing to light, and so bringing to naught, the devices and designs of those who oppose him. Nehemiah put himself and his cause under Divine protection. That was the way of this good man, and it should be our way. All his cares and griefs he spread before God. Before he used any means, he made his prayer to God, then he set a watch against the enemy. The instructions Christ has given us in our spiritual warfare agree with this "Watch and pray." (Mat. 26, 41.) He posted his guards, animated and encouraged them.

(To be continued.)

Yours sincerely,

James Sutherland.

WHY Does Your Head Ache?

Headaches, sick or other kinds, don't happen to people whose livers are busy and whose bowels are as regular as a clock.

Thousands of folks who used to have headaches say this is the way they removed the cause:

back to duty very gloomy about the outlook. I have spoken to many soldiers who have fought in the trenches, and the only soldiers they really dislike fighting against are the British, including, of course, our overseas troops. They say they stand their ground so stubbornly that it is practically impossible to make them budge. Thus, though they hate us very much, they have had to confess to a certain admiration for our fighting men, who have shown such tenacity and pluck.

Less Hate for England.

There is less "Gott strafe England" to be heard. Perhaps it is partly due to the fact that German women who wrote to prisoners interned in England, asking whether they wanted anything, received the reply that the prisoners in the hands of the British had all their wants supplied, and the only grievance they had was that they wanted something to do, the time hanging heavily on their hands.

The Dutch are very friendly to the British, and they treated me with every kindness once they had been assured of my nationality. I saw many deserters from Germany in Holland. One told me he had tried to reach England as a Dutchman, preferring to run the chance of being interned in England rather than be caught in Holland in the event of the Dutch and the Germans going to war.

When I arrived in London the dark streets impressed me very much at first, and I thought my countrywomen must be taking things very seriously. But the following day I was surprised to find that dancing was still being allowed. It has been forbidden in Germany since the beginning of the war, although concert halls and theatres were reopened after the first few months.

I never believed that the German air-raids had done the damage they said they had, and I am glad to have my faith confirmed. The people there naturally base their views on the news they are allowed to receive. I had to unlearn many things when I reached Holland.

The German people are not allowed to know what their losses have been. They know, however, that they have been colossal. They can see for themselves the maimed and crippled. They speak of the dead in terms of indefinite millions. They do not hear of all the submarine activities, but those that did become public in the autumn, when some Norwegian and Dutch vessels were sunk, they were led to believe were the victims of the British.

In this phase of the war I conclude with a final appeal to the women of England. The rations on which you have been placed on your honour are liberal. If you work throughly, no member of the family will notice the difference. It will be your triumph, and at the end of it all will be the triumph of the British nation through your aid.

IRRITATING FORM OF ITCHING PILES

A SOURCE OF CONTINUAL WORRY AND ANNOYANCE—SLEEP AND REST IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL RELIEF IS OBTAINED

Bridgetown, N. S., January 19. — All classes of people are subject to piles, but especially those who are exposed to dampness. Teamsters, farmers, railroad men and laborers suffer greatly from this distressing ailment.

While there are plenty of remedies recommended as a treatment for Piles, Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only actual and guaranteed cure. It is truly wonderful how the merit of this preparation has become known throughout this continent and Europe.

But when a person has endured the torture of piles, the itching, stinging sensation, the sleepless nights of misery, the annoyance during the day when going about the daily work, he feels grateful for the relief and cure brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment and does not forget to recommend it to his friends.

Mr. E. G. Langley, Bridgetown, N. S., writes: "I have much pleasure in recommending Dr. Chase's Ointment. For about fifteen years I was troubled with piles and all the so called remedies that I used brought me no relief. At last I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment and am glad to say that it has made a complete cure. It is nearly twenty years ago since I was cured and I have never been troubled with piles since. At one time I was away from home travelling a great deal, and I always carried a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment with me. Ever since I was cured I have been recommending it to everyone whom I knew to be troubled with piles."

SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSES LOTS OF TROUBLE

When the liver becomes sluggish it is an indication that the bowels are not working properly, and if they do not move regularly many complications are liable to set in.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a specific for all disease or disorders arising from a slow, sluggish, lazy or torpid liver, and they have been universally used throughout Canada for over 29 years with the greatest success.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 7 Poplar Grove, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but after using a couple of vials of your pills, I have not been bothered any more."

INAUGURAL MEETING OF THE SMITH TOWNSHIP COUNCIL

Reeve Nicholls Was in the Chair—A Number of Appointments Were Made—List of Accounts Passed

The inaugural meeting of the Council of the Township of Smith was held in the County Council Chamber, Peterborough, on Wednesday, January 16th, at eleven o'clock.

After making the necessary declarations of qualification and of office, the members took their seats as follows, Reeve Nichols in the chair, Deputy-reeve Middleton and Councillors Grant, Brown and Douglas.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The following appointments were made: Mr. C. O. Northey assessor, at a salary of $130.00 and postage extra; Messrs. Young and Edmison, auditors, at a salary of $10 each.

Mr. Clare Chittick, the collector, was present and presented a statement showing that he had collected and deposited the sum of $34,390.89, and that there was still a balance outstanding of $1,047.68, mostly due by non-residents. Of the above amount collected $147.36 was levied as a penalty under By-law No. 798, which called for an additional 5 p.c. on all taxes not paid on or before December 15th. As this was the first year this law was in force and was unknown by a large number of ratepayers, it was decided after considerable discussion to instruct the treasurer to refund the same to the different parties who had contributed. The time for payment of taxes without additional costs was extended until Feb. 1st, 1918.

By motion it was decided to extend the time for the collector to return his roll, until Feb. 11th.

The treasurer was ordered to pay the following accounts:

H. Nesbitt, care of Council chamber, $10.00; Municipal World, 6 copies of paper, $6.00; Hospital for Sick Children grant, $5.00; Peck, Kerr & McElderry, fees and costs of Court re Ayotte judgment, $90.00; Chas. Westlake, work on road, $4.50; Henry Fredenburg, refund dog tax, $1.00; R. J. Edmison, services as D.R.O. and rent, $7.00; Alex. Edmison, services at poll clerk, $2.00; T. N. D. Kelly, services at D.R.O. and rent, $7.00; Clare Chittick, services as D.R.O. and poll clerks, $6.00; Alfred Higgins, rent of house, $3.00; A. McIlmoyle, services as D.R.O. and rent $7.00; Gilbert McIlmoyl, services as poll clerk, $2.00; P. A. Kearney, services as D.R.O., $4.00; A. Wilson, services as poll clerk, $2.00; R. A. Charlton, rent of hall, $3.00; J. W. Kelly, preparing ballots and exuress, $5.30.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again on Monday, Feb. 11th, at eleven o'clock.

Many Demonstrations in Austria

BOLSHEVIKI BEATEN IN FIRST ROUND

STRIKES AND RIOTS IN A SCORE OF AUSTRIAN CITIES

Austrian Frontiers are Closed To-day But Reports are Filtering Through the Close Censorship Showing Widespread Agitation--Public Fearful that Peace Negotiations Will Fail---Nothing Cut Artillery Activities on the British Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

GENEVA, January 19.—Austria to-day decreed the closing of all her frontiers. Through the strict censorship there filtered reports of the Government's desperate efforts to put down widespread strikes, peace demonstrations and food riots in a score or more of cities. The public is apparently fearful that the Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations will fail through the insistence of German militarists on the full pan-German programme, and that Austria will be called upon for fresh sacrifices.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, January 19.—How armed German deserters, accompanying Belgian workmen, attempted to escape into Holland was told in a vivid narrative reaching here to-day.

The German deserters were approached by the German border guard and a desperate fight ensued in which the mutineers killed one and wounded several. They tried to cut the electric wires guarding the frontier but were finally driven off by the guards. One Belgian who escaped across into Holland, said the deserters were from the Russian front.

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 19.—Disposal of German and American prisoners is the subject of negotiations with Germany undertaken by the State Department at the request of the War Department. Whether German prisoners shall be brought back to the United States or left in England and France is the principal question to be solved.

The United States wants the same agreement as to American prisoners taken by Germany, as England and France have made with Germany, namely that they shall be kept within the territory of Germany proper. This move is to prevent them from being shipped to Turkey or some remote place where they might be subjected to harsh treatment.

The General Staff opinion is divided on the advisability of bringing German prisoners back to this country. Some argue that they could be carried in empty transports and put to work here.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 19.—Both Russian and German despatches indicate that the critical point in Wednesday's negotiations was the disposal of Poland, Courland and Lithuania. Von Kuehlmann announced Germany's willingness to allow these countries to vote in regard to their political future, but declined to give understanding that the German troops would evacuate occupied territory before the vote was taken. A Daily News Petrograd despatch says: "Negotiations are steadily moving toward final rupture."

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 19.—Russian delegates at Brest-Litovsk refused the request of the Germans that the Bolsheviki Government should not place any obstacles in the way of a journey to Germany by the ex-Empress of Russia and other members of the Imperial family, who are related to the Kaiser, according to the newspaper Novayajim to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BERNE, January 19.—Count Czernin, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, is shortly to make a formal reply to President Wilson's outline of the Allies' war aims.

Czernin was quoted in an interview as asserting "It will not be the annexationists' views which will end the Brest-Litovsk meetings. For our part, we wish to maintain friendly relations. We do not want territory nor indemnities."

LONDON, January 19.—"Nothing special," was all Field Marshal Haig had to report to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 19.—The Times says Sir Douglas Haig has appointed Lieut.-Gen. Sir Herbert Lawrence chief of staff at his headquarters. General Lawrence had been retired before the war broke out.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 19.—The official communication says there is nothing of interest to report on the British front.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 19.—A Daily Mail despatch from Petrograd dated Thursday says negotiations at Brest-Litovsk have been interrupted temporarily and the Russian delegation has returned to Petrograd. The Germans appeared to be manoeuvring to force the Russians to break off parley over a minor point and discredit the Russian representatives in the eyes of the Russian people.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, January 19.—The enemy attacked along a wide front on the lower Piave Thursday night, to-day's official statement says. He was arrested.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

QUEBEC, P.Q., January 19.—The steamer Gaspesian, lost in the ice and not heard from for two weeks, is reported arrived safely at Pictou, N.S., with all well on board.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, January 19.—It is stated enough bunker coal will reach ocean port docks with the next two or three days to supply all ships now awaiting fuel.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, January 19.—During the night, says to-day's official report, artillery was rather active in Champagne in the region of Auberve, and on the right bank of the Meuse north of Bezonvaux. Nothing important occurred elsewhere.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, January 19.—For the first time since the coal situation became alarming the sailings in the last twenty-four hours exceeded the arrivals. The number of steamers in port awaiting bunkers was reduced to one hundred and ten.

OLDER MEN ARE BEING COMBED OUT OF GERMAN LINES

Only Youngsters of "Storm Troop" Kind Are Being Sent to the Front Trenches — 50,000 Coal Miners To Be Released

REJUVENATING ARMY

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Jan. 19.— Hindenburg is attempting to rejuvenate on the western front, according to all indications to-day. Only youngsters of "storm troop" kind are now coming into the line. The older men are being held for war work in the rear. There has likewise been a general combing out of all line troops of more than 45, and this is apparently still under way.

It is positively known taht the best of the 1919 class of Germany's men are being drafted into the infantry and that fathers with large families, which families have already lost some members in the field, are being allowed to return home. Certain categories of workmen have also been sent back from the fighting lines. It is believed that the discharge from the army of about 50,000 coal miners has been requested by the internal government of Germany and that about half of these have already been thus relieved from fighting duty. Mechanics for speeding up submarine construction have also apparently been grabbed out of the army.

All of which suggests that Hindenburg is thoroughly reorganizing the entire German and Austrian armies on the basis of youth on the firing lines, middle aged fighters as reserves, and the oldest soldiers switched to garrison duty in the interior.

Skilled labourers are apparently also being utilized as far as possible in the factories rather than in the fighting ranks.

The Russian crumble freed a million six hundred thousand German troops for west and Italian fronts, according to recent announcements in Germany, and Hindenburg's "keying up" is a direct result of this. All prisoners recently taken by the British seem to believe that Hindenburg desires an end of the war as soon as possible. All are vaguely expecting some dazzling new Hindenburgian strategy and some new forms of frightfulness.

CONSERVING THE FUEL

Most of the Week Night Meetings of George St., Murray St. and St. Paul's Churches Are to be Suspended for Present.

UNION MEETINGS

At the meeting of a sub-committee appointed by the representatives of George street, Murray street Baptist and St. Paul's churches, held yesterday in the board room of the Utilities Commission, the following decision was unanimously agreed upon:

That all week evening meetings, including choir rehearsals in the three churches above named will be suspended, with the exception of a union meeting of the Young People's Societies and the regular prayer service of the three churches, such union service to be held the first week in George street church, the second week in St. Paul's church and the third week in Murray street church, the same order to be continued during the winter months. This plan is to be begun the week commencing 7 January 27th. It was also agreed that the committee be called together again by the chairman in the event of further co-operation being necessary and possible in view of the fuel shortage.

The choirs have indicated their intention of holding their rehearsals in the homes of their members.

CENTRALIZE CONTROL TO BEAT KAISER

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By L. C. Martin.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—"Centralize control to conquer the Kaiser" is the slogan to be dinned into the ears of Congress.

Senator Chamberlain to-day completed plans to press next week for important action on two bills summing up the results to date of the investigation of the War Department.

These measures are:

(1) A bill creating a Director of Munitions to be given control of purchasing of everything needed to arm or equip the army, navy, shipping board and allies, and,

(2) A bill creating a War Council of from three to five persons, who, next to the President, will have supreme control of the war programme.

The Director of Munitions Bill already has been reported to the Senate and the War Council measure is expected to go in Monday.

Having launched these measures, the committee plans to continue its investigation, taking up cantonment construction, aviation and the medical corps.

The purpose of the two bills is to eliminate competition among various war making agencies; to co-ordinate all purchases, to end delays due to conflicting authority; to provide a supreme, central authority which can anticipate needs and plan ahead for them; to organize and adapt the country's industrial resources to war needs, without unduly straining their resources.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Orders forbidding all Socialist propaganda in the German army have been issued by the German military authorities, according to a despatch to-day from Switzerland. Socialist newspapers are forbidden to be sent to the soldiers.

TOWN PLANNING CONDUCIVE TO IDEAL CONDITIONS IN A COMMUNITY

Mr. Thomas Adams' Address Created Desire in His Audience to Emulate the Movements That Have Proved Successful in Many Cities.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

One of the slides shown by Mr. Thomas Adams of the Canadian Commission of Conservation, in his address on "Town Planning," at the Public Library, last night, afforded a striking illustration of his principal theme that town planning is a decided asset to the social and industrial life of a community. It was a view of the modern dwellings erected for the munition makers of the Krupp Works at Essen, Germany. It presented only a corner of the workingmen's model suburb, but this was sufficient to emphasize its attractions, its appearances of idealify and the advantages it offered. The houses with their suggestion of individuality fringed a large square or playground, green and inviting, a safe and commodious place for children's games and adult recreations, if there are any except "goose stepping" in Germany. Mr. Adams made the pointed comment that by this means the Krupp workers had been kept contented and happy during the last forty years, manufacturing the munitions the Kaiser's armies have expended in the last three. Hence the industrial and social features of the Krupp solicitude should apply to any community. Mr. Adams provided numerous examples to support this proposition, and thereby proves the desirability of town planning. Messrs. Rountree, in their experiment at York, where their chocolate plant is located, provided their employees with model homes at less than cost, but this loss was equalized by improved work and greater industry by the employees. Lever's Sunlight City, Cadbury's at Bournville, and other model settlements had secured similiar results, promoting happy and contented citizens with ample provision for education, amusement, athletics and the general conditions that benefit and advance a community.

Pictures were shown of Hampstead and Letchworth with their trim, model homes, provided with modern conveniences, and fronted by wide boulevards, the parks and playgrounds, convincing visual evidence of the attractiveness, charm, and comfort that have made these ventures successful.

IMPRESSIVE CONTRASTS.

Mr. Adams' visit to Peterborough and his address were arranged by the Engineers' Club, the members of which must have been satisfied by the representative gatherings at the Empress luncheon and the meeting in the Library Auditorium. Mr. Adams adopted the simple and forcible method of contrasting civic ugliness and unsightliness with civic beauty. It was impressive and inspirational, and undoubtedly planted the seeds of desire and perhaps of endeavour, that will bear fruit in Peterborough. One could not fail to envy the excellent exhibits of the streets of the city of St. Thomas. Flower beds in the boulevards and in the wide green strips on either side of the street railway, brought to mind the dismal image of the local neglect and indifference to those little touches that are certain signs of a flourishing public pride. There was little consolation in the pictures of Ottawa's mistakes, or in the contrast offered by the unsanitary crowded, five-storey tenements of Berlin, with the open spaces and appealing homes of model Mannheim.

MUST CONSIDER FUTURE.

The problem facing Peterborough is not whether it will grow or not, but how will it grow. Mr. Adams declared. It is not too late to begin, however modest the first tentative movement may be planned. The essential requirement is a carefully prepared but not elaborate, scheme, about which improvements and extensions should be woven when labour and finances permit. Mr. Adams recommended that some organization like the En-

BOLSHEVIKI ARE BEATEN IN FIRST TEST OF STRENGTH

Nominee of the Social Revolutionists is Elected Chairman of the Constituent Assembly in Contest With Trotsky's Selection

FIRST SESSION HELD

Canadian Press Despatch:

PETROGRAD, Jan. 19.—The Constituent Assembly opened its first session Friday afternoon in the Tauride Palace. There were some dissensions between the Bolsheviki and the Social Revolutionists on the streets, but quiet generally prevailed, although near the American Embassy a group of anti-Bolsheviki demonstrators were fired upon by guards and five were killed.

On the first test of strength the Bolsheviki were defeated by the Social Revolutionists. M. Tchernoff, Minister of Agriculture in the Kerensky Government, and nominee of the Social Revolutionnaist of the right for chairman of the Assembly, was elected by a vote of 244 to 151. The candidate of the Bolsheviki was Maria Spiridonova, a long and prominent revolutionist, who was released from exile in Siberia after the overthrow of the Romanoffs. The opening of the Assembly was set for noon, but the controversy over the registration caused a delay until four o'clock. Slightly more than four hundred members were in their seats. Of those the Bolsheviki and the Social Revolutionists of the left who are working together have about 160 votes and the Social Revolutionists of the centre and right the remainder.

STREET FIGHTING MARKED OPENING OF THE ASSEMBLY

Several People Killed and Many Wounded in Petrograd When Bolsheviki and Their Opponents Clashed in Street

TCHERNOFF ELECTED

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

(By Joseph Shapiro).

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18.—(Via London, Jan. 19).—Several persons were killed and many wounded in street fighting to-day, coincident with the opening of the Constituent Assembly.

The city bristled with fighting forces, including a large number of troops brought to the capital by the Bolsheviki after the former announcement of the discovery of a counter revolutionary plot, which, it was believed, was headed by former Premier Kerensky.

Kerensky himself was reported to be in hiding in Petrograd.

The Constituent Assembly opened at four o'clock in the afternoon. The fighting in the down town streets occurred just prior to this.

Among those killed in the rioting was M. Lyvinoff, of the Executive Committee of the Peasants' Congress. The wounded included many women.

Versions of how the rioting started differ. The most coherent story was that a procession of the Society for the Defence of the Constituent Assembly was attacked by Bolsheviki (Maximalists) and their banners destroyed.

A command to the troops to fire their guns into the air resulted in a general hail of machine gun fire and rifles, but not all of the bullets were shot harmlessly toward the sky.

M. Tchernoff, a Social revolutionary and former Minister of Agriculture under Kerensky, was elected President of the Constituent Assembly by a vote of 244, against 153 polled by Spiridonowa, a former Duma leader.

THE SOO WAS NOT AFFECTED

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Jan. 19.—This city apparently stands in a class by itself in the United States. "Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, JANUARY 19, 1918

UNUSUAL.

There are two or three unusual things in connection with the fact that three young men of Port Colborne—triplets, 21 years of age, have enlisted for military service. One unusual thing is, according to the popular idea, that triplets should grow to maturity; another unusual thing—and the most important—is that these young men, judging by the name—Wegerich—are of German descent, a fact that evidently has not impaired their loyalty to Britain, and her interests. This is interesting in view of the fact of the Borden government ear-marking Canadian citizens of German or other foreign descent, as disloyalists, traitors at heart; perpetrated the most infamous breach of faith ever enacted in Canada by any government. By giving these men naturalization papers, the government pledged to them the possession—and exercise—of all the rights that British citizenship brings. But it deprived them of their votes even though they had 15 years of good Canadian citizenship to their credit, and were in the main, no doubt, as good and loyal citizens as any Canadian "native here and to the manner born." Of this the Wegerich triplets, of German descent, but good Canadians all, enlisting for the service of Canada and the Empire on the same day, are proof.

There is too much tendency in this country to a spurious loyalty, or at the best, a lip loyalty; to condemn as disloyal and traitors all those who do not fall in with their political, or, rather, partisan, opinions and shout the same shibboleth of pharasic loyalty that for the most part is more air and not followed by patriotic action, that would mean something in the way of pledge of sincerity. The mischief-makers and trouble-mongers of Canada are those who, with prejudiced minds, and bitter and unbridled tongues, scatter the tares of discord among the wheat of good citizenship—help destroy the harmony of citizenship, essential to the unity of sentiment and action necessary to make us the most effective agents in building up the country and solidifying as one man our nation's cooperating manhood.

Lloyd George has the happy faculty of squeezing a volume to the tabloid form of a phrase—"We must either go on or go under."

A RIFT IN THE CLOUDS.

The Union Government's "publicity bureau" is having its "canned editorials" indited by Mr. H. F. Gadsby now. In dealing with the "Situation in Quebec," the writer says, "It is a cause for satisfaction that Quebec responds as placidly as she does to the first conscription drafts." This may be a cause of satisfaction, but not of surprise. Unprejudiced persons have always held the opinion that Quebec was not, and is not, as black as she was, and is, painted by prejudiced extremists and fire brands, who have not hesitated to exploit Quebec in the interests of political capital making.

Quebec has been more sinned against than sinning. True, she has not responded as numerously as other provinces to recruiting, and this is due to causes that have made Quebec, in this regard, more a victim than an offender.

The Union government's publicity agent remarks that Bourassa has lost his influence in Quebec.

"Mr. Bourassa was a frog when he hotted in on the Drummond-Arthabaska by-election in 1910, and he has been swelling up ever since. He hoped to be the ox in 1917, but burst when he was in sight of the goal. Now, when you ask, 'Where is Bourassa?' they point to Ilsedin and Segigny and other fragments that strew the sea."

It is hoped that Mr. Bourassa's day of influence is over, because he has, for the past seven years, been the evil genius of Quebec, preaching anti-British sentiments, with the diabolical skill of an educated man and master of appeal to prejudice and passion. He has plied his arts upon the simple minded habitants of Quebec, and poisoned their mind and perverted their sentiments.

But Mr. Bourassa, as the apostle and high priest of Nationalism, could not unaided have worked his evil spell upon Quebec, which has been, and still is—it is hoped to a lesser degree, the cause, or one of the causes, of the strained relations between Quebec and some of the other provinces of the Dominion. Mr. Bourassa's pestilent propagandism of Nationalism, gained strength from the application of the policy of exploiting Quebec, through Nationalism, for partisan political purposes. Laurier had a great hold on Quebec, as well as the rest of Canada, and Quebec naturally stood by her distinguished son. To break the hold of Laurier on Quebec, and through its corruption, his hold on the rest of Canada, the Borden government took Bourassa and Nationalism to their heart.

Mr. Bourassa, in the elections of 1911, was brought to Ontario, and spoke from a Conservative platform in the interests of a party whose super-loyalty stood aghast at the idea of free exchange of potatoes with the United States; but could complacently countenance and welcome the employment of the leader of a faction "that had no use for England and the English," in order to gain an election and, incidentally, "kill Laurier." In pursuance of this same policy, Mr. Borden also won the election by the help, in part, of Mr. Bourassa, the Nationalist, and took three flag-shooting Nationalists into the King's cabinet.

But for countenance, encouragement and reward of this kind—without the help and alliance of the Borden party, from 1910 on, Bourassa would have been but a voice crying in the wilderness, and Nationalism, not being government-fostered and encouraged, would have been a flash in the pan; and Quebec would not have suffered the bedevilment that contributed to the extent to which she has fallen short of her duty in helping win the war by recruiting.

These discreditable things are recounted as something to remember in palliation of Quebec's military defection—that she was not altogether to blame, but has been the victim of disloyal demagoguery, adroitly used by political adventurers to gain and strengthen their hold on office; and destroy an opponent that could not be removed by popular withdrawal of confidence. This is something to be remembered in adjusting our attitude when we are told that Quebec is coming back and emerging from the evil case in which she was brought by political devices.

The occasion is also useful as a warning against the policy of nagging that under the employment of some sections of the Dominion, tends to widen the rift in the lute, and aims to make Quebec the political Cinderella of Confederation.

At this time, when united national effort is demanded, let us use a wider spirit of tolerance in expression of our interprovincial relations; and the fears and forebodings of the integrity of Confederation will be groundless, and what is more important, there will be a surcease of friction, and the creation of a bigger spirit of national harmony.

Great Britain has made submarine murder such a risky kind of crime, that the crews of German submarines mutiny—they prefer being shot comfortably at home to going out for voyages that end at the bottom of the sea.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: I would like to state my opinion on the fuel question, as there is some talk of closing works to save coal. I think that would mean a very wrong thing for that would mean not only greater hardship to the people but would stop munitions—and that would mean more lives wasted, if our brave lads were short of munition even for half an hour, and it would be playing into Germany's hands.

Then, again, there is talk of closing Sunday school and church. I don't believe in closing them. We want more prayer. Our King has asked us to pray, to unite in prayer for victory and peace. "God grant it soon." But there may be ways each church could work out in saving coal, by perhaps having all the services in one building. For we'll say the coal used in heating the church or school room for the morning service would warm that room enough for the afternoon service, and so save fuel which would have had to be used in two rooms.

Then, again, the picture shews and opera house. I think they might take turns in closing, perhaps a day or a week in turn. Of course you cannot expect even them to close altogether, as they have their taxes to pay and a living to get, and if they were closed altogether, well, it stands to reason they could not pay rent or taxes; and then the city would be short of funds. Then again the people want a little pleasure, a little brightness and cheer. There is so much trouble around, and sometimes a half hour spent in a little amusement saves many a bottle of medicine. Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

ONE INTERESTED.

A CALL TO THE GOVERNMENT TO ASSUME RESPONSIBILITY

In the rigors of an exceptionally severe winter the country has to make the most of a short supply of coal. The emergency is upon us, and to tide through it it will be necessary to be very sparing in our coal consumption. To replenish the supply largely is hardly possible at this season. The time to provide for the coal requirements is not in the middle of winter, but in the months of mild weather. Next winter's fuel problem ought to be in course of solution now. In war-time it is particularly important for Governments, producers and purveyors to be beforehand with their stores.

The time is close at hand for grappling with the gigantic problem of food production in 1918. If all who have responsibility in this connection apply themselves energetically to the business of producing food this year our people and our army will not find themselves helpless in the crisis of a mid-winter famine in 1919. This waiting until the wolf is at the door is inexcusable. The City of Toronto would have had large reserves of coal in its yards this winter had time been taken by the forelock and deeds put in the place of voluble words. The time for doing whatever can be done to produce the greatest quantity of foodstuffs is before us, but not far before us. The Dominion Government and the several Provincial Governments are looked to to leave nothing undone for the doubling, or, if possible, trebling of the country's output of staple foods in this crop year. During the weeks that remain before the seed can be put in the ground these Governments ought to be busy organizing, planning, and equipping for agricultural operations on an unprecedented scale. The plan of campaign ought by this time to be mapped out. The arrangements for making drafts upon labour, bringing capable returned soldiers into farm work, prescribing the extent of the operations of farmers and recruiting their labour supply, the supplying of needed financial assistance as well as hands, and the whole arrangement for a big push under the auspiecs of the several Governments ought to be worked out now and strongly carried out in the months of agricultural industry. The Government must put its own shoulder to the wheel. It must not stand several removes away from the actual work of production, but must urge that on and direct it as the work of fighting the enemy is directed.

Production is the great national business of the hour. If the country does its duty in its fields, its stalls, its piggeries, its dairies, its creameries and in its food-producing industries generally, it will have contributed tremendously to the carrying out of that other task, the defeat of the enemy. To smash the enemy our army at the front and the reinforcements we are sending to it must be well nourished. Money is needed to provide them with munitions and equipment, to keep their hospitals and their medical services in the highest state of efficiency. But money can be poured unstintedly into the lap of the Government for these war purposes only if production at home has been fostered and stimulated as it ought to be. Production is now the great requirement, and Governments must beware of shirking their duty in relation thereto. That duty does not consist in lecturing and exhorting the farmers. The Government must take command in the fields of agriculture.—The Mail and Empire.

VERNON CASTLE'S EXAMPLE NO GUIDE AT CAMP DEVENS.

CAMP DEVENS, AYER, Mass.—The New England soldiers here dance too much, in the opinion of officers.

At a conference of camp officials it was decided to take steps to cut down the social functions, which are almost nightly events. It was the judgment of those present that the mind of the soldier was distracted by too many gayeties. This impression was confirmed, it was said, by the comment of a British officer who recently inspected the cantonment. He was quoted as saying:

"There is too much woman about this camp."

ANNUAL MEETING OF PETERBOROUGH Y.M.C.A.

Reports Presented Last Night Indicate That the Past Year Has Been One of Progress and Success For the Local Association—Financial Statement is Satisfactory.

At the 22nd annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. held last night, Messrs. Joseph Wearing, James Hamilton, William Richardson, Mel. McCarroll and J. J. Turner were elected to the Board of Directors for 1918.

Financial Report.

The financial report read by Mr. Barrie showed an exceedingly prosperous year, the liability being the smallest in several years. At the close of 1916 the deficit stood at about $6,000, and at the close of 1917 after taking in all subscriptions of which there are still some unpaid, about $1,000. This gratifying standing is due to the splendid response made by the public of Peterborough during the recent canvass. There is a mortgage against the institution. The total expenses for the past year amounted to $10,355.45.

Tribute to Mr. Meserve.

Mr. Barrie in referring to Mr. Meserve's resignation paid a warm tribute to the splendid work done by a place which will be hard to fill. He a place which will be hadd to fill. He has always worked for the best interest of the Y. It is to be hoped that the Board will be able to secure some one who will put as much personal endeavour into the work as Mr. Meserve." Mr. Barrie wished, on behalf of the Board, Mr. Meserve every success in his new field.

Mr. Meserve.

Mr. Meserve, in acknowledging Mr. Barrie's cordial address, said that his interest will still continue in Peterborough's Y progress. He has never wroked in as pleasant a city as Peterborough, or one so hard to leave. His resignation, he said, he made because he felt he was getting into a rut, his duties being practically all of a financial nature. In Lincoln he will probably broaden his field.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie occupied the chair.

The following reports were presented:

The outstanding features of the year's work have been the increased attendance at the regular classes compared with the previous year, and represented by an increase of 20 per cent. The holding of the circus in the Opera House for two nights was a new event, which proved wonderfully successful. Over $200 was realized, and two large audiences enjoyed the work much more than would have been possible when crowded in the gymnasium. The Boys' Hexathlon was another feature in which Peterborough finished in 9th place in the international contest and 2nd in Canada. Over 100 boys took part, and great interest was taken in the event. In addition to the Hexathlon, two other athletic contests were held—one at New Year's between the older boys' classes and the city championships on September 29th.

Leaders' Corps.

The Intermediate and Junior Leaders' Corps have again proved most helpful in conducting the apparatus work in the regular classes, and also have assisted very materially in arousing and maintaining the interest of the members in the gymnasium programme; the result being that more boys are enrolled this year than has been the case for many years past.

Business Men's Class.

The Business Men's Class is steadily growing in numbers and interest. A number of new members have been added to this class during the fall, and all of them are most enthusiastic over the results in increased efficiency and better health.

Apparatus Work.

The graded classes in apparatus work have been the plan used again this year, and this has interested the beginners as well as holding the interest of the more advanced members. The gymnasium is used at almost all hours. Over 800 of an attendance was recorded outside of the regular class periods.

Summer Programme.

The summer programme was limited this year because of the fact that the boys were engaged in farm service out of town and also in back garden work. It was felt that it would be unwise to plan special features that might prove a counter attraction from the more important work of production. However, the tennis courts were available for those who cared to use them. The Playground Association was given permission to use the swimming pool during three periods each week, and the average attendance was 42.

Canadian Standard Efficiency Tests.

The gymnasium has been reserved one night each month for the carrying on of the Canadian Standard Efficiency Test physical programme. All the groups in the city are invited to take part.

Outings and Hikes.

Four show-shoe and ski-ing hikes were held, the total attendance being 74.

The Life Problem Club.

This club has again been a feature of the older employed boys' classes. The average attendance being 17.

Summary of Attendance.

G. H. Roper, Physical Director.

Peterborough, Jan. 18th, 1918.

Secretary's Report.

Report of the General Secretary for the year closing December 31st, 1917. Presented at the annual meeting of the Association, January 18th, 1918:

To the Board of Directors and Members of the Y.M.C.A.

Dear Associates.—It is only possible to select from a multitude of activities with which the year 1917 has been filled, a few features indicative of the work undertaken. To try and cover the year in detail would be tiresome to you, and would be a repetition of many things which you are already thoroughly familiar. We would say, however, that we are very grateful to God for the good results that have been realized through the efforts of our Association during the past twelve months. We are also deeply grateful to the public who have so generously supported the work by money contributions, and to the comparatively few consecrated men who compose our Board of Directors, Board of Trustees and committees for the investment of time they have made for the sake of the boys and young men of the community.

To suggest the scope of the work of the local Association we would present several interesting facts. The total attendance at our building for 1917 was considerably over 100,000. The classes, contests and various other events per week ranged all the way from sixty to one hundred. The membership of the Association at the present time is 550. To this number we may add 175 contributors whose names are not on the regular membership roll. We have at least 350 enlisted members, making a grand total of members, supporters and representatives at the front of one thousand and seventy-five.

For your encouragement, we would again remind you, as we have often done in the past, that our Association building is unmortgaged, and that the memory of the donor of our building and site, Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, is still cherished. During the past year, among a number of loved supporters of the Association whom we have lost by death, may be mentioned our late Honorary President, Mr. J. W. Bennett, and Mr. Robert Innes. The first named, in addition to the support that he gave our Association during his more than thirty years' connection therewith, left us a cash bequest of $500, and the kindness and generosity of Mr. Innes is commemorated by a bequest of $300 that is to be paid to our Association in the near future. The bequests of Mrs. Nicholls, Mr. Bennett and Mr. Innes are a reminder to other friends of the young men of Peterborough that one of the best contributions that can be made to the future of our city and country is a bequest to the Y.M.C.A.

Physical.

Too much cannot be said in commendation of the work that Mr. G. H. Roper has done as direcor of our physical activities. Mr. Roper presents a very interesting report, and one that, if carefully studied, will show that our Association has made a great contribution toward building up the physical side of our young men at a time when the need of such work is strongly emphasized by the war. Aside from the careful and painstaking work done in connection with the regular classes, perhaps the outstanding features of the physical work are the Hexathlon, in which Peterborough ranked high among the Associations of North America, and he physical demonstration in the Opera House last spring, which was far in the lead of any other similar event of the past.

The Business Men's Gymnasium Class has come to the front this fall with a large and enthusiastic membership of the older men. These older fellows, while receiving great benefits themselves, are also doing much to fill the places of our senior members who have gone overseas.

Religious Work.

The main religious work of the Association has centred around the young men under twenty years of age. We have at the present time seven Bible Classes, composed almost entirely of members of the Boys' Department. We feel that this work is now in the lead of other years. The classes are as follows:

High School Club—C. N. Meserve, Mentor.

Life Problem Club—G. H. Roper, Mentor.

School Boys' "B"—Charles Armstrong, Mentor.

Employed Boys' "B"—George Gall, Mentor.

School Boys' "C" (2 sections)—Vernon Fiske and Ralph Meserve, Mentors.

Employed Boys' "C"—Harold Copp and Minto Brownscombe, Mentors.

The results of the Bible training in these groups is best shown by the fact that twenty High School boys and twenty boys from the other groups (a total of forty) took Bible study examinations and secured National Certificates last spring.

The Sunday afternoon meetings held in the fall of 1917 have proved most interesting and helpful, and have been addressed mainly by members of the Board of Directors. It has seemed wise, in the interest of the young men of the community, not only to open the building Sundays after the Sunday School sessions, but to hold it open from eight o'clock until ten in the evening, following the church services. This is the programme now being followed, and several Sunday night interesting meetings have been held in our building after the church services.

Social.

The new English billiard table secured from the Oriental Hotel has been a big addition to the Men's Social Department. Beside his table we have three American pocket billiard tables and two bowling alleys that are in almost constant use. Our large reception room and lobby are much appreciated by the older members, who will be pleased to learn that the reading matter provided therein is to have the protection of twenty-one new magazine binders that have been ordered and are expected to arrive shortly.

Boys' Work.

Mr. G. L. Galley, who for nearly four and a half years was Boys' Secreary of the Association, and previous to that had served on the Board of Directors and on various committees, was called to Toronto in September to take charge of Y.M.C.A. military work at the base hospital in that city. It has not been possible to fully fill Mr. Galley's place, but the result of Y.M.C.A. training is very apparent by our being able to select from our membership a young man who has been thoroughly trained in our Association; and who, we believe, with some experience, will make a most efficient Boys' Secretary. Mr. Harold Copp entered upon his duties in connection with the Boys' Work on October 10th last, and the success of his work has far exceeded expectations. The mothers of our boys are to be congratulated upon the fact that Harold is to be the leader, companion and friend of their sons.

The outstanding feature of Y.M.C.A. boys' work during the summer was the Garden Club, which had forty-five members, and under the auspices of which a fine exhibition was made at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. The success of this production effort was largely due to a number of local business men, who contributed very generous prizes. In addition to the Garden Club, about one hundred of our boys were induced to do farm work, and thirty of them completed two months on the farm and received the button offered by the Ontario Government for services rendered in that capacity.

It seemed wise to re-organize the Boys' Work somewhat this fall, and this was done by standardizing the classes, teams and groups so that the organization is identical in the Physical, Social and Religious Departments. We wish to impress upon every boy the fact that when he joins the Y.M.C.A. it is not for any particular feature of our work, but that he is expected to contribute to and share the benefits of all departments. The Canadian Standard Efficiency movement is the basis of all our work for boys, and we recently had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. W. H. Vaughan, of the Y.M.C.A. National Council, with whose aid we hope to interest a number of other men to act as Mentors and form a plan of closer co-operation with the organized young men's classes of our Sunday Schools.

Lack of time makes it impossible to speak of a number of contests conducted by the boys, prominent among which were the Christmas and membership contests and various tournaments in the Boys' Game Room. We feel that the boys merit the very best work that can be done for them, for the war has placed an increased value upon our coming men.

Military Work.

The military work of the Y.M.C.A. of Canada is carried on under the direction of the National Council. The Peterborough Association is an important unit in this work, and we have, as far as our time and means would allow, given it our heartiest support. The results of this work are so manifest that there is scarcely a parent or frien dof a boy at the front who does not fully realize and appreciate the great work the Association is doing for the soldiers.

Finances.

The financial campaign in June was very successful, although the full objective of $10,000 was not realized. However, more than $9,000 was subscribed. At the close of the year 1917 it would appear that, after allowing for possible shrinkages in subscriptions outstanding and unpaid, our uncovered liabilities are less than $1,000, and, if the two bequests recently received were applied on the building improvements and expenses of 1917, the deficit would probably be nil. It may seem wise, however, to hold these bequests as a nucleus to which other bequests may be added and thus gradually build up an endowment fund.

The outlook of the work is bright, although all of our associations are now face to face with a large problem regarding leadership, the military work of the Y.M.C.A. in the United States and Canada having called away from the regular city activities over 3,500 trained men. The need now is for volunteer workers, who will actually assume responsibilities in carrying out the enalrged programme of our Canadian Associations. Peterborough men must be impressed with this need, and large demands must be made upon the time of our local workers.

In view of the fact that my connection with the local work as General Secretary is soon to terminate, I would express to all the supporters and workers of our Y.M.C.A. my personal appreciation for the kind co-operation that they have given me. As I leave for a new field of endeavour, it is with the best of goodwill and the kindnest regards for all, and I wish to assure you that my interest in the work of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. will ever continue.

Very respectfully submitted,

C. N. Meserve,
General Secretary.

What Lack of Milk Does for Babies

Owing to the scarcity of milk, and increased cost, it has been found that much mal-nutrition exists among School Children and Babies, in certain localities.

A great many children are not getting enough milk to drink, and their diet is made up of other foods that actually cost more than milk and are less nutritious.

Milk is both Food and Drink. Among foods none can compare with delicious, pure PASTURIZED milk, and none so economical.

GET THE BEST FOR THE BABIES,
GET THE BEST FOR YOU.

NO CHANCE FOR THE GERMS

Disease germs cannot live in rich, red blood. It is people in low vitality that fall victims to germ diseases. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you enrich the blood, increase vitality and prevent disease germs from finding lodgment in your body. There's wisdom in prevention. It's easier to keep well than to get well.

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"WE CAN START AT ONCE."

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Are you Mr. Reader, "READY TO START AT ONCE?" Have you made provision for those dependent on you should the call come?

"READY TO START AT ONCE." No man can do more—we cannot afford to do less.

If your loved ones are not already protected against such an emergency you had better act while you have the opportunity. To-morrow may be too late.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada will protect your Dependents providing you do your duty while the opportunity is yours.

DOLLAR DAY

THE EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

The day when the Dollar Bill talks louder in Peterborough Stores than any other day in the year. This Year it will be held on—

THURSDAY, JAN. 24

About 30 of the principal stores in the City are participating, and are busy preparing the best list of bargains they can possibly find in their splendid stocks, and shoppers will certainly appreciate the extremely varied offerings such a large array of stores will assure. As usual the big list of Cash Bonuses is a liberal one, as the Merchants are giving away

$175 =CASH= PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every Dollar Purchase on that day, an Estimating Blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and dropped into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10.15 p.m. on DOLLAR DAY.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the 1st Prize of $25; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15, and so on.

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, 1st prize	$25.00	Next nearest correct estimate, 9th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd prize	20.00	Next nearest correct estimate, 10th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd prize	15.00	Next nearest correct estimate, 11th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th prize	10.00	Next 5 nearest correct estimates, 5 prizes, each	3.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th prize	10.00	Next 10 nearest correct estimates, 10 prizes, each	2.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 6th prize	5.00	Next 30 nearest correct estimates, 30 prizes, each	1.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 7th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 8th prize	5.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 10,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 24th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

You can recognize all the Stores where DOLLAR SPECIALS are being given by the GREEN LETTERED PENNANTS IN THEIR WINDOWS.

The following Merchants will display the Pennants, and issue Estimating Blanks with every Dollar Purchase in their Stores on DOLLAR DAY:

ON MONDAY morning, January 14, hours before it appeared in other newspapers, THE GLOBE published The London Times cable story of the German Crown Prince's declaration to a Canadian officer prisoner that he hoped to visit Canada after the war.

THE GLOBE the week previous published the best analysis of the situation on the western front that has yet appeared, written by Col. Repington, the military correspondent of The London Times, whose reviews frequently appear in THE GLOBE.

WAR found THE GLOBE prepared both to gather the news and to present it with a maximum degree of satisfaction to the reader. Its news service has no equal in Canada; its staff, trained in the handling of news, has the equipment to edit war despatches and to summarize them effectively. From the first day of the war "The War Summary" scored, being so authoritative as to be quoted daily throughout Ontario.

THE writer of "The War Summary" has at his command the most complete cable service in America. Besides the Associated Press, Canadian Press and Canadian Associated Cables, THE GLOBE has the exclusive Canadian rights to all cables of The New York Times, The Philadelphia Ledger, and the choice of the cable services of The London Times and The London Chronicle.

DEAD HERO'S MOTHER TO GET VICTORIA CROSS

The Victoria Cross won by Pte. Harry Brown, of Emily Township, will be presented to his mother, Mrs. Patrick McAuliffe, of Emily, at Omemee, on Tuesday next, January 22nd. Pte. Brown enlisted in Lonlon, Ont., and the London Advertiser says:

The presentation of the V.C., the posthumus decoration won by Pte. Harry Brown, of this city, will take place on January 22. It will be made to the mother of the dead hero by the Duke of Devonshire, Canada's Governor-General. The Duke will be in London on January 21 to officially open the new soldiers wing of the Byron Sanatorium, and will be in Omemee the following day.

Mrs. Chas. Egelton, 626 Princess Street, sister of Pte. Brown, will be present at the ceremony. Pte. Brown was the only soldier enlisted here to win the most coveted decoration of the British army, the V.C., and in his case the hero was awarded after death. He enlisted here with the C.M.R. in 1915, and went overseas with a draft of the C.M.R. from Hamilton depot. Prior to enlisting he was employed in the National Brass Foundry as a machinist. Although his arm was blown off in the attempt, Pte. Brown delivered an important message after other messengers had been shot down, which saved a whole company battalion from destruction. A few hours after the successful delivery of the message, the young hero died, but his bravery and unflinching courage won the V.C., though he never lived to know he had been listed with the British army immortals, whose names are followed by those mystic and all powerful initials.

Convalescents Show Fine Spirit At Halifax

The indomitable spirit of the Canadian men who return from the front disabled for further military service, subject, according to the extent of their wounds for further medical treatment or vocational re-education under the Military Hospitals Commission, is glimpsed in the following story told by the Y.M.C.A. officer at the Halifax receiving depot.

Concerts are held every night in the recreation room of the depot while the men are detained there, and the talented citizens of Halifax have been very generous in giving their services. For the last load to land before the big disaster there was the customary programme on the night of their arrival. The battered heroes lined the big room. In the back a row of wheel chairs drew up as a rear guard, and in the front on the floor sat a row of lads cross-legged.

The artist was a young woman, a visitor in Halifax, unaccustomed to the maimed back-wash of war as Halifax has seen it since the first transport of disabled pulled into port. The expectant faces before here were a stimulus she never had known before and when she stopped the room rang with a clamour of approval.

In the front row were two lads each of whom had lost an arm. They were boyish men carried away with enthusiasm. They just had to applaud somehow and so they got together on it. One lad held out his one hand and the other laid his into it with resounding whacks.

The young woman sang every song she knew at that, and when after the encores a friend said, "You never sang so well before," she replied, "And I never expect to sing so well again. I'll never again have those two wonderful lads to inspire me."

RETURNED SOLDIERS MAKE TRENCH CANDLES

Propped up with pillows in his hospital cot, many a wounded Canadian lad, returned from the front as unfit for further military service, is doing his bit for the boys at the front by rolling paper candles which will light the dugouts of the comrades he left behind or brew their tea.

In the convalescent hospitals of the Military Hospitals Commission, candle making has become a popular occupational work for the men who are too worsted by battle to do anything more strenuous at this time. It cheers the men to think that they can still do a little something to win the war, and hundreds of the new trench candles are being turned out weekly.

They are made of strips of newspaper folded and rolled tightly into different sized candles. They are then dipped into paraffin and allowed to dry. They are very hard to distinguish and so resist draughts well. They also give off more heat than the usual wax candle and burn longer.

CANADIAN UNIVERSITIES AID IN REHABILITATION

Canadian colleges and universities are doing much in the work of the rehabilitation of the Canadian soldiers who have returned from the front disabled for further military service and requiring further education to enable them to carry on.

From coast to coast in every province the higher educational institutions have demonstrated their willingness to do all in their power to help in the work of re-education. Faculties in all departments in which soldiers have required work have been eager to do their bit by co-operating with the vocational training department of the Military Hospitals Commission in adapting courses for their needs.

The advantage and economy in both money and time to be gained by using existing facilities is readily evident. The university plants for technical training are ideal, although the courses have to be adapted to shorter periods of time. The University of Toronto, McGill, Queen's, the University of Saskatchewan and University of British Columbia have all taken an active interest in the work.

Courses have been arranged to provide instruction in motor mechanics, machinist work, tool making, pattern making, electrical work and telegraphy.

In some instances the vocational officers have arranged for men to complete arts courses, and in others men who had started to be scientific farmers have been given courses in the agricultural colleges to complete their training upon their return from the front.

In some of the universities courses in mining, milling and assaying have been offered the men. In no case has an institution been found unwilling to make arrangements for courses with the vocational training branch of the M.H.C. to whom the re-education of the returned soldier has been entrusted.

Some of the courses are only of two months' duration, but where it is necessary the courses may in rare cases extend over twenty-four months. The men receive pay and allowances as well as tuition during this time.

A DISLIKE FOR FOOD

Victims of Indigestion Often Dislike the Sight and Smell of Food

Every healthy man and woman should have a natural desire for food at meal times. This means that the digestion is in working order and that the blood is in good condition. But if you feel a dislike for food—if the sight and smell of wholesome food repels you—then you may be sure that all is not well. If after a night's rest you have no appetite for breakfast, your digestion requires attention. If your food is distasteful, or if you feel that it is a trouble to eat, your stomach is rebelling. You do not digest properly the food you are taking and therefore not hungry.

All these symptoms of a disordered digestion mean that the blood is not absorbing proper nourishment from food, for the work of the blood is to collect proper nourishment from food and impart it to the system. The stomach tries to refuse food the nutriment from which the blood cannot absorb, and this causes the lack of appetite. If you force yourself to eat the undigested food becomes a clog to the system. Nature is warning you. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone give the blood the richness and purity that it requires to perform its natural function. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure the most obstinate cases of indigestion—why they will cure any trouble due to poor blood. Miss Lizzie Ashton, Thamesville, Ont. says: "I suffered for years with stomach trouble. At times the distress was so great that vomiting would follow, and there was always severe pain after eating. I tried several remedies but they did not help me. On the contrary the trouble was growing worse, and got so bad at last that I could not keep anything on my stomach. Finally I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and gradually the trouble began to leave me, and I regained in all respects my customary good health and enjoyment of food. I make this statement voluntarily so that others may know of the wonderful results that follow the use of this medicine."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MILES OF RAILWAY TRACK CONGESTED BY COAL.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—Between Shamokin and Mahoney City forty miles of sidings are blocked with cars loaded with hard coal, and the collieries worked but half a day because of the congestion. Hundreds of cars are tied up in the Scranton railroad yards, and one train of coal cars extends from Scranton to Carbondale, a distance of 15 miles. This train has been there for several weeks.

THE SCENIC EFFECTS FOR "A DAUGHTER OF THE SUN" WONDERFUL

So Elaborate are the Settings That Stage Mechanics Will Arrive in Peterborough To-morrow Night to Arrange For Performance—Troop of Hawaiian Ukulele Players And Hula Dancers.

The scenic equipment and stage mechanics for the big spectacular drama "A Daughter of the Sun" will arrive by C.P.R. to-morrow night from Toronto, and will commence the first thing Monday morning, with the assistance of the local stage staff at the Grand, to get everything in readiness for the matinee performance, which commences at 2:30. Something extraordinary in the way of scenic effects are promised and patrons may depend on seeing a performance well worth while. In addition to carrying a large company to interpret the play, a troop of Hawaiian Ukulele Players, Singers and Hula Dancers travel with the company and render music of their own peculiar kind throughout the action of the play.

The demand for seats, particularly, for the evening performance, has been very brisk, but there are still good seats to be had for both the matinee and evening performance.

RATE OF ALLOWANCES FIXED BY GOVERNMENT

A rate of allowances has been fixed by Order-in-Council for discharged soldiers coming from their place of residence to the Military Hospitals Commission's artificial limb factories for repairs to their artificial limbs. One central factory where all artificial limbs for Canadian soldiers in need of them are manufactured has been established at Spadina Avenue, Toronto. The first of a series of branch factories for purposes of fitting and repairs has been opened at Winnipeg, and others will be arranged as required at each of eight or ten centres throughout the country.

As the Government is responsible not only for the issuing of the original limbs but for their maintenance through the entire lifetime of the soldier it frequently becomes necessary for the discharged men to visit the Commission's branch factory. As discharged men they are not under the jurisdiction of the Military Hospitals Commission Command, and the Commission until January 4th had no authority to recompense them for loss of time or travelling expenses. The Government has now authorized the Commission to pay the following scale of allowances in respect of any men called in for re-examination at a hospital or for repairs to or supply of artificial limbs and their appliances:

Daily allowance of $1.10 for time absent from home, plus $1.50 for each night spent at a hotel and 50 cents for each meal absent from home.

This makes a total allowance of $4.10 a day plus transportation. The scale is the same as that granted by the Board of Pension Commissioners when a pensioner is called into a centre for re-examination.

WANTED HARMONY OF ACTION.

Colonel G—— is a fine commander, but not a musician. He sent for the chief musician of his regimental band one day and delivered this scathing criticism:

"I notice a lack of uniformity about the band which must be regulated. Yesterday morning they were out on parade, and the largest man in the band was playing a little bit of an instrument—flute or something of the kind—and you had the big drum played by a small man. That sort of thing doesn't look well, and must be attended to. I want the small men to play small instruments and the big men the big instruments. And another thing—I want the trombone players to slide their instruments in and out in unison. It annoys me to see them all out of step with their hands."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Despatch."

FATHER PROTESTS REJECTION OF HIS TWO SONS BY ARMY

Arnold Blome, One-Time German Soldier, Carries Grievances to Secretary Baker.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Fighting for one's country when that country stands in need of defenders, is a privilege that goes with citizenship, is the conviction of Arnold Blome, of No. 478 Central Park West, who is equally determined to share in such privileges as in the advantages of the country of his choice.

Determined to partake of the prerogatives of the itizenship that he chose and upholds, he has protested to the Secretary of War because his two sons were not accepted by recruiting oers

That his two sons were not allowed to take their part in maintaining their country's rights, Mr. Blome regards as an unjustifiable question of his clear title to citizenship. Recruiting officers rejected the boys because of slight physical defects, one on account of fallen arches. In his opinion his boys were healthy enough to demand their share of the war's burden.

Mr. Blome has learned that it was known by the recruiting officers that he had served in the German army years ago. Feeling that this might have influenced their action, he carried the case to Mr. Baker. The Secretary of War answered and explained the army's requirements, but that left Mr. Blome still with the belief that there is no good reason why his boys should not be with the colours.

He said last night that he left Germany to escape the autocratic government with which America now stands at war and that he stands with America against all comers

In his letter to Mr. Blome, Secretary Baker said that he withheld no encouragement or sympathy from him and those who feel as he does, and that "there has been a constant aim to give the loyal and disloyal an opportunity to separate themselves from each other by speech and action," and that "only in this way could loyal Americans of German blood be protected from even greater injustice than they have been called upon to endure."

Happily," wrote Mr. Baker, "this process of differentiation between the loyal and disloyal seems now to be approaching a conclusion. With the latter placed where they shall be harmless, it is hoped that life may be made less unhappy for those of whom you speak.

But still Mr. Blome can't see any reason why his two sons are not allowed to fight for Old Glory.

CAUGHT SMUGGLING FOOD.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 19.—Caught at Zevenaar by a special agent of The Hague police, while she was attempting to smuggle into Germany eleven large boxes said to contain underclothes, shoes, coffee, tea and other foodstuffs, Countess Von Platen has been held at, Arnhem court. The countess had carefully prepared for her encounter with the customs authorities by a telephone message supposedly from the foreign office at The Hague and a telegram from the local German consul asking for considerate treatment; but the special agent arrived in time to overrule these instructions and insisted on examining the countess's luggage, where he found the contraband.

Scene from the Modern Military Drama "Seven Days' Leave," which comes to The Grand next Thursday, January 24, for a return engagement.

The blowing up of a submarine in view of the audience is one of several realistic effects in "Seven Days' Leave," the big spectacular military comedy to be presented at The Grand next Thursday, January 24, under the direction of Daniel Frohman, a name that spells quality in things theatrical. The drama is still the big rage of London despite the fact that it is now in its tenth month of continuously crowded audiences there.

ANOTHER MOTOR BUS FROM RURAL CHILDREN

The rural school children of Ontario have given a second motor bus to the Military Hospitals Commission to be used in transferring soldiers under treatment in the various convalescent hospitals in "D" Unit.

The presentation was made by Premier Sir William Hearst in front of the Parliament Buildings in Toronto and it was a proud day for the youngsters who had sacrificed many little pleasures to make their patriotic contributions.

The first motor bus was presented in the fall and came from the contributions made last year. It was a fine bus and has seen very active service in getting the men from the hospitals to their vocational training classes and the theatres. The second is a similar car.

Triplet Soldier Brothers Show A Very Close Resemblance

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 18.—There is a general idea that when triplets are born, seldom does each grow to maturity. The Town of Port Colborne affords an instance of triplets, not only growing to manhood, but even wearing khaki.

The three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wegerich, of Port Colborne, James, William, and John — more familiarly known as Jim, Will, and Jack — were born just a little over twenty years ago. Jack is in the Royal Flying Corps, and Jim and Will are in the 67th Battery. Jim and Will wanted to follow Jack into the Flying Corps, but the authorities decided otherwise.

The trio, all manly boys, started school together, and wrote their entrance examinations on the same day. One of the three failed, but when Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education heard of the circumstances, he issued a certificate for all three. They started to High School together, and quit on the same day, two of them going into a bank, and the third taking a position as book-keeper. They also offered themselves for Military Service on the same day.

The three boys are so remarkably alike, that, only in recent years, was their father able to tell them apart. It is related that, once when they were lads, Jack wanted to go to Buffalo, but his father refused him permission; Jack, therefore, got up early, and proceeded on his way without his father suspecting it because when Will and Jim had their breakfast together, Jim went outside, walked around the barn, came in again and had another breakfast.

Naturally, and as a result of their close likeness, one to the other, there have been many interesting happenings. Will says he has very often spent a very pleasant evening with Jack's girl, and, until Jack called next evening, she was none the wiser.

PROGRAMME OF 21st SERGEANT'S XMAS DINNER

The following is a copy of the programme of the Christmas dinner held in France by the sergeants of the 21st Eastern Ontario Battalion. It will be interesting to many readers, as Peterborough is well represented in the 21st and it will be seen that a number of Peterborough non-coms. took part in the programme:

Toast to the King—Lieut.-Col. E. W. Jones, D.S.O.

Toast to Col. Jones—R. S. M., J. P. Murphy.

Song—"Come Sober But (Don't) Go Home Drunk"—Sergt. W. S. Taylor.

Song (If Sober)—Sergt. W. P. Doolan.

Song—Sergt. H. Wykes.

Song and Step Dance—C. S. M. Constance.

Song—Sergt. P. Phillips.

Song—"Who the H—— is Running the War?"—R.Q.M.S., T. King.

Song—"We'll Never Let the Old Run Fall"—C.S.M., S. Thomas.

Song—Sergt. Stanley.

Song—"There's No Mail For You To-day"—Sergt. J. E. Groves.

Co. Sergt.-Major E. G. Taylor has taken his voice to the blacksmith shop to get the rough spots filed off. Maybe he will sing. Let's hope not. Murphy will not sing to-night.

Guests are requested to see that nothing sticks to their fingers on leaving.

Only one fight allowed for each W. O. and sergeant.

Sergt. W. J. Cross will be in charge of the iron rations.

Sergt. J. Hawker, chief bomber.

Sergt. W. McCullagh will be in charge of the transport to take the women and children home.

Stretcher bearers will be in attendance.

Every one is requested not to drink too much as there will be no sick parade to-morrow. A carload of No. 9's is expected on the 27th.

Owing to the absence of R.S.M., T. F. Jordan, there will be no issue of whale oil.

MUCH BIGAMY IN GERMANY.

Courts Show Leniency to Offenders Who Have Varied Excuses.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 18.—Several south German newspapers raised a cry of alarm over the increase of bigamy in Germany. They say, the many acquittals or lenient sentences indicate that the authorities are condoning the offence.

Accused plead loss of memory because of shell shock, departure of the wife without leaving an address and infidelity by wife. Some declare boldly that plural marriages are good for the nation's future. A corporal told a Munich court that he got married every time he obtained leave from the trenches, and believed he had five wives. The deceived women usually are not willing to prosecute.

ROUND-UP BRITONS IN U.S.

Police of Springfield, Mass., Conduct Search for 400.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 18.—The Police Department to-day began a round-up of more than 400 British subjects resident in this city who are subject to the draft laws of Great Britain and Canada at the behest of the British recruiting mission here. The police lack authority to arrest, but will investigate and turn over the information obtained to the recruiters.

Sergt. Dan O'Brien Given Reception By Downeyville People

On Tuesday, 8th January, an event of unusual interest took place in Downeyville, when the people of that vicinity assembled in the parish hall to do honour to Sergt. Dan. O'Brien, who had lately returned from France. Sergt. O'Brien has been in France over three years, and is now enjoying a short furlough at his home. He was wounded once but has completely recovered, and is looking remarkably well for one who has had to undergo the severe strain of three years' warfare. His many friends turned out in large numbers to greet him. Among those present on the platform were Rev. Fathers McGuire and Guirey of Peterborough, Father McAuley of Ennismore, Reeve Parsons and Mr. R. J. Mulligan of Omemee, Reeve Wilson of Emily, Messrs. Wm. O'Brien and Martin Carroll of Downeyville, Pte. Joseph McAuliffe and Rev. P. J. Galvin of Downeyville. Speeches were delivered by these gentlemen, and vocal numbers were rendered by Father McAuley, Mr. Parsons, and Mr. Mulligan. The other numbers on the programme consisted of patriotic choruses by the school children, vocal selection by Miss Fanny Costello, and a recitation by Miss Nellie Downey.

The following address of welcome was read by Rev. P. J. Galvin, and a well-filled purse was presented by Mr. Vincent Perdue:

Address of Welcome to Sergt. Dan. O'Brien.

Our bugles sang truce—for the night-cloud had lowered,
And the sentinel stars set their watch in the sky;
And thousands had sunk on the ground overpowered—
The weary to sleep, and the wounded to die.

When reposing that night on my pallet of straw,
By the wolf-scaring faggot that guarded the slain,
At the dead of the night a sweet vision I saw,
And thrice ere the morning I dreamt it again.

Methought from the battlefield's dreadful array
Far, far I had roamed on a desolate track:
'Twas autumn—and sunshine arose on the way
To the home of my fathers, that welcomed me back.

One hundred years have elapsed since these words were penned, and no doubt the conditions and circumstances of war boys during that space of time undergone many changes. The soldiers of that early time stretched their weary limbs on the ground, when sleep overpowered them, and the faggot was kept burning to scare the wolf away. To-day the soldier sleeps and fights underground, and he would not dare light a faggot even to repel a wolf. But a soldier of to-day has to sleep as of yore, and sweet visions no doubt come to him in his dreams as they did to the soldier of whom the poet speaks. We know not whether you had the sweet vision accorded to that soldier, but we feel that many a time you must have longed for the day when you would be allowed to return to your native land to receive the tender embrace of the loved ones at home and the grasp of the friendly hand outstretched to welcome you back. That day has arrived after three years of cruel but glorious war, and we, your friends and relatives of the parish of Downeyville, desire to extend to you a hearty welcome on the occasion of your return to enjoy a short and well-merited furlough.

Your career as a soldier has been an honourable one. You were amongst the first to offer your services in defence of the cause for which the Allies are fighting, and for more than three years you have nobly borne your part in the colossal struggle that still drags on its weary length. You bear some of the scars of battle. Thank God, they are not of a serious nature. The names of Langemarck, St. Julien, Ypres, Vimy Ridge, will no doubt recall to your mind many stirring incidents when death seemed near. But through those scenes of havoc and death you passed, and you are now at home far from the din of battle and from the sound of war's alarums. What matter for thanksgiving and congratulation! We congratulate you on your preservation. We congratulate your heroic mother and your sisters and brothers on your return, and we pray that you may be spared from further danger of death in battle.

There is absent from the list of those whom we congratulate the name of one who would be proud to be here to-night, and whose presence would bring joy to this audience. May his soul rest in peace! From his place in heaven, let us hope, he is looking down this evening on this gathering, well pleased that his son has acquitted himself honourably, well pleased that his son's services have received recognition.

We who surround you this evening take a justifiable pride in your war record. The heroism of any man reflects favourably upon the community that sends him forth. We knew you were of heroic mould, and we confidently expected that you would prove yourself a hero. We have not been disappointed in our expectations.

We do not desire to lavish praises upon you. The experience is not always a pleasant one, particularly for a soldier who has, up to recent date, been subjected to many harrowing trials. We feel that you would rather charge a German gun than stand up here to be told what a fine fellow you are. But, nevertheless, we could not allow you to return without our taking advantage of the opportunity to express to you our appreciation of your unblemished record during your three years' fight for the principles of justice and right. As a slight token of this appreciation we ask your acceptance of this purse. We wish it could be doubled and trebled, and trebled over again. But such as it is we offer it to you.

In conclusion, dear Dan, we present to you our best wishes for your future success. Should you be obliged to return to the scene of conflict, may the God of battles protect you and bring you safe home to those who so eagerly looked forward to this homecoming, and to whom a second homecoming, and to whom a second home.

Signed on behalf of the parish of Downeyville,

Rev. P. J. Galvin,
William C. Herlihy,
Vincent Perdue,
Joseph M. Lucas,
Joseph Clancy,
Martin Carroll,
Daniel Costello,
John Morrissey.

Sergeant O'Brien replied with an appropriate speech, in which he thanked the people for their kindness towards him and the interest they had manifested in his behalf.

At the conclusion of the programme Father Galvin made a brief speech, in the course of which he conveyed to the audience the expression of Mr. John Carew's regret at being unable to be present at the reception. Mr. Carew, M.P.P., has taken a deep interest in Sergeant O'Brien's welfare, for which the people of Downeyville are greatly indebted to him.

A pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

WHEN BABY IS ILL

Mothers when your baby is ill; when his little stomach and bowels are out of order; when he is troubled with constipation, colic, colds or his teething is painful give him Baby's Own Tablets—the perfect medicine for little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Alphonse Pelletier, St. Damase, Que., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are a grand remedy for little ones. I used them for my baby with wonderful results." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT ALL SAINTS'

There will be special services at All Saints' to-morrow to mark the third anniversary of the completion of the church. Archdeacon Perry, M.A., of St. Catharines, will preach both morning and evening.

Many who had the privilege of hearing Archdeacon Perry three years ago, at the re-opening of the church, will welcome this opportunity of hearing him again. The choir will render special music, and during the offertory in the evening, Miss Lora Logan will render Elgar's "Salut d' Amour" on the violin.

The safe way to send money by mail is by Dominion Express Money Order.

CHAPLAIN WRITES OF PTE. BRIDGENAW'S DEATH

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Daniel Birdgenaw in regard to the death of her husband, Pte. Daniel Birdgenaw, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, who was killed in action on 27th October, 1917, fighting with the 52nd Battalion Canadians:

France, 21st December, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Birdgenaw,

You will already have heard of your loss by the time this reaches you. I have written to your husband's father and mother telling them of his death. God help and comfort you in this great trial. Try to remember that he gave his life for a mighty cause and helped to gain fame and honour for his battalion on the day he laid down his life. A man's life does not consist in length of days, but in what he is and does. Our Lord Himself gave up His life when in the very flower and prime of manhood. So likewise has your husband died for the cause in hand, and we are very proud of him, though our hearts are sad and lonely for him. God give him peace and rest in that sphere of life where now he is.

He was killed in the first attack on Passchendaele Ridge, where he is buried beside his other comrades who fell with him. He had the holy sacrament, I am glad to say, before he went into the line. Father Cote said mass in the parish church of the village near which we were encamped before we went up to Passchendaele. A cross will be erected over him as soon as it is safe for men to work on the erection of it. His personal things will be sent home through the War Office.

Yours sincerely,

R. W. Ridgway,
Chaplain, 52nd Batt., Canadians,
France.

Splendid Work Of British And Foreign Sailors' Society

The Reverend T. Eynon Davies, General Secretary of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, writes concerning the relief of men of torpedoed ships that:

"As some misunderstanding," he says, "has arisen on the part of newspaper correspondents concerning the work of my Society, which is the oldest organization for seafarers, may I state the following facts:

1. When we claim that, among other activities, we have this year alone assisted some 17,000 victims of German piracy, the claim is in absolute accordance with the facts. If needs be, we can produce our records and supply the evidence.

2. This claim based upon work done, conveys no imputation that kindred societies are not doing work equally excellent. Indeed, our own staff have now and then co-operated heartily with other societies and hope to be permitted to do so again.

Under present conditions a little overlapping is, I am afraid, inevitable. We avoid it whenever we can, but when this merciful work needs doing, and when nobody else is doing it, we step in. Need we offer any apology for doing so?

4. A suggestion has been made that we should attend to the moral and spiritual welfare of sailors. We are doing that, but we also consider the fact that the sailor is a creature of flesh and blood. Hence, when he steps ashore, shivering and starving, we clothe him and feed him, we doctor him and nurse him back to life; then we pay his fare and send him rejoicing home In so doing we expect that we are promoting his moral and spiritual welfare in a very practical sort of way, and, of course, we never send out claims to anybody for the services thus rendered.

5. My Society is fully recognized by the authorities and only this week we have received from the Lords of the Admiralty a letter of thanks in very handsome terms for our services to the men of H.M.S. Drake, to say nothing of many another brave ship in his Majesty's service.

We are chiefly concerned about getting the work done. Never mind who gets the credit for it."

British Airmen In Italy

By Lieut. F. J. Sleath

The British airmen have been quick to make their presence felt on the Italian front, and their help comes most opportunely. For a long time the Italian airmen had beaten their Austrian opponents out of the air. But with the coming of German divisions for the recent offensive, squadrons of German fliers appeared also; and this sudden reinforcement kept the hands of the Italian airmen very full indeed. The British troops in Italy, however, have brought their airmen with them; and already the process of clipping the Germans' wings has begun.

It was no light task suddenly to transfer a large number of aeroplanes to a comparatively distant front at this season of the year, not to mention the difficulties of organizing new aerodromes, and assembling the requisite stores and personnel. All this, however, has been accomplished successfully; the British aeroplanes are already in the air; and the wreckage of German machines strewing the banks of the Piave bears witness to the efficiency of British pilot-fighters.

The first task of an airman on arriving at a new front is to familiarise himself with the features of the surrounding country. He must pick out landmarks, by which he will be able to find his way to any objective that he may be given. This is especially important on such a front as that in Italy, where the line is irregular and full of mountain salients. Moreover, the rocky nature of the northern sector severely limits the number of suitable landing-places.

It was while engaged on this duty that the first British victory was won. Four British machines crossed the Piave on their first flight over the enemy's lines. They were immediately attacked by five Albatross scouts. In the melee which followed, the British soon proved their superiority, and one German promptly went down in a spinning nose-dive. It was a ruse to escape from a too skillful adversary, and, 'flattening out' when he got to 5,000 feet, he sped away home to safety.

With the sides now equal in numbers, the British pilots pressed the enemy more closely, and a harassed German attempted to repeat the nose dive ruse. His opponent dived after him, and, as the German 'flattened out' the British pilot riddled him with a burst of fire from his machine gun. The right wing of the Alabatross collapsed, and, twisting and twirling, the German machine crashed to the earth

The British pilot immediately started to climb. In the distance seven other Albatross scouts were coming rapidly to the assistance of their beaten comrades Height was essential if the airmen did not wish to be 'mobbed' by the superior numbers of the enemy.

Presently an Albatross threatened to dive at him, but another British machine forestalled the attack, and the German drew off. Long before the oncoming enemy could get to close quarters the British patrol was in compact fighting formation, and the four undaunted British airmen flew steadily forward, waiting for the German attack.

It was now a case of eleven against four. The Germans, however, hesitated to accept battle. The manoeuvred to cut off individual machines, intending to bring their whole weight to bear on any single British pilot whom they might separate from the Squadron. But the British flying formation was too much for them. Instead, the Germans allowed one of their own machines to be separated. It was immediately engaged by a British pilot, and sent crashing to the earth.

The British machines then headed straight for the hostile squadron, and flew right through it, out-manoeuvring it completely, and firing hotly all the time. Their superior skill easily neutralised the weight of numbers that opposed them. Down below, the firing in the trenches ceased, as each side paused to watch the issue of the aerial combat.

Out-manoeuvred and out-fought, with the nerves of more than one German pilot shaken by the accurate shooting which had riddled their machines, the Germans at last drew off, and the British flew safely homeward. The latter had fought their first fight over Italian soil, and had gained the victory. The reputation which they had brought with them was amply justified in the eyes of the Allies, whom they had come to help.

McCall Patterns

If you buy ready-made clothes for the children, the problem of keeping them well and warmly dressed for a reasonable amount is indeed serious. But if you make their clothes at home, using a McCall Quarterly and McCall Patterns as your guide, the problem of finance is not only greatly simplified but the children will be better dressed than ever.

Town Planning Conducive, etc.

gineers' Club should further such a movement, and urge the Council to give the City Engineer time to draw up plans. The Commission would be pleased to give its assistance if the city made the request. Peterborough offered an exceptional opportunity for effective planning if the preliminary work were undertaken now.

Suburban Improvement.

The evils of "land-butchering" in suburbs by speculators, whose only thought is too often the profits they can realize was touched upon by Mr. Adams, who expressed the hope that Peterborough had not suffered from this practice. He stated that it is desirable that the city should develop gradually on its outskirts. If farms that should be used for food production are cut up into innumerable lots and permitted to remain idle and vacant there is a direct loss to the urban community, which should be enjoying the products of these fields instead of having to import and pay several prices for the food its people require. A number of slides illustrated this point clearly. Some views showed cities with large tracts of adjacent land rendered temporarily useless by real estate sub-divisions. The ideal condition was presented in pictures of field crops of garden produce browing close up to the city's borders.

Mr. Adams remarked that many of Peterborough's trees were crowded, and in places should be thinned out. This step would improve the appearance of the streets, would react to the advantage of the remaining trees and incidentally would supply a quantity of wood thet is needed for fuel.

The final test of town planning was its influence upon the community. It should make the people happy and contented, should improve the social and industrial conditions, and enhance the efficiency of the town and its inhabitants. A beautiful city appealed to visitors, and would attract and hold the skilled mechanics who are wanted by manufacturing establishments such as Peterborough possesses. The practical aspects of planning was the phase Mr. Adams held before his audience.

Questions were asked by Mr. W. H. Pretty, Mr. J. A. Aylmer and others. A vote of thanks was tendered the Engineering Club and to Mr. Adams by Judge Huycke and Mr. S. R. Armstrong. Mr. R. B. Rogers, president of the club, was chairman of the meeting.

The Banquet.

Prior to the public meeting held in the Library Mr. Thomas Adams was entertained at a banquet held in the Empress Hotel. Mr. C. E. Canfield, who presided, introduced Mr. Adams, who made a brief address during the course of which reference was made to the many aspects of the work accomplished by the Commission of Conservation of which Mr. Adams is an official and active worker. Mr. Adams made it plain that town planning did not begin and end with the creation of maps containing impossible ideas. The "being and the well being" are two prime essentials that are inseparable when it comes to a question of town planning. In England and the war stricken countries steps have been taken towards the reconstruction of the war devasted areas and also the creation of new areas where towns are springing into existence such as newly developed munitions centres.

Referring directly to Peterborough Mr. Adams said that this city, like many other cities, suffered from its approaches. Some cities attempt to make their railway stations look attractive and have the backyard located in some other part of the community.

"Peterborough has tremendous possibilities," said Mr. Adams. "There are several good squares including Central and Victoria Parks. The first named park is three-fourths completed and might be completed with the erection of a city hall. Peterborough is an industrial city. We want more cities like Peterborough, rather than huge conglomerations like we find in Toronto and other large centres. It is in these centres that we find the greatest amount of suffering from the lack of coal and other necessary supplies. Viscount Bryce once said, 'develope the small cities rather than develope the large conglomerations'."

About sixty members of the Engineers' Club were present, also members of the City Council and other local bodies.

SECRETARY'S REPORT GIVES RESUME OF THE YEAR'S WORK

At the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women on Thursday the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. Stevenson, presented the following report:

During the year 1917, the 5th year of the Peterborough Local Council, nine open meetings have been held. The discussions on the various subjects brought before the Council have been interesting and helpful. Early in the year a tea was held in order to provide funds for Council work and to pay $25 to the National deficit, which sum had been pledged at the last annual meeting.

Dr. Birnie, as convener of the Committee on Equal Franchise, gave a very interesting address on the subject and secured a number of workers to help with the petition which was to be forwarded to the Provincial Government. This canvass, though made useless as far as procuring the vote for women by the action of the Government, served its purpose by helping to personally inform women what the franchise meant.

In February we had the pleasure of a visit from Col. Ackerman, who spoke to the Council on recruiting and asked for our assistance in raising the 247th Battalion.

In March we received Government circulars on Thrift and Economy and after a lively discussion on the subject the following resolution was forwarded through the proper channels to the Federal Government: "On motion of Mrs. Morris and Miss Hatton, resolved that in view of the high cost of living and in view of the fact that the cold storage system should be of benefit in conserving many staples of food, but may be abused for speculative purposes, therefore this Local Council requests the Executive of the National Council of Women to immediately approach the Federal Government requesting that a food controller be appointed. Carried."

In April we had an interesting account of the National Executive meeting held in Ottawa in March and which Mrs. Harstone attended.

At the June meeting Mrs. Mowat reported that the Playgrounds Committee had raised $115 from the sale of waste paper and $227 from the sale of carnations on Mother's Day. The matter of larger quarters for the V.W.V. was discussed at this meeting, in consequence of which a meeting was called composed of the Local Council Executive and the Presidents of the larger Patriotic Societies of the city. At this meeting it was decided to send a deputation to meet the G.W.V. and express the willingness of the ladies to form an auxiliary to their association when circumstances should make it advisable to do so. A short time ago this association was formed and is now at work furnishing the new quarters of the G.W.V.A.

At this meeting, on motion of Mrs. McDuffy and Mrs. Walsh, this Council went on record as protesting against the admission of young children to the class of performance being given at the Grand Opera House, hypnotism, etc. It was felt that public opinion should prevent the recurrence of any such performance in the city and that the Local Council should lead in such protest.

In September the Government thrift posters were distributed. A canning demonstration in connection with food conservation propaganda was held in the Conservatory Hall. The Government supplied the demonstrator and the attendance was good.

In November the National Executive was entertained, the arrangements for which, under the direction of our President, were very complete and eminently satisfactory.

Dr. Birnie, convener of the Citizenship Committee, has undertaken to bring this subject before the members of the Council at the monthly meetings. The subject was opened at the November meeting by Dr. Birnie herself and a highly interesting and instructive half hour was spent. One cannot speak too highly of Dr. Birnie's genius in handling her subject.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Maud E. Stevenson.

Peterboro' Juniors Beat Lindsay On Their Own Ice

Won Hard Fought Midnight Battle by 4 Goals to 3 Last Night and Tied Up the Score on the Round--Group Championship Depends on Fourth Game of the Series To Be Played Here Next Friday Night.

LAST NIGHT'S SCORE.

Peterborough—4. Linsay—3.

Score on the round—

Peterborough—12. Lindsay—12.

Games to play—

Lindsay at Peterborough, Friday, January 26th.

Total goals in four games to decide the winners.

Although it was ten o'clock when their train reached Lindsay last night and the game did not start until 10.45 the Peterborough Junior O.H.A. team and the forty supporters who accompanied them found ample compensation because the Peterborough youngsters succeeded in accomplishing what a Peterborough junior team has not done since the days of the "Bear Cats," that is, beating the Midgets on their own ice.

The score was 4 to 3, with the figures 1 to 1 at the end of the first period and 3 to 1 for Peterborough at the close of the second.

By coming through with a win the Red, White and Blue sweatered kids tied the score on the round, leaving the district honours hinging on the result of the last of the four games, which will be played at Brock Street Rink next Friday, and which should draw a record-breaking junior crowd.

Last night's game was the hardest fought of the three contests between the two teams. The pace was lightning fast from start to finish with both teams back checking like fiends and wading into each other with their bodies all the way. The lighter Petes got many a tumble at that style of going, but the spills failed to stop them. The Peterborough youngsters had the edge because they handled the puck better and were more successful in their passing, although the close back-checking prevented a great deal of effective combination.

It was hard, fast hockey from gong to gong, and it was two pretty tired teams that left the ice at twenty minutes to 1 o'clock, this morning. The Petes had the satisfaction, however, of having the game tucked away, and the score tied up on the round, and that made up for the bumps they got.

The Peterborough youngsters played their best hockey of the season last night, and they had to earn the decision. The forward line showed speed and clever stick handling, played their positions better than in their other two starts and checked back consistently, while the defence blocked and rushed with judgment.

Murray, in the nets, was cool and effective all the way. The Lindsay team gave him lots of work to do, and although as a rule the Petes' defence kept them shooting from outside, their drives were hard and accurate, and Murray had to be on the job every minute, his blocking and clearing being of veteran calibre. Cherrett, who played on the defence the greater part of the night, came through with a stellar game, his rushing and checking being always prominent, while his rink-length rush for the Petes' last counter was the feature play of the night. Another player who had a big part in the success of the night was Park. The little right wing, although he was outweighed many pounds by his opponent, was in the game every minute he was on the ice, scoring one goal on a beautiful single-handed rush, and combining with Cherrett for another counter. Hagerman, who moved up to centre when Cherrett went back to the defence, was very effective. The Lindsay team found his stick handling hard to solve, while his back-checking was a big help. Bartley's rushes down the boards and his good shooting kept him in the limelight, and he checked back consistently, while Girard was good all the way on the defence and rushed nicely as well. Williams, who was used as a substitute, gave a fine account of himself, especially in the last period after Park was hurt.

For Lindsay, Oliver, the clever little goal-keeper, and Wilford, the speedy defence man, were the stars, although Garnett, the lanky youngster on the rear guard, was a very useful member. Oliver played a splendid game in the nets, tearing off some sensational stops of close range shots. He was hurt in practice just before the third period, but pluckily resumed play. Wilford's speed made him a dangerous man from start to finish, and his whirling rushes kept the Petes' defence on their toes. He was up on the forward line for part of the time and did some great back-checking. Garnett's long reach made him an awkward obstacle for the Petes to dodge, and when he broke away for a rush he was hard to stop.

The teams lined up as follows:

LINDSAY		PETERBORO
	Goal
Oliver		Murray
	Right Defence
Garnett		Girard
	Left Defence
Wilford		Hagerman
	Centre
Stoddard		Cherrett
	Right Wing
Rogers		Park
	Left Wing
Conley		Bartley
	Substitute.
Green		Williams

From the start the going was fast. Both teams let out to the last notch from the go-in and there were few dull moments. It was run and counter-rush with the forward lines back-checking savagely and the goal keepers picking off the shots from outside. Both teams had opportunities from close in and it was Lindsay who finally scored first when Wilford passed the rubber from a scrimmage in the corner out to Stoddart, who camping unchecked in front of the Peterborough nets, slammed the rubber past Murray for the first counter after thirteen minutes' hard going.

The Lindsay lead was short-lived. Conley drew a penalty for tripping, and while he watched the game from the penalty box Cherrett and Park worked inside on a pretty piece of combination. Oliver blocked Park's drive, but Cherretts batted the rubber through before the Lindsay goaler could clear.

Just before the end of the period Hagerman was chased for tripping, but there was no damage done while he was off.

The Petes had the best of the argument in the second period. They pressed the Midgets all through and in two minutes had tied the score on the round when Park took the rubber away from Wilford, skated around Garnett and went right in on top of Oliver to score a pretty goal.

Stoddart was the next man to draw a penalty and while he was off the Petes increased their lead, an easy shot from a scrimmage by Hagerman eluding the Lindsay goaler. That left the score 3 to 1, and the figures remained unchanged to the end of the period. Park was chased for loafing shortly before time was called.

There was no let up in the last period. In fact Lindsay opened up with a goal in thirty seconds, and, encouraged by this success, the Midgets took on new life and made things interesting. Rogers started the fire works when he went down centre ice and drilled a beauty from outside the defence past Murray, in thirty seconds after the face-off. That left the score 3 to 2 and it was anybody's battle.

Cherrett, however, took the pep out of Dicky Butler's lads in the next few minutes when he carried the rubber the length of the rink for a beautiful goal. He skated away from the Lindsay forwards, stick-handled around the defence and although he was tripped from behind as he shot his low, swift drive into the corner of the nets completely fooled Oliver. The goal disheartened the Midgets, but they kept on trying. Williams was benched for loafing and right afterwards Park had his hip hurt when he was tripped going in on the defence. This mishap was immediately followed by Bartley getting knocked out. The latter, however, recovered after a short delay and came back but Williams finished the game for Park.

Garnett got the final score for Lindsay when he tore off a nice rush and scored at close range.

There were no further incidents, and the Petes managed to hold their lead until the final bell.

SUMMARY

First period—

1. Lindsay, Stoddart, 13 mins.
2. Peterboro, Cherrett, 4 mins.

Second Period.

3. Peterboro, Park, 2 min.
4. Peterborough, Hagerman, 4 min.

Third period—

5. Lindsay, Rogers, 30 secs.
6. Peterboro, Cherrett, 5 mins.
7. Lindsay, Garnett, 8 mins.

The scores of the three games between the two clubs are as follows:

At Lindsay Jan. 4—
Lindsay, 8. Peterboro, 5
At Peterboro, Jan. 11—
Peterboro 3. Lindsay, 1
At Lindsay, Jan. 8th—
Peterborough 4 Lindsay, 3

NOTES.

Midnight hockey suits the Petes. As one fan put it: "They were 12 o'clock fellows in a 9 o'clock town."

The Lindsay fans had a long wait. The train was three hours and a half late, and it was not until twenty minutes to eleven that the teams appeared on the ice. The game was worth waiting for, however.

With three hard fought battles already recorded the fourth game, at Brock Street Rink, on Friday, should be a corker. As the two teams are even in the matter of goals scored the group championship goes to the winner of this game. Although beaten last night the Midgets have lots of fight left in them and they won't go down without another hard struggle. Peterboro fans should pack the rink for this battle.

Tankard Games Were Hard Fought

The Lindsay Warder has the following account of the Tankard games played in Lindsay on Thursday in which the Peterborough rinks were defeated by eleven shots:

It was in the year 1908 that Lindsay last won the Ontario Tankard, so that it is time to once more inscribe the name of the local club on the honour roll. Two local rinks skipped by G. A. Little and L. V. O'Connor will again compete in Toronto this year for the blue ribbon event in curlingdom, having defeated Bobcaygeon and Peterborough in the play yesterday. If they put up the same brand of curling in Toronto that they did in the games yesterday they will land the silver mug. Both rinks played well, particularly the two skips, who not only played in clever form, but used good judgment. The clash with Bobcaygeon was never in doubt, but that with Peterborough was anybody's game. Bobcaygeon played in somewhat nervous style, peterborough playing like veterans.

One of the largest galleries that ever watched a Tankard event in Lindsay gathered yesterday, and gentlemen that very seldom visit the rink at all were present and remained until the last stone was thrown at 6:45 o'clock.

Skip Little drew Ice No. 2, and his opponent was Rolly Waddell. with the exception of J. Brightman Skip Waddell had a new rink on hand, "Bob" Sturgeon of Briscoe fame playing second and "Dickey" Davidson third. The latter played a number of beautiful runners, which helped hold the Lindsay score down. Waddell was steady and cool at all stages of the game and played a number of sporty shots in order get on top of the score.

"Geordie" Little and his crew curled in fine form, especially Vice-Skip Williams and the veteran skip. Little had the draw game mastered to a nicety and pulled through many a "squeeze" play.

On No. 1 Ice "Larry" O'Connor was up against the redoubtable "Pete" Lang with a rink of old-timers, including Jimmie Connell and Archie Moore. L. Hall was a new man at lead. The game was of the snappy brand with O'Connor, Cuthbert, Butler and W. Williams working like clock work. Very few stones were wasted by the Lindsay quartette and by the time the half-way mark was reached Lang was giving his men a few flyers which only resulted so-so. Skip Lang, however, was in form and played a cool and collected game. On the 15th end he got a two and followed up with a four. O'Connor scored on the 17th and looked good to count one on the last, but Lang played a perfect runner, nipped a stone at the edge of the rings and counted 2, being only one down at the close.

HOCKEY.

Fulton And Miske Box To A Draw

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ST. PAUL, Jan. 19.—Fulton and Miske boxed ten rounds to a draw last night.

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

THE MACS WIN TWO FROM PRINTERS.

Last night at the Water Street Alleys, the Printers dropped two games to The Macs in a Ten-Pin League fixture. The Printers won the first game with an 875 total, against 800 for The Macs. The Macs won the second game and also the third with an 854 total.

Henderson, for the Printers, was high man for the night, with a 635 total, a record for the League, and also had high single of 234, while Anderson rolled up a total of 526.

For The Macs, Hayes and McDonnell were the top-notchers, with 507 and 504 respectively.

The scores were as follows:

To-night an interesting game is expected, when two teams from the DeLaval meet for an exhibition game.

NO EXEMPTION FOR TYRUS COBB

Star Detroit Outfielder Has Been Placed in Class One.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 19.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, star outfielder of the Detroit Americans, has been placed in Class 1, by the exemption board here, where he is registered. It was understood he claimed deferred classification on the ground of dependents.

When informed to-day of the action of the local board Cobb declared he is willing to serve whenever he is called. He became 34 years old last December 18th and has three children.

BRITAIN TO PAY IT.

Will Take Over Payments Russia Should Have Made.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons that the British Government had arranged to take over the payment of Russian credits and Treasury bills maturing this month, in exchange for three-year Exchequer bonds at par.

At the present market value the Exchequer bonds are worth about 82. The effect of the Government's programme is that the Treasury insures the holders of . is paper against loss at a premium of 18 per cent. The total cost to the Government, the Chancellor said, would be £17,500,000.

Bonar Law explained that the Government had no direct responsibility in the matter, but, in view of the serious consequences to holders and acceptors of these bills, through the financial disturbance between Britain and Russia, the Government had decided to assume the rights against the drawers and guarantors.

IMPORTANT.

All lady captains in charge of the canvass for the Great War Veterans Club rooms who have completed their canvass are asked to return their cash and tickets to the treasurer, Mrs. R. J. Devey, 285 Park street.

GOSPEL HALL.

The Sunday evening service in the Gospel Hall, 7 o'clock, will be conducted by Mr. A. R. Stephenson, Edmonton, and Richard Irving, Kingston. One of the church fathers said in reference to Biblical theology, "What is true is not new and what is new is not true." Come and hear, not the new theology, but the same old Gospel that Paul preached. Seats free. No collection, and a hearty welcome to all.

THE PATRIOTIC EMPIRE.

Through the kind generosity of Mr. F. L. Robinson, the Empire Theatre has been given Wednesday afternoon in aid of St. Peter's Patriotic Club a splendid six-reel picture, with Madge Kennedy in "Nearly Married" will be shown.

During the afternoon Miss Florence Leahy and Miss Lillian Hurley, two well known artists, will be heard in vocal and instrumental numbers. Performance commences at 2.30 o'clock.

MURRAY STREET ANNUAL MEETING.

On account of the arrangement entered into by St. Paul's, George street and Murray street churches for united weeknight services for the rest of the winter, it will be necessary to hold the annual meeting of Murray street Baptist church next Wednesday evening.

All who have the responsibility of submitting reports are asked by the deacons to have them prepared and made as concise as possible that all may be heard that night, January 23rd.

Ennismore People Presented Purse To Returned Soldier

The congregation of St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, last night presented an address and purse of gold to Pte. Joseph McAuliffe, a returned soldier, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion. Rev. J. V. McAuley presided at the largely attended meeting in the parish hall. The address was read by Mr. Jas. McGuire, and the purse presented by Mr. Arnold Crough. Rev. Father Galvin and Sergt. Dan O'Brien of Downeyville, and Rev. P. J. McGuire of Peterborough were present. Private McAuliffe lives in Emily Township, but is a member of St. Martin's Church.

MR. ANGLESY IS GRATEFUL

The Fire Department received a box of cigars this morning, a grateful acknowledgement from Mr. Anglesy of the Henry Hope Company for their services in October when the timely arrival of the pulmotor saved Mr. Anglesy from death by electrocution.

Chief Grange also received a letter from ex-Chief Howard congratulating him upon his splendid handling of the two recent fires in the city, and on securing the new fire engine which Mr. Howard personally examined while it was in Toronto.

A bow is frequently the only trimming on the hat with sweeping lines.

TO-MORROW AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

The services announced to be held in St. John's Church last Sunday and which were withdrawn owing to the weather, will be held to-morrow. In the morning the Rector will deal with the present parochial situation and indicate lines of action and advance for the future. A large attendance, especially of the men of the congregation, is expected. In the evening there will be an illustrated service entitled "The Epiphany in Song, Scene, and Story."

SERVICES AT TRINITY CHURCH

The anniversary services of Trinity Methodist Church will be continued to-morrow. Rev. W. H. Greaves, M.A., who was to have preached last Sunday and who was prevented by the storm from reaching the city, will (D.V.) preach both morning and evening. Dr. Greaves is one of the most finished and eloquent preacher of the day. Come and hear him. Special music by the choir. All are welcome.

WEDDING BELLS

BOUCHEN—LAURENCESON.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Laurenceson, William Street, Port Hope, on Wednesday afternoon, when their eldest daughter, Sarah E., was married to Willis Boughen, of Peterborough, the Rev. A. N. McEvoy officiating. The bride was given away by her father and was unattended.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cameo and pearl brooch.

CARPENTER—HATHERLY.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at the home of Mr. William Hatherly, on Wednesday evening, January 16th, at 7.30 o'clock when his third eldest daughter, Florence Elizabeth, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Frederick George Carpenter, of Otonabee.

The bride, who was most charmingly attired in a beautiful gown of Burgundy silk trimmed with soutache braid and beads, carried an elegant bouquet of white roses and maiden's hair fern. She entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by the bride's sister, Miss Vina. After the ceremony, the bride led the way to the dining room, where a most sumptuous wedding dinner was served. The tables were most beautifully decorated with large bouquets of Narcissus and carnations, while the dining room was prettily decoated with evergreens and white ribbon.

The presents were both numerous and costly, attesting to the high esteem in which the bride is held.

Rev. L. S. White, of Keene, performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will reside in Otonabee.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN COCHRANE.

Mr. Hugh Cochrane, of Catchacoma Lake, Cavendish Township, was in the city yesterday in connection with the death of his mother, Mrs. John Cochrane, who died at her home on 17th January.

Mrs. Cochrane and her husband, Mr. John Cochrane, who died about eleven years ago, were the pioneer settlers of Cavendish, where they have been two of the most respected residents during the past forty years.

Mrs. Cochrane, who before marriage was a Miss Davidson, leaves behind her one son Hugh and a sister, Mrs. J. B. McWilliams, 558 Gilmour Street, City.

The funeral will take place on Monday. Interment in Lakefield Cemetery.

On Thursday evening last Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Eason, who up to the present have resided at Lang, were presented with a purse and an address by friends and neighbours, who joined in an expression of regret at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Lang for Toronto, where they will reside in future.

Keene Personals

KEENE, Jan. 17.—The Township Council was unable to hold its usual monthly meeting last Monday owing to the big storm and bad roads.

Misses L. Rippengale, L. Harris, T. Rootes, and L. Barnwell have returned to their homes in Peterborough after a pleasant visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rennie.

Miss Mary Connell spent a few days last week at Peterborough.

Pte. Andrew Speirs, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, has been invalided home from the Front.

Miss Gertrude Roche, who has been spending a month's holidays at the home of her father, Mr. P. Roche, has returned to Haileybury, where she will resume her work as a trained nurse.

Miss Jean O'Neil, of Hastings, was the week-end guest of Miss McCann.

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church held their regular monthly meeting last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Moore. Miss McGregor, travelling Provincial Secretary, was present, and gave a splendid report of the work.

Mrs. William Connell was shopping at Peterborough on Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Archie Kemp and son William spent the past week with friends at Peterborough.

The dance given by the young men of Keene last Friday night was a splendid success. A large crowd was present from Peterborough, Norwood, Westwood, Hastings, and other points, and a most enjoyable time was spent by all.

Miss Lola Kempt was in Peterborough on Tuesday of last week.

Miss F. Stewart has returned to her home at Campbellford after a pleasant visit with Miss Katie Skinner.

Mr. T. P. Howson was in Peterborough on business.

Miss Kerr, of Peterborough, spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. P. Roche.

The Presbyterian choir members, their wives and husbands, were delightfully entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Drummond on Tuesday evening of last week.

Mrs. R. N. Johnston returned home last Wednesday from Peterborough.

Mrs. Alex. Stewart was in Peterborough a few days last week.

Mr. Alfred Fletcher was in Peterborough on Tuesday.

HARWOOD PIONEER DIES.

George Farr Two Weeks Ago Celebrated 65th Wedding Anniversary.

COBOURG, Jan. 18.—Two weeks after celebrating the 65th anniversary of his marriage, Mr. George Farr, one of the best-known pioneer citizens of the district, passed away at his residence at Harwood, Rice Lake.

He was born in England in 1828. Eighty years ago he came with his parents to this country, the latter taking up clergy reserve land in Alnwich Township, where they located.

At Coldsprings in 1852, Rev. Mr. Hayden officiating, he was married to Miss Mary Ann Wellwood, of Cobourg who has now reached the age of 82 years, but still takes a great interest in knitting for the soldiers. Only a short tiem before his death Mr. Farr is said to have helped his son cross-cut saw two cords of wood.

Besides his wife, a large family survives.

BIRTH.

BOND—At Nicholls Hospital, Jan. 18, 1918, to Mr. and Mrs. J. Percy R. Bond, a daughter.

CLARK.—At Nicholls Hospital, on Jan. 17th, 1918, to Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Clark, a daughter, Muriel Ernestine.

IN MEMORIAM.

BIRDGENAW.—In loving memory of my two dear sons, Pte. Frank Birdgenaw, who was killed in action, 17th January, 1917, and Pte. Daniel Birdgenaw, who was killed in action 27th October, 1917, both formerly of the 93rd Battalion.

Now a mother's heart is aching
For her sons she loved so well;
They gave their lives for their country,
In honour's cause they fell.
They were my sons whom I fondly loved;
As friends both kind and true
No better sons hath ever lived,
Their equals were but few.
Their cheery ways, their smiling faces
Are a pleasure to recall;
There is nothing left to answer
But their pictures on the wall.

Happy Study Time For the Children

The children cheerfully enter into their studies when they are in normal health with every faculty at its best. A most important part of their equipment is their eyesight. If the eyes are weak, study is too much of an effort, and progress slow. Dr. Fowler makes a specialty of caring for children's eyesight, and should be consulted if for some unknown cause the child is not doing well at school.

Cash Talks Here!

Commencing Monday we are inaugurating a mutual benefit "CASH AND CARRY" system that cannot fail to interest every house-holder in Peterboro.

You Pay CASH and Carry Home Your Groceries

Your savings over the old way of credit prices, plus cost of delivery, will surprise and please you.

Everything in the store will be reduced in price, all that it formerly cost us in bad accounts, book-keeping and for expensive delivery.

Where delivery is necessary we will deliver orders of $1.00 or over, C.O.D. at the cut price.

This system will give our customers and hundreds of new ones a pleasant surprise in the amount they can save on old prices.

- "Let us Go into Jerusalem" - Holy Places in and Around the City -

A corner of the Garden of Gethsemane, near Jerusalem. The garden occupies about a third of an acre, and is surrounded by a wall covered with stucco. It is under the control of the Franciscans, and contains eight olive trees of great age, which may well have sprung from the roots of those which were there in the time of Christ.

The Mount of Olives and the Mosque of the Ascension. The building shown belongs to the Mohammedans, and marks the site of the Ascension. The central part of the building takes the form of a small octagonal chapel containing the footprint of Christ.

The entry into Jerusalem. A beautiful fountain near one of the gates. This fountain is a fair example of the really beautiful monuments which are to be found here and there in Jerusalem. The Bab-el-Silsileh (Gate of the Chain) is the eastern entrance to the Inner Haram Enclosure, surrounding the Dome of the Rock. Just inside is the beautiful little Dome of the Chain.

A general view of the Pools of Solomon outside Jerusalem. The pools are three huge oblong cisterns of masonry, and take their name from a passage in Eccles. ii. 6: "I made me pools of water, to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees." The place is thus described in Lewin's "Journal of a Visit to Jerusalem": The pools are at the head of the Valley of Urtas, and are distant about eight miles from Jerusalem. At the north-east corner of the lowest pool was an aqueduct which brings the water from the chamber at the north-west of the Upper Pool and conveys it to Bethlehem." Originally it was brought as far as Jerusalem.

The interior of the Mosque El-Aksa in Jerusalem. The magnificent basilica, built by Justinian in 536 A.D., was converted into a mosque, but some traces still remain of the original building. The porch still contains two niches for statues, and is believed to have been the work of the Templars.

The Grotto of the Agony where Judas gave the kiss of betrayal. The Grotto of the Agony is a cave in the rock, and it was there, according to tradition, that the disciples slept while Christ prayed on the Mount of Olives near at hand, and where on His return to His sleeping disciples Judas gave Him the kiss of betrayal.

The ancient mulberry tree at Siloam and the pool where sight was given to the blind man. The pool was originally square, and near it are the remains of a fifth century chapel. Close by is the guarled and withered trunk of an ancient mulberry tree, supported by stones. The Jews declare it marks the spot where the Prophet Isaiah was martyred by King Manasseh.

Here is an illustration of the effect of German propaganda in the Argentine, where the notorious von Luxburg's "spurlos versenkt" turned the people violently against the Kaiser. The view is the interior of the German Club in Buenos Ayres after a pro-Ally parade. The demonstrants wrecked the club and then set fire to it. The members escaped with their lives by hurried flight.

FREE TO MEN

Would You Like to be a Strong, Husky Manly Fellow Once More?

New Method Without Drugs

COURAGE NEVER FORSAKES THE MANLY MAN.

The attached coupon entitles you to one illustrated copy of my pocket compendium and guide for the self-restoration of lost strength. (See description below.) Upon hearing from you, this valuable little book of private information for men will be sent by return mail in plain, sealed envelope. Please call or write to-day.

There is a new and marvellous method for restoring lost manly strength, for renewing vigor, which every man should know of, a self-restorer which operates without the use of drugs or medicines, a new way to treat yourself for your ills and weaknesses. See description below.

Please remember that a man is not one day older than he feels, and therefore no matter what your age, if you are young or elderly, married or single, large or small, if I can show you, yourself, may naturally add to your system, nerves and blood the very nerve force or vigor which may have been drained away, and which is necessary to make you strong, vigorous and capable again, then I have shown you the real secret of perpetual strength, and how you can again be filled with vigor, and again be just as powerful in your influence and just as thoroughly manly in your capacity as the biggest, fullest blooded, most successful fellow of your acquaintance.

The new self-treatment for the restoration of manly strength, to which I refer above, is a little light-weight VITALIZING Appliance of my invention, which is now meeting with a tremendous demand, and being used by men everywhere all over the world. This little VITALIZER, weighing only several ounces, is comfortably buckled on the body and worn all night. It is so small and so compact that even a room-mate would not suspect that you were wearing it. If, however, this VITALIZER is small in size, it is not small in power, for it generates a great tangible FORCE, which can be measured on scientific instruments, a POWER which I call VIGOR or NERVE ENERGY, and it sends this marvellous FORCE into your blood, organs and nerves while you sleep. All you have to do is to load a decent, many man's life, free from excesses and dissipation, then use the VITALIZER, nothing more. If this is followed out and the VITALIZER does for you what those others say it does for them, then all the pain or weakness will disappear from the small of your back—possibly from the first night's use—and you will be restored to strong, vigorous, manly, capable man, without a single ache, pain or weakness. Please remember, I am not asking you to buy one of the VITALIZERS, but merely request you to first send for the free book described below, a section of which is devoted to an explanation of this VITALIZER, and gives you its whole wonderful story, so that you may know what intelligent young and elderly men everywhere are saying about it.

This Is the Book You Get Free

My 32-page illustrated booklet (pocket size) was compiled by me to answer fully and correctly those questions which are asked privately by any man needing new strength and who seeks personal advice pertaining to the ailments and weaknesses he wishes to overcome. The book, fully illustrated, with plates reproduced, contains much that a single or married man should know. It also fully describes my VITALIZER and tells how you may secure one to use in your own home, should you decide you want to use one. Remember, the book is sent absolutely free in plain sealed envelope. Why not write for a copy to-day? Satisfaction guaranteed in every case.

IN THIS particular Moving Picture Theatre the names of the famous players who would soon be appearing in the pictures were each night flashed on the screen. On this particular night the operator, wanting to play a little joke on his audience, took the names of the players and so mixed up the letters in each name that they spelt out the funny sentences you see above.

Time and time again this film was flashed on the screen only to be demanded back. Many of the audience are still trying to solve the mysterious names. Can you help them?

This Great Contest Is Absolutely Free of Expense. Send Your Answers To-Day!

This great contest is being conducted by the Continental Publishing Co., Limited, one of the largest and best known publishing houses in Canada. The winners may be sure that the prizes will be awarded with absolute fairness and appreciation to you, and every other participant. Frankly it is intended to further introduce EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD, Canada's Greatest Magazine. You may enter and win the best of the prizes whether you are a subscriber to EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD or not, and, moreover, you will neither be asked nor expected to take the magazine or spend a single penny of your money in order to compete. Here's the idea:

EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD is so popular everywhere that it now has the vast circulation of over 125,000 copies a month; but our motto is: "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD in Every Woman's Home." We want every Canadian magazine reader to become acquainted with this famous publication. Therefore, when we acknowledge your entry to this contest and you know your standing for the prizes, we shall send you without cost a copy of the very latest issue and a review of many of the best features on sale at all newsstands. Then, in order to qualify your entry to be sent on for the judging and awarding of the grand prizes, you will be asked to assist us in carrying on this big introduction plan by showing your copy to just a few friends or neighbors who will appreciate the really worth-while All-Canadian magazine and want it regularly every month. You will easily fulfill this simple condition in a few minutes of your spare time and we will even send copies for each of your friends if you wish.

How to send your Solution.—Use one side of the paper only and put your name and address (stating Mr., Mrs., or Miss) in the upper right-hand corner. If you wish to write anything but your answers, use a separate sheet of paper.

Three independent judges, having no connection whatever with this firm, will award the prizes, and the answer gaining 100 points will take first prize. You will get 10 points for every name solved correctly (No. 10 being counted as it is practically given); 30 points will be awarded for general neatness, style, spelling, punctuation, etc.; 10 for hand writing, and 40 for fulfilling the conditions of the contest. Contestants must agree to abide by the decision of the judges. The contest will close at 6 p.m., May 30th, immediately after which the answers will be judged and the prizes awarded. Address your answers to—Up to

CANNON WINGED AIRPLANE.

Special Gun Was Successfully Used by the French.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The official statement says: "There was intermittent cannonading at various points on the front. In the Champagne two German raids were attempted against small French posts in the region of the heights. They were without success. On Wednesday a German airplane was brought down by the fire of French special cannon."

NERVOUS HEADACHE PAINS IN BACK

Could Scarcely Get About the House—Doctors Did Not Seem to Help Me, But I Found a Cure Which I Can Recommend to Others.

Mrs. H. Crary, 516 Cedar Street, Peterborough, Ont., writes,

"I was suffering from a run-down condition of the system, nervous debility and sleeplessness. I lost a good many nights' sleep, and some nights after going to sleep, would wake up with a start, and then lie awake for hours. I also had frequent headaches, and pains through my back. I got so bad that I could hardly do any work. I had taken doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to help me. Through reading in the newspapers of the help others had derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I started taking this medicine. The first box helped me, so I continued, taking about five or six boxes. I found that I was a great deal better, able to sleep well, and do my work with out any trouble. My headaches and nervousness are gone. My mother lives with me, and she has also found great benefit from the use of the Nerve Food. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervous trouble of any kind."

When the nerves give out everything goes wrong. The heart's action is weakened, the stomach fails to digest the food, headaches result, you cannot rest or sleep properly, and you get run-down and discouraged.

There is only one way to get out of this condition, and that is by feeding the nerves and thereby nourishing them back to health. The most successful treatment used for this purpose is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This fact has been proven in so many thousands of cases all about you that it seems as though everybody should know it by this time.

Ask your friends and neighbours about this great food cure, and put it to the test in your own case. You will then understand why so many people are enthusiastic about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. The genuine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the label.

INSANE BEFORE THEY ENLISTED.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—An official statement by the Military Hospitals Commission in regard to the agreement by which war veterans who have been mentally affected will be cared for in provincial asylums, says: "Over 50 per cent. of those now receiving treatment in institutions had been suffering from mental diseases before they enlisted and eventually would have become public charges in the ordinary course of events."

Motorcycle Squad Of New York City Had Extensive Graft System

Charges of Extortion By Clique Contained in its Presentment—Automobile Owners Paid Tribute to the Graft Clique—Grand Jury Report.

DISMISSAL RECOMMENDED

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Charges of extensive grafting by many members of the Motor Cycle Squad of the Police Department were contained in a presentment handed to Justice Goff in in the Supreme Court recently by the Extraordinary Grand Jury convened by Governor Whitman at the request of District Attorney Swann to investigate the police failure in the Tuth Cruger case.

Many men, owners of automobiles, who had paid tribute to the graft clique of the Motor Cycle Squad, appeared before the Grand Jury to tell how they had been "held up." The Grand Jury found that at least twelve of these policemen morally had been guilty of bribery, but that on account of the interpretation placed on the bribery law by the Appellate Division in the case of Charles H. Hyde, it would be impossible to find indictments against them. On this phase of the matter the presentment says:

"In nuemrous cases direct and credible evidence was offered of payments direct to various motor cycle policemen—testimony which is believed to be true by this Grand Jury, and which would justify indictments of at least twelve motor cycle policemen for bribery, except for the fact that we are advised by the District Attorney that the law of this State in relation to bribery is such as would preclude conviction of such indicted persons, for the reason that it is the law that the person giving a bribe is an accomplice of the person receiving the bribe, and the testimony of an accomplice must be corroborated by such evidence as tends to connect the defendant with the commission of the crime.

"Inasmuch as these transactions are all past transactions, it is absolutely impossible to find corroboration of the chauffeurs, owners and other persons aiding and abetting in the crimes."

Dismissal Recommended

The Grand Jury recommends that Police Commissioner Bugher at once place the guilty policemen on trial with a view to dismissing them from the Department, as it is stated that the Commissioner is not bound by the strict interpretation of the bribery law which prevails in the criminal courts.

An interesting document offered in evidence was a printed card containing the names of thirty-four members of the motor cycle squad. This was obtained by Alfred J. Talley, Assistant District Attorney, from one of the accomplices. Concerning this card, Mr. Talley said:

"When a speeding motorist would be held up by one of these grafting policemen he would be furnished with one of these cards, provided the policeman thought him a safe man to do business with. The card contained the names, addresses, and private telephone numbers of the members of the clique. If a man holding one of these cards was held up and summoned to court another motor cycle policeman, not a member of the clique, all he had to do was to communicate with one of the thirty-four men whose names were on the card, pay him $10 or $15, and that policeman would use his influence, in most cases successfully, with his brother-policeman to have the case dropped.

Prominent Men Paid Tribute.

"This card was printed for private distribution by the thirty-four members of the clique. It would surprise the public to know the names of the prominent men of New York who had these cards and who paid tribute to the clique."

The Grand Jury presentment further said:

The Grand Jury is amazed that such a condition could exist in the city of New York, the effect of which is that policemen practically have the power of enriching themselves by levying tribute on owners and drivers of automobiles. Such a condition could not exist if proper supervision had been exercised.

It is of the utmost concern to the people of this city that, though the Police Department had made many rules regulating the traffic officers these rules have not been enforced, and motor cycle policemen have been abl to carry on their nefarious and unlawful operations practically without restraint.

District Attorney Swann immediately wrote a letter to the Police Commissioner, sending to him a copy of the presentment. He also sent a copy to the Mayor. Justice Goff ordered that the minutes of the Grand Jury be placed at the disposal of the Commissioner. It is expected that Mr. Bugher will at once take steps to carry out the Grand Jury recommendations.

TAKES AERIAL BOMBS TO SHAKE UP THE ENEMY

Reinforced Shelters Rock Continuously Under the Hammering of High Explosive Shells—Force is a German God—The Huns Are Absolute Materialists.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FLANDERS, Jan. 21.—There is something very terrifying about aerial bombs. In the brightest imaginable moonlight on the particular night I was out in No-Man's-Land, looking over the ground shortly before one of the great attacks on the top of Passchendaele Ridge.

During the attack I sat in a German "Pill Box" which rocked continuously under the hammering of high explosive shells. Men were killed and wounded before my very eyes, almost within reach of me. Half the men with whom I associated that night are dead or wounded. The Colonel with whom I inspected our "jumping off" trenches was dangerously wounded in the chest during the operation.

It would be foolish and untruthful to say that these experiences were pleasant. However, strange as it may seem I found nothing terrifying about them. That was last night.

To-night we returned to Poperhinge. I was awakened by heavy explosions of bombs at four-thirty and the buzzing of enemy aircraft. I am free to confess that I was terrified. I could hear my hair rising. I felt as though the next bomb must land in the pit of my stomach. Much as one hates to admit it, I was somewhat terrified.

In a minute or two as I grew wider awake, my feelings became more normal. I flashed my electric torch on to my watch, and reeled over in order to try and still my terror in sleep. I was in fair way to success when the other officer, a veteran of two years standing, requested the time. I told him 2. A terrific bang, the house rocked and some plaster fell from the ceiling.

Mingled with the roar we could hear falling glass and other debris. "Yes, pretty hot," I remarked, and we both laughed. The German machines sang overhead like angry hornets. Another terrific bang. An aerial torpedo fell a hundred yards away. I learned that two officers had been killed by it. The Hun aeroplanes droned and the sound of distant explosions was in violent contrast to the stillness of the room and the small voice of the man in the bed across the way.

"DIVIDEND PAYING CATTLE"

"I did not understand when I left Canada," came deep voices out of the darkness. "After two years out here, one begins to see and understand. You know, it is well nigh impossible for a white man to understand the Huns.

"Power to the Germans in private or public life means power to oppress. The common people are called peasants, and a peasant to the German mind is a form of animal that must be housed and fed so as to produce a maximum amount of wealth at a minimum cost. To this end they have been organised like a big private money-making venture. Like dividend-paying cattle, they are well-quartered and well nurtured.

"There is one thing they are not allowed to do—think for themselves. The press is controlled, the pulpit is controlled, public meetings are controlled, consequently the German character in civilian life is docile; in war it is what the leaders dictate.

"The peasants are bullied and exploited by all classes in Germany. The lower middle class exploit and bully all peasants, but are treated like dirt under the feet by all others.

$ DOLLAR $ DAY $

THE EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

The day when the Dollar Bill talks louder in Peterborough Stores than any other day in the year. This Year it will be held on—

THURSDAY, JAN. 24

About 30 of the principal stores in the City are participating, and are busy preparing the best list of bargains they can possibly find in their splendid stocks, and shoppers will certainly appreciate the extremely varied offerings such a large array of stores will assure. As usual the big list of Cash Bonuses is a liberal one, as the Merchants are giving away

$175 —CASH— PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every Dollar Purchase on that day, an Estimating Blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and dropped into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10.15 p.m. on DOLLAR DAY.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the 1st Prize of $25; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15, and so on.

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, 1st prize	$25.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd prize	20.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd prize	15.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th prize	10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th prize	10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 6th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 7th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 8th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 9th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 10th prize	$5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 11th prize	5.00
Next 5 nearest correct estimates, 5 prizes, each	3.00
Next 10 nearest correct estimates, 10 prizes, each	2.00
Next 30 nearest correct estimates, 30 prizes, each	1.00

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 10,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 24th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

You can recognize all the Stores where DOLLAR SPECIALS are being given by the GREEN LETTERED PENNANTS IN THEIR WINDOWS.

The following Merchants will display the Pennants, and issue Estimating Blanks with every Dollar Purchase in their Stores on DOLLAR DAY:

ECZEMA ON BABY'S EAR.

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes: "My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her any good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend the preparation too highly."

THEY GAVE HER VINOL AFTER SICKNESS

It Completely Restored Her Strength

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"Pneumonia left me weak and tired, with pains under my shoulder blades, a bad cough and no appetite. Five bottles of Vinol restored my strength and health. I gained in weight and my cough disappeared."—Mrs. B. Richter, 739 Menhan St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

This is because Vinol is a constitutional, cod liver and iron remedy which creates an appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood and in this natural manner restores health and strength. Formula on every bottle. Show it to your doctor. He knows.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY

ISABEL OSTRANDER

"'Pauline!' He turns to her. 'How was Marion dressed?' Describe the gown that is missing, that the detective says is on the body they found.'

"His voice wasn't bullyin' or harsh, but I could get the command in it, and she cringed as if he'd struck her with a whip.

"'It was black and white, striped silk,' she says. 'Very soft, and the hat had a rose-lined brim and a black lace veil applique—somethin'—with butterflies. The shoes were low white ones, with a narrow black piping, and French heels. Oh, Stephen!' she breaks off. 'I can't go on! It's too horrible! Too impossible!'

"'You needn't, ma'am,' I says. 'At least, not if she had a scar across her ribs on the left side. I guess I've got what you are lookin' for.'"

He paused, spat out the fragment of tobacco and lighted the cigar.

"How did they take it?" asked McCarty.

"Like no one else ever I see, and I have been here a long time." Bill puffed luxuriously and leaned back in his chair.

"There's some that goes down in a dead faint, and some that shrieks and carries on over the body, till it's all you can do to get them away from it, and some that won't even look. That is at first. They just can't bring themselves to give up the last chance, I suppose that maybe it ain't the one they are hunting for, but they all do come around to it, sooner or later. There's a kind of fascination about it. I'm thinkin', like the wax-works in the Chambers of Horrors. Even when they're certain, one way or the other, from the clothes and the description, they'll take a peep. All but them two this morning."

"What!" exclaimed McCarty. "Do you mean they never looked at the body at all—not once?"

"They did not. They looked at the clothes, and the lady broke down and cried fit to kill herself, but Mr. Quimby was as steady as a rock, though his face turned kind of gray. When I started to pull out the slab the lady screamed out no, that she couldn't stand it. Mr. Quimby started to persuade her, but I guess he thought better of it, for he stopped all of a sudden and stood quiet awhile. Then he led her out to the automobile and came back alone, and I had the surprise of my life. He wouldn't see the corpse, either!"

"But, why?" McCarty's jaw dropped.

"You can search me, Mac, I'm givin' it to you straight. He'd been so calm and sort of hard through it all, that I'd thought he'd be the last to turn squeamish, but give her a look he would not. It was almost as if he didn't want to face her dead or alive. He said it wasn't necessary, that the identification was complete and there wasn't any doubt in the world but that it was his daughter.

"I stared at him, with the eyes of me all poppin' out, and all at once he put his hand up before his eyes, but when he took it away there wasn't a tear. He said he would make arrangements at once to have the body removed, and he put a bill in my hand—though you can keep that under your belt, Mac!—his own hand was as cold as ice when it touched mine, but he held his head high as he waved Yost and Martin aside and walked out to the car."

"I'd like to have another look at the body myself, Bill," observed McCarty after a pause. "Is it here yet?"

"It is not. The undertaker called for it within the hour, an' carried the clothes along, too. I've seen many that could take misfortune bravely without going to pieces until afterward, maybe, but none with the ease of that man Quimby, with not even battin' an eye. I don't say he might not have been grievin' inside, and too proud to show it, but he acted as if nothin', not even this, would cease him—as if he was stronger than anything that could come to him in this world."

"She wasn't his own daughter at that," McCarty observed. "Just a step-daughter."

"I know. I got an ext a few minutes before you came. Did you read what he told the inspector after?"

McCarty nodded.

"Well, if you ask me, I don't believe it," declared Bill, flatly. "All that professin' and denyin', I mean. I've got a hunch he knows more than he's tellin', at any rate about why she went there last night and the other time, too, for that matter. He may be a great man and all that, like the paper says, but you can take it from me, he's a smooth customer."

"Bill, you are getting to be a regular old woman with your fancies," McCarty rose. "You'll be saying he murdered her himself next."

"I would not put it past him. Yes, on this occasion it was the opposite side of the street which engaged his attention.

To his disappointment he saw that the building across the way, whose windows looked directly into those of the Glamorgan, was still a mere shell in the course of construction, and a broad sign on its front announced that it would be ready for occupancy by the first of October. It was much larger than its neighbour opposite, extending almost to the middle of the block, and next to it the line of apartments was broken by a garage. It seemed almost hopeless that any one in the houses still further along to the west could have witnessed the tragedy but on a bare chance he tried the building on the other side of the garage.

An irate janitor drove him forth.

"Himmel! Vot iss dis, more polaffi said it, we don't know nodings, and we don't vant to! Respectable peoples you should ask it about murders und suche. Verdampt, hammerlei!"

Muttering darkly to himself, McCarty beat a retreat. As he neared the corner of the Drive he glanced back. A trim looking nurse was easing a resplendent baby carriage down the street of the Glamorgan and evidently in violent altercation with the hall-boy who stood in the doorway. McCarty crossed the street and strolled back toward her.

It is sad to record but as he approached he deliberately gave her what he would have termed "the eye." Her cheeks were still flushed from her late encounter, but McCarty was a personable looking man, and she dimpled.

"A fine child you have there, miss," he observed diplomatically, raising his hat.

The girl giggled.

"He's cross to-day. He had a bad night, with all the excitement, and getting woke up by the police. And then those fresh hall boys everlastingly trying to make me take him and his fine carriage down in the dirty old freight elevator! I just gave that one a piece of my mind!"

So this was the child of the Fentons, on the top floor! McCarty fell into step beside the nurse.

"It's fine and cool over on the Drive," he suggested tentatively.

"I'm taking him there for a breath of air." The girl tossed her head and smiled up at him.

"Did you say the police woke him up?" McCarty's tone was blandly surprised. "Was there trouble in your house?"

"There was—murder." Her own voice lowered, and she glanced half-fearfully over her shoulder. "Didn't you read about it in the papers? A woman was killed, flung out of a window!"

"To be sure I did, but I never thought of it being that house. You must have been scared to death."

"I was when they told us. We did not know anything about it until the police came to our door, and 'twas Mr. Fenton that talked to them. But that isn't the worst of it. I know something myself, but I'm afraid to tell, for fear of the police asking me a lot of questions, to say nothing of losing my place."

"You know something?" he repeated. "And what might that be? Oh, you needn't mind me! I'm not on the force."

"Well, I feel as though I should burst if I don't tell somebody!" the girl exclaimed in a little gush of confidence. "The papers said nobody knew how she got in the building or when, but I do. At least, I met her on the stairs and talked to her. It must have been her, poor thing, from the description of her clothes."

"You did? And what time was this?"

"A little after ten. I got let out till half past nine, but I went to a movie and was late, so I sneaked up the front stairs. I had a key to the apartment and I knew Mr. and Mrs. Fenton would be in bed early, for they had been out till all hours the night before. I was afraid if I came up the back way the cook would tell on me. The stairs wind around the elevator shaft, and I came up behind the lady right near the third floor.

"She turned around as quick as a flash and then she got very white and sat down on the step. I asked if she felt sick, but she said no, that I'd startled her, but she would be all right in a moment. I didn't dare wait, being late as I said, so I went on and left her there, but I heard the rustle of her dress as she stood up again before I had fairly turned the corner. It came to me afterwards, when I learned what had happened, that she sat down there to make me pass her, so I shouldn't see what apartment she was going to."

"Wasn't there a hall-boy on duty? It's queer he didn't see her come in."

"He didn't see me either, and for a very good reason. He was sound asleep with his head down on the switchboard!"

"I SUFFERED SEVEN YEARS"

Was Eventually Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa. — "I suffered for seven long years with a lame back, irregularities and pain. I had no physician after another but they did me no good. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and gave it a trial and in a short time I felt benefited and am now feeling fine, and without weakness or pain. Many of my friends have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and been helped by it."—Mrs. MARGARET NESS, 1846 E. Hazzard St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, sideache, headaches or "the blues" should not rest until they have given this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. If complications exist, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special suggestions. The result of its long experience is at your service.

HEART WAS BAD NERVES ALL GONE

Very important it is in this age to have a clear cool head, a strong heart and steady nerves.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry fall to the lot of women attending to their household duties and social obligations. The constant strain under which they continue day in and day out, will soon shatter the strongest system. Before long the heart gets weak, flutters and palpitates, the nerves become unstrung, you start at the least sound, the pulse becomes weak and irregular, then finally comes physical breakdown or nervous prostration.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the remedy you require to strengthen your heart and steady your nerves.

Mrs. Jackson, 457 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Fifteen years ago I was so bad with my heart I could not walk across the house, my nerves were literally all gone, and I was frightened at my shadow. I commenced to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and was soon able to do my own work. I have told dozens of people about them, some as bad as I was, and to-day they are also doing their own work. If more people would take them there would not be so many weak hearts."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TOM LYNX - TRAPPED

ON a snowy, well-brushed ridge just north of the Ice River the big tom-lynx lay in the snow, surly, frightened, and in pain. A strange object clung grimly and cruelly to his foreleg and had stayed there ever since he had leaped at a dead partridge early that morning.

Two miles away in the sunlight open a big moose and three cows browsed in placid quiet. On the ice of the Kootenay River, a mile or two further away, a coyote had just run to earth and killed a rabbit which the lynx had unconsciously jumped an hour before he had spied the dead partridge. The white expanse of a beaver-made lake was marred in a straight line where the last band of black-tail deer had gone south to the more open portions of the valley to spend the winter.

Ten miles to the north the faint whistle of the transcontinental C.P.R. train whistled as it rushed westward down the grade from Field, B.C., toward Leanchoil, and in the fallen, tangled timbers the pine marten and mink looked eagerly for rabbits and spruce partridge, keeping ever a keen and apprehensive watch for the approach of the dread wolverine.

The tom-lynx had gone out that morning, empty of stomach but full of hope. As he glided over the single snowshoe trail, looking for food his nostrils had encountered a strange and most enticing and promising odor. Lifting his head, with twitching ears, he tasted that scent again, olefactorially, and then followed eagerly up the wind. It promised unknown but very desirable things. At the bole of a great tree he saw a little litter of broken sticks fencing off approach on all sides but one to a tender young partridge, dead but toothsome. The captivating odor was more powerful, too, it even blunted the natural caution of the lynx. He leaped hungrily, and his sharp teeth crushed on bone and flesh and feathers just as the steel jaws of an anise-scented trap clamped with paralyzing force on the furry foreleg of the animal. Since then he had toiled and snarled and struggled in fear and pain and anger, and was now lying in exhaustion and fatalistic quiet.

He heard the crackle of brush, the crunch of snowshoes. A man in warm winter clothing burst through the intervening bushes, and whooped gladly as he raised a heavy club he carried and moved swiftly down on the fifteen dollar hide his trap had caught. The big lynx reared to his full height and was almost on a level with the man's eyes when the club dropped on his skull and he knew no more. Trappers always try to get the skins without breaking them. It means a better price. L. V. H.

"WHO WILL WIN THIS BATTLE?"

Your kidneys are the filters of the body. If they become inactive and fail to eliminate the waste matter, they are apt to throw the whole mechanism of the body out of order, thus toxic poisons can accumulate in the system and be as deadly as snake venom.

Besides causing the minor ailments of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago and backache, neglect of the kidneys is apt to develop into more serious diseases, such as diabetes or stone in the bladder.

Rid the body of toxic poisons—clean the bladder and kidneys and cure the twinges of rheumatism with Anuric and you win the battle of life.

Anuric was first discovered by Dr. Pierce, and has benefited thousands of sufferers as well as appeased and eliminated the ravages of the more serious kidney diseases. Now procurable at any good drug store, or send Dr. V. M. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch office, Bridgeburg, Ont., 10 cents for trial package.

Thorold, Ont.—"I was wonderfully helped by taking 'Anuric.' For about three years I had kidney trouble and rheumatism. I also had backache. My limbs would swell and I had rheumatism in my arms and hands. My hands would swell and joints would be so sore and stiff I could scarcely do my work. They would pain me something awful. I doctored but without relief. At last I saw 'Anuric' advertised. I began its use and two bottles completely cured me of all my rheumatism, and I think it was permanent for that was a year ago and I have never had any return of this ailment. I have never found a medicine so good as 'Anuric'."—Mrs. E. H. Hurry.

STANDARD LOAF OF BREAD.

Food Controller Announces One is to be Established.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—The Food Controller is making arrangements for a standard loaf of bread from standard flour. He has written to millers, wholesale flour dealers, wholesale grocers, retail flour dealers and retail grocers, emphasizing the necessity of discouraging hoarding of flour.

Millers are asked not to sell more than the usual quantities of flour to bakers and wholesale dealers. Wholesale dealers are asked not to allow retail dealers to stock heavily with regular grades of flour, and retail dealers are asked not to sell more than one week's supply of flour to families, except in cases where it is impossible for the customers to secure supplies weekly. Those who do not accede to these requests will be promptly dealt with, and the shipment of flour or to these persons will be prohibited.

The letter adds that a date will be set, after which bakers will be required to sell their bread based on the raise of the standard flour, which will be of high quality, and will be quite as palatable as patents, and even more conducive to health. Samples of the standard spring and winter wheat flour will be furnished, and all mills will be required to produce a quality of our which will not be superior in colour to the standard samples. Every mill must furnish to the Food Controller's office every two weeks a statement showing the quantity of wheat ground and the weight of flour produced therefrom. There are 167 Canadian flour mills already under license. All the remaining mills will be similarly licensed. The profits of the licensed mills have been limited to a maximum average of 25 cents on the milling of enough wheat to make a barrel of flour (196 pounds.)

CALL CONFERENCE.

Canadian Press Despatch:

PETROGRAD, Jan. 21.—M. Torhernoff was elected chairman of the Constituent Assembly, and declared the Assembly should immediately call a conference of all the Entente Allies and consider war aims.

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

EARLY SETTLERS IN HALIBURTON

In the days of the early settlers in the northern part of this county and Haliburton, transportation was a much bigger problem than it is to-day and gave rise to some peculiar methods.

Among others we recall the case of Jules Cronk of Coboconk. In the year 1867, Jules built himself a boat, extra large and strong enough to carry 2,500 pounds of flour. With a large pair of oars, and a sail to use on the lakes when the wind was favorable, he would start from Fenelon Falls, and sell his flour to the settlers.

Commencing at Rosedale, he would work his way along the shore of Balsam Lake to Coboconk, up the Gull River to Norland, through Moore's Lake and Gull Lake to Minden, which usually was his destination. The journey occupied from three to four weeks according to the weather.

It was a remarkable boat for one man to portage, such a large boat, as he used, but he was very strong and by means of a double purchase, pulleys and rollers he put under the boat, he managed to do the work.

His boat was strengthened with double knees, and was made with a double bottom, having about five inches space between the two layers of plank. This was for the purpose of keeping the flour dry. He also had a small cabin built of jointed pine lumber, painted white, in which he kept his goods, keeping them protected from the rain, as well as giving a good appearance to the craft.

When Mr. Cronk was approaching a settler's house he would announce himself by blowing upon a large horn, which he carried, and it was a welcome sound indeed to many in those days. The roads consisted of mere trails through the forest, and very little travelling was done. In buying from Jules, you didn't have to take a bag or any stated amount, but bought according to the money you had, as it was a strictly cash business.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, are those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act, on the inside organs.

PRIDE OF FLESH GIVES WAY.

Germans Recast War Views Under Discipline of Fasting.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The Times publishes a long report, attributed to a neutral who has made an extended stay in Germany, describing internal conditions. It is apparent, he says, that tuberculosis is working havoc, especially among the young, while contagious dysentry, which was a serious scourge in the summer, has not ceased. It is attributable to bad food. The decline in the birth rate is causing great anxiety.

The correspondent adds: "Nothing but the iron grip of Prussian militarism restrains the nation from making more pronounced advances to its adversaries than any which have yet been made. The Germans are longing for peace, but they want peace with victory. They no longer abuse their enemies, as in the early days of the war. Doubtless the shortage of supplies has much to do with the change of mental attitude. Proudness of the flesh has given way before the discipline of fasting. This accounts for very much in recent developments of German policy."

The Deutsche Tages Zeitung reports that in consequence of the shortage of fodder the dead weight of cattle sent to the Berlin market is only one-half the normal, and that large numbers of milch cows must be slaughtered to provide the prescribed meat rations.

Many Interesting Things That a Visitor May See In the British Museum

MANY people think of the British Museum as a gloomy place, instructive, no doubt, but dull and uninteresting; memories of long, weary walks through endless galleries, and of cases filled with illegible manuscripts and dusty antiquities.

The great museum, therefore, is often neglected, or left to foreign visitors, and yet—if we know how and where to look for them—it is full of romance and beauty, and contains some of the strangest historical relics and the finest statues in the whole world.

In most of our other London collections, we find the artistic work of the last ten centuries, writes A. A. Methley, in "A Guide to London," but the British Museum takes us far back, behind the Christian era, and shows us not only "The glory that was Greece and the splendor that was Rome," but the crafts and histories of older nations and civilizations.

We see the wonders of Egypt and of Babylon, the images and ornaments from Ancient Peru and Mexico, and, stranger still, the uncouth relics of prehistoric times, when men scratched outlines of mammoths on bones or on the rough walls of their cave-dwellings, and when literature had its beginning in stories of. . . adventure that were told over camp fires, and in the crooning lullabies with which the skin-clad mothers of the stone age hushed their babies to sleep.

The prehistoric antiquities of the British Museum are exhibited in the hall at the top of the principal staircase, and here we can see the flint weapons which are the earliest relics of all.

To the same period belong some curious pictures drawn on pieces of bone, and also ivory and horn dagger-handles, carved into rough likenesses of deer and other animals.

The Stone Age was followed to the Bronze and Iron Periods, and relics of these different times are exhibited here.

We now go into the first Egyptian Room. . . In the far-off days when Italy and Greece were unknown lands, inhabited by savage tribes, Egypt was the country of a people skilled in. . . agriculture and irrigation and in the arts of painting, sculpture, and architecture.

We know a great deal about this wonderful nation, for their books and inscriptions can be deciphered, and the ruins of their temples. . . remain on the banks of the Nile, as evidences of their genius, knowledge, and artistic ability.

In most countries, the ancient cities have been destroyed in times of warfare. . . but the buildings of Egypt were, for the most part, buried under the dry desert sands and thus have been preserved during thousands of years. . .

On the ground floor of the museum there are three more Egyptian galleries, and in these are many of the huge stone statues of kings and gods that have been brought from Karnak and the other famous temples.

In the southern gallery can be seen the slab of black basalt, called the "Rosetta Stone," which was found near Alexandria in 1793. It bears an inscription, written in Greek, in Demotic, and in the curious picture language, called hieroglyphic. It is this stone that has enabled the books and inscriptions of Ancient Egypt to be deciphered—the well-known Greek serving as a key to unravel the mysteries of the two other languages. . .

We go on to wilder countries, and see curious weapons and canoes from the South Sea Islands, jade ornaments from New Zealand, and the feathered head-dresses and bead-trimmed garments of Red Indian chiefs.

There is a beautiful model of a Japanese house, with miniature furniture complete, and there are hideous idols from Central Africa, and the sledges, snow-shoes, and fur coats of the Esquimaux.

It is impossible to describe all the curious things which are gathered together here, and there is still another division of the museum to be visited, which, although left to the last, is by no means the least interesting part of the great collection.

We go downstairs, cross the vestibule, and enter the libraries, where can be seen not only every description of printed book, but also the old manuscripts, with their wonderful hand-painted pictures and illuminated borders. . .

Beyond the manuscript room is a long gallery, called the "King's Library," where can be seen the first books ever printed in England by William Caxton. There are also early editions of Shakespeare's plays and some beautiful specimens of old and modern bookbinding. In other parts of the museum are collections of coins and original drawings by great artists. Among these are some beautiful sketches by the famous Italian painter, Leonardo Da Vinci.

Panama.

The first permanent settlement in the new world was established in the year on Aug. 15, 1519, by Pedrarias, the Spanish governor. In exploring the Pacific coast along the isthmus of Darien, the adventurer found a small native village called Panama, and on the date given above the governor made it his capital there. Two years later a royal decree, Panama was made a city and the seat of a bishop.

MAKING TEXTILE OF WOOD PULP.

STOCKHOLM. — Sweden's textile factories, facing partial or complete stoppage as a result of the impossibility of securing wool, cotton, and jute, are turning their attention to the manufacturing of textiles from wood pulp. Other branches of the textile industry are also hopeful of saving the situation by manufacturing paper substitutes as Germany has done. The Krupp workmen in Germany wear overalls of paper, and one of the largest machine shops in Dusseldorf uses only paper belts for its engines. Finer products, including all sorts of underwear, are made from wood pulp in Germany, and a mixture of as much as 40 or even 50 per cent. can be used in making fabrics for outer clothing.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HUNS MOVING TROOPS FOR THAT OFFENSIVE?

LONDON, Jan. 19. — A telegram from Rotterdam says that, beginning to-day, all railroad passenger traffic in Germany is being reduced sixty per cent. The published explanation is that foodstuffs and other goods which have accumulated at certain centres must be distributed. Correspondents who send the reports to London say, however, that there is every reason to believe the transfer of troops to the western front is the real reason, adding that it is reported these troops are to be moved suddenly for a concentrated offensive.

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run-down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is All the face is clear."

The lowest official class is overbearing with all civilians and servile to all higher up. So it goes. The military caste being top dogs and the Kaiser the all highest snob and bulldozer.

"This does not just happen to be the case. Germany society is organized and this organization is enforced by the powers that be.

FORCE IS GERMAN GOD.

"The German international system is founded on force. The external policy springs from the same source. The German nation would crush the rest of the nations if it had the power as the German Government crushes the German people when it has the power. They are the lowest form of brutes and brute force in the power that they understand."

"What you say" I ventured, "is really that the Huns are absolute materialists. They do not believe in God, or spirit or goodness or fair play. They only judge by the material effect. They are intelligent animals, and if they were to win this war they would crush the soul out of the world at large. Heaven hel- us."

The Hun planes had gone and to the music of pleasantly distant gunfire we both turned over and resumed our slumbers.

AUSTRIA DISSATISFIED WITH GERMAN AIMS

BRITISH NAVAL VICTORY AT DARDANELLES

AUSTRIA SMOULDERING WITH A BLAZE OF OPPOSITION TO THE GERMAN MILITARIST PROGRAMME

Industrial Chaose of More Than Local Nature is Reported and Grevious Differences Have Developed Between Emperor Carl and the Pan-German Leaders--Several Hundred Thousand Enemy Reinforcements Have Reached Belgium.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(By John H. Hearley.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ROME, January 21.—Greatly stirred by President Wilson's democratic outline of war aims Austria-Hungary is scouldering with a blaze of opposition to militarist Germany, according to reports to the Vatican, received from the Papal Nunzio at Vienna. It was understood he described the situation in the Dual Monarchy as "most critical" for the Teutonic military combine.

President Wilson's speech to Congress, it was understood, has given a remarkable impulse to democratic peace ideas in the whole nation. Industrial chaos of mere than mere local nature is reported. Grievous differences have developed between Emperor Carl and th Pan-German leaders. The Kaiser, it was declared, is trying to smooth out these disagreements by supporting Foreign Minister Von Kuehlmann against Von Buelow who is violently hated in Austria. The Corriere D'Italia, the Vatican organ, declared positively to-day: "We are facing a true Austrian pronouncement against Ludendorff, Hoffman and German Imperialism."

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PARIS, January 21.—Several hundred thousand German troops have been brought into Belgium during the past few weeks. The little kingdom has literally been crowded with men and munitions, according to word received here to-day. Despatches from Amsterdam report of Belgian Province of Limburg filing up with Austrian troops. All the concentration is apparently in preparations for the long advertised west front drive.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 21.—The night passed quietly, the War Office reports. We captured a few prisoners in patrol encounters.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, January 21.—"Aside from usual artillery fire there is nothing to report," says to-day's War Office communication.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 21.—A formal protest was sent to Tokio by the Peoples' Commissaries to-day against the landing of any Japanese troops at Vladivostok.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, January 21.—Negotiations between the Central Powers and the Ukrainian "Peoples republic" at Brest-Litocsk have resulted in an agreement on principles of peace treaty, which is to be concluded and war be declared terminated, according to advices from Brest-Litovsk to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, January 21.—President Wilson has served notice on Democratic leaders in the Senate that he will use all his influence and power to beat the bill in troduced in the Senate to-day to create a war council. "The President will fight to the finish," was the word brought to the Capitol to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Sunday—A. I. Shingaroff, Minister of Finance in the Kerensky, and Professor F. F. Kokoshkin, State Comptroller under Kerensky, were murdered in their beds in the Maine Hospital last night.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PARIS, January 21.—A million one hundred and twenty thousand strikers out in Austria was the estimate carried in a Zurich desaptch printed by the Matin to-day.

LONDON, January 20.—In a naval action between British and Turkish forces at the entrance to the Dardanelles, the Turkish cruiser Midullu, formerly the German Breslau, was sunk, and the Sultan Yawuz Selim, formerly the German Goeben, was beached. This announcement was made by the Admiralty to-night.

THE ADMIRALTY STATEMENT.

The official statement says:

"The Goeben and Breslau—Turkish names Sultan Selim and Milullu—with destroyers were in action with the British forces at the entrance to the Dardanelles this (Sunday) morning. The Breslau was sunk. The Goeben escaped, but has been beached, evidently badly damaged, at Niagara Point in the narrows of the straits.

"The Goeben is now being attacked by naval aircraft.

"Our losses reported are the monitor Raglan and a small monitor, the M-28."

The former German battle-cruiser Goeben, "sold" to Turkey, had a speed of over twenty-five knots and was completed in 1912. Her tonnage was a little larger than the 21,000 tons given on the accompanying picture plate, the added amount being due to alterations just prior to the war. Her main armament consisted of ten 11-inch and twelve 5.9 guns. The cruiser Breslau was of 4,478 tons, with a speed of over twenty-six knots. Her main armament consisted of twelve 4.1-inch guns. She was put to tea in 1912.

HEATLESS MONDAY GENERALLY OBSERVED IN EASTERN STATES

Special Force of Detectives Assisted by Many Volunteers on Duty to See That Fuel Administrator's Edict is Carried Out

A CHANGE OF FEELING

Canadian Press Despatch:

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Almost deserted streets in the down-town business section and shipping districts gave evidence to-day that industrial New York generally observed the first of "heatless Mondays" decreed by the National Fuel Administration. Sky scraper office buildings were untenanted, great department stores closed their doors, hundreds of factories and small business houses were idle. All city and suburban transportation lines were run on holiday schedules. Food stores were open, as were specially exempted industries, but many of them operated on restricted basis. The theatres were open, but must close to-morrow. New York stock exchanges opened for business, but without heat, and the banks did business as usual. Saloons were privileged to open until sunset on condition that they did not use either fuel or light. Local fuel administrators even forbade the use of lamps, lanterns or candles as substitutes for gas or electricity. To assist fuel administrators a special force of detectives was detailed for duty, assisted by volunteer workers from various federal and city departments. Authorities were prepared to institute proceedings promptly against violators of the orders.

ACTIVITY SUSPENDED.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Business activity generally east of the Mississippi river was suspended to-day for the first of a series of ten heatless Mondays ordered by the fuel administration to release coal for private consumption and trans-Atlantic shipping. At the same time manufacturing plants throughout the east were idle for the fourth successive day in compliance with the administration's five day closing order, effective last Friday and designed also to save coal and assist materially in relieving the traffic condition. Fuel officials declared there had been a radical change of feeling in the country regarding the orders.

Industries were co-operating fully there they said, and virtually complete acquiescence was expected of concerns affected by the Monday closing programme begun to-day.

THE CRISIS IS AT HAND

Dissolution of the Constituent Assembly by the Bolsheviki Has Brought to Climax the Opposition of Social Revolutionary Party

EX-MINISTERS KILLED

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

(By Joseph Shapien).

PETROGRAD, Jan. 21.— The crisis between the Bolsheviki and the Conservative Liberals was at hand to-day. The dissolution of the Constituent Assembly affected by the Trotsky-Lenine government has brought to a climax the violent opposition of the Social Revolutionary party. Bolsheviki leaders to-day freely predicted that their enemies are now preparing a campaign of terror. They named former Minister Savinoff, with 150 men, as leading this counter revolutionary movement.

DRAMATIC SCENES.

Bloodshed was narrowly averted in closing the Constituent Assembly. The last few minutes of the meeting were dramatic in their intensity. Armed sailors poured into the hall and were arrayed in groups in the aisles. Their commander demanded that Chernoff, then presiding, quit the platform, and that members of the right parties leave the hall. Chernoff flatly refused. A heated argument ensued. Witnesses to-day insisted it was only intervention of Bolsheviki delegated themselves that saved their political opponents from violence at the hands of the Bolsheviki troops. The final act of the Assembly was the formal proclamation of Russia as a democratic republic.

The speech of former Minister Tzerstelli was dramatic. He was constantly interrupted, many times with violent abuse. His concluding peroration was a pathetic appeal to all that the revolution be permitted to bear fruit in the formation of a government which would show a solid front of all classes of revolutionary democracy.

The Bolsheviki and social revolutionaries of the left, together with others who favour a pan-Russian Workmen, Soldiers' and Peasants' Congress, to take the place of the Constituents Assemble, were working hard to-day to achieve this sort of a law-giving body. The Soviets completely control the situation and will undoubtedly carry through their programme complete.

"What happened to the Constituent Assembly simply represents the struggle now going on everywhere," said the Bolsheviki Minister of Agriculture, M. Kalegayex, in an interview with the United Press to-day. "The right parties cannot remain alone and exercise power in the Constituent Assembly, for the people do not recognize them. The people are behind the Soviets. Should the parties of the right challenge the authority and power of the Soviets, it simply means an extension of the civil war now raging."

It was reported to-day that the people's commissionaries desire to take the Brest-Litovsky negotiations out of the hands of the present delegation, although they assert their adherence to the conditions of the armistice.

MINISTERS KILLED.

On Sunday night former Cabinet Ministers Kokoshkin and Shingareff who were recently transferred to a hospital from the fortress of St. Peter and Paul, were killed by a band of sailors and workmen. Their assassination, together with animosities aroused by the forcible closing down of the Constituent Assembly, has brought about most intensely bitter feeling between the right and left parties. A delegation of Constituent Assembly leaders who called on Nicholai Lenine to-day to protest against the Bolsheviki action, were told by the Bolsheviki leader that permission would be withheld for them to assemble anywhere and that instead of their conference, a national convention would be formed by the forthcoming Soviet Congress. All newspapers containing detailed accounts of constituent meetings were confiscated to-day.

How Is The Patriotic Fund To Be Raised For This Year?

The Different Methods That Have Been Suggested Analyzed ---Voluntary Subscription the Best Way But Plan is Considered Impracticable--Impossible to Get Government to Handle Problem--Issuing Debentures a Wasteful Method---Placing the Amount on This Year's Taxes is a Feasible Solution of the Difficulty.

MONEY MUST BE FOUND SOME WAY

1—To issue debentures, as was done last year (for 1917)?

It is agreed that while this plan might have been permissible, once, that it would be most wasteful to do so again. In the end, when the interest and sinking-fund are provided for, and the issue of debentures paid, at the interval for which issued, that $80,000.00 will have cost the city nearly $130,000.00. Money will double itself in about 17 years.

Besides there is so much in prospect, that will necessitate the issue of debentures for municipal works, the overhead bridge, the sewage disposal plant, and other work, that the borrowing limit of the city will be pretty well reached. Debentures, for the purpose in view, are conceded to be out of the question.

2—To raise the amount required by voluntary subscription, as was done for 1915-16?

If practicable, this is by far the best way. If we assume that the larger the interests that a man has, the greater his property and holdings be, the more he should give to aid in the protection of that property, then subscriptions would vary as to individual responsibility. We had large subscriptions, in the past two years, we had many moderate subscriptions, and we had about $7,000.00 of subscriptions that were never paid. Because a man affixes his name to a list does not mean that he will always pay the amount. We know that now. After diligent effort, even going into the courts, we are out about the sum named.

Then there is the question of the workers to make the canvass. When previous campaigns were put on there were only one or two patriotic objects in sight. In the interval we have the Red Cross, British Red Cross, Belgium Relief, Sailors' Relief, War Veterans' Furnishing Fund, Serbian Relief and others. All are most worthy, all have been supported. But there is a limit to the activity of canvassers. And the mere work of collecting the subscriptions for the Patriotic Fund (dont now for the past two campaigns, in three years, largely by Mr. Aylmer and Mr. Crane), it will be almost impossible to find some one to devote the time and attention. True, it can be done. But who will undertake to do it. Still if it is decided to make the effort, the Old Guard will be called together to buckle down to business.

3—To raise the amount required by subscriptions, and, failing the objective being reached, to ask the Council to place on the taxes roll an amount to meet the deficiency left over from the campaign, whatever it may be?

Look at this proposition from the point of human nature. Will not the man who hesitates to subscribe, argue that if he does not do so, that it will not matter, and that it will come back to the city in the tax rates. And if we all hesitate to subscribe, then we will be back to the simple proposition of a tax levy. And if this plan were partially successful, and the balance found by the council, in any way involving the matter of taxes, then the man who subscribed would have to pay a second time through his tax slip. Knowing this contingency, what is the matter with his deciding to let it go and pay only once, through his taxes?

Plainly, this plan hath its hindrances. And a whole raft of folks would not subscribe, thinking that anyway their share as it would come on the tax bill, will be so much less by the amount that the other fellows subscribe. And the other fellow sees it that way too. Hence he is reluctant.

4—To raise the amount required by a levy of taxes, and place the amount on the tax rates for this year, and get rid or it?

By far the most feasible plan. First, it is positive. All will pay in proportion to their assessment. If they have much then they will pay what that holding represents. It may not be all they should pay, from an income and patriotic point of view, but it will be as much as can be levied, legally, under the plan.

Roughly speaking, it would require an addition to the rate of say, five mills on the dollar. Five mills is one-half of one cent. So for every dollar that a man was assessed he would pay half a cent. Not very serious, it is? If assessed for $500.00 he would pay $2.50. He gets off cheap, assuming that he should pay something towards carrying on the war. He can't hope to escape, even if he wished, for all hands must help to bear the burden of war expense. The man assessed for $1,000.00 would pay $5.00, and so on.

Of course, under this plan, many who gave sums of $1,000.00, $500.00, and even up to $2,500.00 under the subscription plan, would get off, if the expression may be used, very much more lightly. Still there is nothing to prevent them giving more than the tax amount, if so inclined. Probably many would do so, for there are a pretty large number of our citizens who look at these things in a broad and helpful way.

Do you know—probably you do not—that in the two subscription campaigns, only about 1,400 people subscribed and paid the $62,000.00 or $67,000.00, as the case might be. Fourteen hundred out of a population of about 22,000. Even if we reckon by heads of families, then fourteen hundred out of, say, five thousand made up the money list. So a whole raft of people did not subscribe. The above numbers include both large and small givers.

Under the taxes plan, surely, a large number who gave not at all will give reasonable amounts. That is a sure thing. Most any man can afford, for himself and family, to give $5.00 or $7.50 to the Fund. For a whole year of carrying on the war. Of course this taxes plan is open to the objection, and we can't dodge this objection being put forward, that you are not getting at the man who has been making munitions at $6.00 per day all the long summer. He may not be a tenant, or owner, but a boarder. So the law cannot reach him and take his coin. But will you be any

GOVERNMENT IS ATTACKED OVER CAMBRAI AFFAIR

Daily Mail Disagrees With the Findings and Says Government is Under Pressure of the British General Staff

CALLS ARMY CLIQUE

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Daily Mail publishes a two column contributed article, vehemently attacking the government and general staff in connection with the finding of the staff, announced in the Commons Tuesday, that the British Higher Army Command had not been surprised by the German attack on the Cambrai front on November 30, when the British lost part of the ground gained in their offensive a few days earlier. The article says that the government, under pressure of the general staff, is hushing up the incident, while the Germans claim they have captured or destroyed 132 tanks and taken 9,000 men and 100 guns. The writer adds,

"The particular army clique has had supreme military control for two years and has repeatedly failed to fulfil its own expectations and promises."

The Mail editorially endorses the writer of this article, blaming the Early of Derby, secretary for war, and General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the General Staff, whose removal it suggests is desirable.

Council Meeting This Evening

Patriotic Fund Deputation Will Wait on the Council

The City Council will meet this evening to deal with general business and also hear a deputation representing the Peterborough Patriotic Fund in respect to the funds required for the operation of the Fund during the current year. The Council will be urged to raise sixty thousand dollars by direct tax in preference to issuing debentures for a long period of year. If the direct tax method is adopted it will mean an increase in the tax rate of about five mills for the present. In other words, the property owner will have to pay five dollars a thousand on his assessment for Patriotic Fund purposes.

Mrs. Theobald	1.00
Miss Godfrey	1.00

Frank Jenne says:

In Boston a few weeks ago British wool was snapped up at record prices —$1.10 a pound. The prices surprised dealers. "Outrageous!" was the way some dealers characterized it, and yet at the close of selling 4,736 bales, the prices went higher. It would be wise to buy good Clothes as an investment—right now. Suits, Overcoats, Ulsters, at reduced prices. "Come to me."

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TOWN PLANNING.

The excellent reports printed in the Examiner on Saturday of the excellent addresses of Mr. Adams, Town Planning Adviser to the Conservation Commission, gave our readers a good idea of the importance and interest of his addresses and their subject.

The Examiner naturally thinks his addresses good; for in the main they embraced and endorsed what the Examiner has been advocating and insisting upon for years.

The gist of Mr. Adams' contentions consisted in emphasising the importance of adopting easily realised plans and gradually working up to them as a means of co-ordinating action to the attainment of definite and desirable conditions.

The misfortune of Peterborough is that plan and system have almost completely been ignored, with the result of unnecessary expenditure of money to provide undesirable conditions, and a failure to realise upon the tremendous possibilities" which, according to Mr. Adams, Peterborough possesses—and in accordance with our maturely considered and deliberately adopted slogan: "Peterborough presents possibilities unparalleled."

The Examiner takes little credit for the fact that Mr. Adams endorsed what it has long and often been pleading for in the way of improvements of the city. The conclusions of both are so obvious to anyone who uses his mind for thinking, that they are almost auto-suggestive.

The benefits and beauties of town planning and civic embellishment are so self-evidently commendable that they are like pretty girls, who carry their argument in their own faces.

As to planning and plans, so strongly insisted upon, their importance is plain. Twenty-five years ago the Examiner advocated the preparation of a grade plan for the city. This would have cost, at that time, two or three hundred dollars. It was not provided, and for lack of such a plan the city has been put to the expenditure of thousands—the waste of thousands. People built at all sorts of levels as their judgment dictated; there was no plan to build to. Consequently, in the construction of concrete sidewalks, buildings were run into a hole or up in the air; at least, some of the owners were "up in the air," and to save trouble walks had to be reconstructed, with the result—to save trouble, other trouble was made—that walks had to be ripped up and replaced to suit capricious levels; and that accounts for some of the undulatory sidewalk surfaces and lines we have in the city.

This is only one example of the loss and undesirable results of failure to plan; but many others in a similar line could be cited, whereby there is large unnecessary expenditure of civic money due to haphazard and unsystematic — unplanned — public works.

Another feature of Mr. Adams' address was his insistence upon the social and industrial value of civic beautification—making the city beautiful. He pointed out, as the Examiner has done times without number, the immense importance of making the city a desirable place to live —to attract and hold population. "A beautiful city appeals to visitors," who think of it (suppose it is Peterborough) as a place they would like to live in. It attracts population and holds population. It makes better citizens; for there is an inspiration in beautiful surroundings to living up to the environment and making and keeping oneself worthy of it.

We can have these things, and others that go with them—sanitary conditions — by a little thought—planning—and a little doing. Peterborough lacks a good deal that costs little money and means much in the way of civic beauty, healthfulness—not from lack of means or difficulty of doing things, but by the failure to do things.

Till the secretary published her report, it was unknown to many that the Local Council of Women is responsible for "boosting"—and securing—the appointment of a Food Controller.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

A Belgian university professor, recently gave an address at Toronto University, in which he emphasized the advantages and necessity of giving a larger and more real place to science in our educational training. Present day conditions indicate the importance of giving more attention to scientific matters. Scientific theories and facts are applied in almost every domain of human activity. Science has ceased to be a laboratory specialty or the sole concern of the research groper into the secret lair of things—in making science subserve the purposes of man in everyday life.

The "scientific farmer" used to be a "mark" for the scoffer. Now science is practically and beneficially applied to every department, and almost every process of productive operations, crop growing, dairying and orcharding. Canada is making Canada well balanced by combining industrial enterprise with soil culture, and to have the greater success we must have a population educated in the spirit of giving scientific education or education in science a place above mere literary education. Literary culture, or, at least, literary acquirement, has been the central aim and idea of our educational system.

Modern conditions demand that in the interests of progress, we must make a change; must make our education more practical, so that when the pupil leaves our elementary or secondary schools, which in the great majority of cases he does at an early age, he may not only have a head knowledge that can be applied to practical things, but that he must have a hand training. Dirlling a soldier to the point of efficiency does not consist in giving him a smattering of a military manual, to teach him how to use a rifle; but a gun is put into his hands and he is made to know how to use it —practically, as well as theoretically.

In obedience to the advice of the Belgian professor, we should seek to make our education more practical; and we are trying to realize our duty. Hence the significance of the proposal as well as demand, for a Technical School. We have special industrial classes, which are made more necessary because we have not a system or course of education that is capable of giving the practical educational training that will send out pupils at the end of the school life well equipped to make their way and take their place in the world of action and accomplishment.

The space once occupied by a tree may be used to grow potatoes; but if the tree were there now, we might use it for fuel to cook the potatoes, and keep us warm.

NEED WATCHING.

The Union government was returned to office by a large majority, and holds office by a very strong numerical following. It is regarded by its admirers as something apart in the way of governments—purely patriotic and non-partisan. Such a point of regard may be justified but the government has hardly yet been put to the test, and where there has been partial application of the test its non-partisan character has not been conspicuously demonstrated.

Notwithstanding its claims to superior political virtue, the Union government will stand watching. It is composed of human elements, which may not resist the temptation to unwise use of power, where almost unlimited power is represented by parliamentary support.

The Opposition in Parliament is weak in numbers; and, on safety first principles, its numbers should not be lessened. Of this there seems to be some danger, if there is anything in the rumour that it is the policy or intention of the government, if it has the power, to so allocate the soldiers' vote, as to bowl over those members of the Opposition who have not an overwhelming majority of the civilian vote.

This should not be done. The Union government has, in all conscience, a big enough majority to insure moral as well as practical capacity; its following should not, in the public and national interests, be so increased as to give it immoral capacity—to afford temptation to the abuse of power.

The Union government seems to be slow in living up to Sir Robert Borden's solemn promise, in the name of the Union government, to abolish patronage and the spoils system. Sir Robert finds it difficult to get out of the partisan rut. Before he left office to assume the leadership of the Union government, by a gross and, under the circumstances, dishonourable exercise of power, which he as the head of a moribund and virtually non-existent government, did not morally possess, he crammed the Senate to the rafters, with partisan appointees—members of parliament of his own party stripe, afraid to face the issue of an election; and one of the very first acts of Sir Robert, after he and the Union government were returned to power, and he had issued his high-sounding manifesto promising non-partisan administratio, was to appoint to the Senate, whi h he had already crammed to the neck with his partisan followers, an ex-M.P., one of his most unbending party followers.

The Union government is not living up to its pledges. Even a faithful journalistic apologist, like the Ottawa Journal, is kicking; and The Globe, as will be seen by an article from it, printed upon this page, says that "action is overdue."

The Union government will stand watching. If it represents the tardy repentance of the Borden government in respect of the iniquities of the patronage and spoils system; if it is sincere, it must bring forth fruits meet for repentance.

When democracy fashions a mighty weapon to work its will, there will be "wigs on the green," if that weapon is used to antagonize the interests of democracy.

THE SPOILS SYSTEM "LAGS SUPERFLUOUS" ON GOVERNMENT STAGE

Who is obstructing Canada's new War Union Government in the carrying out of its pledge to abolish patronage and the spoils system? Why the delay? What is the meaning of the fact that political associations are still "recommending for appointment," and that partisans are still counting on "pull"? If the Administration stands by the pre-election scrap of paper upon which it asked and received a mandate from the people, it better get busy at once. Action is overdue.

The Ottawa Journal properly calls attention to this matter. Civil service reform, it says, in so far as it applies to appointments to the outside service and to temporary positions, seems to have got stalled. These appointments "are still being made in the old-fashioned way, and some of the departments are still putting on large numbers of temporary employees without any reference to the Civil Service Comission, and largely without any real consideration of the qualifications of the appointees."

The Journal is right. It knows what it is talking about. One of the first duties of the newly-elected Administration in December last should have been the promulgation by order in council of an edict ending the scandalous spoils system. Yet The Globe learns that party Executives and Patronage Committees are still doing business at the old stand and in the old way. This must be stopped—and at once.

Until Parliament meets, and the necessary legislation is enacted to reorganize and reform the whole system the Cabinet must move by order in Council under the War Measures Act. That it should have done before now. There is no excuse for further delay. The order should issue within forty-eight hours. The ministers are committed to it, and the country has given them their mandate.

Preparation of the permanent measures are to be submitted to Parliament should then be proceeded with. Our Ottawa contemporary counsels a complete overhauling of the Civil Service at the Capital with a view to ascertaining whether its resources are being conserved in accordance with the national obligations of war-time patriotism. Much extra work has been thrust on certain of the departments, while on the other hand, not a few pre-war offices have become sinecures. There are whole staffs, it suggests, who have been deserted by their occupations, and expensive machinery is lying idle and going to decay. What is needed, according to The Journal, is thorough reorganization, even though that reorganization be temporary. "A census of employees and what they are doing, with comments on their necessity or otherwise, should be taken, to the end that branches and depactments which are over-manned contribute to branches and departments which are short of efficient help."

The recommendation is businesslike. It deserves attention from the Government. Its adoption should contribute to efficiency and economy in this time of stress and to facility in readjustment when the war is won. As to the new and necessary appointments in all branches of the Civil Service, inside and outside, The Globe believes that Parliament should adopt two general principles. The returned soldier should have first claim upon any position he is capable of filling in the Civil Service of the country he has served, and, after the soldier, the basis of decision among civilian applicants should be solely that of merit and fitness. The statutory acceptance of these principles of selection will destroy at once the most nauseating poison in party politics, and do much to rid public life of the chronic job-hunter and the camp heeler, and hanger-on.—The Globe.

NNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD AT ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

. Archdeacon Perry of St. Catharines Delivered Able Addresses at Both Morning and Evening Services—Special Music By the Choir

he third anniversary of the com-tion of All Saints Church was ob-ved yesterday. Special services e held throughout the day, and s and inspiring sermons were de-ered by the Rev. Archdeacon N. I. ry, M.A., of St. Catharines, who ached both morning and evening. cial music was rendered by the ir at both services and during the ntory, in the evening, Miss Laura gan played Elgar's "Salut d' Am-" on the violin.

t the morning service the Rev. hdeacon Perry took for his text the owing verse:

t. Luke 11:2—"And He said unto m, when ye pray, say, Our Father ich art in heaven, hallowed be thy me. Thy kingdom come, Thy will done, as in heaven, so in earth."

THE GREAT VISION

'In part, the vision of the wise n of the East has been fulfilled, aker, in an opening commentary on the present world problems and ir relation to the Epiphany seas-of the Church of England. The t important of these problems is k of world evangelization. The glo Saxon world has broadened, l the British Empire has come to nk imperially. We form a part of t great brotherhood of which Great itain is the centre and there has n brought forward a great united nt bound by the one common bond of world liberty and justice. As far as we have gone that is very good. As Christians we are concerned with a wider vision as represented by the words of the text, "Thy kingdom come." There is nothing Teutonic about that. It is a world-wide religion.

THE FUTURE.

"World policies," said the speaker, "are shaping themselves on a large scale. That is nothing new, because such a condition has been existent for nineteen centuries. We seek not the emancipation of our Allies, but the emancipation of the whole world. In every outpost of the world we are seeking to perform Christ's service. The future of humanity is with an unselfish church. Never allow politicians or statesmen to dictate to us the destiny of the world. We are asked to think, study, pray, and give imperially. Let us outcall the call of the national world by the call of the Gospel. God alone can save the world, but He will not save the world alone.

Referring, in conclusion, to the need of material aid for the Church, Rev. Archdeacon Perry said: "I like to think that each week some little thing of mine, which I know is all too small, is going to meet that great impact between good and evil in China, Japan and other mission fields of the world. When all kings will be as dust of the earth Christ will still be King of the whole world.

MINISTERS OF THE GOSPEL ENDORSE IT

Well Known Clergymen Praise Tanlac For Good It Did Them

Ministers from some of the greatest communions in the land have put Tanlac to the test and have come out in grateful statements endosing the medicine for the good it has done them.

Rev. W. C. Norton, Pastor of the Wesley Memorial Church of Jacksonville, Fla., says: "I suffered from indigestion for years, seldom slept well and had severe headaches. Since taking Tanlac I feel as well as I ever did, sleep soundly and can get anything I want. Tanlac has restored my health."

Rev. A. H. Sykes of Nashville, Tenn., says: "Mrs. Sykes suffered from stomach and kidney disorders and a nervous breakdown. Tanlac restored her health; she is gaining weight and strength rapidly."

Rev. E. G. Butler, Muskogee, Okla., says: "I had attacks of acute indigestion. Results from taking Tanlac have been most satisfactor-- It is the best medicine I ever tried."

Hundreds of other well-known ministers have testified to the merits of Tanlac, among whom are: Rev. F. M. Winburn, San Antonio, Tex., Rev. R. J. Taylor, Franklin, Ten., Rev. A. L. Tull, Atlanta, Ga., Rev. Jas. H. New, Clarkston, Ga., Rev. A. J. Vallery, Montee, La., Rev. John M. Sims, Atlanta, Ga., Rev. W. T. Roby, Knoxville Ten., and others too numerous to mention

BIG OUTPUT OF GILLETTE RAZORS

Plans Call For 1,400,000 During the Present Year—Large Addition to Factory

"The article that will not stand the test of war time conditions is not worth making or buying at any time," was the significant remark of Mr. J. E. Aldred, of Shawinigan Water and Power Co., who is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Gillette Safety Razor Company, at the recent convention of the latter organisation in Boston. Reports of progress and plans for expansion made at the convention indicated that the Gillette certainly belongs in the category with war time essentials and notable successes.

Mr. A. A. Bittues, managing director of the Gillette Safety Razor Co., of Canada, told of extensions to the Montreal factory which permit of a combined output of razors and blades five times as great as before the war, and of growing exports to such far-off lands as South Africa, Australasia, and the Fiji Islands.

Mr. Frank Fahey, vice-president of the Boston Company, and Mr. Thos. W. Pelham, sales manager and general counsel, outlined plans for an immediate addition to the Boston plant to cost $800,000. When this is completed next fall, the output of the American and Canadian plants combined will reach 15,000 razors and 1,200,000 blades per day. The estimated output for 1918 is 1,400,000 razors and 96,000,000 blades.

The necessity for such rapid increase and enormous output was clearly shown by a few recent orders. The Y.M.C.A. a short time ago sent overseas 6,000 razors and 15,000 blades. The American Expeditionary Forces in France have already been supplied with 65,000 razors and 115,000 dozen blades, while a cable order received during the convention from the Gillette representative in Paris called for 200,000 razors and 1,500,000 dozen blades.

There Is No Limit To Britain's Cash

NO ISSUE OF PREMIUM BONDS.

Committee Reports Against Such a Step at the Present Time.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The Parliamentary Committee appointed to consider the question of issuing premium bonds has reported against such a step "at the present time or until further efforts have been made to make the present issues more attractive to investors." The committee expressed the opinion that the opportunities of investment for the genereal public were sufficient to obtain their free support, and that there was a considerable untapped source of investment which might be obtained for war needs by the means of an issue of bonds which would, by its speculative element, attract small investors. The amount so obtained would justify a change of such a contentious character in the financial methods of the country, while the legislation necessary for the issue of premium bonds would be difficult to obtain.

The committee arrived at the conclusion that from £80,000,000 to £100,000,000 yearly might be expected from sources at present untouched.

ST. ANDREW'S WEEKLY CHURCH NEWS

The Rev. Dr. Lee, of Millbrook, was at both services yesterday, in the absence of Rev. W. L. H. Rowand, who was preaching the anniversary services in Dr. Lee's church.

CASUALTIES FOR THE WEEK WERE LIGHTER

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 21.—British casualties reported in the week ending today were. 17,043, divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds—Officers, 76; men, 2,277.

Wounded or missing—Officers, 213; men, 14,477.

These figures represent a decrease of nearly 8,000 from last week, when 24,979 casualties were reported, an unusually high total for this time of year. Two weeks ago the figures were 18,998, and three weeks ago 9,951.

Peel Off The Old Skin; Bring Out the New

You know that beneath that muddy, over-red or blotchy complexion you have a skin that's clear, soft and white. If you could only have this more beautiful skin exposed to view instead of the horrid old skin you now behold in your mirror! You can—and by a very simple, harmless process which you can use yourself. Get an ounce of common mercolized wax at your druggist's and this evening spread a thin coating of it over your face. To-morrow morning wash it off with warm water. Small powder-like particles of the lifeless top skin will come off with the wax. Repeat this daily until all the worn-out scarf skin has been absorbed. Then you'll have a lovelier, healthier looking complexion than you now think possible. Chaps, pimples, spots, freckles or other surface disfigurements are of course removed with the skin itself.

If your skin be wrinkled or flabby, bathe the face daily for awhile in a lotion made by disolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in 1-2 pt. witch hasel. This is just splendid.

Capes haven't a particle of sedateness about them; instead they are all novelties.

Black velvet and white satin are frequently combined in making an evening wrap.

COME AND GET ME; HERE I AM," IS HANS ROSE'S NIGHTLY TAUNT TO U. S. DESTROYERS

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Commanders and crews of the American destroyers resting in European waters, are joking about a grim piece of Hun humour. Nearly every night the commander of one of the destroyers receives by wireless a message reading: "My position is (so many) degrees north and (so many) degrees west. Come and get me. I'm waiting for you." The message is always signed Hans Rose.

Rose is the German who took a submarine into Newport two years ago, and feted society aboard his craft, and then went out and sank several merchantships almost within shooting distance of Nantucket. According to the story passed around by the men engaged in the thrilling and hazardous task of seeking submarines the captain to whom is directed the nightly messages of the German sub-sea craft sank two. The commanders of both were intimate friends of Rose. He has sworn vengeance. Not only does he send his taunting message to the man he has never seen, but he goads him further by flashing a message defining the position of the destroyer.

It is disquieting for the American commander, but he has no fears. Twice, it is stated, he has swiftly guided his craft to the location described by his enemy, but has found nothing and seen nothing. Still the mysterious wireless despatch comes every night, no matter where the destroyer may be. Others catch it, and thus the weird story is told wherever the hornets of the sea are seen.

POLICE PARCEL TO GEO. COOKMAN WAS SHARED IN HOSPITAL

Chief Thompson has received the following letter from Lance Corporal Cookman, acknowledging the Christmas parcel forwarded to him by the Police Department:

No. 4 Canadian Gen. Hos.
Basingstoke, Hants.

Sir,—I wish to take this opportunity of thanking you and all members of the police force, for the parcel I received on the 26th Dec. I can easily say it was the best parcel that came to our ward, and all the men admired it. When anyone gets a parcel here it is a habit with the men to know the contents, and it is quite natural when we are living together. Everyone came along with their pipes to have a smoke of Canadian tobacco once more.

You will be surprised to hear I am in bed at the time of writing. I believe Christmas day was too much for me, but I am getting along fine now. We had the General around yesterday. He is in charge of the whole Canadian medical staff, and our medical officer told him he was sending me back to Canada as soon as he could get me fit, so I hope to be in Peterborough some time during 1918 unless something unforseen happens. I have had a pretty rough time of it since I left Peterborough, but no worse than I was prepared for, and although I am not in as good condition as I used to be, I don't think I will ever regret having done my bit. The medical officer told me there is nothing to stop me from being as fit a man as ever I was, but it will take a long time.

I will close now, wishing you and all members of the force a happy and prosperous New Year.

I remain,
GEO. E. COOKMAN.

COST OF LIVING STILL GOING UP

Average Price for Family Budget of Staple Foods Rises in Month.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—The average cost of a family budget of staple foods is still increasing. A return compiled by the Department of Labour shows that such a budget cost $12.24 in December, as compared with $12.10 for the previous month, $10.10 for December, 1916, and $7.85 for December, 1914. The Departmental index number of wholesale prices, based on the average prices of 272 commodities during the decade 1890-1899 was 253.5 for December, as compared with 247.3 for the previous month, 207.4 for December, 1916, and 137.6 for December, 1914.

There was a decline in the number of strikes during December, although there was a slight increase in the time loss due to industrial disputes. Four new strikes were recorded in the month as compared with six in November. In all, there were twelve strikes, involving 25 firms and 3,309 employees in existence at some time or other in December.

The total time loss was estimated at 33,192 working days, as compared with 26,844 in November and 12,523 in December, 1916.

RECORD PRICE IS PAID FOR A CAR OF WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21.—Wainwright, Alberta, holds another record, this time not only for Western Canada, but for the entire Dominion. Here it is: $2,571.25 for a single carload of wheat. This wheat brought the top market price set by the Government of $2.21 per bushel.

The grain was produced on the farm of R. Aykroyd, one and one half miles north of Wainwright on the Grand Trunk Pacific, and was shipped to Port Arthur. The total sum named in the cheque allowed for the deduction of $124 freight charges. Previous to this transaction the highest price paid for No. 1 Northern was, according to Dinner.

a single car shipped from Winnipeg to Port Arthur.

U-BOATS HOLD UP CODFISH CARGOES

Newfoundland Shipments Are Spoiled by Long Delay at Gibraltar.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 19.—Conditions arising from the submarine menace have become serious for the codfishing industry in Newfoundland. According to reports received here nearly a score of sailing vessels carrying dried codfish for Italy and Greece have been held up at Gibraltar for weeks because of the danger from submarines in the Mediterranean.

Their cargoes are valued at about a million dollars, and some of the ships have been at Gibraltar from six to eight weeks, the fish has deteriorated in a few cases so badly that it had to be destroyed. The delay also has prevented dealers sending further cargoes with the result that the arrival of the present headquarters catch probably will find some of the 1917 stock still on hand.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

How Is The Patriotic Fund To Be Raised For This Year?

better off when you ask him to subscribe. Possibly not. Possibly yes. The only way to find out is to go and ask him.

What, you will ask, about the tenant, whom the rapacious (said-to-be rapacious landlord) will soak by raising the rent? Honestly, don't we make too much of bugbear of this rent idea? Rents have gone up in Peterborough, because no one is building houses, at the cost for materials and wages, and there are not so many houses available as people looking for them. Under conditions rents would have advanced if there had never been a Patriotic Fund, because when houses, or anything else, are at a premium, that premium must be paid. Or the other fellow gets the house. Landlords are, just now, beginning to get some return for the money invested. And the better the return the more the tenant has a right to press for the improvements the place should have and could not have on a low rental.

Anyway, to stand off the landlord, if you are a tenant, do this. If the amount for the Patriotic Fund, as levied on the house you occupy as a tenant, amounts to, say, $7.50, give the man the money and beat him to it. Then he can't have the excuse to raise the rent to pay the levy, for you have paid it. Sort of cuts the ground from under him, you understand. But, honestly, shouldn't the tenant help to pay for the war. Now, don't be very solicitous that the fact that Peterborough may have a tax rate of 33 mills on the dollar, for one year, will hurt the credit, the financial credit, of the city. If Peterborough saw fit to whack on a war rate of ten mills on the dollar, the rest of the Province would say, "Good boy, go to it." It might be pretty costly advertising for us, but mighty good publicity, all the same. So don't lay abed at nights fretting over that end of the problem. Leave it to Alderman Taylor and his confreres. That is what you pay them for.

5—To petition the Union Government to take over the whole shebang, find the money, add an amount to the separation allowance, per family, and let it go at that?

Friends, the Union Government has about all it can grapple with, just now, in that way of raising and spending money. It positively refuses to have anything to do with it. It does not wish to acquire increased responsibility. If some of you people, who are serenely going on with your business, really knew the vexatious delays, the real hardships, the anxiety now incurred by hundreds of women, over delayed payments from the Departments, the last thing you would suggest would be to tack it on to the separation allowance. One sheet anchor to the women, now, is that there is one place to which they can look for some money and never be disappointed, that they can turn to in any extremity, that they can reach with confidence, and that is the Patriotic Fund. The man who urges that the Government should take over the Fund, is like as not, the man who thinks that in some not clearly defined way, payment by the Government is not the same as payment by him. That in Government responsibility he will not have to pay, now at any rate, and that perhaps not at all. And if so, it will be in some way that will not be perceptible.

The Government knows many things. It knows from experience. It knows that the cost of distribution would have to be met out of the public exchequer. That an army of clerks and inspectors and checkers would be required to handle the business all over the Dominion, business that now, four-fifths of which is handled without expense. The expense of conducting the Fund, as now organized, with its thousands of willing workers, putting in service for nothing, is (the paid part of it) met by interests from the banks on the money deposited. The millions of money raised voluntarily and held in the bank and disbursed. This great service does not cost the country one cent. What would it be under Government detail and carrying on? It would take, as the Premier of British Columbia said, $20,000,000 to do the work now done by $12,000,000.

Now, you're talking sense. For you would get both money to have the money, or promises for the money, long before Parliament could or will meet. The wives of the men on service would be good and hungry before Parliament could act.

6—To petition the Union Government to arrange, within four months, to provide funds for the Fund, and have the distribution remain as it is, and ask all loyal, helpful men to continue the good work?

Now, you're talking sense. For you would get both money and economy. The whole great system, built up into one of the finest systems ever organized for public service would still remain in action. The social end of the work, which, in many respects, overshadows the financial end, would still be on the job. The care, thought and assistance, the helpfulness to the families of men on service would remain intact. Money is a good thing, rightly used, but all do not use it so. The broad activities of the Fund take cognizance of the domestic condition, and reach out and help the family. Do you think that all over this big Dominion committees of men have remained on the job and in the service because they like it? Not much. Not any. Not by a jugful. But because they have a sense of public service and hate to step aside while that service is needed, and it surely is. What do you men, who go home at night, after business, eat a Food Controller meal, take off your slippers and sit by the fire-place and thank the good Lord that you are not as other men, know of the daily and weekly life of the family of the man on service? All are not alike, and blessings on it, but there are enough that call for help, charity in thought and deed, the hand that strives to guide and ward, the feeling that wishes to have for the soldiers when he comes home, his own as near as may be as he left them, to convince any one who knows anything at all of the work, that a Government distribution would and never will reach the spot or satisfy that which waits to be satisfied.

And finally, brethren. Think it over. Don't look at this thing in a stingy way. Don't say you can't afford to give up the price of a half-ton of coal or a cord of wood to the Fund. Give your Council, if necessary, a lift. Encourage it to be encouraged. To feel that in that way in which it strives to settle this problem that it has you behind it. That it is only a steward for you, and in doing what it decides to do it is steering about as close to a sensible course as you would yourself steer, if you had a share in the navigation.

MISS LILIAN DILLINGHAM COMING TO ST. PAUL'S CHURCH MONDAY EV'G, 28th JAN.

It is a matter of congratulation that St. Paul's choir has been able to secure Miss Dillingham, the famous Yorkshire soprano, for Monday evening, as she has only arrived in this country.

Of the many talented artistes that Miss Lena Ashwell has sent over to France to sing and entertain our soldiers, not one is more gifted than Miss Dillingham, and she comes, Miss Ashwell says, as her "personal representative in Canada."

Miss Dillingham is the happy possessor of a most beautiful voice, pure, flexible, and is exceptionally artistic in her interpretation. She is also a graduate in elocution, and tells of her wonderful times in France and Flanders with real dramatic power, and has sung at over four hundred entertainments for our war-weary men.

Miss Dillingham has had great experiences, both dramatic and pathetic in character, and tells wonderful stories of the heroism of our soldiers. We had the great pleasure last year of listening to Miss Ada Ward, and excellent as Miss Ward was, Miss Dillingham, we are assured, surpasses even her in her song-lectures.

No one interested in the war and in our soldiers should be absent from St. Paul's Church next Monday evening.

For particulars regarding tickets, see ad. on last page.

COST OF DIVORCE DETERS APPLICANTS

OTTAWA, Jan. 19. — Inquiries looking to divorce are perhaps more numerous this year than ever, but when the cost is ascertained, the prospective applications always dwindle. To go through the divorce process—with no guarantee of success save in an uncontested case—costs all the way from $400 up.

This year, so far, there are ten notices of intended application. The normal is about twenty-five. Undoubtedly the financial outlay necessarily involved is a big deterrent, save for well-to-do people.

To begin with, a notice has to be published several times in the Canada Gazette and also in a local newspaper. This costs about a hundred dollars or more. The fee accompanying the petition to the Senate is $210, and the lawyers' bills average from $200 up.

Witnesses Must Be Paid.

The big item of cost, however, consists in the fact that the petitioner has to produce and pay his or her witnesses, their railway fares, hotel bills and other expenses of the trip. In the case of several witnesses brought from Winnipeg or Calgary, for example, the heavy cost can readily be imagined. A thousand or fifteen hundred dollars is a common figure.

In Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and British Columbia they have divorce courts of their own. In Prince Edward Island the courts can hear a case on a flat from the Lieutenant-Governor. From these provinces applications to Parliament for marriage dissolutions are rare. Nearly all the cases are from Ontario, Quebec, and the Prairie Provinces.

The Procedure.

A petition is filed before the Senate and referred to the divorce committee. Evidence in the case is heard in camera. If the committee favours the divorce, a bill is prepared like an ordinary Act and the evidence is printed for the members of the Senate and Commons. The divorce goes through as a private bill. Formerly the recommendation of the committee practically ensured the divorce, but in later years the reports have been overruled several times in the Senate or in the Commons. The examination of evidence is much closer than it used to be.

Would Give Court Authority.

For several sessions W. B. Northrup has been urging divorce reform and power to the courts to hear divorce cases. He has argued that under the present system only wealthy people can secure divorce. This progress towards reform has never been made, the disposition being to regard it as an evil which should not be encouraged by cheaper methods of litigation.

This year the docket, so far, is small and embraces a couple of repeaters. As stated, however, seekers after divorce are as numerous, perhaps mor numerous, than ever, but the high cost of living extends to divorce. The fees have not advanced, but it costs more to bring and maintain witnesses. This is the large element in the practically prohibitive outlay necessary to dissolution, or attempted dissolution, of marriage. When the petitioner fails there is no refund.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Hainse, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr.Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three days."

THE WEATHER

The weather still continues cold. Lowest temperature last night 2 degrees above zero. Lowest Sunday morning, 16 below. This month has already had 18 days of zero weather, and it should be time for more moderate conditions. HoHwever, they are not in sight as yet.—W.P.

Plowmen Will Urge County Council To Endeavour To Have Provincial Match Held Here

At their annual meeting on Saturday afternoon the County Plowmen expressed their gratitude to the Peterborough gentlemen who have contributed prizes and prize money for the competitions. Their continued support is a big factor in making the matches attractive to the farmers, and is thereby fostering good plowing and indirectly assisting agriculture and production in this country.

The field competitions will be continued this year. It is felt that these contests are developing good plowmen, who will gradually work into the general matches.

Mr. J. H. Garbutt suggested that the counties of Peterborough, Durham, Northumberland and Victoria unite their efforts to secure the 1918 provincial match for this district. The main difficulty would be to obtain adequate accommodation for the 15,000 or 20,000 visitors. Ottawa is making a strong bid for this year's event, but it is regarded as being too far from the rural districts of the province. If the match could be held in the centre of the Peterborough district, or between Peterborough, Cobourg and Port Hope, the adjoining towns and village could accommodate the big crowds. The Peterborough County Council will be asked to co-operate with the neighbouring counties in an endeavour to bring the match to this section. Last year it was held near Paris, and the visitors had to obtain their hotel accommodation in Brantford and Hamilton.

Mr. C. H. Meserve Leaves To-morrow

Mr. C. H. Meserve, who leaves to-morrow morning for his new field of activities, Lincoln, Nebraska, takes with him the heartiest congratulations of the city for his splendid administration in connection with the .M.C.A., of which he has been general secretary for several years.

The financial outlook of the institution is particularly bright, there being no mortgage against the building, and increased revenues. The liability has been decreased by about $3,000 during the past year.

Three Runs For Fire Department

The Fire Department had three week-end calls to chimney fires on Saturday at 4.15 to 372 Queen Street, at 5.52 to 369 George Street (the Turnbull building), and on Monday at 6.35 to 247 Burnham Street, the residence of Mr. F. P. Champion.

No damage was done at any fire.

A COINCIDENCE

The presence here of Mr. Adams, town planner, developed a coincidence. In treating his subject, Mr. Adams dealt with "the first garden city," Letchworth, Hertfordshire, England, with whose establishment he was associated. This city was planned by a private company, composed of disciples of John Ruskin and his associates. The coincidence consists in the fact that Mr. W. H. Pretty, C.E., of this city, was, with other engineers and architects, associated with the development of the "garden city," and assisted in designing the model cottages.

It is interesting to note the far-reaching effects of the literacy of the great Ruskin. Among the earlier promoters of "Letchworth, the garden city," were many of his followers and students. They were practical idealists, socialistic in their views, and many of them wealthy and, in many cases, personal acquaintances with John Ruskin— Wm. Morris, Burne-Jones, Rossetti, and others of the pre-Raphaelite school.

That one of Peterborough's citizens associated with the work of these coming into contact with one of the prominent promoters of the garden city is not only a coincidence but a distinction.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, January 21.—How Germany deliberately violated the speci- prohibition in the Russian-German armistice against the transport of oops from the Russian front, has been told in detail by the German desert- s into Holland, according to reliable word received here to-day. Both the st and the 42nd German Divisions were named by these men as having en moved from the northern lines after Germany had pledged her word to Russians that no troops would be transferred. According to the Berlin eusische Zeitung wholesale desertions of Russians have practically wiped t any battle lines in the north. At one point the newspapers asserted re are no Russian troops facing the Germans on a 125-mile front. Much the Russian material has been removed, but quantities have been aban- ed in the snow. The transport of ammunition to Russian troops has assed and Russian soldiers are trading their horses to the enemy. The Rou- anians persist in keeping up their hostile attitude although they are strict- observing the terms of the armistice.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Chief Crowe of Hiawatha is in a Critical Condition.

Chief Jerry Crowe, of Hiawatha, was found in his home on Sunday in a semi-conscious and dazed condition, grovelling in the charred remains of a fire in the stove. The old man, who is over 84 years of age, had evidently lain in his house all night without a fire, and been saved from being actually frozen to death by the heavy clothes he wore. Medical assistance was called from the city, and the Chief shows some signs of recovering.

A Controller Of Production Is Suggested

Col. J. A. Currie Says Area of Tillable Land and Crops Could Be Doubled With Such a System in Vogue

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 21.—There has been some comment regarding the effect which the application of the Military Service Act is having upon the cordination of labour. It is pointed out for instance that the terms under which farmers secure exemption forbid them even in the slack season from engaging in any other employment for which there may be a shortage of labour. On this point Col. John A. Currie, M.P. for East Simcoe, who was in Ottawa while the conference was in session, gave the following interesting interview:

"From my experience the Act has worked out well, but there is a serious condition at present, not due to the Act, but to the way it has been administered, it is going to create an artificial shortage of labour on farms, and unless there is established some form of control of production our food situation is going to be accentuated this coming season. You hear a great outcry from farmers about the shortage of farm labour. There is no actual shortage of farm labour. It is not the farmer who will be an exempted draftee that is kicking, but the one who has to have a hired man to help. In Germany and Austria, where farmers have co-operative banks and societies for production by applying co-operative methods, they are able to produce a maximum amount of food from their lands, although war has taken away a lot of their man power. Here, where we have not had any experience with co-operative production, we are at a loss what to do and we either rush into print or appeal to the government.

We have a controller, whose duty it is to prevent waste, but it would appear that what we need most is a controller of production, whose duty it would be to increase our output, not only of munitions and food for the allies, but also food and fuel for ourselves.

Unless we do something, many of our farmers with no hired help in sight will throw up their hands and reduce the area of cultivated lands on their farms this year and we will have a tragedy of starvation, not only for our allies, but also for ourselves.

Take the fuel situations at the present moment. It could be relieved in a week if some one would mobilize the boys on the farms and send them to the wood lots to cut fuel for a week, but these boys, fresh from experience of many of the military tribunals, where the rule for exemption was to grant relief only to those who stuck continuously to their own or their father's farm, are not going to risk their immunity by going to a neighbour's wood lot to help get out some wood.

Neither will they go to help a neighbour till or harvest his land this coming season, unless some direction and control gives them encouragement and assures them immunity from draft. They would rather sit around the stove at home and smoke than risk their right to exemption. However, if we could establish some effective form of control over farm labour and production, with the co-operation of farmers, I feel that with albour now available, the farmers can this season double our crop, given an average harvest.

I would suggest that an energetic controller of production be appointed, some one who could handle a staff of production specialists, that he should establish boards of agriculture in each municipality. These boards of agriculture would be composed of several successful farmers living in the community. These boards would have the power to organize farmers to direct the area of tillage and crop rotation during the war, having in view the proportion of food that should be raised for the allies and for consumption of people at home.

These boards would have auahority to mobolize the man power exempt from military service on the farms so that the farmers could co-operate on some equitable plan.

A PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. C. H. MESERVE

A committee of three, representing the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A., met on Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Meserve, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., when, in a few words, they expressed sincere regret at losing Mr. and Mrs. Meserve from the Peterborough "Y," and the appreciation of the Board for their splendid administration at the institution. A handsome sum of money was also presented to each, with the following addresses:

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 19, 1918.
C. H. Meserve, Esq.,
Secretary Y.M.C.A., City.

Dear Mr. Meserve,—Just a few words on the eve of your departure to commence work in a new field. The Board of Directors felt a desire to express their appreciation of the work done in connection with our association during the years you have been with us.

To you is due the credit of foreseeing the increased usefeulness of the Y.M.C.A. in this city by enlarging the building, and the increase in earning power, which resulted in reducing voluntary contributions fully 25 per cent., so that the building, as it now stands, with its various activities, is earning 50 per cent. of the yearly budget.

We wish you every success in your new field of labour, and trust your setay in Lincoln, Nebraska, will be pleasant to yourself and profitable to the Association.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, we present you this sum of money as a token of appreciation and esteem.

Signed on behalf of the Directors,
G. A. Gillespie, President.
J. J. Turner, Jr., Treasurer.

To Mrs. Meserve.

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 19, 1918.
Mrs. C. N. Meserve,
188 Dublin Street, City.

Dear Mrs. Meserve,—At the last meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. it was unanimously moved that a presentation be made to Mrs. Meserve on the eve of her departure from Peterborough with Mr. Meserve, to take up residence at another place — as a mark of the Board's appreciation for services rendered at various times, helping in no small measure to keep down operating expenses in connection with the building, and contributing largely to the pleasure of the Board meetings.

The Board trusts you will find Lincoln, Nebraska, congenial and a pleasant place to reside.

Will you please accept this sum of money on behalf of the Board, as a small evidence of their appreciation and esteem.

Signed,
J. J. Turner, Jr., Treasurer.
G. A. Gillespie, President.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Meserve expressed briefly their regret at leaving a town in which they have made innumerable and lasting ties, and assured the Board that their interest would never end in the welfare of the "Y" with which they have so long been connected.

From Kitchener League.

Mr. Meserve also received the following, amongst many others, from the Kitchener Club:

Peterborough, January 17, 1918.
C. N. Meserve, Esq., City.

Dear Mr. Meserve,—The ladies of the Canadian Kitchener League take this opportunity of expressing to you their appreciation of the very many kindnesses extended to them by you during the past three years.

The ladies regret very much your departure from the city, but their prayers and best wishes will go with you into your new sphere, and they trust your work among the boys will be very richly blessed.

Yours very truly,
The Canadian Kitchener League,
Mrs. Jno. Knox, President.
G. Mowat, Secretary.

ILLUSTRATED SERVICE AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

"The Epiphany, in Scene, Song and Story" was admirably portrayed in St. John's Church last night, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, who in Sunday School teaching makes extensive use of lantern slides. Last night, with the hearty approval of Major Canon Davidson, the usual evening service gave place to the above presentation, special features being the "Annunciation" and "Presentation" (during which the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were sung), the visit of the "Wise Men" (with reading by Mr. C. E. Jamieson), and the "Massacre of the Innocents." Major Canon Davidson held the attention of the congregation as he pointed out the lessons from the different scenes, and the singing of hymns from the screen was devotional and hearty. Mr. Harry Flowers and Mr. James Browne sang solo parts in the "Carol," the choir being seated in the nave. Mr. Cyril Devey made admirable lantern arrangements and operated the slides. Mr. Arthur Kingdon very kindly moved the screen from the Sunday School to the church, as the school sessions are now held in the church owing to the fuel conditions.

Arrangements are being made for similar services on the first Sunday in Lent and on Palm Sunday.

"NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH" A LAUGH MAKER COMES HERE SATURDAY

The Toronto World says:

Robert Bennett, makes a wager of $10,000 with his business partners that he can tell the absolute truth for twenty-four hours. He does so and embroils himself and his friends in a series of amusing situations.

Farce that was written and is acted with a delicacy and skill that approaches good modern comedy, is rare these days, and for that reason "Nothing But the Truth" was welcome at the Royal Alexandria last tevening. Besides this the company has not a flaw, it contains only members selected for their artistic ability.

Briefly outlined, "Nothing But the Truth" is the result of a bet not to utter an untruth for twenty-four hours. The money is given by the sweetheart to her stockbroking lover to invest and to be doubled in five days for her church bazaar. Robert Bennett, the lover, "invests" it in a bet with his senior partner, who is the sweetheart's father and who has promised to double her investment if he attains to a figure she cannot reach unless her lover wins and he himself loses. The series of blank truths the lover tells to win, under circumstances that were particularly well conceived and plotted, make up the farce. Few farces have been so well written. Indeed it is the naturalness of the whole play which gives it the peculiar attraction that one experiences in the quieter reading by the fireside of a gracefully written tale. While there is a surprising amount of incident in the twenty-four hours the real movement of the play actually hidden until one analyses it and there is a wealth which astonishes. The scenery seems to share this habit of suppression and its beauty and appropriateness requires a second thought to be appreciated. In a word, "Nothing But the Truth" is from first to last a farce of the kind that can be cordially commended.

"Nothing But the Truth" comes to "The Grand" next Saturday, Jan. 26, for two performances.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Big Crowd Expected For Final Game In The District Series

Friday night's junior O.H.A. battle at Brock street rink between Lindsay and Peterborough should provide a record-breaking junior crowd. The championship of the district depends upon the result, the two teams having battled each other to a draw in the first three games of the double schedule. All three matches have been great exhibitions and there is every be the hardest fought of the series, be the ardest fought of the series. Lindsay won the first game by 8 to 5, and the Petes the second by 3 to 1 and 4 to 3 respectively, leaving the teams with twelve goals each to their credit after three hours of strenuous hockey.

The Lindsay aggregation have by no means given up the fight because of Friday's loss. They point out that the game was anybody's until the final bell rang and claim that they have just as much speed as the Petes, and will therefore be just as much at home on the larger ice surface at Brock street rink. As the losing team goes into the discard as far as this season is concerned, it will be a struggle from gong to gong. A large number of Lindsay fans are coming down for the game.

M. H. C. PATIENTS GET TICKETS FOR HOCKEY

The Ottawa Hockey Club has set aside a block of seats for the men on the strength of the Military Hospitals Commission Command who are under treatment at the Sir Sanford Fleming Convalescent Home, for all the games of the season.

Miss M McLaurent, matron of the convalescent home, recently wrote to the secretary of the association, expressing the appreciation of the men for the courtesy.

"To those," she said, "many of whom have lost forever the joy of freedom of action, a game like hockey has a particular charm."

The block of seats will be reserved for the men in khaki wearing the "Blue Badge of Honour" on their arms, no matter how many other eager enthusiasts have to be turned away from the games.

FIRST GAME IN THE BASKETBALL GROUP

The first game in the Cobourg-Peterborough group of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association, Junior Section, will be played at the Y.M.C.A. to-night. The Peterborough Collegiate will play the Y.M.C.A. team, and a very fast game may be expected. Both teams have been practising faithfully, and both are confident that they will win. A preliminary game starting at 8:15 will be played between the Employed Boys "B" and School Boys "B". The league game will start at 8:45.

The Y.M.C.A. team will play in Cobourg on Thursday night, and will play the Collegiate in the second game on Saturday night of this week. The schedule has been arranged in such a way that the High School team will play its home games and game in Cobourg on Saturday nights, so that it will not interfere with school work.

This is the first league game that has been played in Peterborough for at least four years and a good attendance at the games is expected. Mr. C. E. Sisson will referee to-night.

District Cup Games Will Be Played Here Tuesday Afternoon

Six clubs are expected to be represented in the draw at 1.30 p.m. tomorrow for the group games in the District Cup series.

Mr. R. M. Waddell is the referee for this group.

Lindsay, Lakefield, Keene, Millbrook, Norwood, and Peterborough will likely be the list of rinks for the preliminary games.

The event may prove the season's only feature for outside rinks in Peterborough, and it is hoped that there will be a full representation of the district rinks.

Music & Drama

"Bringing up Father Abroad" brought Jiggs Mahoney, Maggie and Dinty Moore to the Grand Opera House on Saturday, and these funny creations of Geo. McManus, assisted by other characters, kept the large audiences convulsed at both matinee and evening performances. This year's edition of the cartoon play deals with a trip to Ireland by Jiggs and his wife, accompanied by the faithful Dinty. On the voyage they run foul of a pair of crooks when rent to Jiggs a castle in Ireland which they do not happen to own.

John E. Cain's presentation of Jiggs was a splendid one—his make-up was a perfect reproduction of the hero of the newspaper strip, and in bearing and manner he was a living fac-simile of McManus' famous creation. He kept the audience in a hilarious condition every minute he was on the stage. Marion J. Benson was a realistic Maggie, and Ben B. Bryon provided a lot of amusement as Dinty. Robert B. Rice was an amusing comedian of the "nut variety."

The musical numbers were bright and catchy and although there were no grand opera voices in evidence the principals got their songs over nicely and sang to the satisfaction of the audience. The biggest musical hit was the patriotic song "Say a Prayer for the Boys Out There," which was effectively sung by Miss Blanche Newcomb, and which was enthusiastically received. The recruiting song, "I Want You" was another number that pleased and the stereopticon slides of Lincoln, Wilson, Uncle Sam, King George, Kitchener, and other leaders added to the appeal of the number "Mistletoe Bough," by Jiggs and Dinty, was a comedy number that was responsible for much amusement.

LETTER FROM A PETERBORO SOLDIER

Miss Pearl Weaver, 69 Hunter Street, has received the following interesting letter from her brother, Private L. Weaver, who is now in England:

England, Jan. 1, 1918.

Dear Sister,

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well, and hope you are the same. How is Ena getting along? Give her my best regards, and I wish you all a happy New Year and many of them. Well, Pearl dear, I got your kind and welcome box, and I am very thankful for it; and Pearl, you will never be forgotten by your brother Lorne. You have sure done me a good turn, and I will repay it when I get back, if the Lord spares me.

Well, Pearl, I only wish you had been on leave with me in London. Say, I had the time of my life. Tell Ena that I was in London on leave, and I took a girl home when I was there, and she made love to me before I got her home, and then asked me if I would marry her. So I told her that she would have to get my father's consent. Ha, ha! What do you know about it? Well, Pearl, this is New Year's Day, and I hope the next one will find me in Canada.

Well, Pearl, I have been over here about seventeen months now, and I have seen Canada, England, France, and Belgium. That is four nations I have seen, and I have seen enough now. I am quite satisfied to go back to Canada now. Tell Ena to tell someone to write to me. Tell her to tell the school teacher to write to me. I wrote before.

Well, I will say good-bye, and may Heaven bless you, is the wish of your loving brother,

Lorne Weaver.

WEDDING BELLS

PHILLIPS—CARTER.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Luke's church on Saturday, Jan. 19th, when Margaret Elizabeth (Bessie), eldest daughter of Mr. W. H. Carter, was united in marriage to George G. Phillips, of Toronto, by the Rev. W. H. White.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips left on the four p.m. train for Galt. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

BLAND—ELSON.

The marriage of Edith Maud, elder daughter of Mrs. Wm. Elson, Cavan, and Mr. Harry Bland, of Mt. Pleasant, took place at the bride's home, Wednesday evening, January 16th, at six o'clock. The wedding was very quiet, owing to recent bereavement in the family of both the bride and groom.

The bride was dressed in a simple gown of grey Georgette and taffeta, with touches of blue hand embroidery and wore a corsage bouquet of bridal roses. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Harry Elson. Rev. W. H. Clark, of Cavan, officiated. The wedding music was played by Miss Ella Elson. After the ceremony supper was served to the guests, which included only the immediate families of the contracting parties.

Later in the evening, Stanley Elson, the six months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Downer, a nephew of the bride, was christened.

OBITUARY

ELIZABETH COONS.

Elizabeth, relict of George W. Coons, 359 Rogers Street, died on Saturday after an illness of some months' duration. Mr. Coons predeceased her in July, 1912.

The funeral, from her late residence, will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30. Rev. Mr. Whattam will conduct the services.

MRS. A. C. FINN.

Mrs. A. C. Finn, of Enterprise, passed away early Wednesday morning after a short illness. The late Mrs. Finn was well and favourably known. She was a kind mother and a loving wife. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides a sorrowing husband, five daughters, namely, Mrs. P. Dillon, Enterprise; Mrs. T. J. Hunt, Enterprise; Mrs. P. J. Devlin, of Peterborough, and the Misses Laurette and Annie, at home; also one son, Joseph, of Carmanville.

The funeral took place on Friday from the late residence of the deceased to the church where Requiem Mass was sung by the Rev. Father McDonald. The pall-bearers were P. Dillon, P. J. Devlin, T. J. Hunt, all sons-in-law, also three nephews, R. Walker, E. Finn and P. Finn.

GRACE MARION HORSEFIELD.

Grace Marion Horsefield daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horsefield died yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, aged 2 years and 7 months. Particularly sad circumstances surround the death of the child in the fact that she is the second child in the family who has died within the past four months.

The funeral from the family residence, 526 Bonsecord street, will take place to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

LEONARD DOBBIN.

Many friends will regret to learn of the death of an old resident of the city, Leonard Dobbin, of East City, where he had lived for the larger part of his life. The death took place on Sunday morning, 20th January, after a long infirmity, resulting in complications which gradually broke down his, for many years, rugged constitution. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Margaret Dobbin (daughter of the late Lewis Glover), and three sons and two daughters: Fred of Toronto, Louis of this city, and Charles, now in the West, at Revelstoke; May, Mrs. W. E. Meagher, and Edna, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, both of this city.

Deceased for many years had been a member of Peterborough Masonic Lodge, having been made a member in the State of New York shortly after he came out of service in the Army of the Republic in 1864.

In his employment as builder and mechanic he was very justly esteemed for the thorough and reliable way in which all work entrusted to him was done, and his services were always in demand.

The funeral will take place to-morrow (Tuesday), 22nd January, from the residence of his son, Mr. Louis G. Dobbin, 267 Stewart Street, at 2 o'clock, to Little Lake Cemetery.

MARY J. YOUNG.

Mary J. Young, daughter of Andrew Young, Smith, died on Sunday morning in the Nicholls Hospital, in her 58th year.

Deceased was a faithful and consistent member of the Gilmour Memorial Church, and took an active interest in all work connected with it. She was born in Smith, where she resided until her recent illness, when she was removed to Nicholls Hospital. She leaves of the immediate family three brothers, Thomas and John, of Manitoba, and James, of the 4th Concession of Smith, and three sisters, Mrs. James Montgomery, Dundalk; Mrs. John Archer, Smith, and Miss Bessie, at home.

The funeral, from Bellaghem's Funeral Parlours, will take place on Tuesday at 3 o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service at 2.30, conducted by Rev. Mr. Galt, of the Gilmour Memorial Church.

WHERE NATIONALISTS STOOD.

In a Quebec constituency, Bourassa's lieutenant, Armand Lavergne ran against a Liberal and was defeated. In Montreal Island riding Mr. Cahan, a Nationalist, was first nominated in the riding in which Hon. C. C. Ballantyne later became a candidate. Mr. Cahan immediately withdrew his opposition to the Unionist Minister and ran against Hon. R. Lemieux. Does all this look as if the Nationalists were favourable to the Liberals? They ran against several Liberals, but did not oppose a single Unionist or Conservative.—Brockville Recorder.

Mr. John H. Garbutt Elected President at the Annual Meeting in the Council Chamber This Afternoon

A LADIES' COMMITTEE

Mr. John H. Garbutt was elected President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition at the annual meeting this afternoon. He was regarded as one of the most valuable men on the Board, a good representative of the agricultural interests in this county, and it was also stated that he proposed to move into the city, and would therefore have ample time to devote to the position.

The dates selected for this year's Exhibition were September 12, 13, and 14th.

THE OFFICERS.

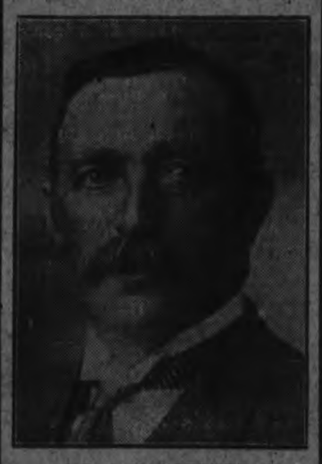
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. R. Denne.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. W. J. Cox.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. F. J. A. Hall.
Board of Directors—Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, C. E. Moore, T. Brown, F. Wise, F. Kitney, A. Roberts, O. Ball, J. A. Storey, John Gillespie, Rex. Turner, R. M. Glover, C. G. Graham, A. Milburn, D. Jordan, T. Roberts, that the association enter the Roberts, that the association enter the Field Crop competition in oats and barley, for which the Department offers $50 for each rain contest. Five or six entries were registered among the directors, and an energetic campaign will be carried on to secure as many entries as possible.



MR. J. H. GARBUTT,
Who was this afternoon elected President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition for 1918.

Cruikshank, T. H. Hooper, W. J. Stacey, R. Shaw, O. Gibbs, C. Telford, T. H. Graham, W. Devell, Geo. McClellan, W. Steinkrauss, Dr. Fortune, H. G. Webber, H. Baptie.

Auditors—Wm. Collins and E. M. Elliott.

BARLEY AND OATS COMPETITION.

RETIRING PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

In his opening address Mr. Gillespie said he had received the most cordial co-operation and had enjoyed the confidence of the Directors during his presidency in the last two years. "I wish to thank them for their assistance. If we have succeeded during the past two years it is due to the fact that I had good lieutenants. We should be satisfied with the financial statement, in view of the times through which we are passing. At the same time I believe we should grasp the opportunity that is before us, and endeavour to put the Fair on a basis that will make it a credit to the city ten years hence."

Mr. Gillespie announced his intention of retiring from the office of president. The demands on his time prevented him from giving to the Association all the attention the Fair and its preliminary work required.

"We should have the best man we can get," he said. "I will continue to take an active interest in the Fair, and would ask for my successor the assistance the directors accorded me."

Financial Statement.

Secretary Hall's report showed a balance of $1,386.92, as follows:

Expenditures.
Prizes	$2183.40
Delegates to convention	16.25

THREE CADETS ARE KILLED

Fatal Accident at Toronto Camp of Royal Flying Corps

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—Cadets M. N. Milne, D. E. McMillan and Bendicks were killed during flights this morning. Bendicks was flying from Leaside Camp at a height of fifty feet when his machine crashed to the earth. Milne and McMillan, while flying from Armour Heights Camp, collided, and McMillan's machine came down in flames.

Oak Hall's Bicycle Speeding Away

The bicycle to be given away on Dollar Day was started on Saturday morning by Mayor Duncan at 9.12 a.m., and ran continually till 9 p.m. In all, it will run exactly 57 hours. A guess with every dollar purchase made from time bicycle started and up to 6 p.m. on Dollar Day. Deposit your estimate in box at store any time before closing of Dollar Day.

See on another page for inducement.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to publicly thank my Nominator, Seconder, and all friends who so unmistakeably rallied to my support in case an election became necessary to fill the vacancy on the Aldermanic Board.

As the seat falls to me my acclamation, I none the less appreciate the splendid support that was spontaneously offered, and I promise to do all in my power to further the interests of the entire city, and prove worthy of the confidence shown by giving me the seat uncontested.

M. McINTYRE.

Social and Personal

Mr. Roland Wood, of Fernie, B.C., is home on a visit to his mother, Mrs. J. Wood, Belmont avenue. Mr. Wood was storm stayed a week in Chicago.

Mr. Clifford Howard, Beaverton, was the guest of friends in the city for the week-end.

Miss Bessie Runnett, Sherbrooke Street, who has been a nurse-in-training at the Kingston Hospital, has returned home on extended sick leave.

Mr. Fred Dobbin, of the Toronto Star staff, has been called to the city by the death of his father, the late Mr. Leonard Dobbin, Oxford Street.

Mrs. Damon L. Snider, of Odessa, has returned home after visiting her sister, Pearl avenue, and her niece, Mrs. Chester Taylor, Goodwill Apartments.

Mr. L. T. Hunter returned home on Saturday from Nicholls Hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. R. Hope, of Flint, Mich., is home on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Terence Guerin. Her mother, Mrs. Guerin, is seriously ill.

Rev. Canon Perry and Rev. R. B. Grobb were interested spectators at the ringing of the chimes at St. John's church at noon to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Storey, of Wimbledon, N.D., who have been visiting the former's sister, Mrs. E. J. Downey, 188 Edinburgh street, left on Saturday for Toronto, where they will be the guests of Mrs. A. M. Coulter, 1580 Queen street west, for a few days, before returning to their home in Wimbledon, N.D. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Storey as far as Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Haslam, 305 Margaret Avenue, left to-day for an extended visit to Hamilton, Buffalo, Boston and New York.

Nursing Sister Catherine O'Brien, Bolivar Street, who lately returned from Halifax, has returned to Toronto to await further military orders.

Archdeacon Perry, St. Catharines, who conducted the anniversary services yesterday at All Saints' Church, is the guest of Rev. R. B. Grobb.

FUEL SHORTAGE CLOSES SCHOOLS

Pastors Res cut Proposal That The Churches Should Come Next.

GUELPH, Jan. 20.—The first definite steps to conserve coal here will be taken this coming week, when five public schools will be closed and several local industries will go on shorter hours.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held Saturday afternoon, when it was decided to close all the public schools in the city, excepting the Central, until such time as the coal shortage situation is relieved.

Principal Young stated that the classes which will be kept on are two commercial classes, two other classes conducted by male teachers, and the highest classes in St. Patrick's and Torrance Schools. These classes will be taken to the Central School.

A long line of people stood before the Fuel Controller's office at the City Hall Saturday morning and pleaded for a small amount of coal to keep them going over the week end. No interference of the church services will take place.

On Saturday evening a meeting of the Ministerial Association was held in the Y. M. C. A., at which a resolution was adopted declaring that, while they were prepared to endorse any action of the Fuel Controller designed to conserve coal, they objected to any order confiscating the coal in the churches and schools before closing the pool-rooms, theatres and kindred institutions.

Not a Corn or Callus on Feet

Apply few drops, then lift them off without pain.

A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it freezone and it now can be had in little bottles for a few cents from any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off with fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses, just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it!

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice.

BREAD SHORTAGE IN CUBA.

Havana Has No White Flour and Riots Are Expected.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 — There is danger of bread riots in Havana, according to passengers arriving from there recently. It was said that there was no white flour in the city and that bread was not on sale in bakeries, restaurants and hotels. Biscuits and crackers were selling for $1 a pound.

WEEKLY REPORT CONCERNING CONDITIONS ON THE FARM

The Hog Campaign is Steadily Progressing—The Supply of Milk is About Normal—The Marketing of Farm Products—The Labour Situation.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of reports made by District Representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The increased value of both feeds and meats has caused farmers to exercise greater care in handling their live stock and both man and beast have been gainers, despite the unusually cold and otherwise trying nature of the first half of the winter season. Marketing of live stock, especially of beef cattle, has been greatly delayed by the bad condition of the roads. Sheep are still increasing in favour, the demand for eyes being strong in some of the North Ontario districts.

The Hog Campaign is steadily progressing. One of the big difficulties confronting farmers who would increase the number of brood sows is the fact that corn and other feeds that have to be purchased are not only very high in price but are difficult to procure in lots sufficiently large to ensure future supplies. Among the more encouraging reports received from Representativse are the following:

Middlesex—"So far 800 extra sows are reported."

Waterloo—"We have the promise of 619 extra sows in this county for the coming year."

Dundas—"970 farms were visited during December and on these were promised an increase of 575 sows."

Lincoln—"This county promises to produce over 550 tons extra pork in 1918."

The supply of milk is about normal notwithstanding the severity of the weather. Prices run from $2.50 to $2.75 a cwt. Butter has the wide range of from 38c to 50c a lb.

Marketing of farm products generally has been more or less hindered by bad roads and the intensely cold weather. Hay has advanced in price, and now runs all the way from $16.00 to $18.00, according to quality and availability for delivery. Not many shipments have been made owing to low temperatures. Eggs have reached top-nitch prices, 60c a dozen being commonly paid for new laid.

The early housing of live stock made considerable drain upon all kinds of feeds, but on most farms there is a sufficient supply of coarse fodders to carry over until the grass comes. The good supply of straw for both feeding and bedding is being especially prized this winter. The scarcity of mill feeds and other concentrates, however, may render home grown grains scarce by spring. Fears are being expressed regarding the quality of seed corn and beans.

There is a sufficiency of labour on most farms for winter work, but some Representatives are not hopeful as to the spring and summer supply.

More enquiries are being made for married men to work on farms.

London Car Conductresses Were Given Poisoned Candies

LONDON, Jan. 22.—In the last few days twenty-six conductresses on London omnibuses and tramcars have been poisoned by eating chocolates or candies given to them while on duty by an unidentified passenger. The girls were incapacitated for work and are being treated in hospitals. It is reported that one is dead and several are seriously ill. In each case the man was the only pasenger. He produced a box ofchocolates and offered them to the girl conductor. If she ate a few she immediately became very dizzy and had to be taken away.

STEWART HALL NEWS PARAGRAPHS

STEWAR HALL, Jan. 18.—Your scribe wishes to make an apology long due for not writing more regularly. But it is surely "an ill wind that blaws naebody guid." So the reader, the paper, and writer are receiving the benefit of these days without toil, which the storm king has so generously given to all, and now Stewart Hall's many items, interesting, no doubt, to myriads of readers, are again written for the benefit and enjoyment of all and the offence of none.

Regular meeting of the I.O.D.E. was held in the hall on Tuesday afternoon. The weather being so very unfavourable no doubt accounted for the small attendance. As there is business of importance, the officers wish for a large attendance at the next meeting.

Mr. Thomas J. Johnson treated the young people to a very enjoyable dancing party on Wednesday evening.

Miss Viola Cardwell and Miss Etta Thorn left on the 3rd for Guelph, where they will take a three-months' course at Macdonald Hall, O.A.C.

Mrs. James Thorn has returned from Reaboro, where she attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Robert Thorn.

Mr. Beecher Matchett, who had been visiting on Morrow Street, returned home on Monday morning in the storm.

We are pleased to hear that Mrs. Fred Collins, who has been ill, is convalescent.

Mrs. Edward Lynch, who has been spending a few weeks with friends in Hastings County, returned home on Thursday.

Miss Grace Gallaway, who has been in New York, has returned to her home here.

Mr. George Savigny, of town, is busy repairing Mr. Frank Savigny's commodious home.

Mr. Belfry, of Janetville, while making a pleasant visit in the neighbourhood, was suddenly summoned to his home, we are sorry to report.

Miss L. Wilson, of Burketon, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Hutchinson.

Miss J. Barrie was the guest of Miss M. Hanbidge during the storm.

Miss Grace Stewart was a recent visitor at Zion, at the home of Mrs. Robert Jackson.

Mr. Wordie Finnie spent the thirteenth with Mr. Jack Johnson.

Mr. Richard Harrison is hauling timber for a barn from North Monaghan.

Dyspeptics Should Avoid Drugs And Medicines

Try a Little Magnesia Instead.

Some people instinctively shut their eyes to danger, and it may be that instinct, or custom or habit causes dyspeptics to take drugs, patent foods and medicines, artificial digestants, etc.

But closing the eyes does not banish the danger, and it is certain that neither drugs nor medicines possess the power to destroy the harmful excessive acid in the stomach, which is the underlying cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia. They may give temporary relief, but ever increasing quantities must be taken, and all the time the acid remains in the stomach as dangerous as ever.

Physicians know this and that is why their advice so often to sufferers from digestive and stomach trouble is "Just get about an ounce of pure bisurated magnesia from your druggist and take a teaspoonful in a little water immediately after every meal. This will instantly neutralize all the harmful acid in the stomach and stop all food fermentation, thus enabling you to enjoy hearty meals without experiencing the least pain or unpleasantness afterward.

GALT MANUFACTURER WAS WELL KNOWN HERE

In the death of Peter Hay, Galt has lost one of its oldest and most respected citizens, one who had made his mark as an enterprising and successful manufacturer, and a man of high character and sterling qualities.

Mr. Hay was born in Lauder, Berwickshire, Scotland, 83 years ago, and on emigrating to Canada in 1857, lived in Montreal for four years before coming to Galt. He was first in the employ of the Goldie & McCulloch Co. as foreman, where he spent eight years. The next eleven years he was with the Jas. Warnock Co., edge tool manufacturers. In the year 1880 he entered into business for himself as a machine knife manufacturer, which he successfully conducted for 25 years, when the Peter Hay Knife Co. Ltd., was organized, and he retired from his active management, although retaining an interest in the firm.

He as an enthusiastic sportsman and lover of outdoor life, having taken long shooting and fishing trips until reaching his 80th year. He never took any active interest in politics or municipal affairs. In religion a Presbyterian, he was a member of Knox Church and was a Liberal in politics.

Besides his wife, there survive three daughters, Isabel, Annie, and Bessie, all at home, and one son, George, who is manager of the Petrolea Branch of the Bank of Toronto.

Mr. Hay was a brother of Mrs. Wm. Weatherstone 120 Hilliard street. He visited Peterborough occasionally and was known to many of the woodworkers of this city.

THE EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

The day when the Dollar Bill talks louder in Peterborough Stores than any other day in the year. This Year it will be held on—

THURSDAY, JAN. 24

About 30 of the principal stores in the City are participating, and are busy preparing the best list of bargains they can possibly find in their splendid stocks, and shoppers will certainly appreciate the extremely varied offerings such a large array of stores will assure. As usual the big list of Cash Bonuses is a liberal one, as the Merchants are giving away

$175 =CASH= PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every Dollar Purchase on that day, an Estimating Blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and dropped into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10.15 p.m. on DOLLAR DAY.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the 1st Prize of $25; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15. and so on.

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate, 1st prize	$25.00	Next nearest correct estimate, 9th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd prize	20.00	Next nearest correct estimate, 10th prize	$5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd prize	15.00	Next nearest correct estimate, 11th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th prize	10.00	Next 5 nearest correct estimates, 5 prizes, each	3.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th prize	10.00	Next 10 nearest correct estimates, 10 prizes, each	2.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 6th prize	5.00	Next 30 nearest correct estimates, 30 prizes, each	1.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 7th prize	5.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 8th prize	5.00

Store Employees excluded. Prizes are intended for the public exclusively, and employees of the stores are not allowed to com pete.

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 10,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 24th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

You can recogize all the Stores where DOLLAR SPECIALS are being given by the BLUE LETTERED PENNANTS IN THEIR WINDOWS.

Gladstone's Sons To Sell Part Of Hawarden Estate

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The sons of William E. Gladstone announce that a large part of the famous Hawarden estate is to be sold at once because high taxes have rendered it impossible to keep it intact and in the family, as the elder Gladstone desired. The estate is burdened with a large debt, and the tenants will be given the preference if they desire to buy the lands they are occupying. The plight of the Gladstone property is like that of many other ancient estates throughout the country, which, despite the present large profits from well-farmed lands, are losing money because of the wastes of the tenant system.

SITUATION IMPROVES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The coal situation yesterday was much improved. Coal is moving rapidly and within a day or two it is hoped that all the bunkers will be full, so that vessels can sail from all ports.

THREE VESSELS SUNK.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Authentic news has been received of the sinking of three vessels, one American, while pasing a lighthouse in the Mediterranean. All vessels sank within a few minutes of each other. Names not given. No lives lost.

WARNED HOLLAND.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Holland-American liner Nieo Amsterdam, with two thousand passengers, including the New Dutch Minister to the United States is being detained at Rotterdam because Germany warned Holland she will not permit the liner to sail unless the ship returns to Holland.

COMPELLED TO SUBSCRIBE TO LOANS.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand.— New Zealand has taken the first step toward compulsory lending. A bill which has passed the house of representatives provides that persons with taxable incomes of $3,500 and more must subscribe to the war loan three times the total amount which they pay in land tax and income tax. There are also provisions for penalizing persons who had not subscribed to the previous war loan.

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doctor so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

TERHUNE TAKES A HAND.

McCarthy ascertained the date of his companion's next free evening, intimating his intended presence in the vicinity of the drug store on the corner, and took leave of her as gracefully as his impatience would permit.

He wanted to be alone to think. The chance interview had borne fruit, for although the meeting on the stairs threw no light on the crime itself, it proved the time of the unfortunate woman's arrival, and explained how she had been enabled to pass through the lower hall unobserved.

She had therefore been in the building scarcely an hour when she met her death. But where? Surely not lurking in the halls, or hiding unseen in one of the apartments.

As Jimmie Ballard had remarked earlier in the morning somebody must have lied. Some one of those interviewed had known more than they would admit, and behind their various poses one had concealed at least a guilty cognizance of the truth, even had they not participated actively in the event.

But which one?

Was it the blonde lad on the third floor, or the seemingly frank and straightforward young inventor, or the bizarre couple who were his immediate neighbours?

Had the crucial scene which must have preceded the tragedy been enacted in that room where he had found the paper-knife on the floor? Was it conceivable that anyone could go on playing a piano while another was done to death almost within an arm's length?

McCarty could have named a dozen theories off-hand, any one of which might have been stretched to cover the facts in the case, but in each there were gaps which could not be filled, and bewildering inconsistencies met him at every turn. He had been hammering away at the problem from so many disconnected angles that he needed a fresh starting point.

It was nearly two o'clock before his insistent appetite forced itself at length upon his abstracted consciousness, and with it the realization that he had aimlessly crossed to Broadway, and wandered over a mile down that thoroughfare. He remembered vaguely that he had passed the white entrance of a small restaurant a block or two back, and retracing his steps he entered.

Save for two chauffeurs at a corner table the place was empty. McCarty chose a retired corner against the wall and ordered steak and coffee, then pending their arrival, he gave himself up again to his cogitations. Not the least puzzling of these was the attitude of the dead girl's relatives who had identified her, particularly her stepfather, and again her inexplicable denunciation hurled at the doors of his intelligence for recognition.

Why had she used so strange and crude a term as "the flying man," when "aviator" would more naturally have leaped to her lips had she meant to designate such a person? It was inconceivable that she could have referred to her stepfather, for in that event she would have named him. The whole case baffled him, and although he told himself sternly that it was no affair of his any more than that of a mere inadvertent witness he could not dismiss it from his mind. In some inexplicable way, the years of idle ease had been erased and he was back in harness, with the bit in his teeth. What matter that he had resigned. He was heart and soul involved once more in a mystery to which his every mental sense responded joyously.

With lunch steaming before him, McCarty forced the enigma resolutely aside, and when he had fortified himself a decision had come. The reporter's casual mention of the Throckmorten case had insensibly directed his mind back to the past and he remembered the help he had gained from going over the various problems which had confronted him in the course of his career with his life long crony, Dennis Riordan.

The later years had been more eventful to Denny, in his capacity of city fireman, than to McCarty, and their companionship had consisted chiefly of long reminiscent talks at the fire house, and rambling excursions when the former could obtain leave of absence. It would not be easy to broach this affair without calling down withering sarcasm upon his head, for Denny had strongly advised against his resignation when prosperity came, and still bemoaned it as a deplorable step, but he was so deeply involved in a problem that he felt an overwhelming need of enlisting the confidence of his friend, as of old.

The fire-house was in his own neighborhood, as has been said, and thither McCarty betook himself as fast as the crawling surface cars would take him. Denny at that period was on night duty, but the hours of his daily slumber were past, and McCarty found him with an early edition of an afternoon paper, sitting out on the sidewalk, his chair tilted back comfortably against the wall of the fire-house.

He looked up in eager interest as McCarty approached, but slyly veiled his expectancy and greeted him with labored sang froid.

"You're back early the day, Mac. Are the tenants in your little toy village coughing up their dollar a week without murmur, or are they kicking for man's-size chimneys and walls that wouldn't fall flat if you gave them a hard look?"

"The tenants," remarked McCarty, "be damned. What do you think of this mystery?"

Dennis glanced down at the paper between his knees.

"Mystery?" he repeated reflectively. "'Tis always a mystery when the Giants win four consecutive games——"

"A murrain on them!" In moments of stress McCarty's native idioms returned unbidden. "You know well what I mean! The woman who was thrown from that window last night."

"Oh—that!" Dennis brought his chair down with all four legs on the sidewalk. "'Tis queer how a man can't get away from his past. Here you are, a prosperous landed proprietor, and prominent private citizen, dragged into another police matter, when you were so successfully living down the days you were on the force. I have my sympathy——"

"Denny, it's not to be kidded that I came around this afternoon," interrupted McCarty bitterly. "If you have no mind to talk it over, I'll be getting on my way."

"Oh, well, of course, I only know what the papers have," Dennis evinced reconciliation. "Take Mike's chair—he's gone up for a nap. You're getting write-ups that would make a prima donna look sick; but I've not found much real information yet, beyond the bare fact of what happened, and who the girl was."

"I have," McCarty announced. "I have got it from all directions and I can't make head nor tail of it."

"It says here that you went through the house with Inspector Druet——"

"That's only the start. I've had a busy day."

"I knew it!" exulted Dennis. "I knew when you didn't come around this morning, hailing me out of my good sleep to slip me the news, that you were on the job again! This thing happening like that right under your nose drove you back into the harness, you couldn't help yourself! Sure, you're like an old fire-horse you stretch to keep the crowds back."

"Small boys," returned Dennis, promptly.

"And young men. It's youth that craves excitement, whether it be a fire or a fight. There's no normal, healthy fellow that wouldn't drop his work or his studies like they burned him, at the first hint of a fracas, whether he was inventing or no."

"I get you," Dennis nodded. "But this young man with a dago name, maybe he's different. Inventors don't know they're alive, sometimes, when they're on the trail of an idea. I mind one we had to tear away from his gimcracks with the roof near falling in on him, and him not even knowing there was a fire."

"Not this lad," returned McCarty, emphatically. "An inventor he may be, but he's no crank. You could tell with half an eye that he was a regular fellow. 'Tis not in nature to believe he would sit quiet with a book in his hand while a woman screamed her head off and a crowd collected below."

"He said he went and looked out, didn't he?"

"But not for some little time. The first yell should have brought him to the window, providing he was just a bystander, as you might say, and knew nothing about the crime. I'm thinking he lied too, for all his frankness. But why?"

"You can search me!" replied Dennis, after a pause. "I'm inclined to think I'd take the lad's word, from what you have told me."

"That's as may be. Let's get back to the girl, Ivy Collins, who skipped in the confusion. Granted she was late for her train and didn't stop to inquire what the row was about when she heard the screams and saw the crowd; so late that she even forgot her roses and the note from her sweetheart. Would she have been sitting up playing the piano until the last minute as if she had all the time in the world on her hands?"

"She might, if she'd misjudged the time or her clock was wrong."

"Denny, you are a fat lot of help with your views!" snorted McCarty in disgust.

"I'm only trying to look at both sides. What about the couple that lived in the place, the Foxes?"

"They were the queerest of all. It was easy to see from the start that she was the boss of the two but for once he stepped in and took the reins out of her hands. You could tell that from the surprised kind of way she gave in when he interrupted and shut her up, but she'd forget and butt in the next minute again. He was nervous, but he held himself under control and he seemed to be on guard every minute for fear in her excitement she would give herself away about something.

"Why were they so close mouthed about their friend? Not to keep her out of the notoriety, surely. I've never heard that actresses were shy about getting their names in the papers. Then there's one thing certain; they didn't know about the roses coming, but they did know who 'Jack' was all right, and they did their best to throw us off that track. Mareowar, Grafton Foxe let his wife answer every question that didn't worry him, but those he saw danger in he took up himself.

LIVER TROUBLE and HEARTBURN

CURED BY

MILLBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

When the liver is torpid and inflamed it cannot furnish bile to the bowels, causing them to become bound and costive. The symptoms are a feeling of fullness or weight in the right side, and shooting pains in the same region, pains between the shoulders, yellowness of the skin and eyes, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, bad taste in the morning, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Millburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all effete and waste matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal track, and are by far the safest and quickest remedy for all diseases or disorders of the liver.

Mrs. A. Cummings, Manchester, Ont., writes: "I have used Millburn's Laxa-Liver Pills some time, and can faithfully recommend them to anyone suffering from heartburn and liver trouble. I tried a great many other remedies but they only relieved me for a time. I believe Laxa-Liver Pills to be a valuable remedy for all sufferers from liver troubles."

Millburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Pains In The Small Of The Back

Headaches, Dryness of the Skin and Loss of Weight Warn You That the Kidneys Are Diseased

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 8.—"Pains in the small of the back" is the way hosts of people describe their sufferings, not knowing that the pains are in reality the kidneys. Pains in the back, weak back, lame back, backache—these are the first indications of kidney trouble. They are the warning which nature gives you. If you heed at once you can be cured. Neglect will soon put you at the mercy of the most painful and fatal of diseases.

Women as well as men have kidney disease, and may well feel anxious when the kidney pains make themselves felt in the small of the back.

Because Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills give you prompt relief from backache, it is well worth your while to take them. But they do more than this. They regulate and invigorate the action of the kidneys and ensure a return to health of these important organs.

Mr James Malley, 488 Crawford Street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I had been troubled with lame back for nine or ten years, and although I had tried other remedies, they were of no benefit to me whatever. Through reading the advertisements in your booklets for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I commenced taking these, and found that they were the best I ever used. I took about a dozen boxes in all, and am now completely cured. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

("This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. James Malley, 488 Crawford Street, and believe his statement with regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct.—John Dunn, J.P.")

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Sinn Feiners and Americans

MAIL advices from Ireland give some particulars of the ill-treatment American sailors received from the Sinn Fein organization, and prove that the Irish-Germans on the Old Sod tried to play a game not greatly different from that of the Irish-Americans on this side of the Atlantic. To understand the situation that led to the mobbing of American sailors in Dublin and Cork we must remember that for a generation the anti-English movement in Ireland has been financed largely by Irish-Americans. It was to this continent that Parnell and Redmond looked in their habitual scanning of the horizon for funds, and generously their agitation in favor of Home Rule was supported. But when the United States entered the war it was generally recognized that the enemies of Britain were the enemies of the United States; and that if the Sinn Feiners struck at England they struck equally at Uncle Sam. In those early days all sympathy for the Sinn Feiners died. This the Sinn Feiners did not understand, probably being misled by advices from Cohalan and others. The result was that when the American squadron under Admiral Sims reached the British Isles and took up its station off the Irish coast, the Sinn Fein leaders had come to the conclusion that the American sailors were still open-minded on the subject of Irish independence. The policy at first decided upon was to make heroes of the Americans, and so when the sailors came ashore at various Irish ports where the Sinn Fein influence predominated they were received with open arms. All kinds of hospitality were thrust upon them, and they were welcomed in Cork as though it had been Belfast. The American soldiers were naturally gratified at the attention showed them, but they began to cool off when it became apparent, as it did as the weeks went by, that they had to appear in the role of friends of Ireland and enemies to England.

The policy of the Sinn Feiners, referred to by Patrick O'Flaherty in The New York Tribune as "idiotic," was genially laughed at by the American sailors. Then the Sinn Feiners adopted an equally idiotic policy. They determined to drive the American sailors out of Ireland. They found various local pretexts, the most notable being in the case of an Irish girl who was found stupefied with drugged candy one morning on a well-known promenade. It was rumored that American sailors on shore leave had been responsible for her deplorable condition, and the rumor was skilfully spread. The people were asked to believe that the American sailors were a gang of desperadoes, and that Irish girls were their especial victims. They were represented in no more flattering colors than the Germans in Belgium, and popular feeling which had been fanned in their favor was abruptly fanned in the opposite direction. The present policy of the British Government in Ireland, which equally with that of the Sinn Fein deserves Mr. O'Flaherty's adjective, made it possible for the Sinn Feiners to vent their displeasure upon the American sailors.

They were attacked in the streets. An eye-witness, who fails to mention whether the demonstration occurred in Cork or Dublin—one guesses Cork—saw a demonstration begin at the railroad station, where a gang of gossoons hissed American bluejackets who had just landed. Some fifty of the sailors, accompanied by Irish girls, left the station to enjoy themselves, and were followed by a mob which repeated the long-distance hooting. Not far away the detachment came upon two or three American sailors backed into a corner and being attacked. The main body drove through the crowd and scattered the assailants of their mates. Then they all continued up town together. Later on they dispersed and went in smaller groups. The Sinn Feiners, at this, seemed to gather force, and, outnumbering the Americans by ten to one, fell upon them with brickbats and other weapons.

In several instances the Americans were rescued by the constabulary. In other cases American sailors were chased down the streets by the Sinn Feiners. For six weeks rioting of this sort continued, the mob waiting at the theatres for the exit of men wearing American uniforms. A couple of months ago an American sailor, when defending himself, knocked down and killed a civilian, presumably a Sinn Feiner. The coroner's inquest gave a verdict of accidental manslaughter, but handed over the accused in charge of his own naval authorities to await a decision from Washington as to what should be done. This led to the canceling of the leave of all American, and British sailors in this part of Ireland. The leave remains cancelled at this date. The net result of the Sinn Fein campaign against the American sailors along the Irish coast is that they have been ostracized, and have been listed with the "bloody red-coats." Another result is that the American sailors have slightly more use for a Prussian or a pacifist than for a Sinn Feiner, and that the propaganda in the United States for an independent Ireland has been the well-deserved victim of a killing frost.

NERVES ARE EXHAUSTED.

When you have frequent headaches, find yourself easily irritated and annoyed, feel discouraged and down-hearted, cannot rest and sleep well, and find appetite fickle and digestion bad, you may know that the nerves are in bad condition. Don't wait for these symptoms to become chronic but start in early with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and head off disaster.

Sailor Remains at Sea After Being Torpedoed In Five Different Boats

A LETTER from Madrid says: A most extraordinary story of adventuer with German submarines, and of successive and marvelous escapes, is told by the survivors of the Brazilian steamship Macau, which was sunk off Finisterre, and the crew of which have been landed at Ferrol. Incidentally it furnishes some new, interesting, and important facts, bearing upon the proceedings of the submarine U-293, which recently escaped from Cadiz.

Among those saved from the Macau, and landed at Ferrol, is the first officer, Antonio Javier Mercante, who makes the following statement: "On the 18th of September the Macau weighed anchor at Rio Janiero with a cargo of meat consigned to France. On October 18, when 250 miles north of Finisterre, we made out signals to us from some shipwrecked persons, whom we took on board. They were the captain and a sailor of the North American steamer St. Helen, of 3,500 tons, which had been torpedoed in that vicinity at 3.30 on the afternoon of the 14th. They were the only survivors of the crew of 26 of the St. Helen. Both of them, on their ship being sunk, were able to grasp a piece of timber, and so they remained for four days.

"We continued on our course, and at five o'clock on the same afternoon there was an explosion in the afterhold of the Macau. The captain understood immediately that it was a torpedo, and ordered the boats to be lowered. We had scarcely made the first preparations when a submarine appeared, and its commander ordered our captain, Saturnino Hurtado de Mendoza, and a steward, to go on board his craft. We others, except a Brazilian stoker, who was doubtless buried beneath the coal, made our way toward land in two boats. At daybreak, still in our boat, we perceived the plight we were in and our lack of provision. There were 21 of us on board, among them the second and third officers. For the space of four days we kept ourselves alive on ship's biscuit only; fortunately we had a supply of water also. At 2.30 in the morning of the following Monday we saw the lighthouse of Corunna, and at 10.30 in the morning we came up with a couple of fishing boats which towed us into the port."

The survivors of the St. Helen relate that on October 12 they left Newport with a cargo of coal for Argella, and that the torpedo that struck the ship blew up the deck and the bridge. The captain and sailor were hurled into the sea, and on coming to the surface saw their ship keel upwards. Nobody else on board was saved. The sailor, a Portuguese has had an extraordinary record with submarines, for this is the fifth time that the boat he was on has been torpedoed and sunk. His first experience of the kind was on January 27, when his ship, the Norwegian Dorostad, 1,500 tons, was sunk when 72 miles off Finisterre. The second was less than a month later on February 25, when he was one of the crew of the Norwegian Elstorf, 3,200 tons, which was torpedoed, and a few days later he was on board a Danish steamer when it was sunk by the submarine U-293. Then the St. Helen was sunk, and next the Macau, which had rescued him and his captain. This man, Jose Antonio Desselo, seems little disconcerted by these experiences, and expresses his willingness to go to sea again in the first ship that will engage him.

Apart from the personal side of his story, however, he makes a statement which is of some international and diplomatic importance. When the U-293 sank the Danish steamer on which he was serving, the commander took him prisoner, and he remained on board five months. This was the same submarine that recently escaped from Cadiz, and which has placed Spain in a position of some difficulty. When it entered Cadiz the commander stated that he had simply run short of lubricating oil, and was not suffering from any injuries. Desselo, however, states that while he was on board the craft she sunk many ships, one being the Patricio, a Spanish vessel, the torpedoing of which caused such excitement in Spain last May and created a considerable public demand for the breaking of relations with Germany. When at last the U-293 was making her way between Ceuta and Gibraltar she fell in with an English destroyer, one of whose projectiles pierced the shell of the submarine after a fight that lasted two hours.

The submarine then made good its escape, and effected some temporary repairs, but she was obliged in the end to put in to Cadiz, where it was interned, and subsequently escaped. When near to the port, Desselo jumped into the water, swam ashore, and then went straight to the Portuguese Consul.

CONVALESCENT MEN CONTRIBUTE.

The ready sympathy of the soldier who has seen hard luck himself is shown in the generous action of the convalescent soldiers of Edmonton, Frank, Ponoka and Calgary who donated $183.50 to the Halifax Relief Fund.

The staff and patients of the Moose Jaw military convalescent hospital also subscribed $76.50 to the relief fund.

The former amount represented the allowance of 25 cents given the men by the Government for Christmas dinner. This the men pooled and presented to the chairman of the Halifax Relief Committee in Calgary, who hesitated at first to accept it, but seeing the eagerness of the men acquiesced. It was food for the thought of pessimists, he declared.

The men being patients of the Military Hospitals Commission suffered no loss at Christmas since provision made for their festivities both by the commission and patriotic societies was very generous.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief — no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, swollen mucous membrane and relief snuffing, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Elys Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

SNOWSTORMS HIT HOLLAND.

Wire Communications Cut Off—The Nieuw Amsterdam Held Up.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 21.—Violent snowstorms which recently were prevalent in Northern Germany have now reached Holland. Telegraphic and telephonic communication with adjacent countries is disrupted considerably and railway and street car traffic is disorganized seriously.

Three hospital ships bound for England with British wounded are held up at Rotterdam, while the Holland-America Line steamer Nieuw Amsterdam is still unable to sail.

Had Bronchitis FOR THREE YEARS COULD GET NO RELIEF

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather. It begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty in breathing, and a wheezing sound comes from the lungs. There is also a raising of phlegm from the lungs, especially in the morning. This is at first white, but later becomes of a greenish or yellowish color, and is occasionally streaked with blood.

On the first sign of bronchitis you should check it immediately by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and thereby prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning into some more serious lung trouble.

Mr. Theodore P. Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with bronchitis for three years, and could get no relief. I was always worse when I got wet. I tried lots of different medicines, but none did me any good until a friend told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got three bottles and before I had them half used I was better.

"My mother is now using it for asthma. It is a great medicine and we never want to be without it.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrappor; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Two Splendid Things

One is plenty of open-air exercise.

If you can't get all of that you should, it's all the more important that you should have the other tried-and-true remedy for a torpid liver and bowels that don't act freely and naturally.

Take one pill every night; more only when you're sure it's necessary.

WHAT THE NEW YEAR PROMISES US

Simple Afternoon Gowns of Great Charm—For the Lady Who Knits

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. — The New Year holds the promise of so many things. Possibilities lurk behind every-day things that seem of themselves so uninteresting. Take for example the simple matter of underclothes. The average woman buys, this month, material enough to last her for the coming year. All the stores have "White Sales," and batiste and nainsook can be purchased for almost nothing. This year we have, aside from our regular resolutions, those we have made to help win the war. We are going to do our bit, and the time to start is now.

Does the simplicity we have heard preached on the subject of frocks and coats extend to the lingerie? By all means, yes. We must buy only what we really need, and use that little with fore-thought.

The same spirit that made for victory in 1776 and the dark days that followed, as abroad to-day. Then our grandmothers' mothers made their own clothes, as we are doing to-day, but they went even farther and made the material itself. This is impossible for us. It would be farcical for us to turn our backs on the perfect machinery of to-day and take up the hand looms and spinning wheels of our grandmothers. But we can cut our material according to our pattern, and our pattern must be simple and economical. When planning the Spring wardrobe (and now is a good time to do it, for the shops are full of tempting materials and there is more time than later on when the clothes are really needed), choose the material that will wear the longest. In other words, "Be sure you're right, then go ahead."

Bewitchingly Simple and Youthful.

Fairy-Tale Frocks.

For those delightfully informal affairs that are always so much fun, one needs a frock simple and becoming. The illustration shows a design that will appeal to the most fastidious person. Made of silk voile or muli, it has a youthful round neck, with an attractive collar-band (if one may call so bewitching a thing by so prosaic a name!) of flesh-colored satin. The sleevebands and the girdle are of the same material, as are the three perky little ruffles across the back. The slight fullness in the waist is charmingly arranged, and, as you can see, the skirt is not overly full. There is no trimming, the edges being picoted, that ever-present solution to the problem of "finishings." This is the type of dress that is appropriate for afternoon or informal evening wear.

From Industrial Agent To Flight Commander

ACTING FLIGHT COMMANDER C. W. CURTIS.

Interesting descriptions of incidents in the lives of flying men in England are given in letters to friends written by Acting Flight Commander Graham Waters Curtis, formerly Industrial Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Montreal, who is now a flying instructor in England. The school in which he teaches is a vast expanse of country close to a beautiful seaside resort. He writes: "The view from the air is superb, and we often fly out over the sea, and dive down near the British warships, and wave to the sailors. When diving we only travel at the rate of about 175 miles an hour! I am kept very busy instructing, and am turning out a lot of expert pilots. The school I am connected with is one in which flyers finish their course of training. A lot of chaps from Borden come to us to get final lessons, and then they are sent to France. We do all kinds of fancy performances—loop the loop, roll, make spinning nose dives, side slips, and vertical turns."

He describes how "little excitements" happen when one aeronaut gets into the "wash, or slip-stream of air" made by a preceding navigater. The letters indicate that Acting Flight Commander Curtis is a lucky master of the high school in which he soars. He says: "We have a lot of smashes, but very few deaths, considering everything. None of my pupils has been killed yet."

Acting Flight Commander Curtis has lately been recommended by his commanding officer for a first lieutenancy, and expects to be sent to France at any time. He joined the Royal Flying Corps on November 15th, 1916.

Food will win the war. Don't waste it.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Editor,— Will you allow me just a small space in your valuable columns in regards to exemption of farmers and farmer's sons, which are of such great importance at present for the production of foodstuffs for the Empire. We see in the press to-day of the whole province, (even the Review has taken it up) that our eastern countries are in distress owing to the want of food. It is surprising how the Review can find space in its columns for such good advice now, and fall in line with Mr. Hall's theories and statements in his election campaign. However it is awfully kind of the Review to give a helping hand to such a necessity. I would have thought that it might have taken a rest or holiday after spreading its wings so widely in assisting Mr. Borden back to power, who has led the most extravagant, profiteering, rottenest administration in the history of Canada.

Now, Mr. Editor, don't you think it is time for Mr. Borden and the Review who fought shoulder to shoulder to gain power, to give a helping hand to the Empire regarding the exemption of farmers and farmer's sons, who are needed so badly to till the soils of our Dominion to provide for our allies and others, who have to be maintained, and fulfill some of the slick-tongued promises that they made stumping our province before the election.

So far I have seen nothing that they have done and I am watching very closely the columns of the Review for such. But it doesn't matter now; they have gained power, which was all Mr. Borden wanted so that he and his followers can let the big interests of the country and probably another Colonel Allison or two, dive their hands, not one hand this time, but two, into the national treasury. Power for them. The interests of our country must not be considered in such times as these, but let it crumble out from under our feet. Then our people have nothing to look to, but see the smiles of the millionaires and the big interests who will look down on us and say, "we have got you just where we want you."

By the by, did anyone notice the hustle that Capt. Hampten got on, quite an election campaigner, just about as good as Hon. Bob. Where is Bob now? He soon ought to be showing up again for a seat some place. But, however, just as soon as Capt. Hampten saw how things were locally among the farmers in respect of farmer's sons appearing before the local tribunals, some of them being allowed exemption, Mr. Burnham made a desperate charge and got our worthy Warden, Mr. Brown, and put him into a nice comfortable chair, with a nice lady key-tripper at his side to take down information from farmers and farmer's sons in regard to having them allowed exemption. But it was just for the purpose of pulling the wool over their eyes once more, and it went all right too. Poor Max, a good fellow, but lost his job too soon. He hardly got time to warm his chair. I can see him sitting there with the fair young lady at his elbow, with her fingers tripping over the keys so nicely. But behold, just as soon as the election was over, Max found a letter on his desk stating that his services were no longer needed, that the election was over and that they could not fool the farmers any longer. I feel sorry for him, as he is a personal friend of mine, and would have liked to have seen him hold the job down longer. I sat in the Council with him and found Max right on the square, as I remember once while acting as Warden. He did not vote to suit one of his party and he had to take a calling down for it, but Max just turned on him and said to him that politics did not cut any ice with him in municipal affairs.

I think Mr. Burnham must have found that out some way or other and wanted to hold him for the benefit of Mr. Sexsmith. But Mr. Burnham might have saved himself the trouble, as Max can look after himself, and as for Mr. Sexsmith's interests, they were looked after all right, as there was one man who was on the road for four weeks canvassing for Mr. Sexsmith. According to his canvasser's own estimate, he went from house to house, feeling his way along, finding out who of their own party were going to turn and vote against Mr. Borden, which was many, but the canvasser soon fixed things up and told them all that they had to do was vote right and hand in their names and Mr. Sexsmith would fix it in three days that their sons would be all exempted. In fact, Mr. Sexsmith made the statement on the public platform when stumping in his riding, that all farmer's sons would be exempted.

But for my part I can see no steps taken yet by Mr. Sexsmith or anyone else, to that effect. I see by the Review that the government has under consideration the abolition of agricultural representatives on exemption tribunals. These representatives were provided for by order-in-council during the first week in December in order to protect the interests of agriculture. It is stated that the system has been found unwieldy. I would like if some one can show me where there has been one system in connection with this great struggle before us, especially along the lines of militia, that has been on the square and fairness to the people and this fair Dominion of ours. Take for instance the recruiting in the Province of Quebec, which is 70 p.c. or over in arrears as far as voluntary enlistment has gone. Do the people of the rest of this province call that a square deal. I should think not. But, Mr. Editor, I think that the local paper that made such a great howl on this subject before the election that Mr. Borden would make Quebec put up their equal share of recruits if put in power, so I think that such paper will look after Mr. Borden and make him do it; if such is the case why the rest of the provinces of the Dominion won't have much to do in putting up the remaining seventy-five or eighty thousand men which will make up the total of five hundred thousand which Mr. Borden took in his own head and promised the Empire. But if things are put on a square basis, as we are promised they will, why the farmers may not lose all the help that is left them, which is far from being sufficient to carry on the work of production to what it should be and must be, but according to the way that the local tribunals are roping them in there will be little left for Quebec to do only laugh at the rest of the Dominion, which won't make any difference to Mr. Borden as long as his slick-tongued promises has put him on the throne again.

SOAP HAS JOINED THE H. C. OF L. CLUB.

"I really don't know what I am going to do if soap goes up much higher in price," wailed the little woman, whom the Basket Lady met at the market to-day. "Goodness knows, it takes such a lot to do the washing and keep the children clean. The time when you could get a cake of good soap, laundry or toilet, for 5c., has long gone by," she added. "Now even a bar of the commonest laundry soap sells at 8 and 10c."

The Basket Lady quite agreed with her, for she too, had noticed how the soap bills were mounting. The price of castile soap has increased 80 per cent. This soap is manufactured from oils imported from South Africa, and, owing to the number of merchandise ships which have been torpedoed and the general congestion of transportation, a shortage is felt all over the world. Laundry soap has increased forty per cent., while fancy toilet soaps have risen thirty per cent.

The reasons advanced are that the Government has commandeered glycerene for the manufacture of munitions and has limited the supply for other purposes. The use of tallow in the production of oleomargarine has caused the recent rise in prices.

The production of tallow, vegetable grease, and oils in Canada is much less than the demand and these ingredients have been imported from the United Sates. Since her entrance into the war, however, the United States Government has prohibited the export of these much needed oils and the Canadian market is now left unsupplied.

Caustic potash, an important ingredient of shaving soap, which previous to the war the manufacturers bought at the rate of six cents per lb., now sells at ninety cents and $1.00. The value of the soap has doubled and the barbers in particular have felt the increase.— Toronto Telegram.

ACCUSES FARMERS OF SHOWING GREED.

KINGSTON, Jan. 18. — That the farmers of Frontenac and district hereabouts display a policy of greed by holding their potatoes for exorbitant prices is the conclusion reached of potatoes have been lost by being exemption appeals here. Carloads of potatoes have been lost by being frozen because the farmers would not part with them unless they secured unreasonable prices. The judge does not think that many farmers around here are helping their country as they should in this crisis. He has refused exemption to some farmers' sons who claimed it as cheese-makers but Judge Lavell found that the so-called "factories" merely turned out a few cheese a day and that neighbouring factories could fill the bill.

FIVE HUNDRED WOMEN STORM FUEL BUREAU

BUT BRANTFORD HAS NO COAL TO GIVE THEM AT PRESENT.

Brantford, Jan. 18.—Five hundred women stormed the civic fuel distributing office this morning but nothing could be done for them. There are four cars of coal on the railways here destined for other places than Brantford, they being stalled with broken axles, and if Mayor MacBride has the power this will be requisitioned. The civic fuel advisory committee has recommended the curtailment of the evening hours of theatres and restaurants, as being luxuries, such action being necessary also to appease public sentiment. The committee has ordered all dealers to furnish the names of customers who since April last have secured more than six tons of coal, with a view to more even distribution.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

THE BOLSHEVIKI MAY MAKE ANOTHER APPEAL TO ALLIES

Trotsky Will Urge Them to Join in General Peace Negotiations--All-Russian Convention is Marking Time To-day---Attempted Enemy Raids East of Ypres Were Repulsed, Field Marshal Haig Announces.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 22.—The All-Russian convention of Workmen and Soldiers' Soviets, which is presumably to form the future government of Russia, now that the constituent assembly is dissolved, was delayed in its meeting to-day. All the delegates have not arrived, and until the complete membership is here the situation will mark time. Foreign Minister Trotsky and other members of the Russian peace delegation were expected back this week from Brest-Litovsk. It was asserted to-day that Trotsky would address another appeal to the allies, outlining the progress made at Brest-Litovsk, and urging them again to join in the general peace negotiations.

The murder of Former Ministers Kokoshkia and Shingaroff was officially announced to-day as the work of Bolsheviki fanatics who were stirred to a frenzy by the appeals made by a number of members of the Baltic fleet just arrived that they take the fate of those opposing them into their own hands.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, January 21. —General Boroevic, hitherto commanding the Teutons along the Piave, has been appointed to command in the entire front replacing Archduke Eugene. Boroevic's tactics have been uniformly defensive, and the appointment is construed as confirming the reports that the enemy proposes a defensive campaign on the Italian front for the present.

LONDON, January 22. Under-Secretary MacNamara, replying in the Commons last night to the question by Sir Richard Cooper as to why German submarines can operate regularly in the Mersey, while British submarines cannot operate near enemy ports on the North Sea, did not admit the truth of this contention and pointed out the situation is affected by the necessity of keeping the British waters clear of mines for mercantile traffic, while Germany having no seaborne commerce can lay mines indiscriminately.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS (Sunday), January 22.—A German raid west of Navarin Farm in the Champagne was without result, says to-day's official statement. In the region of Auberive French patrols brought back prisoners. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

WASHINGTON, January 22.—Germany's iron domination plus political reorganization within Austria will stem for a time the growing politic and economic unrest there, Government authorities believed to-day. They warned that while the internal problem of Germany and Austria are reflected by the best available official resorts is grave, there is yet no reason to feel that collapse is at hand. For that reason they counselled against the building of false hopes within this country that sheer physical and economic exhaustion will halt the Teutons just now.

"April and May will be the worst months the Central Empires have faced," said a Government official. "And if the people of the Central Empires stand for what they will have to stand for then, the war ought to go on to a knockout. World pictures of the Central Empires reaching this Government through official channels, etch a scene of misery and want. From a Dutchman just back from Germany the Government has this statement: The Germany which I saw was a perfect picture of misery which could only arouse feelings of compassion.

"It will not be possible for Germany to hold out six months longer without the majority of the civil population being completely broken down, morally as well as physically."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 22. — Attempted enemy raids last night east of Ypres were repulsed, the War Office reports. Otherwise the night was quiet on the whole front.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, January 22.—Peace negotiations at Brest-Litovsk have been postponed for a few days. Trotzky is again in Petrograd, and according to evening newspapers, is preparing another note to the Entente Allies.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 22.—The Daily News says there is reason for stating that President Wilson quite recently made urgent presentations to the British Cabinet on the desirability of an Irish settlement. The Dublin correspondent of the Times reiterates a partially hopeful view of the convention whose reports or report, he says, will at least advance the solution of the problem by stages of unprecedented length and importance. The end, he adds, cannot long be delayed.

TOKIO, January 22.—The formal protest of the Municipal Council of Vladivostok through the Japanese Consul, against the entrance of Japanese warships in that harbour without consent, was received here to-day. The protest asserts such action impairs Russia's sovereignty as well as the friendship between Russia and Japan.

Yokohama is now full of travellers of all nations, including many Russian emigrants, awaiting passage to America. George A. Jones, Vice-President of the Standard Commercial Tobacco, arrived in Yokohama to-day en route to the United States. He said when he left Petrograd on December 18 German-owned shops were opened in the city and the uniform of German officers was a common sight on the streets.

MAJOR DAVIDSON ADDRESSED VETERANS

A feature of the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, which was held last evening in the recreation rooms of the Armouries with President Harvey Staunton in the chair, was an address by Major J. C. Davidson, former Chaplain of the 93rd Battalion, who became a member of the Peterborough Branch, last night, and whose remarks were listened to with great interest by the members, many of whom had been associated with Major Davidson either in the 57th Regiment or in the 93rd Battalion.

In addition to Major Davidson several other new members were passed by last night's meeting. The G. W. V. A. is now well over the 200 mark.

Little but routine business was transacted at last night's meeting. The Patriotic Fund and other matters were discussed by the members.

NEW RUSSIA WANTS RECOGNITION FROM PEOPLE OF WORLD

Bolsheviki Look Forward to a World Proletariat Which Will Combine to Stop Wars and Slaughter and Eradicate Causes For Future Conflict

STATEMENT OF AIMS

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 22.—New Russia wants recognition from the people of the world more than the government of the world. She looks forward hopefully to a world proletariat which will combine to stop wars, slaughter, and eradicate all causes of future war.

The Bolshaviki Ministry of Foreign Affairs thus outlined Russia's viewpoint in a special statement for the United Press to-day, signed by Under Foreign Minister Salkind, in the absence from Petrograd of Foreign Minister Trotsky.

The Russian people hitherto in all ages have been ruled from above," he declared. "Now they rule themselves. They will stand and fight all foes wherever found, with full pride in consequence and of having contributed an immortal page to the history of mankind.

"The Government of Soviet of People's Commissiaries, which is a government of workers, the peasants and the soldiers, is not concerned with obtaining official recognition from foreign powers," the Foreign Officer's statement to the United Press asserted.

The Republic of United Soviets appeals primarily, not to governments, but to the people of the world, whom it seeks to unite with the purpose of ending world slaughter, and eradicating causes of war, namely, Imperialism and ambition which in one form or another animate all governments as at present constituted. Any recognition which foreign governments bestow on the present Republic will be welcome, principally as testimony of the power, the frankness, the undisguised purposes of the Russian revolution. We are not concerned in old diplomatic usages.

Ours is a first time in history government—a government of the exploited and the oppressed. We can hope to succeed not in proportion as we are recognized by the foreign offices of other countries, but in proportion in which we receive the active support of proletariat of the democracies of the world.

"If any government willingly recognizes the historical importance and grandeur of a republic being born in the midst of ruins of an external and a civil war, the people of Russia will be glad to receive that recognition."

SAYS SHEEP WILL SAVE THE WORLD

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—The embargo on the exportation of wool from Australia has caused Japan to look to the United States for its supply, Dr Issa Tanimura, Japanese Commissioner of Livestock declared to-day in addressing the fifty-fourth annual convention of the National Wool Growers' Association.

Dr. Tanimura said while it was true to say that "food will win the war," it was more so to say that "sheep will save the world."

He declared that in 1919 Japan would need 50,000,000 pounds of wool.

L. C. Harmon, president of the Upper Peninsula Department, Bureau, of Michigan, offered the delegates land for the rearing of sheep. It was stated that settlers were crowding sheep off the ranges in the west.

THOUSANDS DESERTING

More Than 50 Per Cent. of Falkenhayn's Re-organized Turkish Army Disappears and German Commander Has Returned to Constantinople

DISEASE RAMPANT

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—One hundred and sixty thousand Turkish troops—more than fifty per cent. of Gen. Falkenhayn's re-organized Turkish army—deserted during the recent journey from Constantinople to Palestine, official despatches to-day state.

Gen. Falkenhayn, appointed by the Kaiser to re-organize the crumbling Moslems, after Gen. Allenby's victorious Holy Land campaign, has returned to Constantinople, and his entire plan for the rehabilitation of the Sultan's forces has been abandoned, the reports declare. "More than fifty per cent. of the strength of twenty-four Turkish divisions was lost by desertions during the journey from Constantinople to Palestine," Gen. Allenby's report declares, adding that "forty-one companies of storm troops which left Alexander district, each 200 strong, reached the front with only four officers and one hundred men per company. Even Turkish officers refused to "fall in" with Falkenhayn's programme, reports declare, and openly voiced their dissatisfaction, knowing well the unreliability of the disheartened, war-weary native troops. In less than three days, Falkenhayn abandoned the Palestine sector and returned in August to Constantinople. The internal situation in Turkey is acute, Typhus, which a few days ago was claiming 140 victims per day in Constantinople, is on the increase. At this time of the year its virulence is most pronounced. At Smyrna, a city of 200,000, five hundred died from this disease in a single year, while thirty per cent. of the Turkish army has died or become incapacitated for service through the ravages of this dread disease.

ANOTHER DRAFT FOR E COMPANY

The strength of E Company of the 1st Depot Battalion, E. O. R., was increased this afternoon by the arrival of a draft of seventeen men from Kingston on the 4 o'clock C.P.R. train. E Company now numbers 189 officers and men.

A number of special service men to look after the different departments at the Armouries is expected shortly. They are being sent here so that the A category men may not miss any of their training, which is making rapid progress.

E Company had their first route march this afternoon.

SIXTY THOUSAND DOLLARS WILL BE RAISED BY DIRECT TAXATION

This Represents the Amount Required by Patriotic Fund—Resolution To his Effect Endorsed by Committee of the Whole.

COUNCIL MEETING

After an all-night deliberation, commencing with a special meeting of the City Council, and concluding with a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council, it was finally decided to raise this year's patriotic fund by direct taxation. This will mean an increase in the tax rate of about five mills on the dollar, or at the rate of about five dollars for every thousand dollars worth of assessable property.

The speakers last night for the Patriotic Fund deputation were Messrs. J. A. Aylmer, F. D. Kerr, J. Wearing, B. F. Ackerman, W. H. Buller, and R. Harstone.

The speakers made no attempt to disguise their opinion of the way in which the money should be raised. They were a unit in support of direct taxation for one year. One or two of the speakers also expressed the opinion that next year the obligation would be assumed by the Government, which by those present was conceded to be the proper and equitable way.

An Objection.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, representing the Trades and Labour Council, made a plea for a debenture issue, and was followed by Mr. A. Murray, of the Trades and Labour Council, who advocated direct taxation which would mean that the whole amount will be paid in one year instead of being distributed over a number of years.

Mr. Aylmer, in reply to Mr. Hartley, contended that direct taxation would not prove a hardship to the working man, as the latter was one of the best contributors to the fund. "We never had any trouble collecting money from the working man, and the great majority of them voluntarily gave one dollar a month," said Mr. Aylmer.

A working man who resides in a fifteen hundred dollar house under direct taxation will be required to pay seven dollars and fifty cents a year or two dollars and a half less than he would otherwise give by voluntary subscription. In the case of the landlord, it was suggested that each tenant be assessed for their proportion of the increased rate instead of raising the rent two dollars a month, which has been threatened in some cases.

Amendment Defeated.

Following the discussion, the Council went into committee of the whole and rehearsed the entire discussion, after which it was moved by Ald. Taylor, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the entire sixty thousand dollars be raised in one year.

Ald. A. McIntyre and Ald. Langford moved an amendment that debentures be issued for the amount covering a period of ten years. The amendment was defeated and the original motion carried.

Ald. Worth moved to have the question decided at the Council meeting instead of going into committee," observed the West Ward alderman.

The members were obdurate and insisted on further discussion.

It is real war-saving to buy suits and overcoats now—for it looks like terribly high prices for any kind of a good suit this year.

Even Peace would not bring a decline in prices for men's clothes for a year—for forty million men must then return to civilian dress.

The label in the pocket of these semi-ready suits tells the true value six months ago—but values to-day are much higher.

AUSTRIA'S CRY FOR PEACE MAY BE SHAM

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 22.—Austria-Hungary's cry for peace, accompanied apparently by a condition of incipient revolt, is featured by the morning newspapers as a fact that is hurrying the Dual Monarchy to a crisis. While most newspapers here attach the greatest importance to the upheaval, and some infer that the Austrian Government is encouraging the movement in a genuine endeavour to promote peace, the fact that the censorship has permitted reports to be telegraphed from Vienna with unwonted freedom, suggests to other commentators that there may be a deliberate purpose behind the license allowed in Vienna. The Daily Mail, for instance, suggests it may be a case of shamming death to impress the labour parties of the Entente countries with the idea that Austria is ready to accept a Bolsheviki peace.

RESIGNATION OF SIR EDWARD CARSON IS A SURPRISE

If He Resigned to Resume Leadership of Belligerent Policy Prospects of Irish Settlement Are Darkened

NEWSPAPER OPINIONS

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 22.— The political world was surprised last night by the resignation of Sir Edward Carson. Newspapers indicated recently that the Irish convention was likely to fail of agreement and that was chiefly because of Ulster's unyielding attitude although there were minor points of difference on financial plans.

Influential newspapers like the Times, which hitherto have supported Ulster, have been declaring that national interests greatly outweigh those of any Irish faction and that the government should, if necessary, use all its influence to compel any stiff-necked faction to yield its interests to the common good.

If Sir Edward should follow that course, prospects of an Irish settlement would brighten sharply. There is no indication in his letter that this is his disposition. If he resigned to resume the leadership of a belligerent and hold-fast policy, the prospects of an Irish settlement by the convention are darkened greatly. The same newspapers which are urging stand patters to yield, have declared that the government must have a plan for solving the Irish problem with a strong hand if the convention fails entirely, and thus eradicate the dissatisfaction in the colonies and the United States of this open sore.

Sir Horace Plunkett, chairman of the convention, to whom all look as reconciler in Irish affairs, spent the week end in London consulting members of the government.

EXPRESS WRECKED

MIDDLESBURY, Vermont, Jan. 22.— The night express of the Rutland railroad, bound from Montreal for Boston, was wrecked two miles north of here to-day by an explosion in a locomotive. Fireman McCauley was killed and several passengers were injured, but not seriously.

A New Addition

The glad hand of fellowship was extended to Ald. Malcolm McIntyre at the opening of the Council meeting held last evening. Ald. McIntyre in reply pledged his support in connection with the proper administration of the municipal affairs. Later in the evening Ald. McIntyre was appointed to the Board of Works, Property, Railway and Local committees of the Council. Ald. Taylor was transferred to the Fire, Water and Light committee and the Council met the wishes of Ald. Edgar whom they dropped his name from the committee, which has for its special consideration the administration of the fire department.

THE CITY WILL TURN OVER THE BAND INSTRUMENTS

Veterans Will Have to Maintain a Band in Order to Hold the 93rd Band Instruments

THE CLUB ROOMS

The instruments of the 93rd Band to the Veterans so long as the organization maintains an organized band. Mr. G. N. Gordon, City Solicitor, was asked to draft an agreement to protect the interests of the city.

Mr. Gordon advised the Committee that the city had no authority to execute a lease of the new club rooms of the Great War Veterans' Association for the veterans. This means that the Veterans will have to appeal to the city for a direct grant to cover the rental cost of the new quarters.

What Dollar Day Means This Year

Never Since the Inception of This Great Shopping Event Did It Mean Such Values

Dollar Day—which is to be held on Thursday next, the 24th—gives promise of being one of the biggest shopping events of the kind ever held in this city.

There are obvious reasons for this. Dollar Day this year is being held when seasonable goods are being sold. The universally high cost of everything makes it necessary for the public to study their purchasing powers as never before.

From every indication, plenty of staple goods sold now will not be able to be replaced next year by the merchant at the figures these merchants will sell the goods for this year. There is not a doubt at all but that those who take advantage of the offerings of the Dollar Day merchants will make a great saving on what they buy.

Drop down town to-morrow night and see the window displays. They will assure you of the genuineness of the savings to be made.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY, JAN. 22, 1918

LATE; BUT NOT TOO LATE.

A great deal of interest was taken on Friday night, in the plans and description of the "Garden City of Letchworth, England," made and shown by Mr. Adams, town planner. In his work on "Rural Planning and Development," published by the Commission of Conservation, he states that Letchworth had a population of 450 in 1903 and in 1917 a population of 18,000. The experiment of the "Garden City," bringing the country and city in close and mutually profitable proximity, has been great. The one thing that struck Mr. Adams' hearers was that a success that largely depended upon right beginnings in planning, was an impossible model to a community long established, and suffering from the disabilities that come from growth, that was based not on how growth was made, but upon the mere ambition of growth itself. We can't expect to overlay in our Canadian cities the results of hap-hazard development with Letchworth conditions. But though it is late, it is not too late to make a beginning: to undertake what has been too long delayed, the adoption of plan and system, and in a great measure rectify mistakes, and make our cities, especially Peterborough, with its splendid natural advantages, more beautiful, more sanitary, and better equipped, with the conditions that will make for, if they will not make, ideal cities, urban homes in the fullest sense.

The coal scarcity in the United States seems to suggest the possibility of starving in the midst of plenty.

MOBILIZE FARM LABOUR.

A special despatch to the Mail and Empire, says that central labour exchanges to be operated by a Federal Commission, possibly at Ottawa and Winnipeg, and provincial labour bureaus to be established by Provincial Governments, will, it is said, likely be the result of the conferences of representatives of organized labour and of agriculture held during the past week. A committee of the agricultural conference will be named, it is said, to meet the labour men from all the provinces of Canada, who will assemble in the capital on January 29, and work out details of the scheme already formulated.

This is a good beginning as a preliminary, whose larger value will be the stimulus it will supply in exciting interest in the problem of providing a labour supply as one of the most urgent means of bringing the greatest development of agricultural production.

But the proposal is not direct enough, not backed by the proper authority. If increased production, as it doubtless is, is the great question in Canada now, if it is, as it is, the greatest war measure we can adopt, it is a subject for more serious treatment than lengthy residence would parleys, conferences and, chiefly, talk.

Something big should be undertaken, and in a big earnest way. The government is facing the demands of the military situation, not one whit more important nor critical than the food production situation. It is not doing this by appointing commissions, committees, and holding conferences; but by taking the men needed for military purposes, equipping them, training them, and mobilizing them, to the end of making effective the man power of the Dominion for fighting purposes.

The government has "upon its books" hundreds of thousands of men registered under the Military Service Act, who are not fit for entering the fighting ranks, but are classified as fit for non-combatant service, abroad or at home. They are not to be called upon for that purpose at present; but they are in the government's hands, and can be made use of to serve the country's crying demand for more labour to help in more farm production.

We have on the battle front Forestry battalions and Construction battalions. Why not, from the material available, organize battalions in Canada for employment; have them enrolled for service upon the farm; have them equipped and trained to serve the country in the interests of meeting the greatest need of the country, increased production of exportable food.

Some such action as this seems to be as feasible and practicable as it is necessary in the interests of growing more food in Canada—getting the maximum production and development of our immense agricultural resources. The Government did not, and does not, depend upon "bureaus" and "conferences" to get our 100,000 for the fighting ranks. It took the right way, it took the men that were fit for fighting, for fighting. Why should the government depend for means to get recruits—labour—for the bigger and more important battle of production by means which would be laughed at as child's play in getting soldiers?

The frequency of fatal flying machine accidents in our aviation training camps suggests the possibility of young men of imperfect training being allowed to go up with machines.

THE CITY SIDE OF PRODUCTION

The only way to do things is to do them, and as an essential to doing them successfully, to lay plans, and make preparations. We shall, we are told, need more food the coming year than last year, and there is greater need for increased production, both on farm and garden, than ever before. When we consider the excellent results that followed in Peterborough and elsewhere from the cultivation of vacant lots and back gardens, there is encouragement to repeat the experiment of last year, and do better—profit by the mistakes that amateur gardeners necessarily made. The situation demands increased energy not only in city gardening, but in city labour helping out the farmer. While the farmer is doing his best, the city man must also do his best in growing food. He may not think that what he produces counts for much; but if he only grows enough to feed with garden stuff, his own family he will do that much to obviate the necessity of drawing upon exportable foods and contribute so much more to feeding the allies which is another way of feeding, or at least helping ourselves; for our armies and those of our allies are fighting for us; and unless we help them win, we shall not hereafter be able to eat our crust in peace or enjoy the benefits of a free civilization. If Germany and its allies win, if they come out on top, we go under. That emphasizes the force of Lloyd George's dictum—"We must go on, or go under."

The Canadian Food Bulletin for June 12th lays stress upon the fact that the labour forces, represented by peoples in cities, towns and villages, are looked to help in any considerable increase in the production of food in 1918. It points out that the Canadian farmer is doing his best, but he must have labour help. The Bulletin at the same time emphasizes the importance, not only of cities, towns and villages sparing all available labour, but all other citizens joining in their own little enterprises of production. It says:

> Every backyard should be used for the cultivation of fruit and vegetables. Suburban areas should be utilized for food production. Much could be done by individual households if people only realize the desperate seriousness of the situation, and the fact that every ounce of food is a necessary and important contribution in the fight against defeat. Hundreds of thousands of men and women, boys and girls, could spare a short time each day to cultivate a garden and thus to grow food which would release other food commodities for shipment overseas. The staffs of industrial establishments, both office and factory, could do much by organizing clubs to cultivate vacant areas near their own places of employment, or vacant lots elsewhere in the municipality. Girl Guides and Boy Scouts could also make a real contribution towards relief of the situation. In this way a large part of the requirements of cities and towns in so far as vegetables are concerned, would be supplied by back-yard and vacant lot cultivation, so that market gardeners could use their land in part for grain crops.
>
> If we are to be of the greatest help in this matter, we must begin early. We must become alive to the seriousness of the situation, and make timely preparations to meet it by doing our little share of production.
>
> The vacant lot and back garden campaign would be much more successful by organization and by countenance and aid of the authorities. The city council should be a leader in this matter, and use its representative authority to reach all the people, and arouse interest and enthusiasm.
>
> The time is drawing on; spring will be here before we realise it; and before we do realize it, we must realize that food production to the limit of our resources is our duty and further realize that if we are going to do our best, it is time to begin to think of the needed preparations—fertilizers and seeds. City cultivation in Peterborough last year got a good start, and we can do better this year; as we should do in view of the greater necessity, of straining every nerve to cultivate every foot of available soil that can be put to use for the purpose.

If Great Britain, enjoying the freedom of the seas, and access to the world's granary, has a scant larder, what must be the conditions in blockaded Germany?

CAMPAIGNING IN AUSTRALIA.

The Australian papers just to hand, show that the campaign which preceded the Military Service referendum in the Commonwealth, was even more exciting than that which preceded the General Election in Canada. Considerable indignation was expressed in Canada because Sir Robert Borden was not allowed a hearing in Kitchener. But the Melbourne Argus tells of a riot which took place at Warwick, when Premier Hughes arrived there to give an address. The Premier's hat was knocked off by a rotten egg, whereupon a returned soldier tackled the thrower and in a second a free fight was in progress. Says the Argus account:

> "So far as could be judged, the loyalists had the better of the struggle. One of the first to defend Mr. Hughes' assailant from the wrath of the returning soldier came out of the fight with blood streaming down his face. Fists were flying everywhere, and the Prime Minister was in the thick of it trying to get at the man who had assaulted him, and was one of the biggest men in the crowd. Mr. Hughes was hustled and jostled by men twice his size, but when he emerged it was his hand and not his face that was bleeding.—Montreal Herald.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

With jeers the Dominion Parliament last year turned down a daylight saving bill.

The United States Chamber of Commerce estimates that had a daylight-saving bill, which was talked of in Congress last spring, been passed, one and a half million tons of coal would have been saved during the year in heating and lighting.

This estimate of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce is based on daylight saving being in effect "only for the shortest period that has been suggested and at a time when there is least need for artificial heat and light."

An even larger proportionate saving would have been made in Canada.

Mr. James White, secretary of the Dominion Conservation Commission, tells us that the coal situation in North America will be worse next winter than it is this winter.

Does it look as though in Canada and the United States we ought to gain a few million tons of coal this year without losing anything? Indeed, with great gain otherwise.

Then let our legislators close off their cheap cachinnations about daylight saving.

Daylight saving means bodily health and industrial profit and fuel economy. It needs nothing for success except cooperation. Let's use our common sense.—Ottawa Journal-Press.

All milk puddings intended to be eaten at luncheon should be prepared as soon as the breakfast things are cleared away.

To Eliminate Sir Wilfrid Laurier As A Feature In Our Public Life

Fear of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as leader of Canadian Liberalism gnaws like a cancer at the hearts of the lately Conservative - now - self-declared-Union papers of Canada. They dread the day when Parliament shall reopen and his keen intellect and strong personality be found at the head of the Liberal party in Opposition. To get rid of him immediately is their most earnest desire, and to gain that end they will stoop, where stooping is no longer impossible, to any means. Foremost among these bitter enemies of Sir Wilfrid is the Toronto News, which is busy culling British papers and periodicals for something with which it may attack the old chief, its own stock of invective and personal abuse having failed temporarily. With gusto, it seizes upon an article from The Passing Show, published in London, England, for reproduction, announcing that this most weighty treatise is from the pen of "A Writer." This "writer" attempts to ridicule Sir Wilfrid, and, not being able to say anything of his own authority unflattering about Canada's leading statesman, he meets someone in Bond street and asks his opinion on the subject. What great statesman of wide knowledge and experience is this Britisher who is accosted and asked to give a waiting world the benefit of his thoughts concerning Laurier? Asquith, Lloyd George, Grey, Rosebery? Oh, no. He is the Canadian Lord Beaverbrook, better known to those interested in forming and operating trusts and large corporations in Canada as Max Aitken, later Sir Max. This financier of meteoric career was asked why Sir Wilfrid had taken the course he did during the election campaign, and out of the fullness of his lack of knowledge he gave this as the cause: "Vanity and old age. The French-Canadians have turned the old man's head with flattery."

Let us see just what qualifications Lord Beaverbrook has for judging Sir Wilfrid's acts and motives. In business he was, if he is not still, a promoter of big financial schemes, and it is most improbable that in the course of his work he had anything to do with Laurier. He was and is, in politics, a strong and valued supporter of Sir Robert Borden, the evidence of his value being his knighthood and peerage. War having broken out, Sir Max was sent overseas as official Canadian eyewitness. This post was presumed to carry with it the duty of presence at the front and observance of the movements of Canadian troops in action. From all indications, Sir Max preferred to witness most of the fighting from his office in London, whence issued glowing reports of Canadians' deeds about three weeks after very similar ones had been printed in Canada, sent here by the noted and real war correspondent, Frederick Palmer. The similarity of the dispatches did not escape notice and comment. However, grounds were found for having Sir Max become Lord Beaverbrook. Neither as correspondent or as peer has he been in intimate touch with Sir Wilfrid. What is his opinion worth?

The only Britisher quoted by "A Writer" as having anything derogatory to say of Sir Wilfrid is dead, his name being Joseph Chamberlain. His remark as quoted by "A Writer" was: "That fellow's a fine actor." Whether it was said at all, and whether it was meant as a slur or a compliment, we do not know. It is significant that Chamberlain is unable to contradict it.

This is the kind of drivel that is being used to drive Sir Wilfrid from the leadership. It is not hard to estimate its effect.—London Advertiser.

Splendid Reports Presented At the Annual Meeting of the Little Lake Cemetery Company

The annual meeting of the Little Lake Cemetery Company was held at the City Hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. E. H. D. Hall, president, occupied the chair, and the other shareholders present were: Messrs. W. H. Moore, A. Stevenson, W. G. Morrow, Benj. Shortley, H. Rush, E. A. Peck, T. H. G. Denne, Wm. Ford, of Toronto, also Superintendent W. James and Miss Curtis.

The reports recorded another year of progress, and indicated a flourishing condition in all the departments of the company's affairs. The work of Superintendent James was particularly gratifying to the stockholders. Mr. Ford, one of his predecessors, who is now superintendent of the Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Toronto, which is recognized as one of the largest and most beautiful cemeteries in America, complimented Mr. James on the splendid condition of the grounds as he had observed them on Decoration Day. The company testified its appreciation of the work Mr. James had accomplished by extending to him a vote of thanks, which also included a recognition to Miss Curtis.

Directors' Report.

The directors' report was read by Mr. Hall, as follows:

During the year the Board and the Company has sustained a serious loss in the death of the late T. A. S. Hay and the late Dr. George Burnham. Mr. Hay had been a director for over 18 years and Dr. Burnham for upwards of 20 years. Both took a great interest in the affairs of the Cemetery, and Mr. Hay, as a member of the Executive Committee, was especially active in its management. Dr. Burnham, by his will, besides making many gifts to religious and charitable objects of the city, also bequeathed to the Cemetery Company the sum of $500 for the perpetual care of his lot.

Mr. E. A. Peck and Mr. H. Rush were appointed to fill the vacancies caused by the death of these directors.

Early in the past year Mr. F. Wise, who had been superintendent of the company, resigned, and Mr. William James was appointed in his place, assumed office on the first of March last, and has proved an efficient and satisfactory official. In order to ensure a better system of keeping the accounts of the company, and to make it possible to ascertain the different sources from which the revenue was received, a new system, recommended by Mr. W. R. Morris, chartered accountant, was adopted, and Miss Alberta Curtis was appointed book-keeper.

Simplify Bookkeeping.

In order to simplify the bookkeeping and avoid the risk of bad debts, it was decided that all accounts for work and services should be paid at the time ordered.

The system has worked well, and it is now possible for the first time to know the cost of the maintenance of the greenhouse, and the net revenue received from same, which amounted to $705.12, and instead of carrying over uncollected accounts, amounting to $2,000, we have of last year's accounts only about $17.50 now uncollected. On the 31st Dec., 1916, there were uncollected accounts amounting to $2,206.60. On the 31st December, 1917, these accounts amounted only to $893, of which $301.35 was for work done in 1917 and the balance for work done in former years. The probability is that most of it is uncollectable.

Have $22,531 Invested.

During last year a sum of $3,663 was invested in debentures of the City of Peterborough, purchased at a rate to yield 5½ per cent., and a sum of $3,450.69 in the purchase of Canada War Loan Bonds, which will yield about the same rate of interest. These amounts, with the sum of $15,417.31 paid for City of Peterborough debentures, formerly purchased, brings the amount now invested to the sum of $22,531. There has also been obtained a Victory Bond for $1,000, not paid for in full at the end of the year. There was in the bank at the credit of the company at the end of the year the sum of $1,456.76, out of which there is payable $891.08 for the Victory Bond.

Owing to the increase in wages necessarily paid, and in order to endeavour to make the receipts, other than from the sale of lots, equal the payments for ordinary expenditures, the tariff of charges was revised, and most items increased.

Permanent Improvements.

The auditors' report shows that the revenue for the year 1917, not including $3,346 realized from the sale of lots and $300 for perpetual care, was $6,106.75, and the amounts paid out, not including the $7,113.69 paid for War Bonds and debentures and $282.79 for sundry property purchased, was $7,051.40, showing an apparent deficiency of $942.65 in operating expenses. This, however, is not correct as the charges for material, wages paid in making permanent improvements, the cost of repairs to houses, the price of a horse purchased and a portion of the price of supplies for the greenhouse and for markers still on hand and for work done in drainage and in clearing Block O and other work referred to in the superintendent's report, and the cost of the new system of books and Mr. Morris' fees, should not be charged against income. If these items were deducted it would show that there was no actual loss in ordinary working expenses. The amount spent for permanent improvements increases the value of the Cemetery, and makes parts of it now available for sale as well as increasing the price at which lots can be sold.

No permanent work was done during the year that could be avoided, as it was most difficult to obtain men, even at the higher wages that had to be paid. Nevertheless the superintendent managed, with fewer men employed, to attend to all necessary work and also to do the work referred to in his report.

Trees Yield 9,000 Feet of Lumber.

From the trees cut from Block O there has been obtained about 9,000 feet of lumber, besides the 10 or 12 cords of slabs. The lumber has been piled on the company's grounds, and may be kept for use in the Cemetery, or sold if advisable, and the slabs used as fuel.

The old house in the Cemetery has been shingled and some of the rooms painted and plastered, and is occupied by one of the employees, who pays $8 per month rent.

The present plan of the lots having been prepared on a scale too small for convenient use, Mr. Wm. Blackwell was engaged to prepare plans of the whole Cemetery and also of the various sections on a much larger scale, but has not yet completed same.

The vault in the office is in an unsatisfactory condition, and it is advisable, in order to properly keep the records of the company, that some means should be adopted for their filing and care, and your directors propose taking steps for this purpose.

The system of keeping a record of the owners of lots, of the names of those interred in them and of the position in the lots of the graves, is defective, and your directors are considering the introduction of a card index system for the purpose of simplifying and perfecting this.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. H. D. Hall, President.
Peterborough, January 21st, 1918.

Superintendent's Report.

Gentlemen,—This being my first report, covering the ten months I have been superintendent of your Cemetery, I have not been able to do a large amount of permanent work, this being on account of the shortage of labour, but the following work has been completed:

Concrete siedwalk to the entrance of the greenhouse, two hundred and twenty-five square feet, at the rate of seven cents per foot, making a great improvement from the old board walk.

All the pine has been cleared from Section O. It has been taken out by root, graded and seeded, covering an area of 75 feet wide and 200 feet long, making room for two ranges. This will be space enough for 95 grave lots.

I have also removed trees from single grave sections, graded and seeded, making space enough for about 100 single graves.

There has been 100 feet of six-inch pipe with two concrete catch basins been put in to drain the surface water at the bottom of the hill leading from the Chapel to the Lake.

The Greenhouse.

The south section of the greenhouse has been painted on the outside. The section running east and west will need repairing this coming summer, as the woodwork is very delapidated.

During the year there have been 266 interments, 13 removals, 2 concrete vaults and 36 foundations put in for monuments.

House in Cemetery.

The whole house has been shingled, the hall painted, plastered and papered, which makes a great improvement to the property.

Drainage.

I would like to call your attention to the drainage of the south-east part of the Cemetery. The ditch which has been dug to carry off the water is continually falling in, so I think that a 12-inch drain pipe would answer the purpose.

On the south-east side of the Lake we have placed a large amount of stone to stop the bank from washing away.

Pine Taken from Section O.

The logs taken from Section O have been sawed in to one-inch board, scantling and joists, making 9,000 feet of lumber, all of which has been done by the men and horse, with the exception of the sawing.

Other Grounds Work.

I have also done a lot of pruning, which will make a big improvement to the grass and flowers by letting in light and air.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Wm. James, Superintendent.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NICHOLLS HOSPITAL

1213 Patients Were Treated During the Year—A Record For the Institution—Resolution of Regret at the Illness of Chairman Richard Hall is Passed—The Financial Statement

The annual meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Trust was held in the Dominion Bank Chambers yesterday at 4 p.m.

There were present Messrs. W. H. Hill, Robert Fair, E. B. Fowler, Wm. Aldridge, B. F. Ackerman, Wm. Madill, Malcolm McIntyre, Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch, and His Worship Mayor Duncan.

In the absence of Mr. Richard Hall, chairman, through illness, Mr. W. H. Hill took the chair.

The secretary-treasurer, Mr. John Crane, presented the report of receipts and expenditures for the statutory year ending 30th September, which was received and referred to the city auditor.

The number of patients treated at the hospital during the past year exceeded that of any previous year, the number being 1,213.

On account of the increase in the cost of foods, drugs, fuel, etc., the cost of maintenance exceeded the income by $2,600.

Election of Officers.

Mr. Richard Hall was elected chairman.

Mr. W. H. Hill was elected secretary.

A special committee was named to strike the Standing Committee for the year, the committee being: Messrs. Ackerman, Fab, Madill, Fowler, and McIntyre.

The Committee reported, recommending as follows:

Supervision Committee.

Messrs. Wm. Madill, Robert Fair, and B. F. Ackerman.

Finance Committee.

Messrs. E. B. Fowler, Thos. Brown, and Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch.

Property Committee.

Messrs. Wm. Aldridge, B. F. Ackerman, and Malcolm McIntyre.

Visiting Committee.

Jan. and July—Messrs. Peck and Fair.

Feb. and Aug.—Messrs. McIntyre and The Mayor.

March and Sept.—Messrs. R. Neill and W. Aldridge.

April and Oct.—Messrs. James Edgar and Thos. Brown.

May and Nov.—Messrs. Madill and Fowler.

June and Dec.—Dr. McCulloch and B. F. Ackerman.

The various committees met, and elected the following as chairmen:

Supervision—B. F. Ackerman.

Finance—Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch.

Property—Wm. Aldridge.

It was moved by Mr. R. Fair, seconded by Mr. E. B. Fowler: This Board regrets that the illness of Mr. Richard Hall, who has been chairman of the Board from its inception, has prevented him from presiding over its deliberations for some time. The Board has a deep sense of the valuable services rendered the hospital for many years by Mr. Hall, and sincerely hopes that he may be spared to again take up the duties pertaining to the institution, which lies so near to his heart, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Mr. Hall.

A resolution was passed expressing the appreciation of the Board of the faithful services rendered the hospital by the superintendent, assistant superintendent, nurses, and employees during the year.

The Board adjourned.

Ex-Constable Weller Hopes To Get Back To Front In France

Police Sergeant Reid has received the following letter from Tom Weller, formerly of the Peterborough Police Force, to whom he sent a Christmas parcel:

Block 1, D. Ward,
White Cross Hospital,
Warrington, Lancashire, Eng.

To Sergt. Jas. E. Reid,
Police Department,
Peterborough, Canada.

2nd January, 1918.

My Dear Friend Jim,—I received your very welcome parcel and when I opened it I was tickled to death to find such a nice lot of Canadian tobacco and a good supply of Players cigarette and some good candy, for which I thank you kindly. I am still in the above hospital although I have just been informed that I am to go to another hospital at Epron, where I have to go through another operation, but before going there I am getting a ten-days' leave. Well, old Friend, I had a good time at Christmas. I had a little of Johnny Haig's, and believe me it went down fine. Under the circumstances you can hardly blame a fellow for having a little, can you. I was very sorry when you wrote and told me about Sergt.-Major Millership of the 93rd Battalion being killed, he was an awful nice fellow, he was as straight as a string and as clean as a whistle, poor fellow. I felt sorry when I heard the news, but when one knows he died fighting for a good cause, why we should feel proud. The weather here at present is very bleak and chills one to the bone, but roll on till this war is over and then we will all be happy: it seems although this war will last some time yet. Give my kindest regards to the Chief and all the boys. I will now draw to a close as the news is scarce, trusting that Mrs. Reid, little Isabella and yourself are in the best of health and getting along O.K., as this leaves me a little sick but improving, although this gas is an awful thing. I only hope to be spared to go back to France and try and find that guy who was so kind to send me a shipment of his gas, and then the rest is easy.

Write soon Jim,

Your Old Friend,
TOM WELLER.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water is spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed.

Music & Drama

A DAUGHTER OF THE SUN.

Interwoven around the love of a Hawaiian girl for an American and of an American girl for a Hawaiian, with a melodramatic flavour added in the form of the machinations of a Japanese spy, whose activities are opposed by the United States' secret service, and with plenty of local colour provided by Hawaiian singers and ukelele players, the massive scenic production, "A Daughter of the Sun," delighted two big audiences at matinee and evening performances at the Grand yesterday. The offering resembles in many of its essentials, "The Bird of Paradise." Richard Walton Tully's Hawaiian play seen here earlier in the season, but suffers nothing in comparison with the better known production; in fact yesterday's audiences seemed to enjoy "A Daughter of the Sun" better than its predecessor, inasmuch as the plot offers more action and more dramatic situations.

It was presented by a capable cast, Freda Tymers, who was seen in the title role, gave a splendid interpretation of the part of the Hawaiian butterfly, marred only by the fact that in the earlier scenes she did not speak loud enough and many of her lines were not caught by the audience. This defect disappeared as the play went on, however. Leonard Lord was a likeable hero and Jean Claredon presented a realistic presentation of the role of a Japanese spy. James A. Bliss was natural and as Col. Clay, a U.S. executive officer, and Virginia Stuart provided many a laugh as Virgie Lee. Richard Earle's playing of the part of the Hawaiian Kama was one of the features.

The scenic investiture was lavish. The spectacle of a volcano in eruption was realistically presented, and the arrival of the American fleet at Honolulu caught the audience's fancy.

When cutting fur, never use scissors; use a razor or very sharp penknife to cut through the skin at the back.

Keeping Well During The Winter

Don't let your blood get thin this winter. For people who have a tendency towards anæmia—which means bloodlessness—winter is a most trying season. Lack of exercise and fresh air, being too constantly indoors, combine to lower the tone of the body and deplete the blood of those elements necessary to vigour and good health. As soon as you notice the tired feeling, lack of appetite and shortness of breath, that are the warning symptoms of poor blood, take a short treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Do not wait until the color has entirely left your face, until your eyes become dull, and until you feel breathless after the least exertion. It is much easier to correct thinning of the blood in the early stages than later.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up and enrich the blood and strengthen and tone the nerves. In this way the general health is improved, the appetite increased, digestion strengthened and new ambition and energy developed. Then work becomes easier because it does not cause exhaustion. You can keep your system at the highest efficiency by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great blood builder and nerve tonic.

You can obtain these pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Cinderella" Netted $208.96

$104.48 For British Red Cross and Similar Amount For Serbian Relief —Is Being Repeated

The net proceeds of this beautiful operetta amounted to the substantial sum of $208.96. The manager, inspiration, and chief artiste of the production, Mrs. A. A. Perrin, has turned over this amount to be divided equally between the British Red Cross and Serbian Relief Funds —$104.48 for each.

Not only the local officers, but every member and beneficiary of either of these most deserving institutions are deeply grateful to Mrs. Perrin and her associates for their splendidly successful efforts.

"Cinderella" is to be repeated on Wednesday, 23rd inst., on behalf of the Canadian Red Cross. We heartily commend the merit of the performance, as well as the object for which it is given, and bespeak another bumper house for it. Scarcely a vacant seat was in the house last week.

Mrs. Greenslade won the first prize for selling most tickets for the initial performance, disposing of 95 tickets; and Miss Lillian Melton won second prize with a sale of 46. Both prizes were beautiful pictures painted by Mrs. Perrin.

General Vote By-law Given Final Impetus

Deputation Requested the Council to Defer Action For Another Year

COUNCIL MEETING

A by-law confirming the verdict of the electors who on New Year's day recorded a substantial majority in favour of a by-law to revert to the general vote system of electing representatives to the City Council, was unanimously endorsed at a special meeting of the City Council held last evening. This, despite the request of Mr. E. Reid and Mr. Hughson Johnstone that the measure be deferred for another year and again submitted to the people. Both Mr. Reid and Mr. Johnstone were of the opinion that the wording of the by-law as submitted to the people, was misleading with the result, go it is alleged that many of the ratepayers did not know what they were voting for.

A Legal Opinion.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, City Solicitor, who was present at the request of Mayor Duncan, read the form of the by-law and also expressed an opinion in favour of the adoption by the Council of the verdict of the ratepayers. Mr. Gordon said that there was an element of doubt as to the meaning of the act covering the by-law in question, but he leaned to the view that it would be necessary for the Council to comply with the will of the majority who were in favour of the abolition of the ward system of electing representatives to the City Council. "I am inclined to the view that the Council is required to pass this by-law, although there is an element of doubt," said the City Solicitor.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, President of the Trades and Labour Council, who was present at the meeting, said that his policy had always been to abide by the will of the people, and in this case the Council had no choice but to pass the measure. "Do you think it is right to do otherwise simply because two individuals appear here to-night and tell you the people made a mistake. How many people voted the other way?" asked Mr. Hartley, who added. "I think it is absurd and no matter what my own personal opinion might be about a matter, I would not attempt to act contrary to the will of the majority."

Ald. A. McIntyre, who described himself as "father of the by-law" urged the Council to endorse the measure despite any opposition that might be offered.

Alderman Weir said he was not in favour of the general vote system, but at the same time he woud insist that the Council carry out the wish of the mapority who had voted for the by-law.

The by-law was unanimiusly endorsed.

Two More By-laws.

A by-law conceding to the De Laval Dairy Supply Company the right to close an unused portion of a street on the north side of their factory was read a third time and passed. This by-law was endorsed by the people on election day.

The Council also passed a by-law making the poll-tax payable in five days after the bill is issued, instead of ten days as formerly. Ten days' grace was considered too long as many of those effected often left the city before the tax could be collected.

The mock trial commenced two weeks ago and was continued as far as time permitted.

Snow Storms Tie Up Traffic

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By R. J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. — Heavy snows along the eastern seaboard today dealt a staggering blow to the national railroads. With Garfield's industrial suspension order at an end to-night, transportation throughout the country east of the Mississippi was hopelessly clogged, with no chance to dig itself out in the face of further trying weather. Conferences between the fuel and railroad administration offices were held to-day to determine upon the next step—an extension of the five day suspension order or a new order later this week inaugurating another period of suspension, is admittedly being considered. Drastic curtailment of passenger traffic is also under advisement.

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Winter

These days the face and hands need special care and attention. Strong winds, quick changes of temperature from indoors to outdoors, are severe on the skin. Their despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure mercolised wax. This keeps skin and pores in a cleanly condition, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Chapped, reddened, blotchy and roughened cuticle are actually absorbed by it. One ounce of mercolised wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to completely renovate a weather-beaten complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

As the skin tends to expand in a warm atmosphere, cheeks and chin to sag and wrinkles to form, a good astringent lotion should be used by the woman who keeps pretty much indoors these days. Dissolve one ounce powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in this mornings or before going out for theatre or social affair. It is a remarkable skin tightener and wrinkle eraser.

COUNCIL DID NOT APPROVE OF THE MEASURE

At last night's meeting of the City Council, it was moved by Ald. McIntyre and seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that the City Solicitor prepare a petition to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and to the Ontario Legislature, praying that an Act be passed to provide that it shall be unlawful for any candidate for any municipal office or for School Trustee or member of a Board of Education or the position of Utilities Commissioner to canvass any elector or personally ask for the support or vote of any elector for any of the said offices, and prohibiting any other person canvassing any elector or personally asking the support or vote of any elector for any candidate for any of the said positions, and also to provide that every elector must go to the polls and vote in every election for the said positions.

The by-law was defeated, even after the sting which is in the tail had been removed. The aldermen were inclined to the view that the measure was too drastic and could not be enforced.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—There has been considerable discussion among Peterborough people about the 93rd Band instruments. I would like to make a suggestion. Although at present I am not a bandsman I know something about bands and instruments, and I must say, with all respect to every Great War Veteran, that I do not think a G. W. V's. band would turn out a successful organization for a good many reasons which I could explain, and one which is readily seen is that it would be impossible to maintain a fair-sized band of War Veterans only. It is true the instruments could be kept manned by G. W. V's., but I leave that to anyone with the slightest knowledge of band music or instruments. Some will say they could learn, but most of them are working men with little chance for practice, of which a good deal must be done with all bandsmen present, the importance of which is generally not realized by beginners. I mean by this that a man sent home after being wounded or disabled and unfit for service would not find comfort or enjoyment in devoting as much of his time to practice as would be necessary; also he would find it quite a hard task when on the march to keep his part. The among other things there is the financial part. In short, I will say that a band, although composed chiefly of wind instruments, is not kept up on wind alone. Of course a smaller band can be kept upon a smaller amount and a small band might be a (very good) band, but, of course, the War Veterans would want a (real good) band, and the members would want to belong to a (real good) band, and to do justice to the usual run of music played by good bands, and to put in most of the essential parts to the said music, the small band is not in it.

Now, Mr. Editor, as it appears that the instruments are to be disposed of the fairest way that I can see to all, would be to sell them, and the money handed over to or used for the benefit of, the Peterborough branch of the G. W. V's. And for the benefit of buyer and seller and all concerned I would suggest selling them in this way. Take the instruments in lots, of say 4 or 6, and place them in different store windows on George street where they can be seen by everybody. Place a ticket on each with the price asked. Allow say four weeks for the sale and set a certain hour on a certain day for the sale to close, and in the meantime the price on the ticket is changed as intending buyers bid up the price.

If something like this were followed out it seems to me the benefit would fall in the right place, as the money that paid for those instruments was donated by Peterborough County people for the 93rd Battalion Band to lead the 93rd Battalion, of which is composed the Peterborough Branch of G. W. V's. Association of to-day.

New Building By-law Drafted

City Engineer Parsons has drafted a new building by-law and at last night's meeting of the City Council Aldermen Edgar McIntyre and Langford were named a committee to give the new by-law a "once over". It will constitute excellent food for discussion and there is a possibility that a few local contractors and fire insurance agents will be called in to add weight to the discussion that is in prospect.

COLOGNE BELL NO MORE.

Gift of William I. Sawed in Pieces and Taken from Cathedral.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 21.—The great "Kaiser's Bell," whose mighty, sonorous voice many Americans have heard above the roars of Cologne, has now been removed from its cage in the southern tower of the Grand Cathedral. Deeply moved, the Cologne citizens listened to the Maria Gloriosa as the bell was named, ring out its funeral chant on New Year's night. Since then the bell has been taken down and will be sacrificed for the Fatherland's defense. It was impossible to remove the bell intact—it weighed 56,000 pounds— without injuring the beautiful masonry of the steeple, so the bell was sawed in pieces and thus safely brought to the ground.

French guns captured in 1870 and 1871 were the material from which the bell was made, and it was first sounded on March 21, the birthday of William I., who gave it to the cathedral. At that time it took twenty-seven bell-ringers to operate it. Since then it had been worked by an electric apparatus.

Simple Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Where Your Cash Buys Most

Scene from "SEVEN DAYS' LEAVE," the Big Military Comedy at The Grand next Thursday, January 24th.

Speaking of the play at The Princess Theatre, Toronto, last week, The World says in part:

With the war as a background and the activities in an English village of two German spies disguised as Belgian refugees to provide the plot, "Seven Days' Leave" proves a highly acceptable offering at the Princess this week. Owing to the railway difficulties the engagement's opening was postponed until last night, when a splendidly enthusiastic audience attended the first local presentation of the new military melodrama by Walter Howard—numbered among the very few war plays to receive the commendation of the press and the approval of theatregoers. From a scenic standpoint "Seven Days' Leave" is decidedly a novelty, the cast presenting it is of considerable interest, headed as it is by the talented young English actress, Grace Hoyle, while the theme is one that causes many thrills of patriotic fervour throughout the action of the play—spontaneous applause greeting many of the soldier characters' lines. Cavaliers and pretty titled ladies have proved the subjects for romantic plays of all times, and so it is that this modern romance of the moment, with sacrifices and noble deeds depicted in vivid stage pictures, proves most opportune and acceptable.

The scenes in which the signal is given from the house on the sea cliff, Lady Mary's achievement proving that this is a woman's war as well as a man's and the blowing up of the German submarine, prove genuine thrillers, while the climax and happy ending are highly satisfactory.

The Council adjourned and resolved into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of striking the standing committees for the current year.

SETTLEMENT IN IRELAND DECIDED ON?

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The resignation of Sir Edward Carson lends colour to the report that the government, accepting the advice of its supporters in England, and well wishers in the Dominion and the United States, has decided to bring about a settlement of the Irish question. During the short recess which the convention has taken, Sir Horace Plunkett, the chairman of the convention, and other Irishmen, who have worked so hard for settlement, are making a last effort to see to it that their labours shall not be wasted.

In this they have the unstinted support of Premier Lloyd George.

The Evening Telegraph of Belfast, says Lieut.-Col. James Craig, member of the House of Commons, and one of the Ulster leaders, has resigned as Lord Treasurer of the Household.

TO-NIGHT AT THE TEMPLE

7 o'clock all old Guards and as many new ones who wish will meet and get their cards of admission for Commissioner Richards Young Peoples' Day.

Sunday School Teachers' Bible Class will meet for study and the Senior Temple Band will practice in their room.

Wednesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock the Home League will meet, and at 3.30 the weekly prayer meeting will take place. Any who want to pray for their own or their nation will be welcome

At 7 p.m. the Boy Scouts, old and new, will meet and receive their cards of admission to Commissioner Richards' Young People's Day.

At 7.30 the Corps Cadet will meet and at 8 o'clock in the Special Soldiers' meeting the Songster Leader, William Forde, will give a special address on "The Relationship of Singing to Soul Saving." Every Soldier convert and recruit will be welcome.

Scene from the laughing success "Nothing But the Truth," which comes to The Grand for two performances next Saturday, January 26.

"Nothing But the Truth," the new farcial comedy by James Montgomery, is this week's offering at the Royal Alexandria Theatre. Comedy that is really clever is rare these days, and last night's audience welcomed this clever farce with its witty dialogue and its exceptionally good actors.

Every member of the cast was especially good and suited to their various roles.

"Nothing But the Truth" tells of the efforts of a business man to double $10,000 by betting that he can tell the absolute truth for twenty-four hours at a stretch. His efforts to win the bet are ludicrous, and, though telling the truth, he nearly loses his sweetheart, his friends and his position. In the end everything turns out all right, but the series of blank truths he has to tell provide the fun of the evening. Very few farces have been so cleverly written, for it is the naturalness of the whole situation that appeals to the audience, while the players do not obtrude themselves on one.

"Nothing But the Truth" is a series of laughs, and will provide an evening's amusement even to the most tired theatregoer.—Toronto Telegram, Tuesday, October 17, 1917.

INCREASE IN NEWS PRINT

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 22.—Commissioner Pringle, as a result of the paper inquiry, to-day reported, recommending an increase of thirty-five cents per hundred pounds, making the price $2.85 for three months, starting February first. At the end of that time, if the price is found excessive, he reserves the right to make any reduction retroactive to February first.

ARMSTRONG IS OVERSEAS

There has been considerable newspaper comment about the whereabouts of Bobby Armstrong, the star centre player of last year's 247th Battalion hockey team, and a story went the rounds of many papers that Armstrong was with the Royal Flying Corps at the Mohawk Flying Camp and would be with the Belleville intermediates.

As a matter of fact, the star puck chaser is overseas, having gone over several months ago with a draft from the Divisional Signallers, in which unit he enlisted last year. He was in training at Ottawa for some time.

Next Door To Turnbull's

Shorthorns, Not Ball Players, Headed By George Stallings

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 21. — George Stallings, known to the sporting world only as a baseball manager and once head of the New York Yankees, is known here in Georgia also as a breeder of fine cattle, operating a stock farm at Haddock's, near Macon.

He is in Athens this week, where three State organizations of farmers, among them the State Live Stock and Dairy Association, concluded their annual sessions at the State College of Agriculture, as an interested member of the audience which is hearing discussions of how to make the dairy pay, how to increase milk production, and the value of blood in the dairy and beef animals.

After the papers had been read today Stallings invited all to the campus, where he trotted out his whole herd of Shorthorns, brought here under the auspices of the American Shorthorn Breeders' Association, to exhibit them as examples of practising what the experts had been preaching. Stallings had often trained ball teams in Athens on the campus of the university, but his appearance here today was in an entirely new role.

COBOURG SUSPENDED

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—At yesterday's meeting of the sub-committee of the Ontario Hockey Association the Cobourg junior hockey club, officers and players included, were placed on the suspended list as a result of the inquiry into the protest of the Oshawa club.

It was charged that Edward J. Drumm of Cobourg was over age, and that Clifford Maher played under the certificate of his brother Austin. The Cobourg club made practically no defence, the acting secretary writing that the responsibility was on the players, a plea which the committee could not accept. The game was awarded to Oshawa.

Aurora defaulted the O.H.A. junior game at Barrie last night and the latter club will put in a claim for expenses for the defaults.

Queen's Juniors have dropped out of Group No. 2, Section A, and the remaining game of the schedule will be played as an exhibition game. The Kingston team, with a lead of 17 goals, wins the section, and will meet Belleville for the group championship in home-and-home games.

The postponed London junior game at Paris from 14th January will be played on Friday, 25th January, at Paris.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

LINDSAY CONFIDENT OF VICTORY HERE

The Lindsay Juniors are coming down to Peterborough on Friday night, confident that they can carry off the district honours by beating the Petes here. Dicky Butler's lads point out that the Petes only had a margin of three goals on them in two games, and that in the last battle they were without the services of Lyons, the most effective goal-getter on the team. They claim that with Lyons back in harness they can turn the trick on Friday night, and that the Petes will know they have been in a hockey game.

No one who saw the last home game between the two clubs will want to miss Friday's engagement, and judging by the general interest around town, one of the biggest crowds that ever saw a junior game here will be on hand to root for the local youngsters.

The Petes had a lively practice last night, and will be out again to-morrow night.

They should be right on edge for the decisive battle in the group race.

SARNIA BADLY BEATEN BY KITCHENER TEAM

KITCHENER, Jan. 21.—Displaying superiority in all departments, Kitchener seniors captured a 13 to 4 victory from the much-heralded Sarnia sextette in what proved to be the season's best hockey attraction at the Auditorium to-night. The visitors did not measure up to advance notices. After the second period was well under way the locals had things pretty much their own way, and experienced no difficulty in evading the Sarnia defence. On the play to-night the locals should capture the group honours handily.

Hiller was undoubtedly the best man on the ice, with Parkes a good second. Hillman proved Sarnia's best. The local forward line furnished the game's feature plays, the majority of their counters resulting from effective team work. Hiller counted first for Kitchener after eight minutes of play, Parkes adding the second a few seconds later.

Karges, who played a wonderful defence game, uncorked the third goal on a long shot from centre. Sarnia counted on a flukey shot two minutes before the period ended.

The second chapter developed a better brand of hockey. In quick succession the locals added two, and before ten minutes of play had made the score 6 to 1. Hillman counted Sarnia's, and Solomon and Parkes added two more for Kitchener in the latter part of the period.

In the last frame the locals gave Goalkeeper Dwyer, who, by the way, gave a creditable performance, a busy time, adding five more counters, while Sarnia notched two.

Referee—Robt. Hewitson, Toronto.

COLLEGIATE WON FROM "Y" BY 29 TO 27

In a close game, that was tied up to the last two minutes, the Collegiate basketball team won from the Y.M.C.A. last night by the score of 29 to 27 in the Junior O.A.B.A. series. The "Y" had all the better of the play in the first half, doubling the score by 16 to 8, but the Collegiate boys came back strong and finally nosed out a victory. The game was keenly and cleanly contested. The teams lined up as follows:

Collegiate		Y.M.C.A.
	Forwards.
D. Canniff		A. McLeod
J. Thirnbeck		J. White
	Centre
H. Young		M. Brownscombe
	Defence
A. Stevenson		H. Martin

Referee—C. E. Sisson.
Umpire—J. H. Roper.

HOCKEY

An exciting game of hockey was played on Brock street rink from 6 to 7 p.m. last night, between the Ancient Order of Foresters and the Queen Alexandra school, the Foresters winning by a score of 6 to 4. The line-up of both teams is as follows:

Queen Alexandra School—

Ancient Order of Foresters—

Mr. C. H. Perry umpired the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

In accordance with a long established custom at this particular season of the year the local employees of the Grand Trunk Railway System hereby challenege the local employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway to a fast and friendly game of hockey, the game to be played at the Brock Street rink at a time and date to be directed by the managers of the respective teams.

A Garrison Finish By Port Hope

PORT HOPE, Jan. 21.—Port Hope Juniors came from behind with a Garrison finish to-night against the Cobourg Juniors. With the score against them of 6 to 1 in the first period and 7 to 3 in the second they waded through the Cobourgites in the last twenty minutes, scoring 8 goals and shutting their opponents out, winning the game by a score of 11 to 7. The teams were:

Referee—Lou Marsh, Toronto.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

Evidence Was Very Conflicting in Case of Lowdon vs. Edmunds.

His Honour Judge Deroche held court in Belleville on Thursday to try the case of C. J. Longdon, George Kellyfi and Ethel M. Ling, of Belleville, against Tess Edmunds, of Millbrook, for damages arising out of a collision of two automobiles in Port Hope at the corner of Ridout Street and Toronto Road last July.

Longdon claimed $23 per day damages for the time he was laid off work at the Rolling Mills by reason of the accident, which, he said, was his average daily wages.

The defendant claimed the collision was the plaintiff's fault and sought damages for a broken spring and other injuries. It was contended that before action the plaintiffs stated defendant was not to blame.

The evidence was conflicting, and after argument Judge Deroche reserved judgment.

S. Guss Porter, K.C., and E. J. Butler for plaintiff; W. C. Mikel, K.C., and Henry White, Port Hope, for defendant.

OBITUARY

GEORGE R. STEPHENS.

Lindsay friends of Geo. R. Stephens, formerly with the [illegible], learned with much regret of his death, which occurred on Monday at his late residence, 65 Hepburn street, Toronto, after an illness of two and a half months.

Mr. Stephens was born in Liverpool, England, 61 years ago, and came to Canada as a young man. He had been for 46 years in the service of the G.T.R., being chief despatcher and trainmaster at Belleville, Peterborough and Lindsay, and being engaged in the payroll office in Barrie and Toronto. He was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters and belonged to the Church of England, attending St. Marys church, Toronto. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jennie Stephens.

Conference Opens On Sunday In Bethany Tabernacle

Next Sunday, 27th January, in Bethany Tabernacle, the annual conference of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be held at 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m. The conference will be continued on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at 3 and 7 p.m.

The speakers so far arranged for are Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) Turnbull, of Nyack, N.Y., well known in the States as an evangelist; Miss M. A. Butterfield, of Jerusalem, Palestine, will be present, and give an account of the sufferings of the people, and her thrilling experience in getting out of that land just before the United States declared war.

If other speakers can be procured there will be due notice given.

CITY'S GRANTS FOR PARKS, MUSIC, ETC. MAY BE CUT OFF

Unprecedented Demands Require Radical Reductions Where Possible, Is View of Several of the Aldermen

The Council's budget for 1918 will not only include the $60,000 for the Patriotic Fund, but will undoubtedly provide increases for most of the municipal departments. For the present, the aggregate, of the estimates which are bound to give the Council a few bad nights, is softened by the haze of distance and a hope that the year's demands will not be as heavy as some of the aldermen expect. The estimates that have already been received by the Council seem to foreshadow the general trend of the spending departments of this, as they are in most other cities. The Board of Education has asked for an increase and the Public Library Board has tacked on a modest extra. Up and down the country policemen are receiving higher salaries for the reason that the increased cost of living affects a policeman's home as seriously as a school teacher's or any other citizen's. The additional work that has been assumed by Chief Thompson's men, due in a measure to the fact that the staff is under strength, apart from the fuel investigations and the rounding up of defaulters from military service, is an additional reason for expecting increased estimates from the Police Department. If the Fire, Water and Light committee is to maintain and advance the efficiency of the Fire Department, there are certain increases coming there, and Ald. Dobbin's committee will doubtless require more spending money. Ald. Weir's Board of Works was held to bare necessities last year, and the same policy will be carried out again. The watchword of the Council will be necessities only and with that prospect the committee will be well advised to do their "paring to the bone" before they present their estimates to the Council.

This introduces the question of what action will be taken with the grants which are annually made to the Horticultural Society, the Industrial Exhibition, Poultry Association, the contributions for music in the parks and to other organizations. Some of the aldermen have practically decided that, for their part, the most of the grants must be cut off this year. An increase in the tax rate is inevitable; unprecedented times bring unprecedented demands. The Council's one is indispensibility, and if that balance the grants are found wanting, according to several of the aldermen who have even stated that the parks, bands, Fair and other interests the Council has assisted in the past could be dispensed with this year. Innovations like bathing beaches will doubtless receive scant consideration if this policy is pursued. It is already evident that the Council faces an unenviable problem in preparing estimates for civic expenditure in this year of the war.

Submarines Are Being Recalled

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PARIS, Jan. 23.— Germany is recalling her submarines to bases preparatory to adopting a new plan of campaign, according to reports reaching here to-day. One suggestion was that the older submarines were to be replaced by new armoured U boat cruisers armed with large guns.

British Subjects in the United States Will Be Drafted

WAR NEWS

Subject to Draft.

Canadian Press Despatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.— British subjects in the States, including applicants for naturalization, will be subject to draft in British and Canadian armies.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 23.— Passengers aboard the Dutch steamer, "Nieuw Amsterdam" at The Hague, are reported to have received anonymous warnings not to sail on her, similar to those issued when the Lusitania was sunk.

Plot Discovered.

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. — Widespread reports that an attempt is to be made to blow up every ship in American harbours is discredited by the government, which has been making an investigation. Additional guards were placed on all vessels.

A Bold Fight.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The sinking of the Breslau was the result of a bold fight put up by the British destroyers Lizard and Tigress.

The Hun Drive.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The British are ready for the Hun drive, the importance of which the German Command is exaggerating.

Situation Critical.

Canadian Press Despatch:

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — Special cables represent the situation in Austria as extremely critical.

Ships Chartered.

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Jan 23.—The thirty German ships seized by Brazil when that country entered the war, have been chartered by the French government. The vessels aggregate one hundred and twenty thousand tons.

AUGUSTUS PEABODY GARDNER.

I see—within my spirit—mystic walls,
And slender windows casting hallowed light
Along dim aisles where many a shadow falls
On text and triphy, effigy and tomb;
And here each youthful hero and old knight
Sleeps on his marble couch, while overhead
The tattered banners shed their bloom
Of glory o'er the dead.

Here, raised in brass or graved in stone,
And dated with the passing year,
Are names — companions I have known,
Whose hands I clasped but yesterday,
Whose voices ring within my ear;
And friends of earlier epochs far away,
Whose spirits answer to my call
Of names familiar as my own,
Written upon this chapel wall.
How strange to find them here!

Zionists To Go To Palestine To Establish Jewish Nation

LONDON, Jan. 23.—At a Zionist meeting it was announced that Great Britain would in a few weeks allow a Jewish commission to go to Palestine to prepare for the establishment of a Jewish nation. The commission will be followed by a staff of technical experts, engineers, architects, agriculturists, and town planners.

It is not the intention of the Zionist Mission to create in Palestine a group of international financiers to exploit the country, and the Arab proletariat, but to place on land, which will be purchased, the Jewish proletariat, who, it is hoped, will work in harmony with the Arabs.

DILLINGHAM SONG-LECTURE AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, MONDAY, 28th JAN.

A crowded church is looked for on Monday evening, when Miss Dillingham will tell her story of her varied experiences in France, where she has visited and entertained the soldiers over four hundred times, and with whom she is a tremendous favourite. She has come in close contact with all ranks, and under all kinds of conditions.

Men returning to the firing line, men coming from it for a well-earned rest, weary, muddy, worn-out men, who had to be cheered up, who had seen comrade after comrade fall, men in hospital wounded and in pain. All these came under her cheering influence. Miss Dillingham is a graduate in elocution, which enables her to tell of her experiences in a vivid and dramatic manner. She is a singer of the first rank, known to every choral society and musical festival in the old country, and she will sing, recite and lecture, and a thoroughly delightful evening is assured to all.

Gounod's "Faust."—Newport Choral Society.

Miss Lillian Dillingham has a voice of delicate beauty and sweetness, and her interpretation of the music of Marguerite was delightful. In "The King offThule," balad the tragedy of devotion blended with the spirit of tender dreaming; in the "Jewel Song" she sang so brilliantly and finished with so spirited a climax that the audience were carried away; and in the final scene she showed splendid passion and power, so that her final performance was the most striking.—South Wales News.

"Hiawatha."—Guernsey Guilt-Alles Choral Association.

In strong contrast was the whole-hearted music of Miss Dillingham, whose picturing of the delirium of Minnehaha and her last agonised cry for her spouse was full of tragic power. Similarly sincere was her singing of the lament of old Nokomis. The lighter and more cheerful descriptive solos in the third part Miss Dillingham sang with brilliant vocalisation, and proved herself a sincere and worthy artiste . . . receiving a tremendous ovation.—The Star (Guernsey).

"Tale of Old Japan" and Miscellaneous.—South Shields Choral Society.

Without a doubt Miss Lillian Dillingham was the "star" of the evening. She is an artiste of culture and refined temperament, and a more capable exponent of the part of Kimi would be difficult to find. There was sure taste and expression in her singing, and she was at all times equal to the demands on her resources, while the intensity of dramatic power she displayed compelled the highest admiration. . . . Miss Dillingham sang most beautifully Mendelssohn's "Infidlee," and responded to a great ovation with "The Blind Ploughman," in which she once again scored a triumph by her charming and emotional singing.—South Shields Daily Gazette and Telegraph.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

AUSTRIAN STRIKE TROUBLES

The Austrian People Are Longing For Peace—The Industrial Tie-up is Spreading

STRIKE NOT "STAGED"

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Ed. L. Keen.)

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Austrian strike troubles are genuine, according to the conviction expressed in authoritative circles. The first suspicion here that they were "stage-managed" by the government itself was dissipating rapidly. The general movement in Emperor Karl's monarchy is due to the public's weariness with the war, to widespread dissatisfaction with Teutonic manipulations at Brest-Litovsk and to the increasing scarcity of food. The public's longing for peace has been recently accentuated by the boldly democratic war aims proclaimed by Lloyd George and by President Wilson. The plain citizenry of the Dual Monarchy reading these terms can find little in them to support the frantic plea of German junkers and militarists that the Allies seek to divide the Central Empires and that the main aim of Germany's energies is conquest. The widespread growth of this sort of public feeling in the opinion of well informed officials, is bound to make a resumption of the Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations a ticklish matter for the Central Powers.

Of actual news of developments in connection with the strikes, Austrian censorship to-day permitted only the most fragmentary reports. Enough leaked through, however, to indicate a spread of the industrial tie-up of Prague, Brunn and other cities.

"What's the matter?" asked one.

"Matter? Haven't you heard the latest news?" demanded the editor. "I've just heard that the Egyptian army was crossing the Red Sea, and the whole bunch of them's being drowned! Now hustle along and get a special edition out, quick!"

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"In the restaurant where I was having my launch an hour back, I scribbled down as near as I could remember, the number of times he interrupted and why. Here's the list. Twice he came to the rescue when the inspector asked Mrs. Foxe if the girl, when she met them at the station had said nothing about the excitement in the house. He was real carfeul to establish an alibi for both of them, and it's a fine one. If it had been planned ahead it couldn't be better.

"Then he cut in quick when his wife started to tell what they knew of Ivy Collins and her life and associates, and made out that they were ignorant entirely of her affairs, which was pretty thin. He made the first break by showing his uneasiness when the inspector nodded to me to produce the paper knife, but it was clear he didn't suspect me. Then he came to be killed, but it wouldn't surprise me to find out that there was some secret about it, independent of the murder itself, that he would be glad to hush up," he added. "When people accept off-hand, as you might say, a fact that ordinarily they'd be supposed to demand the last, strongest proof of before they would be convinced, it's a pretty sure sign that they're ready to believe it—that they want to believe it. The aunt may have been just naturally overcome with the horror and grief of the whole thing, but Quimby kept himself in hand and acknowledged the identification at the first proof shown him. It's almost as if he was glad of it; glad to have her out of the way for some reason.

"Well, whether he is or no, I suppose now he'll have to offer a big reward for the capture of the one that did it, if only to save his face. If it is true he's not sorry for her death he couldn't afford to let the public get a smell of that. How do you suppose it'll all turn out, Mac? If they could once find out what errand would take a girl like this Marion Rowntree to the Glamorgan last night——"

McCarty struck his knee impatiently.

"The thing to find is the man—if it was a man—who struck the blow that sent her to her death!" he exclaimed.

"You have her own word that it was a man, a flying man," Dennis reminded him. "And that's got you nowhere. 'Tis a riddle she left behind her, and no mistake. Well, I know, if you had the man picked out, he could not fly too high but what you'd be going after him, Mac. But you have had a talk with the two of them on my own hook, though. The inspector let them down easy, but 'tis only the beginning."

"And that's all you've got to go on?" Dennis's voice betrayed acute disappointment. "You're leaving all the other apartments out of consideration and centering on them three, and, according to you, the people in all three of them lied. Now, they don't appear even to know each other, and it ain't in reason they could all be connected with what happened. One of them might, but that's not even sure. What did you find out today?"

"First off, I saw Bill Grahty at the morgue."

He told of his interview with that individual, and the latter's opinion of the dead girl's stepfather.

"I wouldn't go so far as to say that Quimby knew or even suspected how she came to be killed, but it wouldn't surprise me to find out that there was some secret about it, independent of the murder itself, that he would be glad to hush up," he added. "When people accept off-hand, as you might say, a fact that ordinarily they'd be supposed to demand the last, strongest proof of before they would be convinced, it's a pretty sure sign that they're ready to believe it—that they want to believe it. The aunt may have been just naturally overcome with the horror and grief of the whole thing, but Quimby kept himself in hand and acknowledged the identification at the first proof shown him. It's almost as if he was glad of it; glad to have her out of the way for some reason.

"Well, whether he is or no, I suppose now he'll have to offer a big reward for the capture of the one that did it, if only to save his face. If it is true he's not sorry for her death he couldn't afford to let the public get a smell of that. How do you suppose it'll all turn out, Mac? If they could once find out what errand would take a girl like this Marion Rowntree to the Glamorgan last night——"

McCarty struck his knee impatiently."

"The thing to find is the man—if it was a man—who struck the blow that sent her to her death!" he exclaimed.

"You have her own word that it was a man, a flying man," Dennis reminded him. "And that's got you nowhere. 'Tis a riddle she left behind her, and no mistake. Well, I know, if you had the man picked out, he could not fly too high but what you'd be going after him, Mac. But you have no single clue to find him out. There are so many things about this that no explanation seems to fit——"

"There are," agreed McCarty grimly. "The dead girl's purse for instance."

"You said nothing to me about any purse."

"No more did anybody. None was found, to talk about; that is the queer part of it. She must have carried one or some sort of a wrist bag even if it was only a little silk thing with a powder puff. It didn't come down with her in her fall, and it must be hid in the building somewhere, or else——"

Dennis nodded comprehendingly.

"Or else the girl had it with her that went away."

"If it is still in the house, the inspector will find it, if he has to tear the place down brick by brick," McCarty prophesied. "No one would have a chance to dispose of it, for it is a safe bet he'll have everyone shadowed that he's not satisfied about in his own mind, and I'm thinking that it will be nearly everybody in the house, at this stage of the game, at least in the three apartments I've told you particularly about."

"Have you seen the afternoon papers?" There was a peculiar expression on Dennis's face.

"I have not. What's new?" McCarty asked, with a sidelong glance.

"Inspector Druet seems to think the case is one too many for him."

"What do you mean?"

Dennis spread the newspaper out flat across his knees. A great black heading ran across a double column:

TERHUNE ON ROWNTREE CASE

World-Famed Detective Called Upon to Aid Authorities in Baffling Mystery.

With a smothered ejaculation McCarty seized the paper and read the opening paragraphs to himself:

The celebrated scientific detective, Wade Terhune, whose phenomenal success in solving the most difficult criminal problems of the last decade has made him famous on two continents, has been retained by the district attorney, at the request of the chief of police, to assume charge of the investigation into the circumstances surrounding the tragic death last night of Miss Marion Rowntree, stepdaughter of the noted banker, Stephen Quimby.

The chief of police, in an interview immediately succeeding this announcement, asserted that this move was in no sense an admission of failure on the part of his staff. He has, on the contrary, the utmost confidence in the ability of his subordinates; but it is an acknowledged fact that Wade Terhune has scientific facilities at his disposal which the police department is unable to command, and his record of success is unique in the annals of criminal investigation. His commission in this instance is an evidence of the determination of the authorities to leave no stone unturned in bringing the matter to an immediate and triumphat conclusion. It is understood that Inspector Druet, who has had charge of the investigation since its inception, himself suggested to the chief the advisability of consulting the renowned crime specialist.

McCarty folded the paper slowly. "Well," he remarked at length, "We'll see some fireworks now, I am thinking."

CHAPTER VII.

THE METHODS OF WADE TERHUNE.

The morning newspaprs had little to add to the event chronicled on the evening before.

A second minute inspection of the Glamorgan and exhaustive inquiries amounting practically to a cross-examination of the various tenants, had elicited no further result, and proceedings appeared to be at a standstill when Mr. Wade Terhune had assumed charge early in the afternoon. In accordance with his established custom, he would make no statement at this stage of the investigation and had no information for the press.

Stephen Quimby, the stepfather of the young girl whose tragic death was shrouded in mystery, had consented to an interview. He confirmed in every particular the report of his previous statement to the police and recounted what was known of his daughter's movements on the previous day.

Miss Rowntree had remained indoors because of the apresive heat, until late afternoon, when she went with her aunt, Miss Beckwith, on a brief shopping expedition. The two ladies had dined together at home, Mr. Quimby himself having an engagement, and the little boy, Stephen, Jr., being given an early supper, as usual, in his nursery.

Miss Rowntree expressed herself as being greatly fatigued and enervated almost immediately after dinner. Miss by the weather, and went to her room Beckwith retired an hour later and tapped upon her niece's door in passing. Miss Rowntree had called out 'good night," and that was the best that those at home knew of her.

Mr. Quimby returned about midnight, smoked a last cigar in his study and retired. Ignorant of any untoward circumstance until awakened at 6 o'clock in the morning by the arrival of the detective to inform him of the tragedy.

Except for her slight indisposition due to the heat, Miss Rowntree had appeared quite as usual. Her maid asserted that she had helped her prepare to retire, and the garments found upon the body later were not those she had worn during the day.

When asked if he intended to offer a reward for the capture of his daughter's assailant or for information concerning her death, Mr. Quimby declined to make a statement at this time.

The funeral would take place privately on the following day.

Ex-Roundsman McCarty found troubles of his own awaiting him in the morning's mail. Dennis's allusion on the previous day to the importunities and exactions of the Homevale tenants had been no idle remark. One discontented holder of an instalment-plan title had reached the limit of his endurance in a protracted duel with McCarty's thrift, and the latter was reluctantly preparing to surrender, when the door bell thrilled a peremptory summons.

As on the morning before, he reconnoitered cautiously from the window. A long, low, torpedo-shaped roadster, with a chauffeur in impressive livery, stood at the curb and on the steps directly beneath him was a tall, spare, unfamiliar figure.

McCarty rubbed his immaculate chin reflectively, then pressed the button in the wall which released the entrance lock. Brisk footsteps sounded upon the chairs and in another moment his visitor appeared in the doorway. He was an individual of approximately forty, slightly bald, slightly stoop-shouldered, with a keen, ascetic, smooth-shaven face and the well-poised, alert, self-confident air of a professional man.

At sight of him McCarty emitted a gasp, but instantly recovered himself, and came quickly forward.

"It's Mr. Terhune, isn't it?" he asked. "Come right in, sir, and sit down. 'Tis about the Rowntree case you wanted to see me."

"Partley, my dear McCarty! It gives me an excuse for making the acquaintance of a man whose excellent work in other cases is not unknown to me. Handicapped as you were by your complete disregard of deductive methods and lack of imaginative construction, you yet handled the Throckmorten jewel robbery and the Davenport poisoning affair, and one or two others which I have in mind, in a really admirable manner."

McCarty accepted the tribute warily.

(To Be Continued.)

SUFFERED TERRIBLY WITH HER HEART

Would Wake Up Smothering

The terrible smothering and choking up sensations and sinking spells, the feelings of dizziness and faintness that come over those whose heart and nerves are deranged causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

Mrs. A. M. Powell, Norval Station, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered five years with my heart and nerves, but the last two years I have suffered terribly. If I went to bed I would wake up as if I were smothering. I did not get one night's sleep out of seven. I got so very weak that the doctor was called in, and he said it was my heart, and that I must take great care of myself. I saw your advertisement in your almanac for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and said I would try them. I have only taken two boxes of them and I feel a new woman. I will recommend them to anyone afflicted with heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Hirst's Will Stop Pain, That's Sure

The thing to do first is to STOP THE PAIN.

If you have neuralgia, rheumatism, quinsy, or some other painful ailment, you have not been living right, you have not been eating the right food, or you have been doing something you should not do.

Nature will cure you if you will give it a chance, but in the meantime STOP THE PAIN. Hirst's Pain Exterminator will do it and do it quickly.

If it's a toothache, STOP THE PAIN with Hirst's. Then get the tooth fixed.

If it's burns, bruises, sprains or other injuries from accidents, STOP THE PAIN with Hirst's. Nature will do the rest, and do it quicker if you STOP THE PAIN.

DRINK HOT WATER AND RID JOINTS OF RHEUMATIC RUST

Why rheumatism and lumbago sufferers should drink phosphated hot water each morning before breakfast

Just as coal when it burns leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste material, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons, called uric acid, is formed and then sucked into the blood where it continues to circulate, collecting grain by grain in the joints of the body much like rust collects on the hinge as shown above.

Men and women who suffer from lumbago, rheumatism, or sore, stiff, aching joints should begin drinking phosphated hot water, not as a means of magic relief from pain, but to prevent more uric acid forming in the system. Before eating breakfast each morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will first neutralize and then wash out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's accumulation of toxins and poisons; thus, cleansing, sweetening, and freshening the entire alimentary canal, each morning, before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug-store, but is sufficient to make any rheumatic or lumbago sufferer an enthusiast on the morning inside bath.

Millions of people keep their joints free from these rheumatic acids by practicing this daily internal sanitation. A glass of hot water, with a teaspoonful of lime phosphate, drunk before breakfast, is wonderfully invigorating; besides it is an excellent health measure because it cleanses the alimentary organs of all the waste, gases and sour fermentations, making one look and feel clean, sweet and fresh all day.

Those who try this for one week may find themselves free from sick headaches, constipation, bilious attacks, sallowness, nasty breath and stomach acidity.

TROUBLE WITH DEALERS.

Neglected to Comply With Brantford Civic Bureau's Instructions.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 20.—When the Gibson Coal Co. and Miller and Milan, local dealers, refused to turn over to the civic fuel bureau five cars of hard coal received yesterday morning, Mayor McBride at once installed a policeman in each of the offices of the two companies to prevent the sale of any coal save that purchased by order of the municipal bureau. The City Council, at a special meeting yesterday, sanctioned the action of the Mayor and empowered him, together with the advisory fuel commission, to take such further action as may be necessary.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

The prompt and positive action of this simple, inexpensive home-made remedy in quickly healing the inflamed or swollen membranes of the throat, chest or bronchial tubes and breaking up tight coughs, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in the throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. You then have 16 ounces—a family supply of a much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and is known the world over for its promptness, ease and certainty in overcoming stubborn coughs and chest colds.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

USING WASTAGE OF WAR.

Britain Recovering War Material from Battlefields of France.

LONDON.—A huge scheme of salvage which is expected to save Great Britain $500,000,000 a year, is about to be put into operation under a board of twelve army experts, for the purpose of collecting and bringing back from France the whole of the war material that has been lying there unused or half-used, and remaking it for the army. In this fashion enormous quantities of copper, steel, and various commodities, which otherwise would need to be brought from the United States, will be made available, effecting a large saving in tonnage.

There are dumps in France so extensive that it will take a thousand men weeks to remove them. The task will be undertaken systematically and spread over a period long enough to avoid any strain on labour at the front.

Many a Business has Dried Up in the place of its Birth; Because its Proprietor Lacked Courage to Talk About It.

THE FEEDING OF CALVES

Giving a calf an extra good start the first six months of its life, and doing so cheaply, is the secret of successful and economical stock raising.

No matter how good the calf at birth, it will be handled at a loss, or more or less seriously handicapped for future usefulness and profit if not fed carefully and cheaply in its early days.

The present high prices of whole milk practically exclude this product being used to any extent in calf rearing, although it is absolutely necessary for the first three or four weeks if the best results are to be obtained. To discover the best substitutes for whole milk and the best methods and practices in calf feeding, a large number of experiments have during the past three years been conducted on the Dominion Experimental Farms. The detailed results of this work will be published in the near future. However a few deductions from these experiments is given herewith.

I. It is more profitable to breed and rear good young stock to maturity, than to purchase the average cows for sale, which are usually the animals least profitable and desirable in the neighbor's herd.

II. The cheapest way of building up a good herd is to raise it. The feed costs of good rearing in Canada range from $16 to $24.30 for 6 months calves; $24 to $45 for 12 months calves; and $37 to $74.30 for 24 months heifers, the variation depending upon methods of feeding, feeds available and market values of these feeds.

III. Calves of poor type and breeding are not worth rearing, but good calves properly bred will be worth at least 30 per cent., and up to 100 per cent. more than their feed cost at two years of age.

IV. Calves of good size, strong constitution and large capacity will, on the same feed, make greater growth, and better gains, than small, weak, narrow individuals.

V. Good rearing of calves is most profitable as shown in such results as:

Earlier maturity in size.

Earlier maturity in profitable production.

Greater production throughout the whole life time.

Healthier stock.

More durable animals.

Better able to consume most profitably all cheap farm-grown roughages, and convert these into milk.

VI. The calf reared on its dam costs 25 to 50 per cent. more than the pail-fed calf, and the more productive the cow the greater will be the charges against the calf.

VII. Pail-fed calves reared to 6 to 8 months largely on whole milk, make gains which cost $14 to $18.75 per cwt., which is several times the cost when a properly fed substitute for whole milk is used.

VIII. Skim-milk fed sweet and at a temperature of about 90 degrees Fahr., is the best single substitute for whole milk, and may reach a value of 70 cents per cwt., or more, in feeding young calves. However, skim milk may be improved by the addition of a good cream substitute such as flaxseed jelly, oatmeal or a well-balanced calf meal.

IX. Buttermilk, if fed uniformly as to acidity and temperature, may have a slightly greater value than skim-milk. Great caution must, however, be taken to start calves at a greater age, and very gradually.

X. In feeding calves to 6 to 8 months of age on rations composed largely of skim-milk or butter-milk, and a good cream substitute, gains may be made at a cost of feed amounting to from $2 to $7.15 per cwt., this amount varying with the character and price of meal, and the ruggedness and thrift of the calves.

XI. If well started on mother's milk, calves may be well reared on calf meals without whole or skim-milk. However, greater care and attention must be paid to these calves, and even so, gains cost from $5 to $15.41 per cwt., or nearly double the cost where some skim-milk is used.

XII. There are many excellent calf meals on the market in Canada. The Canadian manufactured meals are as good and generally decidedly superior to imported meals, due not only to the palatability of the ingredients and the chemical balance, but even more to freshness and freedom from mustiness.

Of the Canadian made calf meals used the three which in total gains have given excellent satisfaction are Royal Purple, Gold Dollar and Caldwell's.

Providing the necessary ingredients are available, it may often be more economical for the feeder to mix his own calf meals. If properly done the resulting gains in weight of the calves may be nearly as great, and often at a much reduced cost.

XIII. In order to rear the best and cheapest cows, all pail-fed calves should be taught to eat, at an early age, cheap and nutritious farm-grown roughages and grains. The best roughages are grass, fine alfalfa or clover hay, swede turnip, mangels and ensilage. Of the grains, oats and barley are unexcelled.

TO HAVE BETTER CALVES.

I. Give suitable feeds and avoid overfeeding.

II. Feed regularly and carefully.

III. Keep calf pens clean and freshly bedded.

IV. Avoid in every possible way all such infectious diseases as scours, tuberculosis, black leg and abortion.

V. Destroy parasites such as worms, ringworm and lice.

BRANTFORD GETS COAL.

Seven Cars Arrive and Are Added to the Two Seized.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 18.—The coal situation in the city to-day has taken some change by the arrival of seven cars this afternoon and two cars which were dumped by persons unknown to Mayor MacBride, having broken down here in transit. The coal was taken to the market place and will be distributed to fuel sufferers by the local dealers under direction of the city officials.

FATAL WRECK IN GERMANY.

Soldiers Killed When Embankment Collapses Under a Train.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—A German official despatch, dated at Saarbrucken, Rhenish Prussia, reports the wreck of a train bearing soldiers on leave, due to the collapse of an embankment near Kirn, causing the death of some passengers and the injury of others. The engine, the baggage car and two passenger coaches were overturned. No further details are given.

Fills Stomach With New Energy

Weak, Worn Out, Gassy, Sour Stomach Revived and Made to Enjoy Food With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Most of us eat three times a day and often forget that each meal should be disposed of in the stomach to make room for the next. The failure of the stomach to do that is called indigestion or dyspepsia, with its sour risings, gas, rumblings, pain, depression, and the feeling of stuffiness when breathing is difficult.

The most effective remedy and the most reliable one, because you can get it at any drug store in the United States or Canada, is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at 50 cents a box. Instead of depriving yourself of food or going on a starvation diet simply keep on as you have and let these tablets straighten out your stomach, digest the food, and keep you in the fight.

CANADA'S ACHIEVEMENT CITED IN DEBATE IN PRUSSIAN DIET

AMSTERDAM, Jan 23. — In the Lower House of the Prussian Diet, Dr. Franz Mehring, Independent Socialist, made the following inquiry:

"If Canada with less than nine million inhabitants, has been able to throw a quarter of a million soldiers into Europe, who were not able to fly or swim, what grounds has the Finance Minister for denying to the United States, with 110,000,000 inhabitants, any military capacity?"

Dr. Mehring proceeded to reprove the Prussian Finance Minister, Dr. Hertz, for such criticisms, which, he declared, was likely to bring heavy penalties in its train, especially if coupled with empty threats.

The Minister, replying, admitted that he was unable to prove his statement concerning the American Army, but was still convinced that it could not come over."

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVED HIS LIFE.

The Golden Lake correspondent of the Eganville Leader writes: "Edward Luloff is now able to be about again after diving off the railway bridge and trying to swim under the ice This might have had serious consequences. He was with a snow gang out to Pembroke and on his return in the evening was getting off the train as the bridge when the accident occurred. He stepped out on the wrong side, and having a pail, some shovels and a parcel in his hand, went right down a distance of fourteen feet onto the ice. He broke through and went under, but with rare presence of mind he walked under the ice twenty feet up steam where it was open and where rescuers pulled him out."

THE EXAMINER DOLLAR DAY

The day when the Dollar Bill talks louder in Peterborough Stores than any other day in the year. This Year it will be held on—

THURSDAY, JAN. 24

About 30 of the principal stores in the City are participating, and are busy preparing the best list of bargains they can possibly find in their splendid stocks, and shoppers will certainly appreciate the extremely varied offerings such a large array of stores will assure. As usual the big list of Cash Bonuses is a liberal one, as the Merchants are giving away

$175 =CASH= PRIZES

This money will be given away in this way:—With every Dollar Purchase on that day, an Estimating Blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and dropped into the Ballot Box at "The Examiner Office" by 10.15 p.m. on DOLLAR DAY.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the 1st Prize of $25; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15, and so on.

Store Employees excluded. Prizes are intended for the public exclusively, and employees of the stores are not allowed to compete.

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last Dollar Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 10,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 24th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

You can recognize all the Stores where DOLLAR SPECIALS are being given by the BLUE LETTERED PENNANTS IN THEIR WINDOWS.

The following Merchants will display the Pennants, and issue Estimating Blanks with every Dollar Purchase in their Stores on DOLLAR DAY:

A GALLANT DUKE.

His Excellency, the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada, comes from a long line of lordly forbears, but he is withal a great democrat and even a graceful diplomat, though one cannot say that the praise he gave the women of Canada was more diplomatic than sincerely truthful. Speaking at the launching of Toronto's great three days' three million dollar Patriotic Fund drive, the gallant Duke, among other things, said:

> The past year has also been a period for which we have some reason to be proud. Having travelled from coast to coast, I have learned something of Canadian character. One of the things that has impressed me in the highest degree was the heroic devotion and determination of the women of Canada to play their part. This is not only true in the big centres of population, but in the country, too.

This handsome tribute of the Duke is one of which we don't think enough, whose truth we perhaps don't fully realize or recognize. We do not, perhaps, fully realize what we owe to the women of Canada in the prosecution of this endless war.

We know that the burden of the anxiety, grief and sorrow fall most heavily upon the wives and sisters and mothers of the battling and battered fighting soldiers. But none of know, and none of us can know, the extensive, persistent and tireless work of the women of Canada, in providing for the comfort and well being of our soldiers. We cannot measure the extent of the sacrifice of leisure and comfort and rest from the unending care of the home, borne in order to knit and sew for the soldiers. There work is not spectacular. It is not done in the sight of men, and wins no applause from men, except the men in the trenches and hospitals.

None but women could put so much heart and so much tiresome, yet tireless effort, borne with endless patience, into war work as Canadian—and Peterborough women, too—have done and are doing to-day, and will continue doing to-morrow. Men—though men do nobly in their way—wouldn't do it. They would hire somebody to do it for them. Men might sacrifice money or cut down the cigar supply two or three a week, but they wouldn't sacrifice their social pleasures, their home leisure, their hours of rest, as women have been doing, and are doing by the million, all over Canada.

This war has brought us the new woman, not the female faddist, but the noble new woman who stands as the highest type of sacrifice and service.

We cannot reward their unselfish service—only one Source of reward is equal to that. But we can hold women in higher honour, give them larger appreciation, and admit their rights. In a thousand ways our Canadian women have shown their superiority to men, and it is not too much to ask that their well earned rights of recognition of civil equality should be conceded. Women have richly earned the vote, and if the present Union government, largely made by women, does not give women the franchise, they don't deserve the vote of any decent, patriotic and fair-thinking man.

Without adequate food control and conservation, we may have famine—if not at home, in Britain and among our allies.

LET US GET DOWN TO IT.

We must think more to the end that we may realize more fully the demand that is made upon us in connection with conserving and producing food—saving food that we may send it overseas, where the need of it is directly and closely associated with the military success that victory demands. As we as individuals and as a people are concerned, it is feared that we do not realize the deep seriousness of the situation.

This failure to realize makes us ready to criticize measures suggested, and to disregard, if not to scoff at, appeals to more and more economy of food and other things and more self-denial. We are all too ready to "knock" our Food Controller, and describe him as "a mere theorist"—who works without pay, and nobly earns his salary—whose talking represents the most of his function. But his talking, his urging, his pleading, are the essence of his office—are just the things needed to make us think and help us realize. This done, a great part of what we can do is done, or in the way of doing. We mistake the Food Controller's work and duties. We chafe and fret and chide because he has not cut down prices. That is not his business; his business is not to help us save money, but to help us and make us save food that can be bought—at almost any price as long as it can be got to buy. Food for export, not cheap prices for food for home consumption, is the call.

We Canadians must learn to know that all government regulations, all in relation to food, are not made so much in the interests of the people of Canada themselves; as in the interests of the requirements of our soldiers and those of our allies. We are called upon to save and economize in food by saving in order that our soldiers and the soldiers of the Empire may not have to economize; but may be kept well fed and fit to do our fighting for us; as they are doing and have to do. We can only fight, by keeping our enrolled and mobilized and entrenched soldiers supplied—with man power reinforcements, with socks and hospital necessities and, above all, with food.

We are called upon now to make sacrifices to save, to economize, when it is a voluntary act, in order that in the future we may not be called upon to make greater sacrifices—not sacrifices of luxuries or certain forms of food, but sacrifices of greater things—things that the loss of our liberties would bring. We should be willing to make these sacrifices—if it is to be called sacrifice—to abstain from certain forms of food, with plenty to take their place, in order that we may have food to send overseas—to feed our soldiers and save the women and children of our allies. Already in Britain and France the people have to make much more than the sacrifices we think we are making. Mr. T. B. Macaulay, chairman of the National Committee on Food Conservation, pictures the popular food conditions in Britain and France in these words:

> "I have seen pieces of bread, meat, butter and sugar cut to the actual sizes allowed by the British rations, and they certainly make a small meal. But when I measured the quantities allowed in France, and saw the pitiable meals which have to satisfy the people of that noble country, I felt like bowing my head in shame when I thought of our extravagance, and remembered that we are partly responsible for these rations."

There should not be any hesitation in Canadian food consumers heeding the call of the Food Controller for such regulation of diet, such use of foods, as will conduce to saving wheat, beef and bacon for export, the articles most greatly needed. If the Food Controller doesn't, or can't, control food prices he is doing a splendid work if his talk, his injunctions, his pleading, make us realise how much we can help in the war and help our allies by saving food in such a way as to provide a larger exportable bulk.

Some people don't take to this, because they feel that what little they can do will not count. They are mistaken. The truth of the proverb holds—"Every little helps." Mr. McAuley says that the effect of even partial cooperation in food saving has been that "the normal consumption of wheat flour has been reduced by 25 per cent.," which means a saving of ten million bushels. This can be increased ten fold or more by universal cooperation in the work of food saving. If we can save 100 million bushels of wheat for export by saving and can add another 100 million by increased production, Canada will make a splendid contribution to winning the war.

We often complain of the high cost of living; but if by failure to do our best, we came under German rule, it wouldn't be a question of living—we would prefer to die.

AMERICAN BANKERS ENTHUSED OVER IT

Officials of Financial Institutions in the States Praise Tanlac

Among the countless thousands of prominent people all over America who have taken Tanlac and praised it for the benefits they derived from it, none are more enthusiastic than the two well-known bankers, whose statements follow:

E. J. Henry, president of the Hawkinsville Band and Trust Co., Hawkinsville, Ga., says: "Last spring I was all wrong some way or other and couldn't get right. I took a bottle of Tanlac and began to improve. Two more bottles put me in good shape, and I felt perfectly well. A few weeks ago I took the Grippe and was getting down and out again. I bought another bottle of Tanlac and I am well again. I unhesitatingly recommend Tanlac to anyone who is sick and worn out."

W. C. M'Elveen, Cashier Bank of Hornbeck, Louisiana, says: "I have taken five (5) bottles of Tanlac and have gained fifteen pounds in three weeks. I think it is a great medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd.

THREE HIGHLY TECHNICAL MEN OF NAVY DISMISSED

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 21.—As a result of the investigation into the nationality, affiliations and record of every man in the navy, three highly technical experts in the hydrographic office have been dismissed.

Confidential character of the work they did made it necessary, officials said. One of the men had been attached to the office thirty-seven years.

KATINKA MUSICIANS INTERNED

WINDSOR, Jan. 22.—Until the end of the war at least, "Katinka," she of the tuneful musical comedy of the same name, will not dance to the strains of the violin, 'cello, and bass drum played by Max Drossman, Hugo Zornig, and William Fleck, formerly of the Kaiser's army and navy, for the trio of musicians were ordered interned to-day, after Alphonso Bachelder, manager of the "Katinka" Musical Comedy Company, was fined $600 and costs in Windsor Police Court for assisting the Germans into the Dominion.

He pleaded that as they had taken out their first citizenship papers he thought his action was legal. The manager was arrested at Toronto, and brought here. It is alleged the action followed the complaint of Toronto musicians.

The company entered Canada at Windsor, 6th January, after playing at Ann Arbor. According to the testimony of David H. Reynolds, Canadian Travelling Immigration Inspector, Bachelder when passing inspection at Windsor, signed a manifesto stating that all the members of the company were United States citizens.

WHAT THE GERMANS ARE SAYING

It is interesting to observe the comments of the enemy's press on the Russian negotiations for an armistice. The jingo press naturally wants to treat Russia as a conquered enemy, although it is prepared to be generous to Russia at the expense of her Western Allies. The Vossische continues to harp on the need of making a generous peace with Russia in order to secure her permanent friendship in the future. The Democratic and Socialist press are enthusiastic at the prospects, but fear they may be spoiled by united and open annexationism on the part of the Government. The Arbeiter-Zeitung fears that the Central Powers may spoil the work of Russian Socialism by insistence on guarantees.

"No word has done more harm to the cause of the Central Powers than the word guarantees, which is interpreted abroad as covering plans of annexations. Candid, clear language must be employed in dealing with Russia, so that the other Entente Powers also may be convinced of the honourable intentions of the Central Powers."

The Austrian press as a whole expects that the effect of the negotiations will be to incline the Entente to make peace.

This desire for a general peace was emphasised by Czernin, who has made two speeches to the Austro-Hungarian delegations. In the first of these, delivered on 3rd December, he spake on the Monarchy's terms of peace, renewing his former offer of peace without annexations or indemnities.

"Our aim is to conclude a peace whereby the freedom, independence, and territorial integrity of Austria-Hungary shall be maintained invtolate. We are striving for no territorial extensions by force and no economic oppression. We only demand effective guarantees for our free and unhampered future development. Agreements on the gradual, simultaneous, and mutual reduction of armaments, and on the freedom of the seas, with the simultaneous introduction of obligatory arbitration, provided with corresponding guarantees, might offer us such guarantees. We are thus prepared to conclude with our enemies a general, just, and honourable peace, safeguarding the territorial integrity of the Monarchy."

Thus, as in previous utterances, "guarantees" are explained as involving either territorial expansion or disarmament. In his second speech, apparently on 5th December, Czernin discussed relations with Germany. He stated that the Monarchy was at one with Germany "on the basis of a defensive war," referring to Kuhlmann's utterance, "We are fighting for Alsace-Lorraine," and stating that the Monarchy would be prepared, if necessary and possible, to send troops to the Western Front. It is perhaps noticeable that he also said this in connection that the Monarchy was in a better position than Germany, her territory being inviolate, whereas the German colonies were in enemy hands. The same speech repeated the threat that the enemy might get worse terms later, and rejected all idea of foreign intervention in Austro-Hungarian affairs, and in this connection welcomed President Wilson's utterance, while deploring his proposal to declare war on the Monarchy. The speeches are well received in the German official and Democratic press, but are attacked by the Deutsche Tageszeitung, which writes:

It is all very well for Count Czernin to talk of peace by understanding, but the dual Monarchy is now practically out of danger (thanks to German aid), but that is not the case with Germany.

Austria-Hungary's soldiers will not merely, as Count Czernin said, have "to fight for Alsace-Lorraine." Such a point of view is very inclusive. What Austria-Hungary will have to do is to lend aid wherever Germany needs it to achieve her aims.

Other jingo organs take the same line, while the Leipziger Volkszeitung accuses him of annexationism, and the Arbeiter-Zeitung takes the occasion of attacking Germany for not stating her attitude as to Belgium. The same journal attacks the speeches of Tisza and Andrassy, who demanded territorial guarantees for the Monarchy. It also criticises the threats of a revision of terms if the Entente refuses peace now. Czernin was to have visited Berlin, but his visit was postponed owing to a sudden indisposition.

President Wilson's speech to Congress comes in for a great deal of comment of a not very illuminating character. It is, perhaps, however, significant that the Frankfurter Zeitung attacks the Wolff Bureau for sending out a very faulty and incomplete text of speech. M. Muenchener Nachrichten welcomes, however, his reference to "no annextions or indemnities," while the Socialist press deprecates his references to Democracy as tending to encourage reaction in Germany.

Other utterances on war aims include a typical manifesto by the Vaterlands-partei, which has started a new organisation called the "Bund der Kaisertreuen," which is apparently to do the work of the party in connection with internal politics. Reventlow unearths a curious rumour that Germany will offer to evacuate Belgium in return for Britain's evacuating Calais, and is naturally disgusted at it. Von Salzmann, in the Vossische, insists on the retention of German East Africa. The fall of Jerusalem is regarded as a regrettable incident from the moral point of view but as a very poor compensation to the Entente for the collapse of Italy and Russia. Radoslavoff makes a re-statement of Bulgaria's war aims on the usual lines, and the Pester Lloyd has made a vigorous demand for vengeance on Roumania and Italy.

VINOL CREATES STRENGTH

Positive—Convincing Proof

It is all very well to make claims, but can they be proven? We publish the formula of Vinol to prove the statements we make about it.

Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascarin.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol as published above, combine the very elements needed to make strength.

All weak, run-down, overworked nervous men and women may prove this at our expense.

There is nothing like Vinol to restore strength and vitality to feeble old people, delicate children and all persons who need more strength.

Try it. If you are not entirely satisfied, we will return your money without question; that proves our fairness and your protection.

GERMANS SECURE ECONOMIC GRIP OF DANISH PEOPLE

CLEVER PROPAGANDA TURNING FEELING AGAINST UNITED STATES

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 22—"Save us from Germany's economic grip" is little Denmark's heart-cry to America. Exploiting to the limit the opportunity afforded by America's embargo and the resultant Danish fears for the future, Germany's economic propaganda has made startling progress in undermining public opinion of the masses and placing Denmark under a heavy debt to Germany for vital economic favours received, which must be repaid during or after the war.

Cut off from America and the Western Powers, and continuously exposed to one-sided proffers of profuse German goodwill and commodities, Denmark realizes that unless it is saved by timely American help, it is fast slipping into Germany's receptive arms and economic serfdom.

Leading politicians, officials, captains of industry and big business men with whom I talked, and who necessarily are not to be quoted on such a delicate subject as Denmark's relations with Germany, were all haunted by the fear that if the present development continued, Denmark would be helplessly caught in the tentacles of the German economic octupus and would lose its economic, if not political, independence.

Several of the politicians, characterizing the release of two ships for Denmark by America as the first real ray of hope, if it proved symptomatic of America's future policy toward Denmark, hinted that if no economic help came from America, Denmark would find itself undesirably dependent on Germany.

GERMAN ATTITUDE ARROGANT.

One of Denmark's foremost economic authorities said:

"During the recent economic negotiations between Denmark and Germany, the German delegates clearly showed they felt that Germany held Denmark in the hollow of her hand." An official said: "If Ameirca continues her embargo policy, you will blow the whole of Scandinavia's trade south—to Germany—and not only Scandinavian but Finnish trade also."

Germany's subtle economic propaganda aims at drawing the a deadly parallel for Danish eyes of a "hard hearted America," deaf to Denmark's needs, and a benevolent Germany, proving a real friend in need.

And the Danish people are not allowed to forget that Danish railways and such industries as still are in operation are running thanks only to German soal; that Danish shipyards are able to build new peace tonnage, thanks only to German iron and steel; that Danish motor fishing boats are able to operate, thanks only to Roumanian gasoline and oil generously given by Germany.

The German propaganda even gave Denmark sufficient gasoline to run Copenhagen's omnibuses, taxicabs, and private automobiles over the Christmas holidays, so that to-day Copenhagen is able to indulge in business and even joy-riding for the first time in several months. The German propaganda even holds out the golden vision of Russian corn for Danish cattle, via Germany.

The effect already is noticeable in modifying the historic and heretofore intense anti-German feelings of the Danish people, with a corresponding cooling off of enthusiasm for America's cause, and that of the Entente Allies.

A prominent industrial leader expressed the popular Danish state of mind saying:

"It is only human nature that you cannot be angry with people who give you what you want and want badly."

COST TO LIVE IN ITALY DEAR

PRICES OF SOME ARTICLES DOUBLED AND MORE.

OLD FURNITURE SELL AS NEW

Expense of Housekeeping More Than Twice That of Year Ago—"War Time," Merchapts Say.

ROME—Italy this winter has passed from the position as one of the cheapest to one of the dearest war countries as regards cost of living. Speculation in food and clothing and heating material is generally held responsible for the very high prices, in many respects 50 per cent., higher than in France. Woollen goods that last summer were sold at $2.50 to $4 a yard are now being reinvoiced and sold in the same stores at $5 to $10 a yard. Women's clothes have been doubled or trebled in price, according to the whim of the store-keeper.

"If you don't buy now, you either won't get the chance at all later in the winter or else you will have to pay more money," purchasers are informed.

Second hand furniture of the most ordinary quality, particularly beds, mattresses, carpets, chairs and tables, sells for the price of new furniture. Single woollen mattresses that last spring sold for $10 each this winter sell for $20. The price of a cotton bed sheet is $3.

The cost of housekeeping has doubled since last winter. Eggs that formerly sold at 3 cents each, now sell for 7 to 9 cents. Fresh vegetables are sold almost at meat prices. Butter is 75 cents a pound. Sugar remains at 34 cents a pound, while coffee has gone to 80 cents a pound. Ham and bacon have disappeared entirely from the market as being too dear for anybody to buy. Oatmeal sells at 30 cents a pound.

Despite the fact that all of Italy is being denuded of forest timber to turn into firewood, and that wood has been one of the principal freight products on the railways all the past summer, coal sells at $70 a ton. Wood sells at 10 cents a pound. Electric light globes worth 15 cents sell at 50 cents.

Hotel prices have reached $5 to $6 a day in the better hotels of the larger cities, prices that would have seemed fabulous in Italy before the war.

"It's war time," is the inevitable and final answer to all objections regarding high prices.

DAIRYMEN PROFIT BY WAR.

Handling of Cheese by Commission Worth Millions to Producers.

STRATFORD, Jan. 17.—That on the whole the dairy industry had profited rather than suffered through the effects of the great war, was the statement of J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner for Canada, in addressing the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association.

The appointment of a cheese commission has caused considerable discussion, but, he declared, the handling of cheese by the commission had put millions of dollars into the pockets of Canadian producers. Business on old lines was impossible. One effect of the war might be the elimination of coloured cheese. The shortage of tin plate was especially emphasized.

HEALS INFLAMED ITCHING SKIN

A Home Treatment Which Relieves and Cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and All Itching Skin Diseases, and Leaves the Skin Soft, Smooth and Natural.

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 9.—As a means of allaying inflammation, relieving the dreadful itching and healing and curing itching skin diseases, ulcers, and eruptions, we believe that we can prove that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most potent preparation that it is possible to obtain.

So many extreme cases have been cured, so much intense and continued agony has been relieved, and such a host of people have volunteered their evidence in this regard that we challenge anyone to produce the endorsement for any Ointment or any preparation which is recommended for such diseases.

Dr. Chase's Ointment certainly stands alone, unapproached, and unrivalled as a healer of the skin, and positive cure for itching skin diseases. From pimples to eczema, from chilblains to ulcers, each and every form of itching skin disease have been cured by this great ointment.

Mrs. J. Chapman, 408 Dundas Street, Woodstock, Ont., writes: "About three years ago, I suffered greatly from an awful rash and irritation of the skin on my chest and back. I could not bear to touch it, and had to wear very loose clothing as nothing would rub against it. At night when I would lie down, I could get neither sleep nor rest. I tried different remedies and doctors' treatments, but never got any relief. At last my daughter advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. I did so, and after the first application I was able to get the first night's good rest that I had for a long time. I continued using the Ointment until I was completely cured."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is known in almost every community. Ask your neighbours about it. There is probably a marked cure at your door which you can investigate. The cures made by this preparation will stand investigation. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

The gown with individuality — a special suitability for the wearer—is no more delightful than one that is merely fashionable.

DECISIVE BATTLE EXPECTED

Number of Towns Captured by the Bolsheviki Forces--Peace Negotiations Not Likely to Succeed

"TREACHEROUS POLICY"

(By Jos. Shaplen)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 23—The breaking off of all peace negotiations at Brest Litovsk was forecasted in all the Bolsheviki newspaper organs today. Their unanimity would appear to indicate this prediction came from authoritative circles. The Bolsheviki view is that the only good accomplished by the negotiations has been to unmask the real imperialistic nature of the enemy's demands. According to comment here nothing more can possibly be expected from discussions. Both the Pravada and Isvestia to-day bitterly assailed the German Foreign Minister Kushlmann's treacherous dual policy. Official Bolsheviki reports to-day claimed victories over the Ukrainiarada troops at Poltava and the occupation of that city by Red Gurds. On the south of the Ukrainian front further advances have been registered, Novogorod-Severak captured, and progress made toward Bachmach. The Ukrainians are retreating. A decisive battle is expected shortly. The Bolsheviki have already taken Sarna, Achtirna and Troitsk.

Out of respect to the memory of Friday's victims of the assassins whose funerals are to-day the Bolsheviki Government postponed a scheduled demonstration at the winter palace and Smolny Institute. The Bolsheviki Government has been informed that a general peace strike at Vienna is due to the stnd adopted by the Central Powers at Brest Litovsk.

HARDWARE AND METAL MARKETS

Advices from Ottawa during the week intimate that the steel production of the Dominion is likely to be increased 20 per cent. as the result of a conference between the War Committee of the Cabinet and the Canadian steel manufacturers. Intimations have been made in some quarters that there is the possibility of establishment of mills for rolling of ship plate project is carried through the steel output will no doubt be increased considerably and will place Canada in a much better position in the building of steel ships. At the present time all the ship plate is imported from the United States.

Conditions in the hardware trade give promise of a good year, especially in the trade coming from the farming communities. The farmer has been getting good prices for all his produce and through his somewhat isolated location has perhaps not had the calls upon his purse for Victory Loan, Red Cross and other patriotic purposes that dwellers in the large centres have experienced. Wholesalers anticipate there should be an excellent trade from the rural communities during the coming year.

Price changes, while not as numerous as in some recent weeks, nevertheless include important changes. Table cutlery, cotton twine, skinning knives, butcher knives, bread mixers, food choppers, stove pipes are among the lines to record advances. Some stocks of Canada plate are now available as shipments have reached the Canadian market during the week. Linseed oil is in firm market. White lead in oil holds unchanged at the decline recorded last week. Business was greatly hampered during the first part of the week through the tie-up of transportation occasioned by recent storms.—"Hardware and Metal."

SEED WILL BE SCARCE.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—Seed for many varieties of field crops will be scarce during the coming season, and farmers will be wise to make arrangements for their supplies well in advance of planting. Such is the conclusion of the Food Controller's office.

The United States has imposed an embargo on the exportation of six of the principal varieties of seed peas, as less than 50 per cent. of the supply required for normal needs is available.

Germans Kill Their Officers and Surrender

SHOWS DETERIORATION OF THE ARMY, LIVERPOOL MAN SAYS.

LOOKS FOR EARLY COLLAPSE.

Briton Tells of Near Mutiny in Ranks of Enemy in Refusing to Stand Under Fire.

LIVERPOOL.—Evidence that the German commanders are well aware that the German army is deteriorating and that they have to try to keep it together by terrifying their troops is given in a letter written by an officer of a Liverpool regiment to one of the local newspapers. Expressing the opinion that the "collapse of the Germans will come soon," he added:

"The best cure for pessimism would be a few days in the front-line trenches. There are no pessimists here except among the German prisoners.

"The last time our battalion was in action we took quite a number of prisoners, and they were a dismal lot. One non-commissioned officer which whom I spoke told me that large numbers of the Germans not only will not face our fire, but refuse to attack. His own company had been under fire for nearly five days, and at last they had signed a round-robin to the company commander to say that they could not stay any longer. Two of the ringleaders were arrested with the idea of making an example of them, but their comrades demanded their release with such energy that the officers ordered them back to duty, but the men refused. The officers threatened the soldiers, who replied by killing all but four of the officers and marching over to the British lines to surrender.

"When this particular battalion was moved up against the British, the men had to be bullied into fighting by being sent into action in front of a moving barrage, which meant certain death to all who lagged behind.

"On another occasion recently, our Liverpool regiment had a fierce fight which ended up with a strange experience. We had heavily engaged and driven off in panic some Germans who had been holding a strong position. Moving on to the next objective, another party of the enemy appeared. We felt certain that we were in for a rough experience, but the truth was that this bunch wanted to surrender badly, and they had made a pretense of advancing to a counter-attack with the object of getting near enough to us to be sure of protection from their own officers.

"When the German command found out what had happened, they sent forward a great body of reserves with orders to recapture our prisoners. Heavy gunfire rained on us, of which the prisoners got a good share. They begged us hard to save them, and we did all we could. But at one stage we were nearly caught, when the enemy suddenly turned on a party of liquid fire experts. Fortunately, we were alert and charged at once, capturing the whole liquid fire outfit. There ensued a terrible row between the earlier prisoners and the men we had taken with the liquid fire outfit. The fire prisoners wanted to kill the liquid fire men. We had our hands full getting them all back."

ASSERT SPIES INFEST DETROIT'S FACTORIES

Manufacturers Protest to City Officials That Germans Are Delaying Munitions Work.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 21.—Detroit is a nest of German spies who are holding up war supplies, according to a large number of munition manufacturers who appeared before the Common Council committee to protest against the passage of a law licensing private detectives.

It was stated that thousands of the Kaiser's best soldiers were here in Detroit and that every big Detroit factory had its German fighters who fought by keeping back the production of ammunition and thus far had been highly successful.

J. M. Eaton, Superintendent of the Lincoln Motor Company, engaged in making motors for airplanes, declared that his company should have been sending motors to France two months ago, but shipments had not yet started because of the Germans.

"Our tools, which we use in the manufacture of these motors," said Mr. Eaton, "are made in twenty-nine different factories in Detroit. The tools are delicate and must be exactly right, or they are worthless in our work. Most of them are delivered to us damaged beyond repair, so that we cannot use them. The result is that we are two months behind on our schedule. That is helping the Kaiser with a vengeance, for we have learned beyond question that these tools were damaged by German spies which infest the factories."

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

MORE WHEAT TURNED INTO FLOUR

Only One Grade of Flour to Be Milled—The Grocery Market

The following comment on the market situation as regards foodstuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

Of more than usual interest during the week was the regulation issued by the Food Controller stipulating that on and after 28th January only one grade of flour shall be milled which shall contain a higher percentage of the wheat. Where the milling interests extracted from 70 to 72 per cent. of the wheat previously, under the new regulation there will be approximately 74 per cent. of the wheat berry turned into flour. This is a radical step in the milling industry. It is anticipated the price for the new grade of flour will be on about the same basis as second patents flour under the present system of milling.

Rolled oats are still in very strong market owing to the heavy demand on account of the British Government and also to the very high price prevailing for the grain. Package rolled oats showed an advance during the week as the mills assert they have been losing money on the previous basis for some weeks past. Some Porto Rican bitter oranges for the making of marmalade came into the Canadian market during the week. Bitter oranges from Messina are expected to reach this market in the near future, as a consignment has arrived in New York which is destined for this market.

Potatoes Firmer.

Advances in grocery commodities have again been numerous, and include jams, marmalade, malt vinegar, ammonia, lye, tobacco, shoe polish, hand cleaner, soda biscuits, cigarette papers, soap chips, cigars, clothes pins, baking powder, brooms, lamp wick, maple syrup. Potatoes are in a firmer market temporarily owing to the severe weather, which has prevented shipment, but lower prices are anticipated ere spring.

Margarine continues in good sale. Manufacturers of shortening are more hopeful that sufficient supplies of cottonseed oil will be obtainable as soon as the transportation situation improves. Storage butter was in firmer market during the week. Stocks of storage eggs are getting within narrow compass, but production of new-laid eggs shows improvement. Business has been hampered to a considerable extent through the severe storm during the past week.

HEMP FOR SEED

According to the "Weekly Bulletin" of the Department of Trade and Commerce for January, 1917, there was a shortage of hemp seed in Great Britain at that date. Supplies were formerly obtained from Russia and Turkey, the price before the war ranging from $6.81 to $8.76 per quarter, of 336 pounds. The present supplies come from Manchuria via New York, and at the date mentioned above the price varied from $29.20 to $34.07 per quarter.

In the hemp plant (Cannabis sativa), the sexes are on different plants, that is to say, some plants produce the fertilizing dust or pollen but no seeds, while other plants produce seeds but have no pollen.

When grown for seed, hemp should be sown as early as the state of the ground will permit. It should be sown in rows 3 to 4 feet apart, so as to have plenty of room for the seed-bearing plants.

Experiments conducted at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, have shown that it is quite possible to ripen hemp seed in the Province of Ontario. In the year 1915, the seeds were sown on the 21st of May, and the crop was harvested on various dates between the 22nd of October and the 11th of November. In the year 1916, the seed was sown on the 20th of April, and the plot was cut 20th of April, and the plot was cut the seed was sown on the 15th of May and the crop was harvested on the 9th of October. Hemp when ripening will stand as much as 9 degrees of frost without apparent injury.

The 1917 crop was grown from Russian seed and attained an average height of 6 feet 3 inches.

The crop is harvested by cutting, and the bundles are placed in stookes to dry. The seeds are beaten off with sticks on to a large sheet of cloth.

The yield of seed per acre calculated from the small plot grown in 1916, was 283 1-2 pounds, but further trials are necessary to determine what is an average yield. In the United States the yield varies from 12 to 25 bushels per acre, an average yield being 16 to 18 bushels; 44 pounds are reckoned to the bushel.

On ground that is badly overrun with weeds hemp may be a profitable crop to grow. When it is still young the ground between the rows can be cultivated until the hemp grows sufficiently tall to smother the weeds.

COMEDY "MOVIES" BANNED.

Manitoba's Picture Censors Say They Make Public Too Frivolous.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21.—Manitoba's Moving Picture Censor Board have banned comedy films as calculated to make the public too frivolous. This decision was partially responsible for an outburst in the Ministerial Association yesterday when the aged Dr. Duval, indignant over the appearance of the Evelyn Thaw film in Winnipeg, and the decision of the board re comedy pictures, said: "We had better get somebody on this job who will clean up the town. We have our men dying for the country daily. We should do something to make it worthy dying for, instead of permitting pictures of a New York strumpet, whose fool husband killed her paramour and properly so."

EARLY DAYS IN PETERBOROUGH AND SURROUNDING COUNTIES

When Flax Was Used For Making Harness—Sleeping in the Woods by a Log Fire at Night Until First Shanty Was Built

The first court of King's Bench that ever assembled in the counties of Northumberland and Durham was held in a barn on the premises of a Mr. Soper, who then resided in the now prosperous township of Hope. Upon this occasion it is told that the Judge (Maj. McGregor Rogers), lawyers and other officials chose sides and played a game of ball to determine who should pay the expenses of a dinner. Eobriam Gifford, a man well known throughout the counties, acted as constable upon that occasion.

The county of Northumberland at that time extended as far north as there were any settlers, and included East and West Peterborough.

Previous to this, however, there was a Court of Assize for the Newcastle district, in which Northumberland and Durham counties were included, held in the year 1803. In an act of Parliament, passed July 7, 1802, and called "an act to provide for the administration of justice in the district of Newcastle," there is this clause: "And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that a jail and courthouse for the district of Newcastle shall be erected and built in some convenient place within the town of Newcastle, in such a manner, and under the same rules and regulations, etc., as provided by a former act."

THE FIRST NEWCASTLE.

This town of Newcastle was at Presqu'Ile Point, near Brighton, and the jail and courthouse built there are said to have been the first constructed in the district between Kingston and Toronto. It was built by Captain Tullock, acting under instructions from the Lieut.-Governor, and was a big log structure, which was afterwards used as a barn. A part of the foundation is said to remain to mark the historic spot. After the fatality on the lake and the loss of the schooner Speedy, enroute from Toronto, or rather York, to Presqu'Ile with the Judge Solicitor General, prisoner, counsel and witnesses, all of whom were drowned, court was never again held at this place.

A plan of this original town of Newcastle (which, however, never materialized), was filed in the office of the Registrar at Colborne. There was included in the plan lots for a church, market, school, burying ground, prison and rectory. Thus did the early settlers of our country try to provide for the needs of the generations who would succeed them.

WHEN COBOURG BEGAN.

It is stated that after the loss of the Speedy the place of court was removed to Cobourg, which place then went by the name of Amherst. Coubourg is also said to have been known in the early days by the names of Buckville and Hamilton, after Peter Hamilton, who was an acting Governor in Canada in 1785 and 1786, and for whom the Township of Hamilton, in which Cobourg is situated, is named. The more homely name of "Hardscrabble" was colloquially applied to Cobourg, also, but this name does not appear to have ever been sanctioned by authority. Hamilton and Haldimand townships, Cobourg, and Port Hope all recived a few settlers in the last two decades of the 18th century.

Among the greatest difficulties of the early settlers in the locality was, of course, that of obtaining flour, but residents there had the advantage of those farther back from the lake, as they could go by boat to Kingston, then the site of the nearest grist mill. In 1784 a mill was erected at Belleville, which served the settlers on the lake front between that place and York or Toronto, and shortened the distance by about forty miles.

SLEEP BY LOG FIRE.

Four families, who settled in Haldimand Township, on what is known now as the Kingston road, before the year 1790, had no home to go to on their arival but the wilderness. With others they spent a winter at Sorrell, then after a year in Prince Edward county, they pushed farther west. At nights they slept beside a big log fire which served the double purpose of warmth and of keeping at bay the wild animals that were then numerous. On arriving at their location trees were cut down and log shanties built. These were covered with boughs and were soon ready for occupation. Many of the early settlers were good hunters, and consequently their tables were supplied the year round with an abundance of game. An aged descendant of one of the oldest, and at present one of the best known familes of the locality, tells that his lote grandfather's oldest brother and other contemporary young men wore their hair at full length, baided and hanging down the back, and that those who could afford it adorned this with a ribbon on the Sabbath. One of these young men, being of an independent turn of mid, electrified all the settlers in the locality by one day appearing shorn of his long tresses. At first he was laughed at, and regarded for a time as we now do the ultra-fashionable young dude. But he had the honour of setting the fashion, and it was not long before the male population adopted the same style. Tonsorial apparatus was very meagre in those days, and methods of barbering primitive. There were mothers, it is said, who solved the difficulty by combing their boy's hair down straight, fitting a basin or some such article over it, and then with a sharp pair of shears "mowing a swath around."

OLD TIME SHOEMAKER.

Travelling shoemakers went from house to house, finding usually a week's work in each. Getting out his tool kit he would sit placidly down, and proceed to make shoes for each member of the family. There were no "paper shoes" in those days. Instead the material used was reliable and substantial. Some settlers themselves tanned deer skin, out of which footwear for their familes was made.

The settler, as he started out on his hunt for game, carried with him flint and tinder, for matches were then an unknown convenience. Some times it happened that he would be belated and forced to spend a night in the woods beside a fire which he ignited by means of the flint and tinder. One family had in their possession a large sea shell called by them a "kunk shell." This, to the community in that locality, took the place of the whistle or horn which announces the noon or lunch hour in present-day industries. It was used as a dinner horn, and could be heard for a long distance. When night came, and the man of the house was still out his wife would blow upon this shell, in order that the sound might help to guide him home.

FIRST FLAX INDUSTRIES.

When land was got under cultivation, the first settlers sowed their fields of flax, out of which they manufactured in the home not only clothing, but bedding, towelling, bags, ropes and harness. A span of horses with rope tugs and lines and an old-fashioned Dutch collar, made of linen, was a frequent sight. The very first settlers had only a few sheep, and it was the custom in winter, among poor families, whose flocks were small and whose needs were great, to take a sheep in winter, and parting the wool, shear out a strip about an inch wide. Then they would part the wool in another place and shear out a similar strip until they had sufficient to make a pair of socks or mittens. The wool was quickly put through the process of cording and spinning into yarn.

ONE BUSHEL—ONE YARD

At the time of the war of 1812—1813 there was but one store in the township of Haldimand. This was in a building on the old Danforth road, east of the village of Grafton, and was owned by the late Sheriff Ruttan. In this store all sorts of commodities were kept, including a small stock of "dry goods". It is said that the storekeeper used to exchange a yard of calico for a bushel of wheat. He also carried a stock of rum, which he retailed at a dollar a quart. It is related that while some soldiers were on the march one of them entered the store with two bottles, one empty, and the other filled with water, beneath his overcoat. He ordered a quart of rum, and had it put into the empty bottle, which he replaced beneath his coat. He asked for credit, but this was refused, and he was told to return the liquor. Instead, he gave the bottle of water which was emptied into the barrel of rum, and he retired with the bottle of rum under his coat, but apparently very indignant at the usage which had been meeted out to him.

In the year 1810 the late B. M. Eddy, a resident of the locality, built a frame barn, which, of itself was quite an innovation. He needed nails and, saddling a horse, he went to Kingston, paid a quarter of a dollar a pound for his nails, put half in each end of a bag, which he put across the horse's back, and returned in four days' time, thus averaging about forty-miles a day.

PORT HOPE AS AN INDIAN VILLAGE.

In the old historical records of the tow nof Port Hope it is stated that in 1790 a man by the name of Herchimer, believed to have been a merchant from New York, who carried on a far trade with the Indians, and who was afterwards drowned on the Speedy, took possesion of a hut which had previously been occupied by Peter Smith, who was at that time engaged. Port Hope was at that time a small Indian village, consisting of a number of wigwams occupied by Mississauga Indians, and it was called by the euphonious name of Cochingomink. In 1792 a Mr. Harris, a United Empire Loyalist, and the first permanent settler, came from Nova Scotia and settled in the town in the month of June.

The Mystery of Cattle Prices

THE ups and downs of prices obtainable for cattle, hogs, wheat, eggs, beans or hay is an open book to the readers of THE GLOBE. Its unrivalled news services keep the readers informed of the ever-changing world demand.

FARMERS have come to realize that a congestion of shipping to England hammers down the Canadian prices of all products. They have come to appreciate that a shortage of supplies in Europe means higher prices at their own doors. Every fluctuation in the price of Farm Products has its beginning in some event chronicled in THE GLOBE.

THAT'S why nearly TWENTY THOUSAND wide-awake farmers religiously study THE GLOBE'S cable news. This service includes the exclusive rights to the cables of two of England's greatest papers—The London Chronicle and The London Times—and two of the greatest U. S. dailies—The New York Times and The Philadelphia Ledger.

EVERY Wednesday a real farmer talks Farming in the "FARM AND COUNTRY LIFE IN CANADA" section—two pages of useful, up-to-the-minute information.

CROUP HAS NO TERRORS FOR THE MOTHER WHO ALWAYS HAS READY AT HAND A BOTTLE OF Chamberlain's COUGH REMEDY

FACE NOTHING BUT RUNNING SORES FROM ECZEMA

No rest day or night for those afflicted with that terrible skin disease, eczema, or, as it is often called, salt rheum.

With its unbearable burning, itching, torturing day and night, relief is gladly welcomed.

There is no remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters for giving relief to such sufferers; no other remedy has done, or can do so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture. Apply it externally and it takes out the stinging, itching and burning, and promotes a healthy healing.

Take it internally and it gets at the source of the disease in the blood, and completely and permanently drives it out of the system.

Miss Mary V. Chambers, Anagance Ridge, N.B., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters for eczema. I had it when an infant, but it left me. Two years ago it came back. I used doctors' medicine, but it did good only while I used it. At last my face was nothing but a running sore. I saw in the paper what B.B.B. did for people. I took it, and to-day I am free from that terrible disease."

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HUSBANDS MAKE NEW DEMAND.

PETROGRAD—The Mohammedan Tartar men of Tchistopol district, province of Kazan, have ordered their wives and daughters each to sew half a square foot of extra material to the handkerchiefs with which they cover their heads. The women long ago ceased to veil; but when meeting unknown men they took a tab of the bow formed by tying handkerchiefs beneath the chin, and held the tab before the face in place of a veil. Unluckily, as the handkerchiefs with the passing of time grew smaller, the tabs ceased to cover the face, and the act became only a symbol. To make it again a reality husbands and fathers are insisting on bigger handkerchiefs.

A Woman's Burdens

are lightened when she turns to the right medicine. If her existence is made gloomy by the chronic weaknesses, delicate derangements, and painful disorders that afflict womankind she will find relief and emancipation from her troubles in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If she's overworked, nervous, or "run-down," she finds new life and strength. It's a powerful, invigorating tonic and nervine which was discovered and used by an eminent physician for many years, in his large medical practice among women. For young girls just entering womanhood; for women in middle life, the "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine put up without alcohol, and can be had in tablet as well as liquid form. It's not a secret prescription for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Send 10c for trial package to Dr. V. M. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch in Bridgeburg, Ont.

Hamilton, Ont. — "When passing through middle life, as in most cases of this kind, I began to fail in health. I had severe pains in my head, dizzy spells, my back ached and I had pains in my side. I became very weak and nervous. I took medicine without getting relief until I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and this medicine built me up in health and strength and I came through this critical period in a good healthy state. Women will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription very helpful during this trying time."—Mrs. Sarah Capes, 306 Robins Ave.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards — Receipts, 72 cars, with 908 cattle, 51 calves, 2,676 hogs, and 253 sheep and lambs.

There was a fairly steady market for cattle yesterday at Monday's prices, which averaged from 50c to 75 cents lower than last week's storm prices.

Cattle are again coming in more freely, though loads in some cases, were belated, and therefore held over for to-day's market. There was a steady demand for the best butcher steers and heifers and for good butcher bulls. The demand for fat cows slackened off a little and prices were not quite so firm as they have been of late.

The demand for feeders is a little quiet, prices having got a little beyond the point to make buying attractive.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Calves steady.

Hogs were down to 18.50 fed and watered.

The Events In Austria Must Have Reaction In Germany

Peace Agitation in Dual Empire is Attracting Much Attention in the German Press---"Proletariat of Germany is in Accord With Austrian Labour in the Peace Struggle" Declares German Socialist Paper--Patrol Encounters on the British Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, January 23.—Peace agitation in Austria-Hungary is attracting a great deal of attention in the German press. The Socialist paper Vorwaerts emphatically declares that the German proletariat is with Austrian labour in the peace struggle, and maintains the events in the Dual Empire must have deep reaction in Germany. "As the fruit of Jan-German propaganda," it says, "we are menaced not only with wrecking peace negotiations with Russia, but also with complete political isolation." This danger can be averted only if the German Government declares itself in agreement with Count Czernon's declaration respecting adherence to the principles of no annexations and indemnities.

Newspapers of different political stripe express frank dissatisfaction with the Austrian Government.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, January 23.—Many afternoon papers yesterday carried an item from London which read:

"Three boys, all under 16, members of the crew of the British super-Dreadnought Warspite, were arrested to-day charged with setting that vessel afire."

Some papers carried the explanation that the Warspite played a prominent part in the Jutland naval battle, and that although badly damged, she managed to reach port, but evidently she was of no further use in the first line and was converted into a training ship.

The truth is this:

"The Warspite burned Sunday in the Thames River was the wooden three-decker vessel built in 1833. She had been loaned by th British Admiralty to the Charitable Society which was training boys for a possible career in the navy. She had been moored at Woolwich for years. No one was injured in the fire."

LONDON, January 23.—There were encounters during the night southwest of St. Quentin between our troops and hostile raiding parties and patrols, the War Office reports. Three of our men are missing. A raid attempted by the enemy against our posts south of LaBasse was driven off.

No Meat In England Now For Breakfast

LONDON, January 22.—Lord Rhondda, food controller, has taken drastic measures to deal with the meat shortage. An official order was issued to-day applying to all hotels, restaurants, boarding-houses and public places, to begin forthwith. It specified two meatless days weekly—Tuesdays and Fridays in the London district, and Wednesdays and Fridays, in other parts of the kingdom. Between the hours of 5 and 10:30 o'clock in the morning no meat, poultry or game may be consumed on any day and no milk may be consumed as a beverage except by children under ten years of age.

A guest must provide his own sugar for sweetening beverages except that residents of hotels, clubs, and boarding-houses may be supplied with not exceeding six ounces of sugar weekly for this purpose, if they do not possess ordinary sugar rations.

The order gives a table indicating minutely, even to fractions, the exact amount of meat, sugar, bread, flour, butter or other fats allowed each guest for each meal, for the guidance of hotel and restaurant proprietors in their weekly dietary. Of fats only one-quarter ounce may be allowed each guest daily, of which not exceeding one-half may consist of butter and margarine.

The weekly allowance for each guest is: Meat, 30 ounces; bread, 4 pounds; flour, 14 ounces; sugar for cooking, 3 ounces; butter or fats, 8 3-4 ounces.

In weighing, two half ounces of poultry or game are reckoned the same as one ounce of meat; four ounces of bread are reckoned as three ounces of flour.

Public eating places, which do not serve meals exceeding 14d. in price, exclusive of beverages, are exempted from observing meatless days.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND LEVY.

There can be little difference of opinion as to the necessity of Peterborough contributing $60,000 to the Patriotic Fund; and though there is difference of opinion as between adding the full amount to this year's tax rate and issuing ten year debentures for the amount, most will admit that the Council adopted the cheapest and the best plan in deciding to collect the whole of the amount this year.

While the extra levy, added to a prospectively pretty stiff general tax rate will be felt by most taxpayers, it will bear pretty severely upon many persons, who are hardly able, without assistance, to meet the regular tax bill. A case is cited of a man 77 years of age, who has no more more than just enough means to make ends meet by the most rigid economy, if not denial of many of the necessaries of life. Five dollars added to the regular tax rate on his little property will constiute in his case a tremendous hardship, if not impossibility of payment. There are found to be many other similar cases, in which, while the claims of the Patriotic Fund are held as irresistible, the question is suggested whether patriotism, like charity, should not begin at home.

It was proposed that part of the fund should be raised by voluntary contribution and the balance provided by taxation. To meet the cases of hardship mentioned, would it not be a neighbourly and patriotic thing for a few of our wealthier citizens to contribute a fund to be used, under proper safeguard to avoid imposition, in paying the extra patriotic fund tax levied upon those who who are absolutely unable to pay it or who would be subjected to grievous hardship by so doing, and are willing to accept such assistance? Something like this might very properly be done, for it does not seem quite consistent, or Christian, either, in securing means for a noble cause, for the benefit of deserving subjects, to do so at the cost of hardship to subjects equally deserving, from the humane point of view.

Another reasonable objection to the raising of the fund by general taxation, is the claim made by tenants, and justified by past experience, that, in cases where the taxes are paid by the landlord, the increased taxation will be used as an excuse for raising the rent.

This is a feature a little more difficult to overcome; but a little give and take might help. Suppose a landlord, who has $5 patriotic fund levy, added to the taxes of a tenant, which according to the terms of the lease, the landlord has to pay, makes this a fairly reasonable excuse for raising the rent, say a dollar a month; and suppose the tenant says: "Leave the rent as it is; I'll pay the $5." The landlord could not reasonably refuse, and the tenant might find this the cheapest way out; for he knows that he will probably have to pay the extra dollar a month for at least a year and perhaps more; for tenants know that lowering the rent is a much slower process than raising it. This would be fair to the landlord and not so hard on the tenant; for few self-respecting tenants would wish to escape the responsibility of meeting a patriotic obligation that everybody else is compelled to meet—and at the expense of his landlord, too, who will otherwise have to pay not only the extra tax on his tenant's property, but that on the property he occupies himself.

HORSE MEAT IN LONDON

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 23.—At a meeting of the butchers of Harrow yesterday, one of their number said the shortage of meat had become so serious that the authorities had asked him to start killing horses, and he was beginning this week with a hundred head. Horse meat, he said, would perhaps not be very palatable to some, but it had to come.

Agreement Reached by Representatives of the American, British and Canadian Governments Will Provide Many Soldiers

FIRST-PAPER MEN

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 22.—Under an agreement reached by representatives of the American, British and Canadian Governments, British subjects in the United States who have taken out first papers for American citizenship will be made liable to draft into the British and Canadian armies by treaties soon to be negotiated.

The American Selective Service Act provides for enrolments of first-paper men in the National Army, and this has furnished one of the most troublesome problems for the negotiators. Now that the point has been disposed of other questions are being passed upon rapidly and the treaties to govern the drafting of British subjects here and of Americans in Great Britain and Canada probably will be ready for signing within a week.

British subjects in this country, including the first-paper men, up to 45 years of age, will be subject to draft. The United States, of course, in drafting American citizens abroad will seek only men between the ages of 21 and 31, as prescribed in the Selective Service Act.

A separate treaty is being framed for the Canadians, as they prefer that their men in the United States shall be subject to call into their own armies only.

10,300 Have Donned Khaki Since Jan. 3rd

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—It is officially announced from the Military Service Council that the number of men throughout the Dominion who have donned the khaki under the Military Service Act, from Jan. 3rd to Jan. 23rd, inclusive, totals 10,300. This does not include those who voluntarily reported and waived exemption previous to the proclamation issued on Jan. 3rd. Neither does it include those men who enlisted in the flying corps or the Canadian navy subsequent to that date. Full statistics will be published next week.

VISIT FROM THE G. O. C.

Brigadier-General Hemming Pays An Official Visit to E Company of the 1st Depot Battalion E. O. R. at the Armouries

NEW RIFLE RANGES

Brigadier General Hemming, General Officer commanding No. 3 Military District, paid an official visit of inspection to E Company, 1st Depot Battalion, Eastern Ontario Regiment, this afternoon. General Hemming not only evidenced a keen interest in the training operations but visited the kitchen, canteen, sleeping quarters, and other buildings in the Armouries. The members of E Company were busy at bayonet practice when General Hemming arrived.

That the local Company are going to get plenty of musketry instruction is evidenced by the fact that work was commenced to-day on the construction of rifle ranges in the main drill hall. A row of targets are being erected along the north wall of the building.

It was omitted to be mentioned in the Barries, Limited, Dollar Day advertisement that, in addition to the special list of bargain attractions for hat day, an extra special discount will be allowed on all the high-class furs in the store. Also, that every person is entitled to receive one Estimating Blank for the Merchants' Prizes for every dollar paid in on Dollar Day.

718 Lives Lost In Sinking of Two Steamers

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Jan. 23.—By the sinking of two steamers by the enemy in the Mediterranean about three weeks ago, 718 lives were lost, it was announced officially to-day. The announcement was made in the Commons by Thomas J. McNamara, financial secretary of the Admiralty. The announcement gave the first news of any heavy loss of life in the recent sinkings in the Mediterranean. A despatch from Tokio Jan. 4th showed that an attempt had been made by hostile submarines to attack British transports convoyed by Japanese warships, in the Mediterranean on December 30. The Japanese Admiralty announcement stated that the submarines were repulsed and the warships were not damaged.

Starvation Conditions Prevail In Northern Part Of Russia

MUST FIGHT ON SAYS LABOUR LEADER

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NOTTINGHAM, January 23. — At the opening of the annual Labour Conference Frank Purdy, the President, said that if Germany would not accept the terms President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George, and the Labour party had laid down as the minimum, we must fight on. Purdy said in view of the declarations of Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson, Germany could claim no longer she was fighting a defensive war. "We see no signs yet," he added, "that Germany and her allies are willing to accept the principles enunciated by Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Wilson, and the Labour party."

Mr. Purdy's statement that the declarations of President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George made it impossible for Germany to claim she was fighting a defensive war, but that no sign could be seen that Germany was willing to accept the principles proclaimed, was received with some dissent, crieds of "Oh" and with applause. "Will German democracy define its war aims?" Mr. Purdy asked. "Will German democracy face its government as we have faced ours?"

SOLDIER VOTE AT HOME LARGER THAN WAS THOUGHT

Between 55,000 and 60,000 Military Votes Polled on This Side of the Atlantic—Have Been Alotted to their Proper Constituencies

COURT BEGINS SOON

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.— The envelopes containing the soldiers' ballots polled on this continent and on ships within the three miles limit in Canadian waters, have all been allocated to their proper constituency, with the exception of those which are in dispute through apparent or real irregularities.

It is estimated that the soldiers' votes polled on this side of the water will total from 55,000 to 60,000. These include all soldiers not yet discharged, men engaged on guard and garrison duty, naval officers and men and soldiers in the United States recruited for Canadian service, together with certain bodies of the flying corps being trained across the border.

The total is somewhat larger than anticipated. The envelopes have been all allocated to the proper ballot boxes and it is now the task of the officials to enter the name of every voter in the poll books provided for the purpose. After that has been done, and it will take some time, the envelopes will be opened, the ballots counted and the result of the vote be ascertained. There are a number of imoprtant legal points to be decided in connection with certain of the envelopes and ballots.

The chief umpire and counter of the last resort in connection with such matters is the clerk of the Crown in Chancery. The main complication appears to arise out of the use of that clause of the Act which designates where the men shall vote and what are the residence qualifications.

MOTHER AND SON LOSE THEIR LIVES WHEN HOUSE BURNS

Gas Furnace Exploded in Ford City Home and Although Husband Tries to Save His Wife and Son His Efforts Are in Vain

HE IS IN HOSPITAL

Canadian Press Despatch:

Priestman and her three year old son were burned to death in their home on Ottawa street, Ford city, this morning.

The husband fighted the gas furnace shortly after six and was returning upstairs when a sharp explosion occurred. He rushed to the bed-room where his wife and son were sleeping and attempted to carry them downstaire to safety, but by this time the house was filled with smoke and he was forced to relinquish his burded and jump through a window. Although badly burned and choked by smoke, he tried to gain an entrance to the house, but it was a mass of flames, and he was forced to stand in the snow and watch his wife and son burn to death.

Priestman is now in the Hotel Dieu Hospital suffering from shock and injuries.

Bread Allowance in Petrograd Has Been Reduced to a Quarter of a Pound Per Day—General Suspension of Passenger Trains to Speed Transportion of Foodstuffs.

CONDITIONS ARE BAD

Canadian Press Despatch:

PETROGRAD, Jan. 23.—Public attention in North Russia is centred on the bread shortage, the lack of practically all foodstuffs, the breakdown of transportation, and commercial stagnation, as a result of the closing of banks. Moscow, Petrograd and the larger cities of North Russia have little bread.

The bread allowance in Petrograd to-day has been reduced a quarter of a pound daily and the Food Commission has limited eggs to children under three years, but eggs are not obtainable at any price. The Commission also has limited fresh meat to children between the ages of six and twelve, with half a pound monthly to each child. Potatoes have been substituted for bread at Novgorod and many other places in North Russia, but the cost is equivalent to eighty cents per pound in Petrograd, and consequently the masses of people cannot buy them.

The general suspension of passenger trains began to-day in an effort to speed the transportation of foodstuffs from Siberia and South Russia to the North. Locomotives and cars are badly disabled, and traffic is hindered by masses of wandering soldiers from all sections of the country, who insist that their trains have precedence over freight. Practically all trains now arriving at Petrograd are crowded with soldiers, the windows in many of the passenger coaches having been broken in by passengers to get air. Only two drawls on chicks are limited to 500 rubles to each depositor daily and long lines form at the banks because of the long delays and difficulty in getting money. The Bolsheviki authorities are opening safe deposit boxes and confiscating hearded gold and silver for the government and turning over hoarded paper money into current bank counts for the owners.

Street cars and lighting plants have suspended operations frequently in Petrograd because of lack of fuel. Street car lines when operating are so crowded by soldiers and refugees that many of the rolling stock is being broken down. In Moscow the car lines are in worse condition than here. Soldiers and sailors have become pests throughout North Russia and are making excursions into the country and returning to cities with bread, meat, tobacco and sugar. Although some shops are without stocks, streets are lined with soldiers offering supplies at high prices. Illuminating oil is not obtainable in Petrograd and candles are selling at seventy-five cents a pound. One pound of sugar is allowed each person monthly by card at twenty-two cents per pound, but sugar bought without a card costs seventy-five cents a pound. Flour is not obtainable at any price and black bread, when bought with cards, costs five cents a pound when available. Despatches from many points in the Samara and Moscow districts report starvation conditions.

Rush To Fire Sale Is As Big As Ever

Elliot Store Continues to Do a Record Business Although Sale Has Been Running Over a Week

Though the Elliott fire sale has been running for over a week now, there is no sign of any falling off in the count of business being done in the big store. The stream of customers is as large as ever and splendid as were the bargains that were snapped up by last week's buyers, there are plenty of snaps still offering, and be the business of the shoppers does not seem to have been dulled in the least. The firm have an increased sales staff and they are all needed to handle the crowds.

Frank Jenne says:

The best investment a man can make is to buy a Suit or Overcoat now. The values in this January Sale are greater than the figures indicate, for there will be an actual famine in wool fabrics if the war continues through the year 1918. Not one of the Suits and Overcoats I offer for sale will be double in prices before the end of the year. "Come to Me."

LTER LAWRENCE IN A NEW IRISH PLAY

new Irish comedy drama will be at "The Grand" next Monday, a new star in this particular of play, Mr. Walter Lawrence chosen for his vehicle a charm- four-act drama entitled "Come to Erin." The story is far re- ed from the usual hackneyed ne, and the characters are breath- types as we find them in Ireland day.

r. Lawrence, aside from being a rst-class comedian, has the reputation ing a remarkably fine singer, his e being heard to advantage dur- the action of the play, at which he introduces famous old Irish ads, and some new ones equally good. Two of the songs which are king a tremendous hit are "Come k And Love Me Again," and a by novelty with an irresistible ne entitled, "Come Over and Join Party."

he action of the play begins in erica, and is concluded in Dun- e, Ireland. A healthy atmosphere the old Sod prevails throughout, l one can, with a little stretch of imagination, actually feel they mselves are looking on from an ad- antageous spot in the bewitching lit- Irish town.

'Kyllis Grey, Mr. Lawrence's lead- lady, who has been rapidly com- to the fore, makes an attractive l appealing Kathleen, the sweet- rt of Dan Maguire. The other prin- al characters of the play are made stand out prominently through the rk work of Helen Courtney, Rena rdell, Victor Stone, Chas. W. r and J. P. MacSweeney.

orge Latchford Charged With Be- ing a Deserter, Remanded for Five Days.

George Latchford, who was arrested t night at 6 o'clock at the C.G.E. rks, appeared before Magistrate mble this morning charged with g a deserter, under the M.S.A. claimed to be two months over draft age, but the Kingston au- rities regard him as eligible and der 35 years of age. The informa- n sheet received by Chief Thomp- n bore no official signature, and agistrate Dumble refused to act, he clared, until he had proper in- ructions.

"They should be taught to do their siness better than that. I have thing before me that I can pro- d with."

Latchford alleged that he had not ceived notice to report for service. Chief Thompson remarked that this s probably due to the prisoner's aving from Lindsay to Peterbor- gh, to Omemee, and back again Peterborough, where he has been ving on Sherbrooke Street.

He was remanded for 5 days, and inquiry will be asked for a regularly gned form sheet and definite par- culars about Latchford.

FRENCH PREMIER VISITS TROOPS IN THE FIRST LINE TRENCHES

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Premier Clemenceau has returned to Paris after two days on the French front. He visited two important sectors, spending Saturday among the soldiers in the trenches of the first line, where he talked with the Poilus, who welcomed him with much enthusiasm.

The Government's action in increasing the pay of the troops and augmenting the allowance of wine made an excellent impression.

The Premier also visited several camps where soldiers are resting after a period in the trenches. He was greatly impressed by the splendid spirits of the troops, and expressed satisfaction with conditions in the zone of the armies.

On Saturday Allied aviators, thanks to improved weather conditions, brought down sixteen German planes. The French destroyed six and sent down two others badly damaged in the enemy lines. The British destroyed five and put out of commission three.

Hartshorn Sisters Are in Sidney

In spite of the disappointment caused by the illness of Evangelist Sharpe which delayed his coming for one week, and in the face of Sunday's blizzards and the consequent bad roads, the meetings have assumed proportions beyond expectations. On Monday evening, and at each meeting, requests are brought for prayer or converts to Christ. The Hartshorn Sisters, Peterborough, evangelistic singers, arrived on Tuesday evening, and their singing wins the way for the "good tidings," and adds to the brightness of the experience of the workers. The members of the church are rising to the challenge on all the appointments, and loads of twenty-five and more are coming in from Scott's and the Stone Church, as men are consecrating their teams to the cause of soul-saving and a higher Christian life. The good name and sterling qualities of the evangelist and the Hartshorn Sisters find proof in the fact that people are coming from Stirling, the Oak Hills, Foxboro, and Frankford, through almost impassable roads.—Com.

"EAVESDROPPING" CHARGE.

Montreal. — Charged with "eavesdropping" Thomas E. Mason, Papineau avenue, has been arrested by the police for using a detectaphone to listen to the conversation of representatives of Grand Trunk Railway employees in a room in the Windsor Hotel. The charge is made under an old British common law. Mason appeared before Judge Lanctot and pleaded not guilty.

LINDSAY HAS ANOTHER INDUSTRIAL PROPERTY FOR SALE

Lindsay Warder: If Ald. Baker's ideas are adopted by the Town Council, there will be "something doing" in regard to the Fitzsimmons Auto Body Works factory in the near future, whereby the town will secure something for money invested.

On Monday night Ald. Baker informed the Town Council: "The factory is still in the hands of the assignee and has been advertised for sale in the Toronto papers, without results. The solicitor stated that the building should be advertised for sale in the local papers. Our interests in factory business is about $13,000. He recommended that the town should get possession of the property and then put it on the market at the least possible value. It will cost us $1,500 a year to carry it, but we should get some kind of a tenant there. We don't want it on our hands like the Sylvester site. We should own it and then unload it."

Ald. Baker stated that he had an offer for the building.

The general opinion was that the Council should get possession of the building at once. At present the town is getting no more rent from Mr. Fitzsimmons.

Ald. Baker: "It will cost you $1,500 to carry it. That would go to offset any loss we will have on the sale of the building. Then we would get a new man, a new factory and increased taxes, etc."

It appears that a gentleman working in the same business (manufacturing auto bodies) has looked over the site on different occasions and is a likely prospective buyer.

On motion, the chairman of town, property and finance were instructed to look into the entire matter, the Council placing an estimate on the building.

BROKE HER ARM IN TWO PLACES

Mrs. Edward Bird the Victim of a Painful Accident

Mrs. Edward Bird, wife of Pte. Edward Bird, a local returned soldier who is on duty as orderly at the Armouries, was the victim of a very painful accident on Aylmer Street last evening, when she fell on the pavement and sustained a double fracture of the left arm. Mrs. Bird was taken into the office of Dr. Gallivan, where the fracture was reduced.

OAK HALL BICYCLE WILL RUN 67 HOURS.

Committee Appointed to Deal With Tied Estimate Should There Be Any.

The bicycle to be given away by Oak Hall on Dollar Day is proving a great attraction. Since it was started by Mayor Duncan at 9.12 a.m. on Saturday morning, it has run 12 hours a day steady.

Yesterday something went wrong with the motor and it was out of commission for 12 minutes. This was adjusted by Mr. Millard, and started at 12 minutes to 9 this morning.

The bicycle will run to 6.12 p.m. on Dollar Day, making up for the 12 minutes lost on Saturday.

In all the bicycle will have run 67 hours.

Should there be more than one guess nearest to correct miles run, Mayor Duncan and Mr. R. M. Glover, with the parties tied, will be a committee to arrange a disposition satisfactory to all concerned.

Make hay while the sun shines is the slogan for To-morrow. What would you do if you were the merchant? You would take your fall and winter lines and mark them down for Dollar Day. New spring shipments are arriving—we are doing as you would do after a season of good selling—we are marking down prices to clearance figures. Of course there is merchandise that is not subject to the change of season, but big buying on such lines has enabled us to offer you genuine reductions that can be had only on Dollar Day.

The BARGAIN ANNEX is Open To-morrow and we have prepared a list of immense values. Not an immense list of values. You will find a few mentioned in the lower section of this advertisement. The Annex is renowned for its excellent bargains, and To-morrow it will outdo itself, for Dollar Day has given it a fresh incentive. A sample of the reductions can be had if you inspect the Flannelette Blankets that are displayed in the George Street Window. See lower section of ad. for particulars.
